MISS WINIFRED EMERY makes her début on the variety stage at the Hippodrome on Monday, Feb. 21, when she will portray the part of a celebrated actress in a one-act play of the "powder and puff" period, by Mr. James Bernard Fagan, entitled The Dressing Room. Miss Emery has accepted an invitation to go to Stratford-on-Avon during the Shakespeare Memorial Week, to appear as Beatrice in Much Ado About Nothing.

MR. H. F. MALTBY, the author of The Youngest of Three and that clever comedy The Laughter of Fools, is taking a well-earned rest at Eastbourne. Mr. Maltby's idea of holiday-making is a strenuous one, for he is busily engaged on a new three-act comedy entitled The Woman Who Helps, which he intends to produce during his autumn tour.

THE example of eminent dramatic artists in crossing over to the music hall is to be followed by famous representatives of the lyric stage. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners (Mme. Fanny Moody), who have carried the banner of opera to the remotest parts of the kingdom, have accepted an engagement at the Hippodrome and the Coliseum, and will open at one of those popular houses in the autumn.

MISS PEARL NOYLE commences her third tour on Monday next with Mr. Andrew Melville's The Diver's Luck company at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, playing Peggy, a part she has already played some 314 times. This engagement makes Miss Noyle's seventh under the Melville management.

BY the kindness of the directors of the Grand Opera House, Belfast, a matinée performance of the Aladdin pantomime was given on the 19th inst., in aid of the funds of the Ulster Hospital for Women and Children. At the close of the first act, Dr. J. D. Williamson, J.P., came before the curtain, and on behalf of the committee of the hospital expressed the gratitude of the directors to all who had through their support of the pantomime helped to make the matinée a success. He said their thanks were especially due to the directors of Messrs. Warden, Ltd., and he would like to congratulate the managing-director, Mr. Fred Warden, on the triumph which he had achieved in the production of the pantomime.

THE football teams of members of the Theatre Royal and Prince of Wales's Theatre pantomimes, Birmingham, have arranged to play a match at the Mount Pleasure Park, a beautiful country resort within six miles of the city, where there is a specially laid football field.

AT a meeting of the Pembrokeshire Standing Joint Committee at Haverfordwest this week, the question of the granting of theatrical licences came up for consideration. The Clerk reported that with regard to the difficulty about the granting of theatrical licences that the Public Works Committee had resolved to recommend that the application for these licences be not made to the District Councils, but to the magistrates of the county, and that in the case of towns such as Pembroke Dock, Pembroke, Tenby, and Haverfordwest, where there were separate commissions for the peace for borough justices, the county justices be asked to hold a sessions within those towns for the purpose of granting licences.

THE old Theatre Royal in Crown Hill, Croydon, which is fast being pulled down to make room for the new Stoll Hippodrome, was built by a Mr. Solomon, with the Royal Hotel, adjoining. It stood on the site of an older theatre, which was afterwards used as the Literary Institute and a Mr. Paull's school, though a still older theatre stood opposite in Crown Hill which was afterwards used as a store-room by Newbury, a furniture dealer. The theatre which is just disappearing was opened as a circus with a French company, and afterwards altered into an ordinary theatre. The new music-hall which is now to take the place of the old show is to have an entrance from North End.

A PLEASANT little ceremony was performed at the Anchor Hotel, Brighouse, on Saturday evening last. The Albert Theatre having changed hands, Mr. George D. Coe relinquished his position as manager. Though he has occupied the post only a short time Mr. Coe has made himself popular, in proof of which he was presented with a purse of gold by Mr. Major L. Hornsey, the musical director of the theatre, on behalf of a few friends of the recipient. Mr. Coe has been engaged by Mr. John Walters to manage the Court Theatre, Bacup, for a few weeks while Mr. Walters is away touring his own pantomime.

THE twelfth annual meeting of shareholders of the Portsmouth Theatres, Ltd., will be held in the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, on Thursday next, at noon. In submitting their report and accounts for the year ended Dec., 1909, the directors state that the profits for 1909 were £1,347 more than the previous year. They have no doubt as to the expediency of paying interim dividends at the usual rate on the share capital of the company, and have appropriated from the reserve fund, specially provided for that purpose out of past profits, the sum sufficient to meet the payment of the usual balance dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, less income tax, on the ordinary shares, which they recommend should be declared.

THE Poets' Club held one of their interesting "Garret Gatherings," on Tuesday evening, at the studio of Mr. Philip Streatfeild, the well-known artist. One of the most important events of the evening was the rendering of Oscar Wilde's Endymion by Miss Elia Erskine, to music especially composed by Mr. Cyril Scott. Nothing more delightful could be imagined than the way in which this talented actress recited the wonderful lines of the dead poet, and the music of Mr. Scott (who accompanied her) was so imbued with the meaning of the poem that one could not recall the words without remembering the music. It is to be sincerely hoped that Miss Erskine and Mr. Scott will have ample opportunity of repeating their triumph.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A Last Resource.

SIR HERBERT TREE (says Cassell's) was once prevailed upon in his kindness of heart to engage a servant-girl out of the workhouse. She was desperately untidy, and, after various attempts to teach her method, Lady Tree told her husband that it was no use, the girl must really go. "Oh, try her a little longer," urged Sir Herbert. And she was granted a respite. However, it was all in vain, and to Sir Herbert Tree, as he had engaged the girl, fell the task of getting rid of her. He told her that if she did not mend her ways she must return to the workhouse. "Oh, no, I shan't," she snapped out, rudely, "I'll get another situation." "But I cannot give you a character," returned the actor, "and you will find it very difficult to get another situation without a character." "Perhaps!" was the retort. "At all events, if the worst should come to the worst, I can always go on the stage."

"Any Complaints?"

AT Tolmer's Institute, St. Pancras, on Saturday last, Mrs. H. B. Irving presented a number of prizes to the most promising cooks of the School for Mothers. Over 150 mothers and about fifty rejoicing fathers attended the prize-giving tea party of the cookery class. Mrs. Irving, who wore a large white linen apron, said when she was a little girl of six she remembered hearing her father say, "How is it I can't get a chop cooked decently except at the club?" She determined that when she grew up her husband should never complain that she could not cook. "And," added Mrs. Irving, "although I have been married fifteen years, he never has." There are a great many husbands who never have—complained. But Mr. H. B. Irving never has had cause to.

Resting His Legs.

Mr. FRANCIS WILSON, the American comedian, has confessed that in writing The Bachelor's Baby, the comedy that has scored a distinct success at the Criterion Theatre, New York, he wanted the public to forget his legs and credit him with having a little intellect. It should be explained that in a series of comic operas Mr. Wilson's inability to stand still, and his knack of falling downstairs and over things, kept his audience in roars of laughter. Now he says, "I think my legs should enjoy a well-earned rest."

A Great Inducement.

A DELICIOUS story is told in the Daily Mail by Mr. Harold Montague, of the "Vagabonds" concert party. "On tour," said Mr. Montague, "one has all sorts of weird communications, and the offers one gets—with inducements—would make your hair curl. Here is a sample: 'Dear Sir,—We are giving a concert next Wednesday in aid of the parish choir outing. The entertainment will consist of glees and solos by members of the choir, but we want a professional soloist to enliven the evening. We can only offer you half a guinea, but, if it is any inducement, we may mention that the gentleman who came down last year married a lady out of the audience.'"

An American Appreciation.

THE New York Tribune says: "How lightly the years touch Sir Charles Wyndham! He and his art conquer time. The best that could be wished for young players is that they might have such youth as he has now. Who shall dare hope that they will attain to such art, and mellow it with such experience, as his? There is no greater pleasure for lovers of comedy than the one that comes from Wyndham's acting. All that is best in the art of comedy is beheld in any performance by this famous actor."

No Sky Borders.

Mr. HILTON, who in the course of his Strand Theatre season will produce Mr. Rider Haggard's Cleopatra, says in the Pall Mall: "It is one of the finest plays, in my opinion, that has been written for some years. It follows very closely the book, and it is going to be quite a big spectacle, though not over elaborate, because I do not believe in that. I believe in scenery that is adequate, and in getting as near nature as possible. The theatrical 'borders,' for example, which often remind one of a clothes-line, I shall get rid of entirely, and have the sky right up." Sky borders have always been a trouble, and Sir Hubert Herkomer's experiment in getting rid of them in an amateur performance at Bushey was not entirely satisfactory. Mr. Hilton's attempt to do so is eagerly awaited.

The Press and the Stage.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—The recent incident at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, when Mr. Arthur Goode, "Our Man" of the Evening News, successfully played a small "scene" in Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan's beautiful production of Cinderella, was engineered by Mr. W. Scott Phipp, who also wrote and supervised the little scene betwixt "Our Man," Cinderella (Miss Dorothy Rundell), and Capers (Mr. Bobbie Walker), the practical side of the stage-management being in the capable hands of Mr. Augustus Hammond. The experiment was in every way a success, and Mr. Arthur Goode, though he had never been on a stage before, bore his trying ordeal with stolid courage.

Black and White.

AT a recent performance of Othello in Port au Prince, Hayti, with the exception of Othello himself, who was impersonated by a European, all the actors and actresses were natives, Desdemona being played by a handsome young negro girl. The scene of the play was transferred from Venice to a prosperous city in the United States, and the jealous lover was made not as a noble Moor but as a thriving American merchant. In the last scene, when the audience beheld the swarthy Desdemona being smothered by her white-faced husband, they protested indignantly, and hurled missiles at the stage. The situation was saved by the manager, who, after requesting the spectators to refrain from expressing their opinions until they had seen the end reserved for Othello, ushered in three natives, who fell on the pale rascal, knocked him down, and trampled on him, amid boisterous cheering from the house.

A Public Box.

FRAULEIN IDA ROLAND, one of the prominent members of the Hebbel Theatre Company, distinguished herself last week by boxing the ears of a well-known Berlin critic, Herr Siegfried Jacobsohn, as he was about to leave the Deutsches Theatre after a first-night performance. The lady's ire had been aroused by some very personal remarks of a private nature recently made in Herr Jacobsohn's paper—a small theatrical organ. Crying "You'll understand what this is for," the actress rushed forward and administered the box, while the crowd of spectators prevented further attack, otherwise Herr Jacobsohn would have probably received another.

Wyndham on Hamlet.

AT the annual dinner of the Theatrical Managers' Association in New York Sir Charles Wyndham, who was introduced by Mr. Charles Burnham, the president of the Association, said:—"We should leave the future of the drama to those critics from Matthew Arnold to Hamlet who knew nothing about it. Look at Hamlet, a raw amateur, having gained his experience by practising on his relatives and friends, as all amateurs do, and he tried to tell experienced actors how to speak their lines. With his assurance in a single month he would have become a single star."

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

THE LATE MR. CHAS. J. DAVIES.

AN APPRECIATION BY TOM CRAVEN.

Quietly, impressively, tenderly, in the presence of relatives and friends the mortal remains of Mr. C. J. Davies, for thirty years secretary to the Royal General Theatrical Fund, were given back to Mother Earth on Monday last in Norwood Cemetery. Many of the directors of the Fund, headed by Mr. Edward Terry, to whose invaluable and untiring services in his capacity of hon. treasurer this grand old provident theatrical institution owes so much, attended the obsequies, and one and all gave silent tribute—one and all felt the keenest sorrow at the loss of a friend and comrade whose upright, manly, and genial behaviour as secretary for over thirty years to the Fund they will long hold in affectionate remembrance. Among those present were Mr. Charles Rock, Mr. Dillon Croker, Mr. Craven, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, Mr. H. Marriott, Mr. Turner, Mr. Metcalf, Mr. Rabbetts, Mr. C. I. Coltson, Mr. W. Sarjeant, Mr. Arthur Sarjeant, Mr. Spencer Edwards, &c. Very beautiful wreaths were sent by the directors and trustees of the Royal General Theatrical Fund, the directors of Drury Lane Theatre, the Yorick Club, Mr. H. B. Irving, Messrs. Lumley and Lumley, and a large number by his private friends. Before Mr. Davies absolutely succumbed he had three illnesses; but he fought his complaint with admirable pluck and fortitude. He died practically in harness, full of solicitude for the "Old Fund," as he termed it to the last. Tended with touching devotion by his loving wife, he went over to the great majority manfully and resignedly, fortunately escaping the acute pain which, had he lingered, would have been his lot. Mr. Davies' father was Captain John Davies, of the Royal Navy. Mr. Davies filled, after leaving college, an important position in the Admiralty, and when in middle age he joined the Fund as secretary he gained an enviable reputation for integrity, capability, and assiduity, and a legion of friends for his never-failing good fellowship. The reason of his universal popularity is not far to seek. Ever tolerant, consistent, courteous, and sympathetic, he was an ideal secretary, and held with honour and distinction a post needing no little tact and diplomacy. Under the invaluable guidance of the deeply-respected chairman, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Davies watched over an institution which has made smooth the declining years of so many actors and actresses. Punctilious and reliable in business, Davies had simplicity of manner, and the heart of a child. He was never heard to say an unkind word to or of anybody. Nobility, gentry, and City magnates ever extended towards him a hearty welcome; and seldom did he fail to pleasantly secure their patronage and substantial aid. Unostentatious to a remarkable degree, he did many spontaneous, kindly little acts of philanthropy "on his own," and many needy actors and journalists would have wandered supperless to their attics had it not been for the readily-bestowed bounty of "dear old Charlie." In the giving, he seemed to derive extreme satisfaction, and albeit he must frequently have been the victim of plausible imposition, he never regretted his generosity. He was a man of peculiarly modest tastes and requirements, and found in the society of his wife and cosy, reposeful home the best part of his mild recreation. His pipe, a few old cronies, a game of "31" or "Patience" summed up the list of his dissipations. He was never more in his element than when striving to secure a new subscribor to the Provident Fund. The following is a sample of the inducemnts he would bring to bear when discoursing with a young actor upon the inestimable advantages of becoming a member:—

CHARLIE: I say, my boy, why don't you join our Fund. The younger you are the less you'll have to pay. No life assurance society can offer you such returns for so small a quarterly payment. For a comparatively small sum you could (after subscribing for seven years), if incapacitated entirely through ill-health, draw a yearly annuity of £120. Why don't you buy the Fund's umbrella for the rainy day?

ACTOR (who has previously been talking of his houseboat on the river): Can't afford it, dear boy—things are too rotten—absolutely. I haven't got the stuff.

CHARLIE: Sell the houseboat.

ACTOR: Couldn't live without it—"impos."

CHARLIE: Give up bridge.

ACTOR: Life would be a blank.

CHARLIE: Knock off cigarettes. You must smoke fifty a day.

ACTOR: Why not drown myself?

CHARLIE: Fancy, too, if you keep your health and attain the moderate age of sixty you can draw the £120 a year for the rest of your life.

ACTOR: When I'm sixty—sixty? Good heavens, man, at that age I shall either have a row of theatres or be under the turf. Well, so long. I'm off to golf—eh, what?—

And so on, ad lib. But undaunted, Charlie would meet the young actor again and again, and never lose heart, although perhaps he might meet with variable success.

He had a keen sense of humour, and enjoyed a joke. One morning he said to a friend: "Say, old boy, how would you define my position—what is a secretary, really?" "Well," was the reply, "a secretary is a sort of a kind of—'er—exalted amanuensis." "Dickens didn't think so," replied the questioner. "What does he say in 'Our Mutual Friend'?—'We have always believed a "secretary" to be a piece of furniture, mostly of mahogany, lined with green baize or leather, with a lot of little drawers in it.'"

Long and blameless his life, Davies' memory will long remain green in the hearts of those who knew and loved him.

GEORGE ALEXANDER'S ANNIVERSARY.

On Tuesday Mr. George Alexander concludes the twentieth year of his management. His career has been phenomenal in its strong sustained rise. Without any obvious effort, he has moved steadily upwards, and it is hard to say at what point of his career he made any remarkable leap or bound. His prosperity is greatly due to the thoroughness and soundness of his early training. Mr. Alexander has been so identified in the imagination of the public with the cool, fascinating, and fashionable hero of "society" plays, that we are in danger of forgetting how varied and valuable has been his experience. He is no carpet knight, but a warrior well-seasoned in dramatic warfare. Born at Reading in 1858, Mr. Alexander is of pure Scotch origin. His mother had never been in a theatre in her life. His father had, but hated the stage intensely. He was a Scotch manufacturer, and ardently desired that his son should succeed him in his mills. But it ended in Mr. Alexander's going against his parents' wishes on the stage. His first engagement was with Mr. W. H. Vernon and Miss Ada Swanborough, who were touring The Snowball, A Lesson in Love, and Cool as a Cucumber, and he made his first appearance at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, in the autumn of 1879. Then for over two years he played "juvenile lead" with Mr. T. W. Robertson's Caste company. When Sir Henry Irving revived Two Roses at the Lyceum in the December of 1881, Mr. Alexander was engaged for the part of Caleb Deecie. He was afterwards secured by the Kendals to play the part of Victor Riel in Impulse; he took part in Miss Mary Anderson's production of Comedy and Tragedy at the Lyceum in 1884; went to America with the Lyceum company in the same year, and appeared as Faust at the Lyceum in 1886. In the series of revivals which preceded Sir Henry Irving's visit to America in 1887, Mr. Alexander played important parts in The Bells, The Merchant of Venice, Louis XI., and Werner. Nor was melodrama omitted from Mr Alexander's curriculum, for, in 1889 at the Adelphi, he appeared as the hero of London Day by Day.

After this very varied experience of the stage, Mr. Alexander commenced his managerial career by producing Dr. Bill at the Avenue Theatre on Feb. 1, 1890. That very funny farce was the first of Mr. Alexander's many successes, but perhaps one of the best remembered of these is The Idler, which he produced at the St. James's in the February of 1891. But his status as a manager was very firmly established by that remarkable play Lady Windermere's Fan, presented by him in 1892, and by the "crowning mercy" of The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, in which he appeared as Aubrey Tanqueray, on May 27, 1893. The Importance of Being Earnest, produced by him on Feb. 14, 1894, and now being played at the St. James's, was a gem of its kind, and Mr. Alexander's performance of it is a model of quaint and quiet comedy. Among his other notable successes to be remembered are Liberty Hall, The Masqueraders, Paola and Francesca, The Prisoner of Zenda, The Ambassador, If I were King, Old Heidelberg, His House in Order, The Thief, John Glayde's Honour, The Builder of Bridges, and two Shakespearean productions, As You Like It and Much Ado About Nothing.

Mr. Alexander's view of things is essentially practical; and yet he is intensely and instinctively artistic. He thinks the two can be easily combined. There are always well-meaning people in the world who believe it is their mission in life to teach others how to mind their own business. In particular is this so in the theatrical world, where so much common sense is required. Nobody knows but an actor-manager behind the scenes how difficult it is to run a theatre, not to please everybody, but to cater for a certain section of the public to whom you wish to make an appeal.

Mr. Alexander is justly proud of the number of entirely English pieces which he has produced. The literary drama has in him a strong advocate; but not the merely literary. "Not the bookish drama," he says, "which is all tediousness and irrelevant description. With the literary qualities must be the true accompaniments of plot and story, and they are action. Let the literary drama, the polished comedy, and the poetic pastoral be active and not passive, and it will succeed. There is a large public taking to the reading of the printed play. But the public won't buy the printed play that only acts well, and is full of business and sensational episodes. It must be well written, and gems of thought, as in the old dramatists, must not be scattered too scantily."

Mr. Alexander, in the course of his career, has been greatly interested in the unacted author and aspirant to the stage. At one time he used to read quite three hundred plays a year. He doesn't believe in delegating his duties in this respect, which probably accounts for the many successful pieces which he has chosen. He is not fond of relying on the judgment of others. After he had accepted The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, he submitted the piece to a clever cultured friend who said, "If you are going to produce this, heaven help the box-office."

Many of the pieces produced by him at the St. James's with success have been much altered and rewritten by the authors at his suggestion. Sometimes they have not taken his advice. A notable example was the case of Lady Windermere's Fan, when Mr. Alexander differed from Mr. Oscar Wilde on the subject of revealing Mrs. Erlynne's identity. Mr. Alexander implored the author to alter his plot on this point. Wilde was obdurate, but on the first night every critic saw the fault, and Wilde relented, admitted that Mr. Alexander had been right all through, and altered the play accordingly for the second performance.

On Wednesday evening Mr. Alexander presents to each member of the audience, as a souvenir of his twentieth anniversary, a copy of a special edition of Oscar Wilde's comedy The Importance of Being Earnest.

Mr. Alexander is very much indebted to his comrades who have done so much to help him in making history at the St. James's, and in looking round at the various stars in the dramatic firmament he finds nearly all of them have served under his banner at some time or another.

MISS LOIE ESMOND'S company in The Sorrows of Satan and Nana is at the Crewe Opera House. In the first-named, played on Monday night, Mr. Edward Neville was a pronounced success as the Prince Lucio Rimanez; Mr. Walter H. Wilson was exceedingly clever as Geoffrey Tempest; and Mr. J. L. Flemming gave a good portrayal of the Earl of Elton. Miss Rosie Neville acted with skill and grace the rôle of Lady Sybil Elton; Miss L. Esmond's rendering of Diana Chesney was a finished piece of work; and Miss Dorothy was a charming Mavis Clare.

MR. PERCY NORMAN'S No. 1 company in the Russian military drama A Woman Worth Winning is at the Wexford Theatre Royal. Mr. Gilbert Standing does well as Amos Pauloff; Mr. Carl Kirzo is a manly Fergus Lovinsky; Mr. A. B. Mackay a powerful General Borinski; Mr. Jack Corlass an excellent Fedor Petronvitch; and Mr. William Burnett, as the mysterious No. 23, gripped the attention of the audience. Mr. C. W. Black gives a humorous character sketch of a newspaper correspondent, and Mr. Harry Stuart is an amusing Peter Popples, his efforts being ably seconded by Miss Ida Mackay as Katerini Kess. Miss Margaret Noble, in the rôle of Roma Pauloff, acts sympathetically, and Miss Trixie Leighton as Lola is very good.

CLARKSON AND "CHANTECLER."

Chantecler; or, the Drama of Cock-a-doodle-do, the famous bird and animal play, that has vied with the floods in France in its intensity of interest, is likely to be the cause of many law suits. The first of them to be tried in the Parisian law courts in about three weeks from the present time, is of especial interest to members of the profession in this country, for it affects a gentleman known and respected in every theatre—legitimate or variety—throughout broad Britain. We refer to Mr. Willie Clarkson, the famous perruquier and costumier.

When M. Jean Rapoport (Mr. Clarkson's advocate) tells the story in the Parisian law courts there will be, we are promised, one or two dramatic surprises in store for the public concerning French theatrical managers.

The Era representative was told a great deal about the trouble by Mr. Clarkson, who, whilst willing to outline the story, naturally desired to keep the dramatic surprises to himself for the present. It is difficult to condense the many matters that have taken place since, seven years ago, when M. Edmond Eugène Alexis Rostand started to write Chantecler, but briefly it may be said that the interest of the play is concentrated on the fact that all the actors appear as birds or beasts. The moral would seem to be that in human life, as in the poultry yard, the animal that crows the loudest gets to the front, and this idea came to M. Rostand's mind one day when passing a farmyard where he found pigeons, hens, ducks, geese, and guineafowl, to say nothing of a sleeping cat and a restless dog. Suddenly the cock put in an appearance, and his domineering manner, his appearance of superiority to all the animals that surrounded him, gave M. Rostand his idea. The birds of the night want the cock's life, but the others, fearful that if the cock dies the sun will never be seen again, hesitate to kill him. Once, however, Chantecler oversleeps himself and yet the sun appears.

The first of the series of anticipated dress rehearsals was fixed for February, 1903. Seven years have passed, and during that time the expectation of M. Rostand's play has not waned, but has grown so keen that it has been one of the chief topics at French dinner-tables. From 1903 onwards a succession of "first nights" has been announced. But each in turn has faded away, mirage-like, as the appointed day approached, and the latest date fixed—yesterday—for the last dress rehearsal, which in Paris is really the first night, has been cancelled just as the first was seven years ago. Everything had been prepared for the performance. The house had been sold out for fabulous prices. Now the floods which are paralysing Paris have necessitated a fresh postponement. As now arranged, the curtain will rise on Chantecler at the Théâtre de la Porte St. Martin on Monday next.

"Now," Mr. Clarkson told our representative, "when M. Coquelin was at His Majesty's Theatre in July, 1908, he called at Wardour-street, and saw some of my animal and bird dresses. These so pleased him that he suggested my making the costumes for the forthcoming performances of Chantecler. In a weak moment I undertook to oblige him. Then my troubles commenced, as great difficulty arose in getting the movements of the head, wings, &c., of the cock-a-doodle-do to work correctly, and although several experiments were tried, they were all of no avail.

"So I thought the only thing to do would be to have a real bird and to watch his movements.

"It so happened that one of my men knew a place at Hendon where he could get the breed of cock required, so he went, purchased it, and brought it to Wardour-street. After a very little while the bird got quite used to his new home, and at meal times he would walk round the workrooms picking up all the crumbs without the slightest fear. That bird proved a great help to the working of the costumes, and to his movements I was indebted for many suggestions.

"I met M. Hertz at the Savoy Hotel, and went through the sketches with him. I also saw M. Coquelin, and he explained to me how he wanted the sketches worked out and what his own costume was to be.

"I threw myself heart and soul into the task, and paid many visits to the Savoy as early as eight o'clock in the morning, taking designs and costumes for inspection and approval. Then M. Coquelin returned to Paris, and several times I journeyed across to the French capital laden with costumes and effects. I next went to see M. Rostand at his home at Cambo, in the Pyrenees, taking several assistants at my own cost.

"One of my assistants, who had been chosen because of his likeness to the great Coquelin, put on the costume of the Gallic cock. The whole family went into the garden, where Chantecler strutted on the lawn and under the trees in the rays of the sun, which was brilliant and golden that day. M. Rostand and his wife and children were stirred to cries of enthusiasm, and afterwards the great dramatist sketched out designs for other cocks, which we reproduce.

"I returned next day to Paris, and every evening went to Porte St. Martin Theatre. There I saw the late M. Coquelin, who had just received a letter from Cambo saying how perfect my costumes were, and congratulating him on the great success they would certainly achieve when the play was produced.

"Naturally, I returned to London elated, and got my people—sixty in number—hard at work on the dresses.

"Exactly a year ago—that is, in January last—M. Hertz informed me that he had not definitely decided to have my costumes.

"As I held his contract, and had spent over £400 in travelling and hotel expenses alone, I naturally told M. Hertz that I should hold him to it. He then wrote me suggesting that I should do part of the things. I referred him to my solicitor. My suit is for £2,000, and as I was, acording to my contract, to have done the work for the six Continental towns, you see my loss has been very considerable. M. Jean Rapoport, my advocate, is accounted to be one of the cleverest men of law in France, and that fact, combined with these documents (here Mr. Clarkson waved a bundle of letters above his head) should win me my case, don't you think? Anyhow, wish me luck, won't you?"

For the world's acting rights in Chantecler M. Hertz, joint manager with M. Jean Coquelin of the Porte St. Martin Theatre, has paid M. Rostand £10,000 in advance on account of royalties. Immediately after the Paris production he will send out six companies to tour France and Belgium. He has leased out the acting rights for Germany, Austria, Hungary, Italy, and Scandinavia, and in addition has entered into a partnership arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman for its production in America. The holding capacity of the Porte St. Martin Theatre on ordinary occasions is £400, and the price of stalls is 8s. 4d., but for the first two public representations the stalls are fixed at £4 7s. 6d. each, and the holding capacity of the house will be about £3000. For subsequent performances the price at present fixed is £2 for each stall.

THE VOTE AND THE WAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With reference to your leading article on "Votes for Actresses," I should like to make a few remarks. First, is it not time that well-informed writers ceased circulating the pleasing fiction that there is no sex disability in the theatrical profession at large? At the "top of the tree" in town actor and actress may be paid an equal wage for equal work—at any rate, I'll take your word for it that they are. But among the rank and file and in the provinces I have no hesitation in saying that the actress is paid less than the actor in the same line. I make this statement from extensive inquiry and personal experience. If there is not a difference in the treasury envelope the woman has to find endless costumes and other props, while the man finds a stick of grease paint—and often borrows that. This principle flourishes chiefly in classical répertoire companies and in "romantic military dramas," of which there are so many on the road.

I am insisting on the importance of this point because so many people maintain that where work is of equal merit the sex of the worker is not considered in fixing the wage, and they instance our profession as a proof.

No thinking person, of course, believes that the enfranchisement of women will cause an automatic rise in their wages; but we do believe that a vote is the first, if not the only, lever for the overthrow of the system whose foundation principle is to pay a woman less because she is a woman—in other words, because she can supplement her income by the mere fact of her sex. This principle meets one at every turn in every corner of the labour market, from the Civil Service downwards; no other explanation of the differential rate of wages will meet all cases. The dominant male won't acknowledge it; the anti-Suffragist thinks it unladylike to mention it. Nothing will upset the system till women have a vote, and even when they have it will take some doing.—Yours faithfully,

PROVINCIAL ACTRESS.

AFTER a season of pantomime at the Empire and Theatre Royal, Hyde, Her Fatal Marriage was accorded a hearty reception by a large audience on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. A. Hinton and Mr. Travis Green's company give the piece a thorough interpretation. Miss Hilda Shirley, an actress of sympathetic power, and Mr. Gerald Heather admirably fill the leading parts.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Lovers of opera here have looked forward with the keenest anticipation to the visit of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, and a crowded house witnessed the performance on Monday evening of Carmen, with Miss Doris Woodall in the title-rôle. On Tuesday Faust was presented. Miss Gertrude Vania, who was heard for the first time in St. Helens, created a great impression as Marguerite. Her acting is full of charm, and her voice is wonderfully pure and sweet. Mr. Walter Wheatley appeared with much success as Faust, and Mr. Hebden Foster gave a fine performance of Valentine. A great favourite is Mr. Arthur Winckworth, and his Mephistopheles was the feature of the production. Miss Annie Van Dyck rendered the part of Siebel most pleasingly, and Miss Douglas Wilson was again welcomed as Martha. The chorus and orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Eugene Goossens, were beyond praise. Il Trovatore, Destiny, Rigoletto, Tannhäuser and Maritana were to be presented during the week.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is here this week. Miss Marie Brayman is a handsome and dashing Robin Hood, and her songs catch on. Maid Marian is impersonated by Miss Mabel Osborne, who has a very captivating way with her; Eric and Rosa (the Babes) are taken by two charming little girls, the Misses Marie and Elsie May; Miss Dorothy Bruce is a nice Little John; Miss Maud St. John is much applauded as Margery May; Miss Carrie Parry as the Fairy sings well; uproarious mirth is caused by Mr. Harry Elliston (Euphemia Gadabout) and by August and September (Nobby Tike and Sonny Sam), especially in the school scene and the combat; the Eight Little Pinkies perform some pleasing dances; and the John Lloyd Quartette as Robin's men are enthusiastically encored. Mr. Arthur W. Parry has the direction of the orchestra.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Castle Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here with the delightful musical comedy The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Bert Beswick makes an amusing Jim Cheese, and keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Herbert St. John as Dick Wargrave is very good, and sings well; Mr. Leslie Owen makes a capital Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. Sam Lysons as Downham is excellent; Mr. A. Gordon Law is effective as A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. A. Cassidy as Mr. Talk and Mr. F. Payne Palmer as Mr. Hazel play admirably; Miss Lily Gullick makes a charming and dainty Elphin Haye; Miss Ada Waugh is an amusing Liza Shoddam; Miss Ida Stratham is excellent as Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Beatrice Hayden is an imposing Mrs. Shimmering Black; and Miss Anton Laing is good as Miss Virginia Bliss. The dresses and scenery are elaborate. There is a full chorus and augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Pierre de Reeder.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—George Gray and company head the bill here with The Fighting Parson. The sketch is admirably performed, and elicits great applause from crowded houses. Maria Racko and partner give a clever sensational acrobatic turn; Reg. Beauchamp is a popular comedian; Edie Endon is a dainty comedienne and clever dancer; Fallows and Beaumont give a novel comedy act; Mark Hanbury, comedian, is well received; Fritz Kornau, "the human flute," is very clever with his whistling; and the Bioscope concludes with Bobby, the Boy Scout.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. Nelson Barratt presents here Cinderella. Miss Eva Travis as Cinderella is charming, and renders her songs with great ability; Miss George Hawkins takes well as the dashing Prince; Mr. James Mackenzie creates much fun as Peps; and Mons. le Claus and his troupe of dogs are well received. Crowded houses nightly rule.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The principal attraction here is the nautical spectacle Black-Eyed Susan, presented by Adderley Howard and company. An amusing equilibristic act is contributed by the Maxmilians; Terry and Tate are neat and effective dancers; a pretty Irish scena is contributed by Sleath and Aldin; and also to be noted are Charles Coll, Mlle. Dalmere, with her performing animals; Helene Stewart; and the Perfection pictures.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre and Palace of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—At the the head here are Messrs. Hurley and Late with a first-class musical turn; C. Ibbotson gives a smart show at the Black Dame; Mr. Geo. Rogers is a comedian of high rank; Miss Vesta Vesey wins constant applause; Mr. Bert Whitman as a negro comedian is a happy selection; and the Lauri Brothers foot the bill with a smart acrobatic turn. The pictures are very good.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow.—Dick Whittington enters upon its second half this week, and is enthusiastically received by well-filled houses. Miss Margaret Ruby makes a dashing Duck, and her rendering of her new interpolation, "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" and "Ship Ahoy," is much admired; Miss Gertie Gavagan imbues her part of Alice with much charm and winsomeness, and was warmly applauded for her singing of "Mr. Schneider"; Miss Hilda Playfair adapts herself well to the part of Fairy Bluebell, and renders "Il Bacio" in a clear, ringing voice; Mr. Will Evans as the Alderman and Mr. Dan Crawley as the Cook work admirably together; and together with the Brothers Ethairian and Mr. Chris Baker as Idle Jack keep their audience in the best of humours with their innumerable gags and songs. The recitation entitled "The Workmen's Compensation Act," by Messrs. Crawley, Evans, and Baker, is one of the funniest things of the evening. Mr. Ernest Laws continues to give pleasure as Ahmed, and sings "Asleep in the Deep" in a rich bass voice. Misses Lilian Bishop, Violet Trevenyon, and Constance Clive, as Grand Vizier, Dolly, and Princess Zobeide, also work hard towards the success of the piece. The Lottie Stone troupe of dancers are as popular as ever with their varied and graceful dancing.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company is here in The Eve of Her Wedding. Miss Pauline Nanton, the principal lady, as Mavis Leverton gives a well-studied reading; Renie de Telle has a capable exponent in Miss Annie Hylton; Mr. Cecil A. Melton is a successful George Trimain; and villainy is well portrayed by Messrs. Harry Leyton (Dean Clifton) and Chas. W. Docksway (Paul Cavishaw), both of whom do good work. The lighter vein is in the capable hands of Miss Esmai Ellis (Gwen Younger) and Messrs. Henry Dawson (Dick Leverton) and C. Milley Doyle (Rudolf Earl).

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Heading a good all-round bill here this week are the Okabe Family of Japanese acrobats, who give as smart a demonstration as could possibly be wished for; Charles Matthews astonishes audiences by his exceptional jumping powers; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls supply an acceptable turn; Larry Lewis, comedian, has a quiet style which catches on; Clarke and Hayden are pleasing in their musical comedy turn; the Brothers Corcoran do well in their musical and quick-change speciality; John Scott's company presents an amusing sketch, Dolly's Deception; Odeyne Sparke is applauded for her nimble dancing; and Violet Stockelle is an attractive comedienne.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company in The Flag Lieutenant is on a return visit. Mr. Mark Paton gives a careful study of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne, K.C.B.; Mr. Hastings Lyn scores a success as Richard Lascelles; Major William Thessiger is ably impersonated by Mr. Frederick Lester; Mr. Edward Mervyn makes a capital Surgeon Crutchley; Messrs. Geoff. Wilkinson and Guy Lanham are an amusing pair of midshipmen; Mr. W. S. Yeldham deserves mention as General Gough-Bogle; Mr. Richard Dalton is seen to advantage as Michael Palliser; Miss Mabel Rees' portrayal of Mrs. Cameron is excellent; Lady Hermione is gracefully taken by Miss Rita Johnson, Miss Una Venning is a pleasing Viola Hood; Miss Evelyn Robson as the inquisitive Mrs. Gough-Bogle is very good; and Miss Rosalind Rosa does well as Lady Dugdale.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—A pleasing variation is afforded by the engagement of Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime company, The Babes in the Wood. With a strong chorus, clever principals, and good variety acts, the production is highly meritorious. Miss Norah Prendergast is well received as Queen Good Intent; and an admirable foil is Mr. John Vert as Will-o'-the-Wisp. Miss P. McCarthy makes a bold Robin Hood; and Maid Marian is safely entrusted to Miss D. Stone. Allan-a-Dale by Miss Winnie Hypatia is a pleasing assumption; the Bros. Chandos are highly diverting as the Ruffians.

Empire.—Manager, Mr. Walter Wright.—Heading a strong programme is Volta, "the human battery"; Dusty Rhodes meets with a rousing reception; and Mr. C. M. Daly and company present a smart sketch. Beatrice Allen scores well; and the Sauterons prove clever jumpers; Neville and Morse and the Sisters Tower give good items. The Empiroscope concludes.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Mr. Wm. Heilbronn and company play a clever comedy sketch, The Devil's Dupe; Ellis Barrieton wins great applause; Cedar and Elgar are highly amusing; the Three Cyclinis and Bert Beecham swell a fine list; the leading films are An Alpine Echo and A Youthful Hero.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Alderman W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—A welcome reappearance of Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow is being made here. In the title-rôle a capable exponent is found in Miss Sylvia May, whose acting is charming; Miss Ada Thomas as Natalie wins considerable success, her representation being much appreciated; and as Frou-Frou Miss Katie May has a fascinating and dainty manner. Mr. Fred Leslie is exceedingly good as Prince Danilo, his natural and easy style being quite a feature of the performance; Mr. Edward D'Arcy is a quaint Baron Popoff; and Mr. Fred Fowler's Nisch is excelent. Mr. Ripley Evans sings acceptably as Jolidon, and Mr. William Allison is equally well placed as Marquis de Cascada. Mr. Clifford Seyler is an amusing General Novokovitch, in addition to which he carries out the duties of stage-manager.

WAKEFIELD.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Pantomime again holds sway here with Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company in Bo-Peep. Miss Lizzie Payne in the title-rôle gives a dainty and charming rendering; Miss Eva May Rosslyn makes a spirited and tuneful Boy Blue; the dame, Granny Brown, is capably and amusingly undertaken by Mr. J. W. Groves; Mr. Will Shepherd as Johnnie Stout and Mr. Rea Kempton as Jimmy Green work hard, and are responsible for much humour; Mr. Harry Rex is most successful as the Baron; and Mr. Will Harris is droll as Tommy Long; Messrs. Cliny and Clancy cause much merriment as Willy and Timm, and dance well; Mlle. Du Roche is a dashing second boy; and Miss Daisy Cryer is vivacious as Margery Daw; Mr. W. H. Gatty sings well as the Demon; and Miss Elsie Peach also delights with sweet vocalism as Fairy Moonbeam. Clever specialities are contributed by Mr. Albert Kail Stern, coon vocalist; Little Ivy, a capital dancer; Messrs. Cliny and Clancy, duettists and dancers; the Namron Quartette of dancers; and the Hammersley Troupe of lady dancers.

Empire.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Douglas's Jolly Bakers, in a first-class risley performance, are the premier attraction; Miss Zeta Grey and company present funny sketch, entitled A Lancashire Lass; Rowlands and Ward provide a popular turn; Drum and Major, comedy artists, are amusing; Stewart and Morris, comedians, are well received for smart dancing; the Brooklands are dainty comediennes and dancers; and Johnson and Devere are clever trick cyclists.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. Bate Maddison's unique vocal spectacle, The Venetians, heads the bill, and merits well-deserved appreciation; the Stavordale Quintette, banjo and harp specialists, give an excellent performance; Miss Daisy Mayer, coon singer, is a decided hit; Rappo and Ella are graceful in a novel ladder act; Jackson and Smith, comedians, raise hearty laughter; and Mr. Geo. Antill and Mr. Jack North, comedians, have good receptions.

WALLSEND.—Borough Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Duffy; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hy. Hearn.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, Dick Whittington, is drawing crowded houses. Miss Ethel Campbell makes a dashing principal boy, and the Alice of Miss Tina Franks could not be improved upon. Miss Phyllis Seymour and Miss Ivy Proudfoot are very charming; Princess Amarynth finds an apt exponent in Miss Ethel Haidee; and the Fairy is in the capable hands of Mme. Benita. Mr. Deane Tribune makes a droll Idle Jack, and Mr. Jack Hodgson is well placed as Fitzwarren. Mlle. Pauline Rivers' troupe introduce some clever dances, which are heartily appreciated.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—Mr. Clifton Alderson's company is here in the stirring play, The Coal King. The scene depicting the coal shaft is a capital specimen of stage craft. Mr. Robert Faulkner makes a manly Tom Roberts; Mr. A. W. Norman's Sir Reginald Hartford is a dignified personage; Mr. Leslie Vyner is well placed in the heavy rôle of Walter Hartford; and plenty of humour is extracted from the part of Jim Williams by Mr. Sam Roberts. Miss Winifred Love is a charming Grace Shirley; and a clever character sketch of Mad Ann is that of Miss Dennis Duncan. Miss Lucy Caton scores as Mrs. Baker; and a chic parlourmaid is Miss Effie D. Crawford.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—Capital business is the order here. Amy Anderson and company score in the boisterous sketch, The Banana Queen, and the acrobatic feats of one of the members are very fine; Herbert Rule is a droll comedian, and he has made many friends; Tom Yorke's songs are encored, and Friscari is a capital manipulator of top hats and a smart juggler. Gena Manon is a charming vocalist; and Ethel May a dainty comedienne; The Rosses have good patter, and are smart dancers; and the pictures are excellent.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—Elsie Malpass is a dainty child mimic; Lang and Pleydell are up-to-date comedians; and Joey Stirling has good songs and racy humour. The pictures are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn is presenting For Honour and Revenge. Mr. Beaudyn takes the part of James Galston with much ability; Mr. D. Pitt is an excellent Sir Gilbert Redville; Miss Irene Munroe a capable Maud Desmond; Miss Phyllis Rae is a good Nancy O'Brien; and Miss Irene Stanhope a charming Mary Galston.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joe Hastings. There is an attractive programme at this place of amusement. The pictures are clever and up to date; while delightful turns are provided by the Sisters Warner, musical duettists; Yettmah, a clevr conjurer; Jack Minto, with popular songs; and Hicks' Clerks.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Granville.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and J. C. Wray's company are presenting Miss Hook of Holland, which is excellently staged and dressed. Miss Nan Stuart is responsible for the titular rôle, and her dainty style and charming personality gain for her many admirers; humour is judiciously carried through the piece by Mr. Charles Sims as Mr. Hook and Mr. Edward Kipling as Simon Slink; Mr. Robert Selby as Captain Papp and Mr. Frank G. Dunn as Van Vuyt are excellent; and Miss Madge White plays the part of Mina in a highly pleasing manner.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—An excellent all-round programme is headed by Millette Whittaker, who, assisted by Wilbur Hill, is pleasing everyone with her musical and plantation selections; the "Harvest Time" vocal scena, by Olive Lenton and her company, is a prettily played performance, in which is introduced some novel electric bell effects; remarkable smartness and precision attends the tumbling by the Five Manchurians; D'Arc's life-like marionettes are always enjoyed, the representations of numerous stars of the variety firmament being clever indeed; Tom Moore, a character comedian, takes well; a comedietta, "Love in a Coffee Shop," as played by Frank Danby, is very successful; and the Sisters Storm earn favourable opinions. Some capital pictures are also shown.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Thos. Swinton.—Widnes playgoers are experiencing a new pleasure this season in a "round of Shakespearean plays." Miss Florence Glossop Harris (daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris) and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., present six, and are supported by an exceptionally strong company. The "round" was commenced with Othello, in which Miss Harris proved herself to be an actress of ability and quality. Her portrayal of Desdemona was extremely good, and won the admiration of the audience. Mr. Cellier was distinctly good as Iago; Mr. J. H. Irvine was a typical Othello, the Moor. Other artists who won credit are Miss Ine Cameron, Miss Mary Goulden, Miss Madge Spencer, and Messrs. Arthur Seaton, Gordon Blyth, and James Mason. The company is equipped with effective scenery and rich costumes. On Tuesday a version of The Merchant of Venice was given, with Miss Harris as Portia and Mr. Cellier as Shylock. Romeo and Juliet, The School for Scandal, Twelfth Night, and Hamlet are also in the bill.

Co-operative Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—Another capital programme delighted a packed "house" on Monday. In addition to the Empire animated pictures, variety turns were provided by William's Royal Welsh Minstrels, J. C. McCann (comedian and acrobatic roller-skate dancer), Sterling and Cashen (in the comedy The New Army), and Tom Franks (young ventriloquist).

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—Mr. Charles Elderton is presenting his pantomime, Robinson Crusoe. Miss D. Lawrence plays in dashing style as Robinson Crusoe; Miss Nellie Stuart is charming as Princess Popsy Prettything; and Miss Isa Gibson is capital as Polly Perkins. Effective work is done by Miss Nina St. Elmo as Captain Kettle and Miss Maud Hastings as Fairy Sunbeam; Mr. Teddy Worth extracts much merriment from the part of Billy Crusoe; Mr. J. H. Booth is an amusing Mrs. Crusoe; and Mr. Fred Boulton as Will Atkins, Mr. Theodore Jones as King Ki-Koko, and Mr. Percy Wright as King Neptune play leading parts extremely well. The Lottie Stone troupe are to be complimented upon their graceful and accomplished dances.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Lafaile troupe prove themselves to be original and clever acrobats; David Poole is loudly applauded for his smart ventriloquial entertainment; a most enjoyable performance is given by Meila and Mozarabar, who introduce trained ravens and pigeons; the Bros. Artois, in their comedy bar act, have a rousing reception; Rose D'Aubly is greeted with much applause for her vocal selections; while Tom R. Hughes is very amusing. The Three Dixons sing and dance themselves into favour; and others who contribute to an acceptable programme are Ambrose Thorne, comedian, the Prince Milner Trio, and Nellie Lawrence, vocalist.

WISHAW, N.B.—Pavilion.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Messrs. John Warren and company in The Magic Carpet are here this week; Will Hawthorne, the popular Scotch comedian, goes well; as does also Mr. F. G. Fenn in an elocutionary scena entitled "Phil Blood's Leap"; Marmaduke is amusing; and Mr. John Warren bewilders his audience by his lightning conjuring act. Some excellent films are shown on the Bioscope.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company, in As Your Hair Grows Whiter, drew a large house here on Monday night. Miss Agnes Collier as the long-suffering heroine, Alice Walters, successfully elicits the sympathies of the audience; whilst Jack Stonely, who is responsible for all her misery, is well represented by Mr. S. Leigh Courtney. Able support is given by Mr. Hubert Helliwell as the Rev. John Albery, Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell and Miss Florence Delmar as Mr. and Mrs. Walters, Mr. Herbert Fuller as Timothy Slough, and Mr. Louis Weston as Nebucanezza Mozart.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Before the Dawn, as presented by Mr. George Sheldon's company, is one of the finest sketches yet seen here, and the intensity of its dramatic situations holds the audience spellbound. Praise is due to Mr. F. Rawson Buckley for his fine rendering of Major Stetson, and also to Master Reggie Connor for a faultless interpretation of Dick. Peggy Pryde is again renewing acquaintance with old friends, and making many new ones, in her humorous songs and topical patter; another welcome return visit is that of Edie and Ramsden. Other good turns include Hyde and Cody Trio, eccentrics; Maud Wilton, comedienne; Ted Cowan, comedian; Earle and Godfrey, dancing duo; Allsopp and Beckwith, comedy duo; and Marie Wilton, comedienne.

The Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Stone.—The Lizzette Trio, lady acrobats and dancers; Miss Molly Augarde, a singer of sensible songs; and Collin and Irene, thought readers, are appearing here. The principal pictures are Renunciation, Saved By His Sweetheart, The Lady's Scarf, and The Little Violinist.

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Messrs. Levy and Card present their pantomime, The House that Jack Built, this week. Miss Isa Wilson as the Fairy sings popular songs sweetly and well; Miss Jenny Marsden as Grotchen dances gracefully; Dolly Dodds as Jill is trim and neat; Little Chip as Wee McGregor shows great promise; and the Jack of Miss Daisy Wood is charming.

Carnegie Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—There are some good films this week, including a powerful selection from Les Miserables. The variety bill is topped by Dunco and Langdon, a clever duo, in clever comedy; Miss Jennie Neilson sings some difficult ballads; and James O'Brian tells good stories.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Mack.—Laurie and Leslie have made a welcome appearance here; Jack Belton, comedian, and Minnie Osborne, with Agnes, Dolly, and Maud, and some fine pictures complete a good programme.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Messrs. J. C. Lodge Percy and James Martin's company is here. On Monday Moths was presented. Mr. F. Vernon Travers gave a polished impersonation of the character of Prince Sergius Zouroff; Mr. J. C. Lodge Percy was very fine as Lord Jura; Mr. Cecil Kerr did well as the Duke of Mull and Butire; the Boris of Mr. Edward Ashworth was a refined performance; Miss Henrietta Schrier deserves unstinted praise as Fuchsia Leach; Miss Nellie Statham did well as Lady Dolly Vanderdecken; the remaining characters are well placed. On Thursday Camille was produced.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington.—The return visit of Miss Hook of Holland is proving an immense success. Miss Marie Studholme gives a delightful impersonation of the title-rôle, and her reception has been most cordial. Mr. Alfred Wellesley has repeated his grand representation of Mr. Hook with gratifying results, roars of laughter greeting his efforts. Mr. Fred Lyne has made of Simon Slinks a special study, with the result that a comical and finished performance is seen; Miss Maud Denny gives a bright and merry rendition of Nina; Mr. Frank H. Crimp is again well to the front as Van Vuyt, singing in capital style; Mr. Fred Hobbs makes a dashing Capt. Paap; and Mr. Chas. Ross is lively and amusing as Schnapps.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Simeon the Seer is a remarkable turn, and fairly mystifies large audiences; the Scotch Meisters are accorded a hearty welcome; Steve Bartle, a concertina player of the first rank, is well received; the Luzellas excel on the tight wire; and Lozelle is an acrobat of great merit. The operatic efforts of St. Ruth and Conyers are well received; Alice Blandford is a pleasing vocalist; Newmann and Brown present an amusing scena; and excellent comedians are seen in Mr. Bert Kemble and Mr. Arthur Harris.

Exhibition Hall.—The Royal Italian Circus is paying a welcome return visit, large audiences being the rule. The various novelties introduced by Volpi in ponies, dogs, goats, &c., have been well received; whilst the humorous performances of Nimble Nip, Wee Willie, and Funny Frisks have proved most acceptable. "Jumbo Junior" is heartily enjoyed.

Siegfried Wagner's new opera, Banadietrich, was produced on Sunday, at the Grand Ducal Theatre, at Carlsruhe, and was enthusiastically received. A Bohemian version of the Dietrich legend supplies the text of the opera, in the music of which, it is agreed, the composer has abandoned himself completely to his father's style.

"THE SLEEPING BEAUTY."

At the close of the performance of The Sleeping Beauty at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Saturday, Mr. Peter Davey, the energetic and enterprising managing-director, who designed the production along with Mrs. Davey, were called on to the stage to receive a parting gift. The presentation was made by Mr. W. P. Sheen, the irrepressible Dame, who suitably expressed the thanks of the company for the kindness and consideration shown to them by the management during the run of the pantomime. Amid a great deal of applause Miss Barbara Babington (principal boy) handed to Mr. and Mrs. Davey, on behalf of the artists, a pair of handsome silver sauce bowls, bearing the inscription: "To Mr. and Mrs. Peter Davey, with affectionate regard from the company, and as a souvenir of the thirteenth annual Christmas pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, Jan. 22, 1910."

In acknowledging the gifts, Mr. Davey said it was difficult to realise that that was the thirteenth successive year he had stood on the stage of the Royal County, surrounded by his pantomime company. Every year he felt it more and more difficult to say good-bye, for during the weeks they worked together many close friendships were made. However, everything was bound to have an end, and his greatest regret was that this year they were concluding the pantomime season a week earlier than usual; but it was of no use to disguise the fact that politics and pantomimes did not run well together, and the powers that be had little regard for theatrical managers when, for the second successive time, they fixed a General Election during the Christmas season.

Mr. Davey thanked his company very sincerely for their charming present, but even more than the gift itself he valued the kindly feeling which prompted it. He expressed his deep obligations to all who had helped to make the pantomime a success, especially mentioning Mr. Hugo Rignold, the chef d'orchestre; Mr. Frank Harding, stage-manager; Mr. Betts, who painted the greater part of the scenery; the entire staff of the theatre, and the public for their appreciative support of his efforts to maintain the reputation and prestige of the Kingston annual pantomime. The artists and many in the audience afterwards joined hands and sang "For Auld Lang Syne."

THE LATE ELIZABETH TURNER ELLIOT.

We regret to announce the death of Miss Elizabeth Turner-Elliott, who spent nineteen years of her short life in the profession. Till within a week of her death she was playing in Mr. Chas. Harrington's Uncle Tom's Cabin company. On the 13th she reluctantly entered Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, where, on the 15th inst. she breathed her last. She was buried at Glossop, Derbyshire, her native town. Her married name was Mrs. Alfred H. Elliott, and she leaves a husband and four boys. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Downs Band, of Glossop.

Miss Turner-Elliott commenced her career as a Shakespearean reciter at the age of fifteen. She first joined Mr. John Lawson's company, and made her début in the part of Marie in Siberia at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee. Miss Elliott also played Annette in The Bells, Mercedes in Monte Cristo, Rose in After Dark, and Diana in The Ruling Passion, under the same management, and she was the Grace Darling in Humanity at the Standard Theatre in 1896, on its first visit after its original production there in 1882. She subsequently fulfilled engagements with Mr. E. C. Matthews, Miss Winifred Maude, Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Fred Benton, Mr. Morton Powell, Mr. Welton Dale, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, Mr. Louis Cohn, Mr. Hilliard Vox, and in various stock companies.

The current bill at the Lowestoft Hippodrome includes Colin Bryce and company in a funny sketch, Are You a Socialist?; Marie Tilley, comedienne; Dave Wallace, comedian; and Harry Hayton. The pictorial subjects are exceptionally good.

Mr. N. A. Knox, the Surrey cricketer, appeared in the chorus of The Dollar Princess at Daly's last week, understudying Mr. Basil Foster—another cricketer—who is playing the Earl of Quorn. Miss Edna May's youngest sister, Miss Marguerite May, has also joined the company at Daly's, playing the part of Sadie Von Tromp.

Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Dollar Princess is at the Portsmouth Theatre Royal on a fortnight's engagement, and almost every seat in the circle and stalls is booked for this week. Miss Norah Barry repeats her former successes here as Alice, Miss Madeline Seymour makes a charming Olga, and Daisy has a vivacious exponent in Miss Peggy Primrose. Mr. Leslie Holland is irresistible as the millionaire Conder; and laughter reigns when Mr. W. H. Rawlins as Bulger is on the scene.

The second annual Pantomime Supper at the Elephant and Castle Theatre will take place on Tuesday evening next at twelve midnight. The stage will be tastefully decorated, and with the assistance of the stage-manager transformed into a gorgeous dining-salon. An early application for tickets should be made by those artists and friends not directly connected with the theatre, as only a limited number of tickets will be issued. The arrangements this year will be in the hands of Messrs. Walter Bayliss (acting-manager), Will Cutler (stage-manager), and W. Cartwright (resident stage-manager).

Messrs. Little and Darcy are showing their pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat at the New King's Theatre, Kirkcaldy, this week. Miss Jeanie MacKay is very good as Fairy Silverstone; Miss Nina Carlton is admirable as Dick; and Miss Helene Mohr is successful as Alice Fitzwarren. Mr. Jack McKenzie is screamingly funny as Sarah, the cook; Mr. Sydney T. Russell makes an ideal Idle Jack; Messrs. Tichbourne and Edwards are first-rate comedy merchants; Miss Lillie Luraine is a clever instrumentalist; and Mr. James Stratton, in his impersonation of the Cat, exhibits a nimbleness which is very entertaining.

Mr. Fred Karno's company, with the musical farce His Majesty's Guests, fills the bill at the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Falkirk. The important part of Sergeant Lightning is filled with the utmost success by Mr. George Hestor. Mr. Charles Usher as Mr. Miffin, Mr. Douglas as Harry, Mr. C. Richardson as Bunkey, Mr. G. Gordon as Mr. Minks, Mr. S. Bolton as Fritz, Mr. E. O. Freshwater as Lord Easem, Miss Edith Ager as Dolly, Miss Annie Wright as Miss Manley, Mr. Harry Howe as Selina, Miss Florence Pragnell as Miss Mackerel, and Miss A. Young as Dora constitute the other principals in a good company.

The pantomime Robinson Crusoe is at the New Gaiety, Ayr, this week. It is a good show, well presented by Mr. Edward Marris' company. Miss Maisie Jerrard plays Robinson with fine dash, and Miss Mamie Iris as Polly sweethearts daintily with "him." Others in the company are Mr. Heller le Maistre (as Neptune), Miss Nancy Taylor (a Mermaid), the Sisters May, Mr. Jimmy Danvers, Miss Poppy Lytton, Mr. Jack Bland, Mr. Harry C. Robinson, Mr. Geo. Mumford, Mr. Andy Marsh, Mr. Archie Herbert, Mr. Herbert Pearce, Mr. John Frith, Mr. Wm. Greene, and Mr. Ernest Leon. Little Levite and company appear in The Tandem.

THE LATE JOHN H. CLARKE.

We regret to record the death at Leamington on the 22nd inst. of Mr. John H. Clarke, after a lingering illness. The deceased gentleman was well-known at Leicester, where he carried out a great number of entertainments on a large scale. The biggest undertaking that the deceased gentleman promoted was the Clarendonia Fête, in which most of the then celebrated entertainers appeared, at that time great favourites at the Royal Aquarium. No less than forty bands were engaged at the opening, each leaving the centre of the town at every fifteen minutes' interval. It was here that the first switchback railway was erected in Leicester, and the sensational performance daily of Mlle. Dare ascending by her teeth attached to a trapeze underneath a balloon took place, which caused so much talk that questions were asked in Parliament on the subject. It ended in a big financial loss.

Mr. Clarke was more successful when he removed to the Floral Hall in Belgrave-gate, where he promoted a large number of trade exhibitions at which the best regimental and other bands appeared. It was at this hall where some of the most sensational aerial shows were given, including Menotti and others. He also introduced the first star quick-change artist here in the person of Signor Pepi, so well known now as a successful music hall proprietor. He was also most successful with his Sunday concerts, at which all the famous bands followed in quick succession, the large hall being always packed at these with many thousands of people. He then turned the hall into a skating rink, which at that time was booming, and held many carnivals and skating races. His interest in the hall was eventually acquired by Mr. Oswald Stoll, who built on the site the Palace Theatre, one of the largest and handsomest vaudeville theatres in the provinces, which was opened in 1901. He afterwards became the acting manager of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, under the lesseeship of Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, where he remained some little time.

NEW YORK THEATRES.

Theatre building in New York goes on apace in spite of the oft-repeated assertion that there are too many theatres already. Broadway, from Forty-second-street to the Columbus Circle at Fifty-ninth-street, is undergoing a complete transformation, and this section of the city's chief thoroughfare seems destined to be lined with magnificent amusement houses and palatial restaurants. Broadway and Seventh-avenue run together for a few blocks above forty-second-street, and form the open space known as Long Acre-square. When the late Dan Leno made his American début in 1897 at Olympia (now the New York Theatre), this house was the only place of amusement in the immediate vicinity of Long Acre-square, being set like a huge beacon in a dim and dreary wilderness, while the American Theatre, at the corner of Eighth-avenue was the only playhouse in Forty-second-street.

In the latter thoroughfare now are to be found the New Amsterdam, Liberty, Hackett, Belasco, Lyric, and Hammerstein's. The Hudson and the Stuyvesant, both in Forty-fourth-street; the Hippodrome in Sixth-avenue near by, and the new Lyceum were built but a few years ago. Then it seemed as if the "uptown" movement must stop for a while. But the Astor, and then the Gaiety, were erected at the corner of Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth streets respectively, and during the last fortnight the Globe and the Columbia have been opened within a few yards of the same point. An unnamed theatre is about to be erected just above the Columbia, and Mr. William A. Brady's theatre, to be called The Playhouse, is being built at the corner of Forty-eighth-street.

Mr. George M. Cohan, too, is to have a theatre named after him, and it is now being erected at the corner of Forty-third-street. The Comedy Theatre, opened last autumn in West Forty-first-street, must not be forgotten, for it is only a stone's throw from the centre of activity. Furthermore, the Shuberts have just had plans drawn for their new Forty-third-street theatre, opposite the Lyric, and they will also erect a fine playhouse in Forty-eighth-street, east of Seventh-avenue. This means that three new Shubert theatres will soon be in course of construction, for in Thirty-ninth-street, just opposite the Casino, a new theatre will be opened by these managers in a month or so, this house being situated a few yards from Maxine Elliott's Theatre, the attractions for which are booked by the Shuberts.

This enterprising firm has also obtained a long lease of the American Horse Exchange building, which covers a large plot of ground between Fiftieth and Fifty-first streets, with the intention of erecting a combined theatre and office building there. With the New Theatre recently built by the millionaires at Sixty-second-street, and the Majestic at Fifty-ninth-street, if the theatre-builders seize the intervening space of eight blocks, upper Broadway might be appropriately re-named Theatre-avenue.

No fewer than sixty-nine aspirants for the variety stage faced the music at the Paragon on Saturday. The audience were the arbiters of the fate of each novice, and there was a good deal of fun of a kind in the observations of gods and pit.

A VOLUME of reminiscences by Mme. Yvette Guilbert will be published early in the summer by Messrs. Mills and Boon. The original manuscript, in French, will be reproduced in facsimile on one page, with an English translation on the page opposite. This could not be done with many authors, but Mme. Yvette Guilbert writes a very legible hand.

MAXIM BROS., with their Fun Carnival, have just concluded a successful visit to Walsall. Crowds have nightly visited this carnival, and the novelty games and side shows were well patronised. This young and energetic management open to-day for a short season at Burslem.

IN the "Children's" Court at Old-street on Tuesday an application was made to Mr. Cluer by the manager of the Sleeping Beauty pantomime company for a licence permitting six little girls, whose ages varied from thirteen to eleven, to take part in some performances at the Dalston Theatre. On reading through the application Mr. Cluer noticed that it said: "To perform from Jan. 24," and asked what had happened the day before. The manager replied that he had written to the superintendent of police for the district, and had been told that the children could appear until nine p.m. without a licence, and they had done so.

"ARE you any relation to any of the children?" asked Mr. Cluer.—"No," was the reply; "merely their manager." "I do not think," said the magistrate, "that there was any intention in the statute that children should be farmed out to men or women who make money from them without working themselves. You were satisfied with nine o'clock on Monday night; be satisfied with it now. I shall grant no licence for any hour after that."

THE death is announced at Heaton Chapel, near Manchester, of Mr. Handel Thornley, an original member of the Halle Orchestra, and for thirty years choirmaster of Manchester Cathedral. He was one of the basses in the picked choir which sang the "Elijah" on the occasion of Mendelssohn's visit in 1847.

Connor's Circus at the Crystal Palace.

TO-DAY (Saturday) is the last day of Connor's great circus at the Crystal Palace. The success of this circus, which is practically the only one in London at the present moment, once more emphasises the enterprise of the ever-resourceful manager, Mr. Geo. O. Starr, who since the day he undertook the management of that vast building the Palace has done such wonders in increasing the number of entertainments. Certainly Mr. Connor, who is the proprietor of the circus, has brought with him a host of clever artists, the clowns being an entertainment in themselves with their many quaint sayings and antics—indeed, every member of the company has become immensely popular, and it is with reluctance we bid them adieu, at least for a while, for further engagements call them to other towns. At the conclusion of a well-filled programme the intense delight of the children is increased by a visit from Father Christmas, who distributes toys to each little one. This makes a perfect finish to a solid two hours' keen enjoyment.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required. — St. James's Gazette.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"The Era" Annual (price 1s.) is always welcome in stageland and among the theatre-goers. This year's issue maintains the reputation of the publication for amusing reading and useful information. A number of lively contributions from well-known actors and actresses fill nearly half its pages, and the rest of the book is devoted to particulars as to the new plays and revivals of the year 1909, a list of theatres in the United Kingdom, and a full obituary list of artists who, having "fretted their hour upon the stage," are heard no more. "The Era" Annual is an invaluable reference book to all concerned with the stage.—Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual (5, Tavistock-street, Strand, 1s.), is a full and accurate record of the past year's productions and a calendar of theatrical events. It also contains a feature of wide public interest—namely, "Stories Told by Well-Known People." The story-tellers are, for the most part, the bright, particular stars of the stage, whose recollections, sketches and poetic interludes—these last by Messrs. J. H. Barnes, Charles Collette, and Tom Craven—are likely to command wide attention. The Rev. T. Horne, chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, also contributes an in memoriam tribute entitled "Faithful Unto the End." The opening contribution is by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, and deals with the problem concerning the site of the old Globe playhouse of Shakespeare's day.—The Financier, Jan. 20, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
We have received a copy of "The Era" Annual. All who take an interest, business or sentimental, should supply themselves with one. It is pretty full of information, and where that ends entertainment begins.—Sportsman, Jan. 18, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) continues to swell in bulk. In addition to the dramatic and musical calendar, are alphabetical lists and full casts of the new plays and important revivals produced in London, New York, Paris, and Berlin, and of new sketches in London and the provinces, there is a series of stories by well-known members of the profession with portraits and autographs of the authors. Sir Herbert Tree answers the question, "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and other contributors include Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. John Le Hay, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Will Clarkson, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley.—Sunday Times, Jan. 23, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"The Era" Annual, 1910, 1s., 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. As usual, this well-known annual of the theatrical profession contains a complete record of the plays and sketches produced during the year, in this country and abroad, a record, with photographs, of stage celebrities whose deaths have taken place during the period, directories of theatres and music-halls in the United Kingdom and a well-arranged dramatic and musical calendar. The ever-popular series of good stories told by well-known people, and illustrated by the author's photographs and autographs, is led off this time by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, with "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and the reputation this symposium has gained for humour and wit is thoroughly maintained. The Annual will make a strong appeal, not only to members of the profession, but to all theatre lovers.—Financial Times, Jan. 24, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"Stories told by well-known people" form an admirable feature. Photographs are numerous.—Evening Standard, Jan. 24, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
"The Era" Annual is the usual interesting publication for all who have anything to do with dramatic and musical affairs. It contains a dramatic and musical calendar, stories by, and photos of, many well known artists, all about new plays and revivals in the United Kingdom and some foreign capitals, and all the rest of the useful information generally looked for in it.—Daily Telegraph, Sheffield, Jan. 27, 1910.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1910.
Congratulations to our contemporary "The Era" on the excellent year book known as "The Era" Annual. Everything of interest to the entertainment profession which the year 1909 has brought forth is noted in this publication, and it contains besides many valuable contributions from well-known performers and authorities on stage matters, together with directories of useful information. Amongst those who have written stories are Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Messrs. Fred Terry, Henry Neville, Rutland Barrington, John Le Hay, J. H. Barnes, Harry Nicholls, Charles Collette, Alfred Lester, Arthur Williams, Dan Rolyat, and Fred Trussell, Miss Louie Freear, Miss Vesta Tilley, the Rev. Donald Hole (Organising Secretary of the Actors' Church Union), the Rev. T. Horne (Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild), and several others, including Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, who, in dealing with "Charity and the Profession," tells an interesting story of a Nihilist visitor. It is an indispensable shillingsworth.—Performer, Jan. 27.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The report of the meeting of the Actors' Association at Terry's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon brings to mind another meeting of the same body which was held at the Playhouse on Feb. 19, 1907, with Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT in the chair, supported on the stage by Mr.—now Sir—HERBERT BEERBOHM TREE, Mr. CYRIL MAUDE, Mr. EDWARD TERRY, and other notable actor-managers. The proceedings promised from the first to be somewhat spirited, and when Mr. ACTON BOND rose to give those present some figures in regard to the accounts of the Association, he was sharply "heckled" by Mr. CECIL RALEIGH, Mr. GRANVILLE BARKER, and others.

There was some very smart sparring, and affairs got into a bewildering tangle; but the party led by Mr. RALEIGH and Mr. BARKER made itself felt, and eventually Mr. AUBREY SMITH, who said he "felt as if he were sitting on the edge of a volcano," proposed as a resolution that acting-managers should be eligible for election as members of the Actors' Association. This, on an amendment proposed by Mr. TOPHAM, was referred to the new council for consideration; and they considered it at a meeting at the Criterion Restaurant on March 14, which was presided over by Mr. CECIL RALEIGH. A new set of rules was drawn up, and Rule 6 ran: "Any member of the Union becoming a manager or acting-manager shall, during the period of his management, forfeit his right of vote and cease to hold executive powers in the Union," Mr. RALEIGH explaining that they could not have an association of managers conducting a trades union for actors. "The Union," he said, "must be unmanagerial—for actors and actresses alone."

We ventured, in a leading article which we printed on Feb. 23, 1907, to sum up the situation. "This trouble," we observed, "is caused by the tendency of the drama to become a trade in which master and man are opponents, instead of an art in which there is between them artistic sympathy, personal acquaintance, and kindly assistance. It is the question of what CARLYLE calls the 'cash nexus' taking the place of semi-paternal or feudal government. When the bond becomes the cash nexus, the connection between master and man is a purely business one; and the interests of the manager, who wants to buy service as cheap as possible, and the artist, who wants to sell service as dearly as possible, are, without rancour, opposed to each other. When this system has become the rule and not the exception, the next step is the formation of unions on the one side and associations on the other." There was, we pointed out, an easy and obvious way in which the Actors' Association might possibly be turned into an Actors' Union, and that was for every actor and actress to join the Association.

Many prophesies were put forth at the time of the financial failure of the Association under the new régime; but, in the past three years, it has paid its way admirably. With the exception of the remaining debentures, it is practically free from debt; and the number of members on the books has increased from 796 to 837. The new premises of the Association at 32, Regent Street have been found both convenient and comfortable; and the offices now include a rehearsal room, which can hardly fail to be of use to the members.

It was not, therefore, with any interested motive that, in October last, the council of the Association passed a resolution expressing a desire that Sir HERBERT TREE and the other actor-managers who left the Association three years ago should rejoin it. It was rather that the projects of the extremists of the reform party have been found impracticable, and that the Association has come to the conclusion that they must be laid upon the shelf. The minimum wage, a beautiful but unsubstantial dream, has faded away, as dreams have a way of fading; and the idea of turning the profession into a trade union, with all the necessary results of trade unionism, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Mr. CLARENCE DERWENT said on Tuesday, in proposing a resolution for the invitation of the exiled actor-managers to return to the Association: "As the result of practical experience, he was convinced that no form of trades unionism could be even approximately applied to the conditions of the profession." The resolution—which, as the chairman logically pointed out, was really a vote of censure on the outgoing council—was adopted by a majority, a motion to the contrary, proposed by Miss ROSE MATHEWS, being rejected on a division.

We fear that we have often appeared cold and cynical in the various leading articles in which from time to time we have anticipated the recent decision of the Actors' Association. We have been reproved for our frankness, sometimes, perhaps, a little rudely; but any annoyance we may have felt is entirely erased by the action of the Association itself, which is the strongest possible endorsement of the accuracy of our judgment. We congratulate the majority of the Association on their good sense; and we feel sure that the arrangement of the standard contract which they desire will be made easy by the disappearance of that spirit of hostility to managers which has from time to time been expressed by the more extreme of the Reform Party. It is one of the characteristics of actors that they often act upon impulse, and never bear malice; and, now that the hatchet has been buried, and bygones are bygones, the actor-managers may return to the Association, which they will find ready to receive them with open arms, with all the old friendship, and in comfortable new premises.

"THE PARENTS' PROGRESS."

Play, in One Act, by George Paston, Produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, on Tuesday, Jan. 25.

Mr. Hoskins ..... MR. GIDEON WARREN
Mrs. Hoskins ..... MISS CLARE GREET
Bert ..... MR. ERNEST THESIGER
Em ..... MISS MARY LESLIE
George Bunning ..... Mr. G. H. ADDISON
Miss Williams ..... MISS RUBY MILLER

Miss E. M. Symonds, better known by her pen-name of "George Paston," the authoress of The Pharisee's Wife, Clothes and the Woman, and Tilda's New Hat, has written a one-act piece which admirably supplies its purpose as a merry prelude to The Little Damozel, which now goes better than ever. The "parents" in question are Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins, a suburban couple, whose children, Bert and Em, modern and pretentious, are impatient at their parents' deficiencies. They complain that Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins do not dress up to date, and that they are behind the times in many ways. The old people take counsel together, and the result is that at a little tea party given by their critical children, the elders appear in extraordinary guise, having dressed themselves in cheap and smart finery belonging to their offspring. They assume a lively and sportive manner, talk slang, feign an exaggerated vivacity, and altogether present such caricatures of smart people that the young ones, sadder and subdued, beg the parents to return to their old clothes and their old customs. The Parents' Progress is by no means the crude farce which this scenario may suggest. It is written in a realistic spirit, and the character-drawing is clever and sympathetic. All the personages are sketches, not caricatures, and one of them, a visitor, an affected maiden, a suburban imitation of a fine lady, is simply delightful. The acting was worthy of the piece. Mr. Ernest Thesiger played the sharp, conceited Bert capitally; Miss Mary Leslie did excellent work as Em, the genuine good sense and amiability of the girl being nicely suggested; and Mr. Gideon Warren and Miss Clare Greet were irresistibly funny as Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins, Miss Ruby Miller contributing a really clever little character-study as Miss Williams, the guest at the tea-party. Mr. G. H. Addison was good as George Bunning. The Parents' Progress is a most amusing little piece, and the laughter and applause it evoked were thoroughly well deserved.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The students' concert on Wednesday evening commenced with a piano solo ("Moment Musical Schubert") and Chopin's Etude, G flat, both being carefully executed by Miss Daisy Beech. Miss Dorothy Beal was successful in her singing of "Through love to light," by Cuthbert Wynne, and praise must be awarded to Miss Ethel Rudge (a pupil of Madame Waldahoff) for two well-played mandoline solos. Miss Winifred Lensh, who has an excellent voice, sang "A Request" (Woodforde-Findon), and greatly pleased the audience, while Mr. George Sims in Chopin's Third Scherzo, Op. 39, although his touch was somewhat heavy, can be credited with facile execution. Wallace's opera, Lurline, sounds rather old-fashioned at the present time, but Mr. Arthur E. J. Dearden, who possessed a small though pleasing voice, sang "Sweet Form" with intelligence, and was heartily applauded. In his violin solo Mr. Sidney A. Smith gave a very creditable performance of Vieuxtemps' "Reverie." At times Mr. Smith was a little timid in his playing; experience, however, will give confidence, while even at present his intonation and expression are most promising. Miss Lucy Evelyn's full rich voice was heard to advantage in Beethoven's "In Questa Tomba," but she was hardly so successful in Brahms' "Sapphische Ode." An able recitation, "The Clock Speaks" (West), by Miss Madge Dangerfield, pupil of Mr. Cairns James, pleasantly varied the programme, and the duet, "May-time," sung by the Misses Edith and Ida Armfield, proved an attractive feature of the concert. Mr. Claude H. Dyer secured good results in his singing of two songs by E. German, "The dew is on the lily" and "My song shall be of the sturdy North," and the concert concluded with an organ solo, First Movement from Harwood's Sonata in C sharp minor, skilfully played by Mr. R. J. Stannard. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

MR. NEVILL GRAHAM'S pantomime Aladdin is at the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds. Excellent comedy is supplied by Miss Harriette Loydall and Mr. Charlie Clarke as the Widow Twankey and Wishee Washee. Mr. George Howard does well as the Emperor; the Astroys are amusing as Sloppa and Koppa. Mr. Wilfred Lyndon making an acceptable Abanazar, Mdlle. Lucrotia is a dauntless Aladdin, and the Princess is nicely played by Miss Lilian Earle. Others contributing to the success being Miss Cirsie Clarke (Pekoe) and Miss Josephine (Nicee Nicee). Miss Dallas Yorke and Miss Jenny Lyndon are graceful Genii of the Lamp and Ring, and the dancing of Sinclair's four Parisian Girls is greatly appreciated. The music is bright and sparkling.

MOODY-MANNERS IN DUBLIN.

"SAMSON AND DELILAH."
MAGNIFICENT PRODUCTION.
OPINION OF THE PRESS.

The first stage production in English of Saint Saëns' sacred drama was given on Jan. 11 in the Theatre Royal. The honour conferred on Dublin was fully realised, and a crowded, interested, and sympathetic audience attended at the presentation. The instrumental works of the great French composer have been made known to us at the Chamber music recitals and the Orchestral Society's concerts, and much desire was aroused to learn his power in the realm of choral music. "Samson and Delilah" was first produced in 1877, in Weimar, under the Abbe Liszt. The sponsorship of the illustrious virtuoso, who was so instrumental in advancing Wagner's music dramas, might be taken as an indication of the great French composer's merit. In England the stage production was long retarded, owing to the prohibition of the Censor; but it was performed in concert form at Covent Garden on Sept. 25, 1893. Subsequently, permission being given for the stage presentation, the enterprising Moody-Manners Company secured the English rights, and it is to this happy result we owe the performance of last evening. The story of the sacred drama opens in the public square of Gaza, in Palestine. After various incidents Delilah, encouraged by the High Priest, determines to make Samson succumb to her charms. She employs all her arts to allure and ensnare him, as she desires to learn the secret of his power. Her blandishments succeed, and in the end she learns the secret. In the last act Samson, a prisoner, blind and shorn, is seen turning a mill. The Hebrews in captivity mourn their fate and his. Delilah mocks the powerlessness of Samson, and exults in her potency. The rage of Samson is laughed at by the Philistines, and the High Priest directs a child, who leads Samson to the middle of the Temple, so that all may behold him. Samson lifts his voice in prayer to be again given strength to avenge God and to crush the enemy. He grasps the two pillars which support the Temple, and making a gigantic effort pulls down the sacred edifice to ruins.

The cast of the performance was—Delilah, Mlle. De Lussan; Samson, Mr. Joseph O'Mara; the High Priest, Mr. Dever; Abimelech, Mr. Moorhouse; and an aged Hebrew, Mr. Charles Magrath.

A prelude of mournful sighing character introduces the first act, and the chorus of Hebrews, "God of Israel," is heard behind the scene. The lament for their cities overthrown and the profanation of their altars is in vigorous fugal form. Samson (Mr. O'Mara) in a gracefully consoling strain comforts and encourages them to build once again their altars. A singularly melodious solo, with harp accompaniment, "Beseech we Him," is assigned to Samson, leading up to an incitement to war and victory, given with great fire and animation. In the next scene the song of Samson, supported by the chorus, "Israel, burst your bonds," is a well marked and convincing theme. The orchestration is made with admirable skill to reinforce the voice effects. The attack of Abimelech on Samson, and the fall of the former were not accomplished in such a manner as to impress, and the scene ended tamely. Mr. Magrath, as the Aged Hebrew, sang with earnestness the number "He did chastise," which followed the "Hymn of Joy"—a dirge-like measure curiously enough. The greatest scene of the music drama, and one in which very delightful music illustrates the story, was Scene 6, outside the Temple. Mlle. Zelie De Lussan, as Delilah, created from the beginning a wonderful interest, which her accomplished acting and singing sustained all through the scene. The opening aria, "I Come to Render," sweetly sung, was the prelude to a duet with Samson, "O my well beloved." This may be regarded as one of the telling features of the concerted music. In her temptation of Samson her histrionic display was magnificently sustained. At times advancing, retreating, revealing, and concealing, her skill at luring the hapless hero was a most artistic and convincing performance. Her song, "In vain am I burning," was accompanied by graceful orchestration. The concluding number, "I'll wait for the morrow," in which, by loving gestures, she provokes Samson, was sung with striking effect, and the pent-up applause of the audience burst out with great warmth, and fully half a dozen times was Mlle. De Lussan recalled to the stage. In the scene The Valley of Soreck her performance was one succession of triumphs. Her assumption of love for the one whom she loathed and desired to betray was conveyed with high art. Her insistence in the efforts to discover his mysterious power was skilfully depicted in song and orchestration. The duet with the High Priest of Dagon (Mr. Dever), "I crave to satisfy my hate," won a generous meed of applause. The most charming love strains illustrate the scene with Samson, where she discovers his secret. The aria, "Softly awakes my heart," which is ravishingly melodious, was tenderly given, and the beauty of it was enhanced by the orchestration. The storm and lightning, which render tragic this scene, were vividly represented in the instrumentation, and a fine climax is attained where the betrayal of Samson is completed.

In the closing scene Samson is discovered in chains, shorn of his locks, and engaged in turning a mill. The monotony of the task is ingeniously suggested in the orchestration. Mr. O'Mara presented a pathetic picture of Samson, and gave, with great emotion, the prayer, "Look down, O Lord." The poignacy of the grief was intensified by the sob in the voice which this artist employs with moving effect. The scene is composed of tableaux, in the second of which a bacchanalian dance, lively and interesting, is introduced. A quick measure, with quaint percussion effects, is followed by a slow swaying movement, affording display for graceful grouping and posing. The chorus of the Philistines, "Prosper our future," is classically clear in the voice parts, and with the free running accompaniment was an impressive number. Samson is led to the pillars amidst the mocking laughter of the crowd, and as he brings them down and the temple falls to ruins the scene was realistically effective. The audience were loud in their praises of the entire production, which was in every way most successful. The orchestration won the admiration of all. Replete with charm and originality, the varied effects appealed to the listeners as being accomplished without any strain or effort on the resources of the instruments employed. The treatment was picturesque, and the copious demands on the middle and deeper notes gave in the orchestration a warmth of colour in contrast to the brilliancy of the voice parts. Herr Eckhold conducted with customary skill, and was called on the stage to receive the acknowledgments of the house.—Freeman's Journal, Jan. 12.

A MOODY-MANNERS DINNER.

A dinner was given on the 20th inst. at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, by the President and Committee of the Corinthian Club in honour of the Moody-Manners Opera Company. The President, Sir Charles A. Cameron, C.B., occupied the chair, and was supported by a large gathering. Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners, the Countess Von Resetas, Madame De Lussan, Colonel Sir Neville Chamberlain, K.C.B.; Major Richardson, D.L., and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Telford, Lady Cowan, Sir Lambert Ormsby, His Honour County Court Judge Todd, K.C.; Miss Kate Anderson, the Very Rev. the Dean of the Chapel Royal, Rev. D. F. R. Wilson, Succentor St. Patrick's Cathedral; Rev. C. W. O'Hara Mease, Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal; Miss Cameron, Mrs. Adamson, Miss Rogers, Miss Harrison, Mr and Mrs. Lewys James, Mrs. Power O'Donoghue, Mr. Charles Magrath, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Miss O'Shaughnessy, Mr. Philip Brozel, Miss Rich, Dr. Redmond, Mrs. Redmond, Messrs. Seth Hughes, A. G. Joyce, F. J. Ball, G. D. Mercer, Charles Moorhouse, A. Brouzet, Vice-Consul of France; Mons. Abel Bergeron, and A. C. Fronam.

After the loyal toast had been musically honoured,

The Chairman said he had a toast to propose which needed no eloquence and no sophistry to induce them to receive it with the utmost enthusiasm. It was that of their special guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners and their talented coadjutors of the Moody-Manners Opera Company. He had on many occasions proposed an identical toast, and it was never received with a greater degree of enthusiasm than in 1907, 1908, and 1909. He never knew anyone do more than he was able to do, and now they had got to that degree of enthusiasm in welcoming the Moody-Manners Opera Company here that they could attain to no further degree of development. Therefore, their special guests, and those they represented, must not expect more enthusiasm than last year, and they must not expect any more enthusiasm next year than this year, because they could not do any more than they had been doing for some years past. He regretted that his capacity for doing full justice to that toast had not expanded in the same way that the enthusiasm had expanded. The Corinthian Club was composed of ardent admirers of music and the drama, and more especially of the lyric drama. Every year the members of their Club, in common with the people of Dublin at large, anxiously looked forward to the periodical re-appearance of the Moody-Manners Opera Company.

Mr. Charles Manners gracefully acknowledged the enthusiastic manner in which the toast was received. He said they all knew he was an Irishman, and where he came from, and that his ambition, and pleasure, and delight was to know that in Ireland any little thing they did in the musical line was appreciated and honoured by his own countrymen. His ambition had in a great measure been satisfied this season by his production of Samson and Delilah. The opera, taken as a whole, was as good as, and, perhaps, a little better than, anything he had done before, and he hoped sincerely that it would not stand at that—he wanted to try to do better still.

An excellent musical programme was carried out by the members of the Corinthian Club, and, much to the delight of all present, songs were also contributed by Mr. Charles Manners, Mr. Philip Brozel, Mr. Lewys James, and other members of the Moody-Manners Company. Mrs. Power O'Donoghue recited during the evening some admirable verses of her own composition appropriate to the occasion.

"THE BARRIER."

The Barrier, a play in four acts, by Eugene Presbrey, has scored a genuine success at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. It is a dramatisation of Rex Beach's novel of the same name and closely follows the original narrative, the scenes being laid in Flambeau, Alaska. The central character, John Gale, is a "squaw man," which means that he is the husband of a half-breed Indian woman named Alluna. At a trading post on the Yukon he keeps a general store, with a bar, and lives contentedly with his wife and three children. Necia, the eldest, has spent five years at a mission school, and is an attractive "Miss" of eighteen. Gold is found, and the news of its discovery is quickly spread abroad, bringing disreputable characters to the trading post. Captain Burrell of Kentucky, with a detachment of soldiers, is sent to do police work in this locality. Several notorious criminals are "wanted," and he has their descriptions. Burrell falls in love with Necia, and she reciprocates his affection, but when he learns that she is a "half-breed" he stops short of proposing marriage to her. Consequently the miners gossip about them, and Necia's disappointment makes her father angry, for it appears to him that the young army officer is playing fast and loose with the girl. John Gale, it appears, is a fugitive from justice. Fifteen years ago he was accused of shooting another man's wife, she having been his sweetheart. To the trading post comes his old enemy, Dan Bennett, now known as Stark, who married Gale's sweetheart and illtreated her. Stark was the real murderer, but he contrived to fasten the crime on his rival, and Gale had to make himself scarce. The latter escaped with the child and brought her up as his own. The Indian woman is merely her foster-mother, so Necia is not a half-breed as everyone has been led to suppose.

Gale and Stark half recognise each other, but neither is certain. Stark is plainly a "bad man," bent on making trouble. He is accompanied by another scoundrel named Runnion, who falls foul of Captain Burrell at the outset and is shot in the hand. The quick "gun play" in which the Americans excel is in evidence in every scene, and it is most exciting. Stark and Runnion conspire together to cheat Gale. Through Burrell's watchfulness, however, they fail, and the army officer orders the pair of them to depart at a few hours' notice. Positive of Gale's identity by this time, Stark takes his revenge by telling Burrell that Necia's reputed father is wanted for murder. Gale is cleaning his revolver at the time, and it goes off "accidentally" in Stark's direction, the shot just missing him. Gale surrenders himself to Burrell on the old charge, but protests his innocence and Burrell believes him. Stark comes to the army officer's quarters whilst Gale is there, and there is a terrible fight in the dark. The lamp is smashed, the table overturned, and a situation suggestive of "battle, murder, and sudden death" holds the audience spellbound. Stark is mortally wounded, but he is almost at his last gasp before he confesses the circumstances of the murder and clears Gale. Burrell's love for Necia reasserts itself in the meantime, and the "barrier" between them is removed by the disclosure that she is of pure white parentage. The drama is realistically acted, the principal characters being admirably represented. As John Gale Mr. Theodore Roberts gives one of those rugged and forceful portrayals that stir the blood, and his fine performance is largely responsible for the success of the play. Miss Florence Rockwell is a charming Necia, and Miss Abigail Marshall's embodiment of the Indian woman is true to life. Mr. James B. Durkin plays Captain Burrell with a manly earnestness that makes him popular, and Mr. W. S. Hart, in a character similar to the one he assumed in The Squaw Man, acts the part most effectively.

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL'S company is at the New Theatre Royal, Whitehaven, in the domestic drama, The Old Folks at Home. Mr. Frank Lister is well cast as Lord Kenilworth, and Mr. G. Steele acts cleverly as Andrew Ross. Mr. G. Scully is good as Ben Jolly, and Mr. Ian Flemming plays Hugh Lovell in a careful manner. Miss Maud Warburton is successful as Dorothy Robin, and Miss Dorothy Goode acts capably as Bonita Durham.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE is presenting The Prodigal Son at the Grand Theatre, Luton. Great credit is due to the acting of Messrs. Mark Draper and Ernest Owtrim as the brothers, well supported by Miss Sara Dudley as Thora and Elin, Miss Lily Crammonde as Helga, and Miss Florence Lovell as the Governor's wife, Anna.

A BUSY ARCHITECT.

Messrs. Matcham and Co.'s plans for the reconstruction of Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, to be named the Tivoli, have received the sanction of the authorities, and building operations will be proceeded with forthwith.

The principal alterations consist of an extra number of exits and entrances, the shop at the side having been acquired for this purpose, also the introduction of large waiting-rooms and the part reconstruction of the auditorium, improving the sight lines and generally bringing the building up to date.

The present circle entrance and foyer will remain, the crush room over being formed into a waiting-room for this part of the house. To the right of the vestibule a wide marble staircase leads through a fine waiting-room, handsomely decorated and furnished, with direct access to the stalls.

The pit is entered to the left of the vestibule through a similar waiting-room, with a staircase leading to the rear of the pit seats.

These waiting-rooms occupy a portion of the unused cellar under the present pit, and will be fitted up with due regard to comfort, lighted by electricity, and well ventilated.

An entire new fireproof staircase occupies a portion of the old shop property, giving an extra exit from the grand circle, and a new exit from the stalls is also obtained here. The old exit from the pit, which projected into the auditorium and took up a considerable amount of the seating, will be done away with and the space floored over and seated. The result will be a fine square pit, which will be comfortably seated and decorated. Another exit is formed at the side of the pit, adjoining that from the stalls, in lieu of the one done away with.

The present exits from the gallery and circle will remain. The number of exits will then consist of no less than ten, each being separate and distinct from the other, all the doors being made so that they give the full width of passage when opened, and all fitted with alarm exit bolts.

Additional retiring rooms will be provided from all parts, and a fine saloon is planned, with easy approaches from the circle and stalls.

The frontage to Guild-street will be improved and handsome polished doors introduced, and the whole brightened up and made attractive with electric light, &c.

It is proposed to erect a verandah along the front to protect the public from inclement weather. It will be found, however, that the greatest improvement is in the auditorium, which, when completed, will compare with any theatre of its size in the kingdom.

The front of the stage, which at present projects considerably into the auditorium, will be set back, and this will give almost sufficient room for the orchestra, the present orchestra being floored over and forming a continuation of the present stalls floor, and will thus increase the seating of the auditorium.

The whole of the private boxes, together with the sides of the circle and gallery, will be cleared away and reconstructed on quite new lines, the columns being removed, and the rearrangement will improve the sight lines and increase the seating capacity.

The present barrier and raised seating between dress circle and upper circle will be removed. The two parts thrown into one grand circle will undoubtedly be a great improvement. The front of the present dress circle will be projected, and although a row of seats at the top will be done away with (and the promenade lowered considerably, allowing of better sight lines and a continuous promenade from side to side obtained), by a clever rearrangement of the seating one more row will be obtained.

The sides of the gallery will also be similarly reconstructed and greatly improved.

The new private-box façade at the sides of the stage are cleverly designed, and contain wall fixtures, the approaches to same by arched arcading, with balustrading, &c., being very unique.

A new side staircase will allow free access between the circle and stalls, this, together with the approach to the stalls from the waiting-room, being attractive features in the auditorium.

The designs show that the decorations will be very artistic, and the furnishing will be of the most sumptuous and at the same time comfortable description. Rich draperies, carpets, and velvet tip-up chairs and upholstered seating is intended in all parts of the theatre, which will be brilliantly lighted, both in front and behind the curtain, by the electric light.

Little alteration is to be effected (nor is it required) to the stage or dressing-rooms, but the comfort and safety of the artists will be studied in every way, and everything that money and the great experience of the firm of theatrical architects the directors have appointed can suggest will be carried out so as to provide Aberdeen with one of the best high-class theatres of varieties in the country.

Building operations in connection with Mr. Walter Gibbons's New Palladium (late Hengler's) are now proceeding. Messrs. Waring and White are the contractors, and it is anticipated that the design of Messrs. Frank Matcham and Company, the architects, will pan out as one of the finest places of entertainment in this country. Everything is to be carried out on a scale of grandeur, together with comfort and safety that these gentlemen can devise, and the design by them of two of the most important places of entertainment in London will lead us to expect something out of the ordinary in the way of theatre building. The New Palladium, it is anticipated, will be ready to receive the public some time the end of the year.

Lewisham is to have one of the largest theatres of varieties in the suburbs of London. The site, which is at the corner of Rushey Green and Brownhill-road, is being cleared and building operations commenced. The designs are by the well-known theatrical architects Messrs. Frank Matcham and Company, and many novel features in the arrangements and design are promised, including large tea-rooms. The new building is intended to be completed by the end of the year.

The Edinboro' Empire is shortly to undergo complete redecoration and improvements under the supervision of Messrs. Frank Matcham and Company, the architects of Messrs. Moss's Empires. New waiting-rooms for stalls and grand circle are to be built, together with a new pit saloon, retiring-rooms, and exits. The whole will be an acquisition to this theatre, one of the first of the luxurious theatres of varieties, and the first of many designed by Mr. Matcham for Moss's Empires.

Messrs. Matcham and Company have also prepared plans for one of the largest and finest rinks in London, to be erected on a corner site in the High-road, Streatham. The scheme embraces, in addition to the rink, a cinematograph theatre, shops, and flats over, the whole constituting a very imposing and extensive building.

The Palace, Hammersmith, opened its doors to the public on Monday last, after entire reconstruction by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Company, and now ranks as one of the finest variety houses in London.

MR. CARR LOATES' company is at the Central Theatre, Northwich, in At the World's Mercy. Mr. Bert Leighton is a capital Capt. Frank Manley; Mr. Carr Loates presents a telling delineation of Jabez Barber; Alice Lloyd is well played by Miss Marie Butler; and Miss Cissie Milford in the dual-rôle of Skittles, the stowaway, and Kittie Knott, a music hall star, shines pre-eminently.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Oswald Stoll has just secured Lady Beerbohm Tree to appear on Monday next at the Liverpool Empire in The Sirocco, adapted from the Swedish Simoon, by Arthur Scott Craven. During this engagement Lady Beerbohm Tree will hand £100 to the Lord Mayor of Liverpool to be devoted to local charities.

Mr. Scott Craven, the young author of The Sirocco, will be playing the part of Lieut. Trusham in The O'Flynn at His Majesty's on Tuesday evening next. Besides being an actor he is a poet, a volume of verse from his pen, entitled "Poems in Divers Keys," being published by Grant Richards in 1904. He has also written two one-act plays, His Eightieth Birthday, produced by Mr. Ben Greet on March 25, 1901, and The Compleat Angler, produced at the Lyceum on June 11, 1907.

Miss Winifred Emery has been specially engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll to appear at the London Hippodrome for a number of weeks, commencing Feb. 21, when she will produce an entirely new one-act play called The Dressing-Room, written for her by James Bernard Fagan, author of The Merry Devil, which was produced at the Playhouse on June 3 last year, with Miss Emery in the part of Madonna Geralda Capponi. Mr. Fagan first secured fame as a playwright in that fine poetic piece The Prayer of the Sword, produced at the Adelphi, with Oscar Asche and Lily Brayton in the chief parts; and his name adds considerable lustre to the list of those writing for the variety theatres.

Curtain-raisers generally go to the halls from the theatres, but Mr. Harry B. Irving has reversed the process by securing as a fore-piece The Plumbers to precede his production at the Queen's to-night of Dr. Jekyll. One has agreeable remembrance of The Plumbers at the Tivoli and the Palace, and one calls to mind the two delightfully comic impersonations of Mr. Fred Emney and Mr. Harry Grattan. Mr. Emney's uncle, Mr. Arthur Williams, will be seen in his nephew's part at the Queen's.

The most remarkable sketch that has been produced on the variety stage for many years was seen for the first time at the Bedford on Monday. A strong story has been treated with great skill by the adaptor of The Adder's Tooth, and the interest throughout is intense. What is going to be the end is the question one puts when the Bioscope comes into play, and the denouément comes as the greatest possible surprise. Such a powerful piece of work should have a long run.

A new generation has arisen since Mr. Maskelyne invented in 1875 that wonderful automaton "Psycho." Indeed, it was one of his most sensational achievements. We have, of course, had many mechanical figures since, but none have attained the popularity of the genial wizard's creation. Psycho "ran" for 4000 performances, and we are glad to hear that "his" revival at St. George's Hall is imminent.

In introducing the automaton's performances Mr. Maskelyne used a stand, which was supported by castors that had porcelain wheels. This stand was put on the stage after having first been examined by the audience. Then a clear glass cylinder was placed on the stand, and the automaton (dressed as an Oriental) having previously been closely scrutinised by the audience, was placed on the cylinder, ready for its work. Psycho was a fine card player, and particularly good at whist. On one occasion Mr. Maskelyne had the three finest whist players in the world at the Egyptian Hall—Dr. Pole, Mr. Cavendish (the great whist authority), and "Trumps," of the Field. The trio had a rubber with Psycho, and they complimented the automaton on his play. They even revoked intentionally, but Psycho was not caught napping.

No sooner did the news come through that Paris was rapidly being flooded than Mr. Alfred Butt dispatched a number of Bioscope operators to the city, with the result that on Wednesday evening he was enabled to present on the Urbanora Bioscope a series pictures depicting the terrible distress obtaining in "The Gay City." Large tracts of land under water are shown; people are frantically removing their household goods; firemen pumping water away from threatened houses, and the extraordinary piles of wreckage at the many bridges are produced with terrible reality.

The balance-sheet of the Coliseum Syndicate will be a pleasant and interesting study to the shareholders in this now successful concern, and reflects the greatest possible credit on Mr. Oswald Stoll (the chairman and managing-director) and his colleagues on the board. As will be seen from the figures, the actual profit from the theatre in twelve months is £42,322, which, added to sums received in the shape of interest on deposits and investments, transfer fees and rents, makes a total of £44,075.

"The shareholders meet on Monday next, and," says the Rialto, "it is to hoped that they will turn up in force, and not, like so many shareholders, stay at home when they have received a satisfactory dividend. They should take this opportunity of encouraging the directors by expressing appreciation of the result of their efforts." The meeting is to be held in the Coliseum at 12 noon. Twenty per cent. dividend on the year's working speaks for itself.

Charles Coborn set the whole world singing "The man that broke the bank at Monte Carlo," and no doubt some similar lilting refrain from this capable actor and singer will again haunt the world. He has been engaged by the Durham House Syndicate, for a number of their halls, beginning next week with the Euston and Metropolitan. This week Mr. Coborn is gaining fresh laurels by his appearance for the first time at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth. At the same establishment that pretty and charming young banjo expert, Miss Doris Walthew is doing great credit to her tutor, Clifford Essex, and the local Press is loud in her praise.

There is no questioning the popularity of Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, in Bristol. In him the poor children of the city have found a generous friend. For them Mr. Elliott has ordered from Messrs. J. S. Fry and Co. 5000 packets of chocolate, and these he has sent to "Uncle Jack" of the Times and Mirror weekly. The packets were exhibited on a special stall at Colston Hall, where other good things sent to "Uncle Jack" were also shown, and later will be given to the poor children. There is a photograph of Mr. Elliott, taken by Messrs. Hana, Ltd., on each packet, and the contents of the wrapper will be thoroughly enjoyed by the kiddies.

Mr. Elliott has addressed the following letter to "Uncle Jack":—"Dear Sir,—It is one of the greatest pleasures of my life to contribute 5000 packets of chocolate (specially made to my order by Messrs. J. S. Fry and Sons) to your store of good things for the children. I have been very happy among the good people of Bristol during this pantomime season. They have been most kind to me, and I want them to accept my little gift to the youngsters as testimony of my warm appreciation. Wishing you, 'Uncle Jack,' and the kiddies long life and happiness, believe me, yours very truly, G. H. Elliott, 'Chocolate.' Prince's Theatre Pantomime, Bristol."

Mr. Ernest Bridgen, since his arrival from Kilburn, has commenced picture matinées on Wednesday at the Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, at which local aspirants to the music hall stage are invited to compete in trial turns. He is to be congratulated on the success attained.

Mr. Gilbert Payne has had a distinguished visitor to see his very successful pantomime, The House that Jack Built, at the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, in the person of Mr. Arthur Collins, of Drury Lane, who occupied a box on Thursday, 20th, and was greatly interested in the performance.

Miss Millie Tempest writes:—"In your report of the funeral of the late Mr. Sid Bint, amongst the mourners you mention Miss Millie Tempest (wife). This is an error. We were devoted chums of years standing, not related, though no one regrets his loss more than I."

The eighth annual supper and dance in connection with the pantomime at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, will be held at the Constitutional Hall, Hammersmith-road, on Monday evening next. These annuals have become most popular, and are eagerly looked forward to in the district, enjoyable times being the result of the organising abilities of Mr. Norman Walters, the hon. secretary, and Mr. A. Bradshaw, hon. treasurer.

Mr. H. Kennedy, for two years manager of the King's, Hanley, left on Saturday night to take up a similar position at the Queen's Hall, Birmingham. The staff presented him with a solid silver cigar-case on the stage on the night of his departure. Mr. George de Vauxe made the presentation, Mr. Kennedy suitably responding. In his stead, Captain F. Shaw returns to Hanley as manager, being assisted by Mr. Colin Hazelwood, late of the Queen's Hall, Birmingham.

The staff of the Glasgow Empire held their annual social on Wednesday of last week, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. In the course of the proceedings, Mr. Will Howgate, assistant-manager, on behalf of the staff, presented Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds, resident-manager here, with a handsome gold-mounted cigarette-case, in silver case suitably inscribed, as a token of their respect and esteem.

The directors of the Middlesbrough Empire, being anxious to recognise the untiring and indefatigable services of their manager, Mr. C. G. Rembges, on Wednesday granted him a benefit matinée, and the popularity which Mr. Rembges has gained during his five years for his courteous and tactful behaviour to all was strikingly manifested by the bumper house which gathered to make the event a success. It was undoubtedly a success from every standpoint, and Mr. Rembges is to be congratulated upon having made so many genuine friends during his residence in the North country town.

The matinée was held under the distinguished patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of Middlesbrough (Lieut-Colonel T. Gibson Poole, V.D., and Mrs. Poole), Sir Samuel and Lady Sadler, and many other prominent ladies and gentlemen. By the kind permission of the directors of the Middlesbrough Empire, Mr. H. Burns (of Stockton), Signor Pepi, Sir Edward Moss, and Messrs. Stoll, R. Thornton, Frank Allen, and W. Boardman, one of the finest combinations of star artists gave their services. They included Mr. Arthur Roberts and company, Mr. Geo. Gray, the Elliott-Savonas, De Wynne Bros., Park's Eton Boys, Miss Elsie Jerome, the Sisters Storm, Tom Moore, Carta and Mirtziana, Fritz Korman, and many others.

At the conclusion of the programme, the last, but not least, interesting event took place in the shape of presentations to Mr. and Mrs. Rembges. The Mayor (Lieut.-Colonel Poole) presented the "favourite of the day" with a massive gold albert and medallion, suitably inscribed, from friends and patrons; and on behalf of the staff Mr. Shewl (a well-known Midlesbrough business man) presented the manager with a silver card-case and Mrs. Rembges with a handsome diamond and gold brooch. His Worship and the other speakers made laudatory speeches of Mr. Rembges for his courteousness, tact, and ability in connection with the management of the Empire.

Mr. Rembges, who was enthusiastically received, suitably acknowledged the gifts in feeling terms, and thanked his colleagues, subscribers, artists, patrons, and all for their exceeding and valuable kindness.

Mr. Geo. Gray, responding for the artists, said not only had he personally, but the whole of the artists who had given their services that day, had done so most willingly because of the personal regard and esteem they held for the worthy manager of that important institution. If Mr. Rembges was given a benefit in twenty years time the artists who knew him would most gladly come, even by aeroplane from distant shores, to support him.

An interesting ceremony took place on Saturday last at the Palace Theatre, Bordesley, where the last performance of Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan's Fair One with the Golden Locks pantomime was being given prior to its travelling. Mr. Wallace Stranack, the assistant-producer and stage-manager, was publicly presented with a handsome silver cigarette case by Mr. Woodward, the manager of the theatre, on behalf of the local staff. Mr. Stranack suitably expressed his thanks for the unexpected compliment.

Mr. Rowland Hill, who is playing Mother Muggles in Jack and the Beanstalk at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, was on the occasion of his birthday presented by the boys and girls of the company with a solid silver cigar-case and match-box, both suitably inscribed. After the fall of the curtain Mother Muggles invited the company to a supper and ball at the Masonic Hall, where the fun was kept going until the early hours.

The guests numbered nearly a hundred, and included Miss Nell Emerald, Miss Jose Collins, Miss Ada Fawn, Miss Lesley Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Marriott Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Tubb, Mr. and Mrs. Kit Keen, Mr. and Mrs. Cris Le Brun, Mr. and Mrs. John Bramham, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Radford, Miss Lily Black, Mr. Fred Spencer, Miss Minnie Muir, Miss Beanland, Councillor Crawford, Miss Mabel Mannering, Mr. Gus Garrick, Mr. Harry Clifford, Mr. John Alexander, Mr. Cyril Thompson, Mr. Harry Courtin, Mr. Francis O'Flynne, the Valdo Bros., the Lyric Quartette, Mr. Harry Ed. Ray, the Rev. Robert Sedgwick, Mr. Hyman Livingstone, and Mr. Will Turner.

During their stay of four weeks at the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, the gentlemen of Mr. Gilbert Payne's House that Jack Built company held a billiard handicap. The competition was at the Three Towns Club, and great interest was manifested in it. The final took place last week between Mr. Harry Marvello, acting-manager, and Mr. Louis Elgar, musical director. Mr. Marvello had to concede points all round, and eventually ran out winner by 7 points. In addition to the prize of a box of cigars, Mr. Ernest Yeoman, manager of the club, presented the winner with a handsome silver matchbox inscribed: "Three Towns Club, Panto Billiard Handicap, 1910. Winner, Mr. Harry Marvello."

Miss Topsy Sinden is delighting her legion of Irish admirers by her dancing in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, which is scoring a huge success, in spite of election excitement.

The little play Bonnie Prince Charlie, which Miss Gertrude Bibby has been presenting at the Crouch End Hippodrome, is a protean sketch in which that lady plays no fewer than five characters. She comes to the Bedford on Monday next.

Messrs. Snow and Farron have kindly sent 5s. for the widow of the late John Callan, which amount has been handed to her.

Mr. Tom Leamore returns on Monday next to the Empire, Birmingham, where he is starring. This is his second engagement at the Empire in seven months. We are glad to hear that Mr. Leamore is re-booked with Mr. Stoll at all his halls for some considerable time to come.

Mrs. Lewis Waller will open at the Tivoli on Feb. 7 in a new farcical comedy, adapted from a French farce entitled Lost, Stolen, or Strayed. Mr. Leonard Robson will play the principal male part and produce for Mrs. Waller.

Jack Boston has made his son Jack Smiles a present of a diamond collar stud, which he hopes he will wear "for months, and months, and months."

Mrs. John Lawson has been playing to record business this week at the Hippodrome, Peckham, with her invasion playlet, Supremacy, the audience being unusually enthusiastic. Next week Mrs. Lawson will be seen at the Imperial Palace, Canning Town, with The Devil's Sunday.

A packed house in the merriest of moods listened and laughed at the pantomime of Aladdin at the Lyric, Hammersmith, on Friday, the 21st. Mr. Wentworth Croke, standing in the dress circle, seemed to be as much amused as the unsophisticated playgoer, and must have been deeply impressed with the immense popularity of Miss Kittee Rayburn, who has played the title-rôle so successfully during the run of the production, which at the time of writing is at Birkenhead.

During the evening Miss Rayburn was presented in one of the scenes on the stage by Mr. Fred S. Jennings, the popular manager, with a handsome basket of flowers from Sir William and Lady Bull, the recently-elected member for Hammersmith and his wife. Mr. Jennings referred to the presence of Lady Bull in a private box, and said that though he regretted Sir William's absence, they would be glad to know that he was away continuing the good work for his party. Miss Rayburn, in reply, made a graceful little speech. During the evening she sang a topical verse with special reference to the election.

In recognition of the support Miss Kittee Rayburn gave him at the recent election in Hammersmith by her topical song, "If I had a word to say," which she sang each evening as Aladdin in the pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, Sir William Bull, M.P., has composed the following, which was sung as an additional verse at the pantomime performance referred to above:—

"There's a maid that we're proud of,
And her name's best known to you,
I mean sweet Kittee Rayburn,
She's dainty, tried, and true,
And at this merry panto.,
She takes Aladdin's part,
And tho' a boy, and yet a girl,
She's stolen every heart.
If I had a word to say,
I'd thank her right away,
For she's helped to win a splendid fight
In Hammersmith to-day.
Her songs are always gay,
She's a gracious, graceful fay,
So here's to young Aladdin,
A truly brave Paladin,
If I had a word to say."

Says the Daily Chronicle:—"We are aware that the great Constitutional Party has strange allies, but there are few members of it sufficiently naïve and outspoken to make due acknowledgment. 'Sir Billy' is a brilliant exception, and his tribute to Miss Rayburn is an honest attempt to give thanks where they are due."

Mr. Norman Partridge will produce at the Royal Standard on Monday a new sketch entitled Edmund Kean, by Louis Cohen, author of The Drummer of the 76th, La Carmencita, David Garrick, Nelson, and other sketches. Mr. Partridge will play the part of the famous actor.

Fred Maitland and Co., who recently introduced to London, at the Paragon, Roots, Rash Chemists, has this week been causing roars of laughter at the Standard, Pimlico. It is an absurdity, full of originality, and there can hardly be any limit to the fun that this firm can supply. Another of Spot Oliver's winners.

Mr. William John Mackay was initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Ben Woodger, P.W.T., assisted by Terrier Ben Obo, V.T. Terrier Arthur Were officiated as organist. The next ladies' concert of the Terriers' Association will be held at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, on Sunday, Feb. 6.

Mrs. Nolan (Agnes Hazel) desires through our columns to thank all her friends for the many beautiful wreaths sent by them in memory of her deeply-lamented husband, and to express her gratitude for the large number of telegrams and letters of sympathy that she has received, and the great kindness that has been shown her in her bereavement.

Mr. Juan Buonaparte, with his company, is appearing next week at the Holloway Empire in that successful playlet, Buonaparte's Boy, by G. R. Sims. It is very appropriate that Mr. Buonaparte should appear as Napoleon, he being a lineal descendant of that illustrious Emperor, to whom he bears a startling likeness in form and feature. Mr. Buonaparte and his playlet are sure to be warmly welcomed by the Holloway folk next week.

The benefit performance for Mr. Johnny Alexander, to be held at the Empire, Camberwell, on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 24, is well in hand. Handsome donations have already been received from Sir Edward Moss, J.P., Miss Ada Reeve, G. H. Chirgwin, and Horace Wheatley, and smaller amounts from a large number of friends. Mr. Arthur Were, 96, Kennington-road, is the hon. secretary, and he will be glad to receive the names of artists willing to appear. Donations should be sent to Mr. Joe Elvin, hon. treasurer, 18, Charing Cross-road.

A return golf match to that at Raynes Park between Variety Artists and Concert Artists, played last month, when the music hall performers won by 5 games to 1, took place on Tuesday. It ended in a tie, each side winning 2 games. For the Variety Artists Mr. George Goodfellow (Goodfellow and Gregson) beat Mr. Ashley Weaver by 5 and 3, and Mr. F. Wildon beat Mr. G. Robbins by 3 and 2. For the Concert Artists Mr. Whitworth Mitton (of Amasis fame) beat Mr. H. A. Meymott by 4 and 2, and Mr. Lorne Wallett beat Mr. Hal Forde, the bold, bad robber of the Marlborough pantomime, by 4 and 2.

Owing to the success of Swan and Vesta's latest production, The Coster's Prize, they have secured another coster comedy entitled 'Liza's Wedding Day, which they will produce at an early date.

Frantz's Comedy Five are going on Monday to the Empress, Brixton, where they are putting on a novel acrobatic act, The Human Taxi, distinguished by wonderful feats of strength and tumbling accomplished by three young girls.

Mr. Bert Coote reopens at the Tivoli on Monday next in his highly-successful sketch A Lamb on Wall Street. Mr. Coote brought the sketch to the Strand house in November last for four weeks, and it so hit the tastes of the audiences there that it has been re-engaged for a further period.

Prominent among the newcomers at the Coliseum on Monday are the Romanis, who introduce many novelties in their musical act; Alexandra Dagmar, who from her handsome presence and Norse origin has been entitled "A daughter of the Gods"; Solbrig's Automatus in amusing mechanical devices; the Courtiers in catchy tunes; and Counsell and Mills.

Mr. George Leonard writes:—"I observe by the current issue of The Era that a one-act play by Mary O'Neill was produced at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on Wednesday, Jan. 19, and that the same was entitled Coming Home. This title I have used for a sketch written by myself and played by my wife and myself almost continuously for the past four years at most of the leading variety theatres."

Miss Marie Jones' clever little comedy protean playlet Wanted, the Co-respondent, at Collins's this week, has repeated its provincial success. This little lady's five-second changes and characterisations of totally distinct parts are little short of marvellous. From a boy of fifteen to an old man of four score her artistic rendition is never once at fault. In every character that she plays she seems especially suited.

All that was mortal of the late Mr. Alf. Bishop, of Bishop and Vale, was conveyed to rest on Wednesday, Jan. 26. The interment took place at Stratford Park Cemetery, and the cortège was followed by his sorrowing wife, Miss Lottie Swinburne, and several friends and professionals, including Mrs. W. Marchant and daughter Edie, Miss Ida Hetherington, Mr. Pat Carey, Mrs. and Miss Harrison (sister and niece), Mr. George Monk, Mr. Jack Harris, Mrs. Dennison and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Duce, and Miss Alston and little Maisie. A large wreath came from friends and neighbours, and wreaths were also sent by all the above-mentioned friends.

The coffin bore the inscription—"Alfred Leak. Died Jan. 20, 1910." Mr. Bishop's partner, Mr. Jess Vale, pre-deceased him only last May. Mr. Pat Carey attended on behalf of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund.

Mr. Wentworth Croke's bright and amusing pantomime of Aladdin concluded its run at the Lyric, Hammersmith, on Saturday last, and the whole entertainment has been given most successfully this week at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead. Messrs. Carl and Carr, the twentieth-century comedians, who make such a hit as the two Chinese policemen, and whose new song "By the sea," by Mellor and Gifford, is received with roars of laughter, are delighting the Birkenhead public with their clever drolleries.

Mr. Walter Leslie Gooch, who has had charge of the "Met" since the death of the late Mr. J. W. Edgar, has made himself popular with the patrons, and his good qualities are recognised by the profession and the staff. Almost synchronising with his installation as manager in charge of the "Met" was Mr. Gooch's marriage, in connection with which event the happy couple have received numerous presents and congratulations.

Mr. Gooch, who is in every way meeting with much success in his managerial capacity, was formerly at the Walthamstow Music Hall, the Empress, Brixton, and elsewhere. We referred last week to the staff's presentation on the stage, and also to the fact that Mr. Gooch is a son of the late Walter Gooch, at one time proprietor of the "Met," and Miss Fanny Leslie, who is now living in quiet retirement on the Continent.

In our notice of the pantomime of Babes in the Wood at the Hippodrome, Ealing, in our last issue, we omitted to mention the scenic artist's name, Mr. Charles Wood, who is responsible for the beautiful scenery which is one of the chief features of the production—a fact that is recognised by the well-merited applause with which it is received nightly. We remember Mr. Wood's artistic successes, "Fairyland," at the Hippodrome, and the "Palace of Orpheus" at the Coliseum. His abilities are worthy all the praise we can bestow.

Mrs. W. B. Fair again solicits the promise of the votes of subscribers to the Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, for her two children, Louis William Burnham Blackwell Fair, age two and a half years, and Richard Burnham Blackwell Fair, age ten months. The case is strongly recommended by Messrs. G. R. Sims, Richard Butler, Richard Wake (formerly proprietor of the Royal Standard), and Edward Terry (Terry's Theatre). Proxies will be thankfully received by Mrs. Fair, 6, Wells-street, Gray's Inn-road, W.C., or by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager, The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

We have received a copy of The Thalia Diary and Directory for Concert Parties and Entertainers, which must be quite a necessary desk companion for the large number of professional people connected with seaside shows, al fresco or otherwise. There is a directory of pier pavilions, gardens, parks, and other places where pierrots and other popular folk entertain; then there is a handy diary for bookings; and another feature is a list of troupes and the addresses of their managers. The Thalia Diary should become a very popular vade-mecum for the pierrot "industry"—if we may so call it—which is rapidly growing.

Miss Melinda May (secretary) on behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., begs most gratefully to thank the following:—Mrs. Harry Maynard (subscription) 5s.; Mrs. W. Northern, Northern Troupe, (subscription) 5s.; Miss Flo Banks (collecting) 9s.; Miss Jimson (collected from the ladies and gentlemen appearing in pantomime at the Broadway, Deptford) 5s.; Miss Ernestine Foy (collection) 5s.; the generous-hearted Joe Elvin for cheque value five guineas (donation); Mr. Harry Maynard, clothing; Mr. Alec Barish, another parcel new clothing.

The winning number for the Rex motor bicycle sweepstake by Mr. Joe Zarmo will positively appear in all variety papers next week, Feb. 3rd. Will ladies and gentlemen who have tickets not sold kindly communicate with Miss May immediately? Would Mdlle. Pollo please write? There are just a few remaining tickets. These may be had at the Guild not later than to-day, 1s. each. The £50 machine is still on view at 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception held every Wednesday from four to five o'clock. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed.

The annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund will be held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Thursday, Feb. 3.

Mr. Alfred Butt will present Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier at the Palace Theatre in Mr. Alfred Sutro's duologue A Marriage Has Been Arranged (originally produced at the Haymarket on May 6, 1902), with Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh in the leading rôles.

Mr. Fred Kitchen will make his first appearance under Herbert Darnley's management in the part of Private Potts, the name of the new comicality that Mr. Darnley (the author) is producing at the Holborn Empire on Monday. Other parts in the production are Potts's wicked wife, played by Miss Jessie Cramond, the Colonel by Mr. W. Wilby, the Colonel's daughter by Mrs. Herbert Darnley, and an Indian Princess by Miss Kathleen Denis.

By special arrangement with Miss Alice Lys and Mr. Eric Bert, "The Vampire Dance" will be a special attraction in front of Are You a Mason? on its next tour. It is quite a novel idea to place this sort of performance in front of a farcical comedy in place of the ordinary curtain-raiser.

Mr. Fred McLeod's Eight Marvels have been doing wonderfully well at Collins's Music Hall, and so great has been the reception accorded them that they have been instantly booked for a further two weeks to follow on this engagement, and have been given a return date on Oct. 3. Their turn comprises singing, dancing, and mimicry.

The death is announced of Nat Emmett, who passed away on Friday, the 21st inst., at the ripe old age of 82. Nat Emmett's goats amused the youngsters of two generations. Nat was the honoured guest of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund at the recent dinner given to old performers, and we spoke recently of his excellent recitation thereat.

Mr. Oswald Stoll has just added two more important engagements to his ever-increasing list of stars of the theatrical and operatic world. Mr. Charles Manners and Miss Fanny Moody have signed contracts to appear at the Hippodrome in July, and to afterwards appear at the Coliseum. They will appear in short scenes from standard operas.

Mr. Frank Hammonde, an old actor, for many years associated with the stock companies at the Britannia, the Surrey, Sadler's Wells, &c., died on Dec. 31, and was buried in the Actors' Acre, Woking, at the expense of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, on Jan. 5. Mr. Hammonde at one time played in sketches with a partner, and appeared at the minor music halls in the eighties.

Mr. Robert Hilton, the new tenant of the Strand Theatre, is negotiating with Mr. Norfolk Megone, the famous musical conductor, for the leadership of the orchestra, which is to number forty instrumentalists. Mr. Norfolk Megone's concerts at Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, were always extremely popular, and he became musical-director of the Royal, Holborn (with a greatly increased orchestra) when that hall came under the management of the late Harry Lundy.

The 644th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Herbert presiding. The agency at the "Three Tuns" Hotel, Sunderland, was transferred to Mr. J. Hall. The weekly financial statement, showing fifty-six new members and a cash total of £58 17s. 6d., was passed.

Miss Madiah-Suriyh, a new dancer, who has appeared at the London Coliseum during the week, scarcely varied the business of dancing after the manner made known by Odette Valery at this house. She performs with a live python coiled round her neck and waist. Kate Vaughan did something like this many years since at the Empire Theatre.

The Mother Goose pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, has been one of the greatest successes ever known in the second city of the Empire. The run, however, may have to terminate sooner than anticipated, as Neil Kenyon, who has been convulsing audiences in the name part, must shortly join the company in the coming production of The Islander, at the Adelphi.

Miss Josie Beltram, whose photograph and notes on her career appeared in our last issue, has for the nonce abandoned the legitimate stage for the variety, and is appearing, in conjunction with Miss Crissie Frances, in Mr. Charles Geoffrey's successful topical episodes, His Father's Teacher, The Boy Scout, A Working-man's Choice, &c. Miss Beltram has for a long time been the Wally to Miss Frances' Dick in Two Little Vagabonds.

On Monday, before His Honour Judge Smyly, K.C., and a jury, at Shoreditch, Solomon Kosta and Kate Kosta, his wife, general dealers, of 109, Whitecross-street, E.C., claimed £15 15s. damages from the London Music Hall Co., Ltd., of High-street, Shoreditch, for personal injuries sustained and damage done to an umbrella by being forcibly ejected from the Shoreditch Empire.

A dispute arose on a question of money being returned, plaintiff stating that he had never read the small print at the bottom of the bill, saying, "No seats guaranteed and no money returned." Mr. Hector Munro, the manager, denied that there had been any assault. Mr. Kosta walked out of his own accord in a very excited manner, and the ladies followed as soon as requested by the police. The jury found for the defendants, with costs.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Wat Harley at Madras. Born at Cheltenham in 1846, educated there, and passing his degrees for pathology and other sciences, he entered the profession more for the liking, and soon became famous as an author and composer, and wrote numerous well-known pantomimes, duets, and songs. For several years he exhibited his well-known creations, Rhoda, Pygmalion and Galatea, and other optical displays at the Crystal Palace and Westminster Aquarium.

As an accomplished illusionist and conjurer he toured the country, and was known far and wide as "L'Homme de Cent Visages," being a most clever impersonator. In 1864 he toured Southern Europe and appeared before the Sultan of Turkey, the King of Greece, and the Khedive of Egypt. For the last twenty years he toured throughout India, China, Japan, Australia, and the Philippines, and was war correspondent during the Spanish-American War.

He was the first showman to have the honour of appearing before the Maharajah of the Holy City of Benares, and rode his sacred white elephant to escort him from the city on leaving. He was at Pekin during the Boxer rising, and narrowly escaped being murdered. Subsequently he leased the Claremont estates at Darjeeling, and was the pioneer of the rink and cinematograph in India, and was also a freemason of many years' standing. He was known in all his travels as a true type of Britisher, fearless and enterprising—a most generous and charming personality. He leaves a wife and family to mourn his loss, and will be greatly missed by a legion of friends.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A PRETTY song, entitled "When the lights are low," by A. C. Findon and Hermann E. Darewski, has been published by Messrs. Francis and Day. Miss Lily Lena will feature it in America.

MISS HILDA JACOBSEN'S fine voice has during the week, at the Metropolitan, been heard to the fullest advantage in a new song with a haunting refrain, entitled "Cairo," a song of old Nile, that will take a deal of annihilating. The lyric is by Harry Staunton and Will E. Haines, and Donovan Meher, the cultured musician who gave us "My tiny firefly," is responsible for the music. Messrs. Francis and Day have acquired the song for publication.

MR. BEN ALBERT'S new and funny song, "My inventive kiddie," has been occasioning the greatest hilarity at the Bedford Music Hall, and is a fine example of the art of Alf Ellerton, whose "Inquisitive kiddie" for Mr. Frank Lynne is still, and long will be, remembered as one of the best comic songs extant. Mr. David Day's firm will shortly issue the new ditty.

MANY new songs and pieces will shortly be placed on the market in sheet music form by Messrs. Francis and Day, among them being the following:—"Bertie and Gertie (a muddled courtship)," by J. A. Glover-Kind; "Ninepence" (sung by Frank Lynne), by Alf Ellerton; "When somebody loves you," by Arthur Du Soir and J. Airlie Dix; "Defiance" march, by Donovan Meher; "There goes a vagabond!" (Miss Flora Cromer), by J. P. Long; "To-morrow may be good-bye," by J. P. Harrington, Fred Godfrey, and O. Powell; "My wife's cake" (Will Bentley), by Frank Wood: "One smile from you," by Leonard Cooke and H. E. Pether; "The song they loved the best" (introduced by Miss Billie Burford and Miss Cissie Curlette), by J. P. Long; "Man! man! beautiful man!" (Will Driscoll), by Fred Godfrey and Charles Collins; "Mother put a card in the window" (Miss Maidie Scott), by J. P. Harrington, Charles Collins, and E. W. Rogers; "Somebody stands at an old cottage door," by H. Staunton, W. E. Haines, and Donovan Meher; "I keep on walking" and "Have you got a cigarette picture?" (Bernard Russell), by Frank Wood; and "Plenty of money and jolly good health" (Charles R. Whittle), by Harry Wincott.

JOSEPH TABRAR, whose great comic song for Mr. Jack Smiles "For months and months and months" is still advancing in public favour by leaps and bounds, has written the same singer a ditty which will be published under the title of "Jack Smiles' laughing song." Messrs. Francis and Day have it in the press.

THE bevy of beauty whose portraits adorned Messrs. Francis and Day's advertisement a week since is again reproduced on this page. It comprises the likenesses of a few of the fair artists who are winning renown throughout these Islands by singing the songs of the celebrated firm in pantomime, and has attracted the widest attention. A second selection will be featured next week. The first cluster of cantatrices is made up of the portraits of the Misses Bessie Butt, Lily Black, Winnie Brown, Dorothy Craske, Venie Clements, Daisy Dormer, Maisie Ellinger, Lilian Erroll, Florrie Forde, Radie Furman, Dorothy Firmin, Marie George, Mabel Green, Florrie Gallimore, Rhoda Gordon, Kathleen Gray, Daisy James, Eva Kelland, Queenie Leighton, Violet Loraine, May Lilian Levey, Ruth Lytton, Cressie Leonard, Carrie Moore, Edna Morgan, Ada Reeve, Madoline Rees, Truly Shattuck, Topsy Sinden, Esta Stella, Elsie Steadman, Gracie Sinclair, Ruby Verdi, and Dorothy Ward.

MISS YVONNE LAMOR will feature two of Witmark's publications at the Tivoli on her opening there, viz., "Queenie was there" and "Ou là là."

"ROOTS, RASH CHEMIST."

A Farcical Sketch, Produced at the Standard, Pimlico, on Monday, Jan. 24.

The possibilities of humour in a chemist's shop would appear to be very remote, but in Roots, Rash Chemist, which occupies a conspicuous place on the bill at the Standard Music Hall, Mr. Fred Maitland has provided a compound of comicality in which every line is a laugh. The fun arises out of the enterprise of John William Roots, who has established a druggist's shop, from which he dispenses all sorts of quack medicines of his own composition. He does a thriving business, and in quick succession has for customers a lady who wants a "pick-me-up," a nurse with an ailing child, and a boy with toothache. They are all disposed of in a manner better witnessed than described, the child having swallowed a shilling, which, on being recovered with the aid of a pump, is found to have increased to 1s. 4d. Finally the chemist is visited by anarchists, and after being forced at the dagger's point to take an oath of secrecy, is compelled to serve the conspirators with an explosive for the manufacture of a bomb, the infernal machine being deposited in an organ which a ferocious-looking Italian brings into the shop. When the organ-grinder begins to play the bomb explodes and the shop is reduced to ruins, a subsequent scene showing the foreigners soaring in the air and Roots sitting disconsolate amid the débris.

Mr. Fred Maitland makes a most diverting personage of the chemist, and has endless resources for creating merriment. He delivers his lines with a quaintness that is irresistible, and never fails to win laughter, the house at times growing uproarious in their mirth. He is ably assisted by Miss Pauline Walker, who invests the parts of the nurse, the lady, and the female anarchist with characteristic attributes, and the rest of the company are efficient. The sketch is full of ludicrous incidents and nonsensical lines, at which no audience could fail to be amused.

KITTEE RAYBURN AS ALADDIN ON TOUR.

"ALADDIN" AT THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL.

The well-known favourite, Miss Kittee Rayburn, in the title-rôle.

Miss Rayburn's Aladdin was a spirited and talented impersonation throughout, and she rendered all her songs with delightful piquancy. "It's all over with the men" took extremely well with the audience, and was doubly encored.—Birkenhead News.

Aladdin is undoubtedly the best pantomime that has been staged here for some considerable time. In a cast of exceptional merit Miss Kittee Rayburn, it is almost needless to say, stands out with delightful prominence. Her impersonation of Aladdin is the work of an artist, and with unerring instinct she continues to fit herself perfectly in the picture. She has a charming voice, and her numbers are very quickly taken up by the members of the audience.—Birkenhead and Cheshire Advertiser.

WILL GODWIN, the famous actor-vocalist, is the principal attraction at the Empire Music Hall, Wrexham, and his singing of "If those lips could only speak," a song of his own composition, and others equally popular, have commanded liberal applause from appreciative audiences. Another great draw is Empress, "the lady of mystery," who gives some astonishing performances—escaping from a padlocked water-tank, from police handcuffs, &c., in full view of the audience. The other artists include Cissie Carter, a clever comedienne, and Jessie Deane, a charming singer.

"COTTAGE OR PALACE."

Playlet, by Frank Lindo, Produced at the Canterbury on Monday, Jan. 22.

Stephen Armitage .....MR. FREDERICK ROSS
David Armitage .....MR. WILLIAM DEMPSEY
Lucas Lyle .....MR. HARRY BARFORD
Solomon Keary .....MR. GEORGE CLAREMONT
Joan .....MISS KATIE NEVILLE
Dora .....MISS GLADYS BARNARD

A more correct description of this playlet "of great heart interest," would have been "melodramatic fragment" as it really consists of an act of Home, Sweet Home, a piece by Frank Lindo, which was seen in London at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on July 4, 1904, and has been successful on tour. At the poor cottage of Steve Armitage, a fisherman and captain of the lifeboat crew, his wife Joan in eating her heart out with chagrin at her hard lot. She seems to have been born to better things than to share the rough times and lowly life of a toiler of the sea, and has become more than impatient of the grinding poverty of her position. Even little Dora, the idol of the humble home, does not brighten her outlook on life. Steve, her husband, returns without encouraging news, and again departs without the customary kiss.

It is easy to see that Mrs. Armitage would be quite ready to jump at any prospect of a change, and when a certain Lucas Lyle calls to tell her that the handsome steam yacht in the bay is the property of her father, the Duke of Ancaster, who is on board, she is overjoyed. Lyle's story is repeated on the return of Steve with his father David Armitage, and we learn that Joan was a daughter of the sea, having been saved from the wreck of the Avon Castle by David, who, when questioned in after years, states that none survived the catastrophe. Lyle plays a trump card when he charges the older man with concealment of the real parentage of the now indignant woman, who departs from her home and child and sails away on board the yacht. Steve is left with the child Dora. In a scene full of homely pathos he undresses the little one and carries her to bed, not, however, before she has said a prayer for "mummy" to come back. Steve left by himself re-echoes the child's prayer, and the curtain falls.

All well-constituted lovers of melodrama want to see Steve and his wife reunited, and can have no sympathy whatever for a mother who leaves her only child and her cottage—in which she is placed upon a pedestal of marital devotion—for luxury and leisure. It should be possible, in a second scene, for Steve to rescue his wandering wife by means of the lifeboat, and thus add a stirring, most interesting, and entirely satisfactory finale to a piece that, as far as it goes, grips by its humanity and wholesome sentiment. Mr. Frederick Ross, the popular Lyceum actor, has been specially engaged for the part of Steve, and cuts a stalwart figure as the young fisherman. In the scene with the little one—prettily and intelligently played by Gladys Barnard—he sounds the depths of pathos, and his admirable voice gives full value to every line. Mr. William Dempsey, an actor who did good service in the palmy days of the Adelphi, makes an interesting David Armitage; Mr. George Claremont is helpful in a neat sketch of a fisherman given to gossip; and Mr. Harry Barford, in his short scene, gives the necessary oily touch to the smooth-tongued Lucas Lyle, and is quite effective in the scene where Lucas turns the tables on the erring old fisherman. Miss Katie Neville, in the rather unsympathetic part of the wife, is conventionally effective.

The Canterbury varieties include some capital turns, among them being some excellent dancers, Olive Watts has a fine variety of steps; Mr. G. S. Melvin, who sings doucely and distinctly of "McIntyre," is grace itself in a reel; and Curtis and Pics, more especially the "Pics," give an admirable exhibition of clog dancing, the show being varied by a clever whistler who accompanies himself at the piano; Mr. Bert Danson sings blithely of the "girly girls," and discourses on events, political and otherwise, incidentally introducing references to the "Suffragettes," and generally giving a comic complexion to his remarks.

Miss Rosie Archer, a mimic at the piano, is very successful in realising the voice of such differing personalities as Kate Carney, George Formby, George Elliott, Vesta Victoria, Vesta Tilley, Gertie Gitana, and Marie Lloyd. This young artist comes in for a very warm reception, and rousing cheers greet the song so finely sung by Mr. Ian Colquhoun,

"ON THE TRACK."

Sketch, by Harry Roxbury, Produced for the First Time on any Stage at the Empire, Leeds, on Monday, Jan. 24.

Rose Hasty, sen. .....MISS ADA MASKELL
Rose Hasty, jun. .....MISS MOLLY RAMSAY
Mr. Cross .....MR. RICHARD WILSON
Percy Dreadnought .....MR. OLIVER ROGERS
Major Hasty .....MR. LARRY CLEMENTS
Archibald Longfellow .....MR. HARRY ROXBURY

The opening scene of the sketch is a matrimonial agent's office. Mr. Cross, the agent, has been paid £100 by a young and wealthy lady for the use of this office in which to meet her sweetheart. Her uncle having found this out, and hearing also that the young couple intend to elope, has written to the agent stating that unless he can stop the elopement he will horsewhip him within an inch of his life. In great fear, the agent sends for Detective Longfellow, who, with his assistant, Aubrey Cuthbert, a tall, thin, extraordinary-looking individual, arrives on the scene. He is informed of the position of affairs, and left in charge of the office by Cross, disguised as his office boy. Here he contrives to muddle up everybody's matrimonial affairs, including those of a young dude with more money than brains, from whom he takes a fee, and, on being found out, promises to teach him how to be a detective.

Longfellow then forms a plan by which he will make love to the young lady and try and estrange her from her sweetheart, but unfortunately gets mixed up with another lady of the same name, who is a maiden aunt to the lady who contemplates elopement. The lovers arrive, and beg Longfellow to help instead of checkmate them. He consents to do so, and the scene finishes with the irate Major (the uncle) and disappointed lovers making a set at Longfellow. This takes the form of an effective vocal number, in which all take part.

In the second scene, the Railway Station, Longfellow enters disguised as a porter, and the aunt also arrives and explains to him the facts of the lovers' elopement, telling him she would give £1,000 to anyone who will help them to escape, and that they must catch the train which is nearly due to leave, this being the last train from that station for the day. Longfellow undertakes to do this and so win the £1,000, and then discloses his identity to the maiden aunt. Thereupon the dude arrives disguised as a boy scout, and together they help the lovers to get away before the Major catches them up. In order to do this Longfellow assumes the further disguises of a railway inspector and then a stationmaster, and by means of them is able to detain the Major until the train containing the lovers has gone.

Scene 3—by the seaside—is brightened by a smart and catchy opening chorus of girls in bathing costumes. Longfellow and the dude arrive, still on the track, disguised as strolling players, with the uncle in hot pursuit. Longfellow, thinking he might be recognised, assumes a bolder disguise. Seeing a bathing machine, with ladies' attire, he dons the latter, and immediately afterwards the aunt and Major arrive and sit on the steps of a bathing machine, which happens to be the one containing Longfellow. After some amusing business by the latter, which leads to a quarrel between the Major and aunt, the Major departs in a huff. Then Longfellow emerges from the machine in his female attire, and is mistaken by the aunt for the bathing attendant. This leads to one of the funniest situations in the sketch. In the meantime the Major, having discovered his niece and her sweetheart, and finding the young man is wealthy, agrees to their marriage. After a comic chase, the supposed bathing woman is found to be Longfellow, who explains the situation, and all ends happily.

Mr. Roxbury, who produced his last successful sketch, Sergeant Longfellow, for the first time here, has repeated his former triumph in the above sketch, which bids fair to become quite as popular. His Archibald Longfellow gave the liveliest satisfaction, there not being a dull moment whilst this clever comedian, whose style somewhat resembles that of the late Dan Leno, occupies the stage. Mr. Oliver Rogers as Percy Dreadnought makes a capital dude, whilst Mr. Larry Clements makes the most of Major Hasty. Mr. Cross is well taken by Mr. Richard Wilson. There are two ladies prominent in the cast, viz., Rose Hasty, sen. (Miss Ada Maskell), whose clever low comedy business is fully appreciated, and Rose Hasty, jun., whose part is gracefully taken by Miss Molly Ramsay. As in Mr. Harry Roxbury's previous sketch, the book is written by his talented wife, Miss Vashti Wynne, who has provided a really interesting plot. The tuneful music is from the pens of Dudley Powell and O. Walker.

"AT SAVOY MANSIONS."

Sketch, in One Act, by John N. Raphael, Produced at the Shepherd's Bush Empire, on Monday, Jan. 24.

Diana Clutterbuck.....MISS FLORENCE TEMPEST
Vicomte de Soulac .....MR. H. DE LANGE
Smith .....MR. CHARLES CALVERT
Violet Perkins .....MISS SHEILA HESELTINE
Lucy .....MISS ANNIE HILL
James Perkins .....MR. CARLTON HOLT

Mr. John N. Raphael, the author of this sketch, is a well-known journalist, and the brilliant and clever Paris correspondent of two or three London papers. At Savoy Mansions is performed by Miss Florence Tempest and a company of excellent players, who do all that is possible for the amusing farce. The action commences with an interview between Miss Diana Clutterbuck and a plumber, during which we hear (and see) that the lady has had fitted in her very pretty dressing-room a bath of a somewhat elaborate type. When not in use it can be hidden from view in the lower part of what appears to be a combined wash-hand stand and dressing-table. Now Miss Clutterbuck, it appears, has been troubled by the amatory effusions of a certain Vicomte de Soulac, and as she is going out to pay a call a gentleman whom she takes for him meets her, and more or less forces his way into the flat. Miss Clutterbuck is naturally very indignant, and as she is endeavouring to persuade the foreign nobleman to retire, friends are announced. The only place to hide the gentleman is in the bath. With the aid of her maid, Miss Diana succeeds in forcing the supposed Vicomte into it, and out of sight. The friends (brother and sister) come in, and the gentleman, being of an inquisitive turn of mind, turns on the taps at the hand-basin, the water descending upon the unfortunate man imprisoned below. After the visitors have left the prisoner is allowed to come out (naturally in a very damp and dishevelled state), and the dénouement is brought about by the discovery of the fact that he is a commercial traveller seeking orders for claret, and not a Vicomte at all! Miss Florence Tempest plays Diana Clutterbuck cleverly and vivaciously; Mr. H. de Lange's polish and ease are conspicuous as the Vicomte de Soulac; Miss Sheila Heseltine is good as Violet Perkins; and Mr. Carlton Holt gives an excellent performance as James Perkins.

MR. CHAS HECTOR desires to thank most sincerely all the artists who so kindly appeared on the occasion of his benefit at the Queen's, Poplar.

DURING a performance at a well-known St. Petersburg music hall, the Aquarium, a singer, Mme. Marie Binecchère, was shot on Tuesday by a French artist, M. Bouliko. The woman was only slightly injured, but the man committed suicide immediately. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of his action. Naturally, the outrage caused a panic among the audience.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Veritably "all along the line" Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. have been scoring with their unprecedented list of song successes. While "Somewhere" incontestably and justly holds pride of place, quite a large number of other good winners emanate from the famous Arthur-street firm this season, to wit, "I do like to be beside the seaside," "Pretty little girl from nowhere," "It's the Alpine dress you're wearing," "I must go home to-night," "Molly O'Morgan," and "Charley Digby," to quote only half a dozen. All of these songs are included in the majority of the pantomimes of the period, and are everywhere successful to a degree. Altogether, a most prosperous New Year has dawned for the wares of this up-to-date and go-ahead firm.

A wire received by Feldman's last week is couched in the following terms: "Josie Delaine doing terrific with 'Pretty little girl from nowhere,' Theatre Royal, Sheffield." This song, by E. W. Rogers and John Neat, has proved one of the big "turn-ups" of the Feldman catalogue this pantomime season. While always considered a "taking" song, likely to "catch on" in pantomime, even the astute song-judges behind the scenes at Arthur-street hardly dared to hope it would turn out such an instantaneous success and rage everywhere as it has become.

That charming singer and dainty dancer Miss Nellie Neil, has been successful to a degree at the Hippodrome, Margate, during the past week with her delightful rendering of Feldman's big "motto" number "Put off all your troubles till to-morrow," and writes the firm in most laudatory terms respecting her success with same.

Miss Ray Ford writes Feldman and Co. from the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, thanking them for their "Picture postcard song," which she states is one of the biggest numbers in the show, taking many encores nightly, and altogether standing out as a "hit—a palpable hit" of the very first water.

Miss Mabel Green, who did so much to help in popularising the great Feldman number "Somewhere," is introducing yet another song issued by the same firm and entitled "I wonder if it's true?" into her part at the Kennington Theatre, where she continues to be one of the prime favourites in the pantomime at that house.

Miss Jennie Wood, at the Canterbury last week, made so decided a hit with Feldman's "Sunbonnet lady" that she instantly got no less than three years' solid work offered her in consequence. Altogether a very satisfactory sequel to her rendition of this catchy song.

Miss Madge O'Neill, in the Elephant and Castle pantomime, still continues to sing "I do like to be beside the seaside" and "Molly O'Morgan," to the accompaniment of thunderous applause and repeated encores. Undeniably these two songs are very big Feldman winners, and Southsiders help the fair singer with the choruses with a spontaniety that gives evidence of their keen enjoyment of the clever words and ear-haunting melodies to which both songs are wedded.

Mr. Bert Feldman while in Edinburgh recently was constrained to personally compliment Miss Gracie Sumner, who, assisted by Frank Sumner, so artistically renders his firm's great song "Somewhere" in the local King's Theatre pantomime. Rarely, if ever, has a publisher had the pleasure of hearing a song of his more delightfully rendered or rewarded with a greater tornado of well-deserved applause. On journeying to Leith a day or two later a similar treat awaited Mr. Feldman, for at the Gaiety Theatre in that town Miss Jeannie Mackay succeeded in capturing the suffrages of her entire audience with the same ear-haunting ballad.

In the Elephant and Castle pantomime Miss Lilian Errol is scoring one of the biggest successes of the production with "Pretty little girl from nowhere," while Miss Carlotta Wood, principal girl in Mr. Edwin Jazon's Robinson Crusoe, writes from Pontefract that the same attractive Feldman number is one of her greatest successes. Performers who have not yet sung this song would be well advised to procure a copy without delay from the Arthur-street publishers.

Universally sung as the two great Feldman numbers "Somewhere" and "I do like to be beside the seaside" are in pantomime, by none are they more charmingly rendered than by La Belle Morgane, principal boy in Mr. J. F. Elliston's Theatre Royal, Bolton, pantomime. This cultured Australian singer's lovely voice gives due expression to every note and phrase in both these delightful songs, and the result is the acme of pleasure for all listeners and the last word in applause for the singer.

Messrs. John P. Harrington and Fred Godfrey have just published a new song with Messrs. Feldman and Co. entitled "Won't there ever be any wedding-bells for me?" Mr. Bert Feldman thinks most highly of the number.

The Navy and things naval having had their due share of prominence in this year's pantomimes, it is only fitting that publishers should be looking out for something more than ordinarily striking in which the sister service has a chance of immortalising itself. This latter Messrs. Feldman and Co. feel they have just acquired in the shape of a new semi-martial, but distinctly humorous and "gingery" number, written and composed by Messrs. John P. Harrington, Fred Godfrey, and Orlando Powell, entitled "Every girl loves a military man," of which much should be heard in the near future.

In conjunction with Mr. Orlando Powell Mr. John P. Harrington has supplied Mr. Arthur Lennard with a new comedy song entitled "This is no place for a sailor"; Mr. Jock Whiteford with three new songs, "Constable McKie," "I do want to be among the Scotch girls," and "Scotch soldier boy"; Miss Marie Lloyd with three new songs, "The Cockney Sultana," "Away went mother's advice," and "Go to mother" (in which latter Mr. Fred Godfrey also collaborated). Also in conjunction with Mr. Fred Godfrey Mr. Harrington has supplied Miss Vesta Tilley with a new song "I want to land in ladyland," and with Messrs. E. W. Rogers and Chas. Collins yet another for Miss Maidie Scott entitled "Mother put a card in the window."

Mr. Fred Barnes has scored another pantomime triumph with Mr. Bert Feldman's two numbers, "I do like to be beside the seaside" and "I must go home to-night." Both these songs have been the rage of Hull ever since Mother Goose opened five weeks ago.

Mr. Fred Barnes returns to the London Coliseum in four weeks' time with an enormous song from the pen of Mr. Glover Kind, entitled "I'd rather be beside the fireside," with a beautiful melody and words that contain much more point than the average song. It should be an enormous winner for al fresco and pantomime. It has been secured by the well-known song pioneers B. Feldman and Co. Mr. Barnes is also presenting his song-scena The Scapegrace; or, The Black Sheep of the Family, published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

THE LATE VERE SMITH.

We regret to have to record the death, from heart failure, of Mr. Vere Smith, which occurred on Thursday night, the 20th inst., upon his return home after he had appeared with The Grotesques in their performance at the Coliseum. The originator and chief member of the group of entertainers known as The Grotesques, he wrote their lyrics, composed their songs, and drilled the company with so much ability that their advance in public favour has been very rapid.

After entertaining for some weeks at the small Queen's Hall, Mr. Vere Smith and his party were secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll, and they made their first appearance under his management at the London Hippodrome, where they became so popular that they were secured for an extended stay. Early in December they returned to Queen's Hall, but at Christmas went to the Coliseum. The deceased gentleman displayed a rich humour in his burlesque of a well-bred but vapidly conventional parson directing a village entertainment in aid of the parish schools. It was, perhaps, the most amusing feature of the entertainment which he did so much to build up.

As a composer of melodious and light-hearted songs, Mr. Vere Smith achieved much success. Several of these are included in the repertory of Miss Margaret Cooper, who easily won favour for the refined and fanciful "Fairy dreams" and "Fairy land," and such tuneful and catchy ditties as "Ma dusky maid" and "Hello, Martha!" A clever and delightful artist, Mr. Vere Smith will be sincerely mourned by a host of friends and admirers. He had only reached the age of twenty-six.

The deceased gentleman was educated at Winchester College, where he distinguished himself as a racquet player, for in 1900 he represented Winchester at Prince's in the Public Schools match; also he founded and organised—before he was 16—the school orchestra. The strange thing about his musical achievements is that since the age of fourteen he had never had a lesson, nor was he ever taught the theory or the ground work in any way, so that all the music he wrote came to him as easily as writing a letter. In June, 1905, The Dandy Duke, a burlesque of a musical comedy, the book and music by Vere Smith, was performed twice at the Vaudeville Theatre, Miss Margaret Cooper taking the leading part and singing all the principal songs, of which "Fairyland" and "Little Crimson Rose" have since been most popular. Vere Smith tackled the part of the Duke himself. He then for six months acted small parts in The Catch of the Season, and during the temporary absence of Sam Sothern acted the part of Lord Dundreary.

He then rewrote and orchestrated the Dandy Duke, which in December, 1906, was produced for one week at the Theatre Royal Brighton, when Miss Margaret Cooper was so kind as to leave the Palace for that week in order to again sing for him in it. In June, 1909, Messrs. Chappell presented Vere Smith's company, "The Grotesques," which in a few months he had got together and rehearsed himself. In this entertainment all the music was composed by him, and he was responsible for the whole show. It was a great success at the Queen's Hall, and was engaged by Moss-Stoll, and went off to the provinces.

Neither in acting, composing, nor orchestrating did he have any training. Besides "Fairyland" and "Little crimson rose," perhaps "To a butterfly" and "The coming of spring" were among the prettiest of his songs, while for go and swing "Ma dusky maid," "The belle and the beaux," "The uz-guz-goosleum," "The musical comedy girl," "I'll be your gal," "Cosmopolitan wives," and "Hello! Martha," sung by Margaret Cooper at the Palace Theatre, may be selected.

Before he left the theatre on the night of his fatal illness, a peculiar incident happened. Another member of the Coliseum company entering the deceased comedian's room, happened to notice a bottle of ink upset over a postcard. He said, "Spilt ink is regarded in Spain as a fateful omen." And in a few hours the news of his death reached them. The event cast quite a gloom over the company.

FRED KITCHEN'S FAREWELL.

When the curtain fell at the Cardiff Empire last Saturday, the 22nd, Mr. Fred Kitchen terminated his long connection with Mr. Fred Karno, and to celebrate the occasion a sumptuous repast was provided by a few friends, and a most enjoyable and memorable night was spent at Mrs. Rosser's Grand Hotel. Among those present at the dinner were many from both the local pantomimes, including Misses Dillon and Soutter, the principal boys, and Managers Geo. Rowlands and Mr. Morrison, also Tom Sinclair, Phil Smith, Alfred Lester, and many others. Of course the Karno company was strongly represented, as was also the Water Rats in Burt Shepard and Arthur Godfrey, whose wife, Minnie Duncan, was also a guest. We also noticed Mr. Henry Coutts, an invalid who is convalescing on the ocean, but just happened to pop into port at the opportune moment.

Mr. Coutts was voted to the chair and made an admirable speech. In proposing Mr. Kitchen's health, he (the chairman) explained how the happiness of the profession depended on the individualism and character of its members, especially those who had attained to certain success. Fred Kitchen was a type of man who seemed to make everybody with whom he came in contact happy. Of all the farewells that he (Mr. Coutts) had had the fortune, or misfortune, to have experienced in India, Australia, and all parts of the world, he had never witnessed such a touching one as on that evening. It had impressed him deeply, and it was good to see how an artist could endear himself to, and gain the love and affection of, his fellow-workers.

Mr. Arthur Godfrey rose to endorse everything that Mr. Coutts had said, and others spoke. The toast was then drunk deeply and faithfully, and "For he's a jolly good fellow" and rousing cheer after cheer were given.

Mr. Kitchen received a deafening reception on rising to respond. He stated that he had simply done his duty in the past, and although he felt very proud at hearing such nice things said about himself he hardly thought he deserved quite so much praise. He was deeply grieved at leaving his old associates, some of whom had been with him for many years. He would cherish the handsome illuminated address which they had generously presented to him, and from the bottom of his heart he thanked them over and over again, and felt that it was one of the saddest moments of his life to part from them that evening.

A great number remained to see Mr. Kitchen, accompanied by Mr. Burt Shepard, off to London by the 6.15 a.m. train on Sunday, when another rousing send-off was accorded him.

Mr. Frank Marshall, a journalist well known in the entertainment world, who has been ill for some time, has just undergone a serious operation by Mr. John Pardoe. We are pleased to hear that he is as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

"A CHANGE OF FRONT."

Little Farce, by Malcolm Watson, Produced on Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, at the Empire.

Jane Bassett ..... Miss Fanny Brough
John Bassett ..... Mr. E. F. Mayeur
Alice ..... Miss Sybil Noble
Rosie Nuttall ..... Miss Frances Wetherall

Miss Fanny Brough received a hearty welcome on Tuesday evening at the Empire in a little farce from the pen of Mr. Malcolm Watson, who has, we think, given that favourite comedienne from the theatres a part that affords her excellent opportunities. The plot, too, is quite ingenious. Jane Bassett, intending to journey to Exeter to see a sick sister, misses her train, and, having to wait, seeks refreshment in the station buffet. Here she meets and is recognised by Rosie Nuttall, the barmaid, and a friend of her single days. In the course of conversation Rosie learns of Jane's marriage to a schoolmaster, upon whom his family have turned their back. Rosie is rather dubious about matrimonial happiness, but Jane, naturally, has greater faith in the men, though a letter addressed to her husband and kept from her by him has encouraged some suspicion in her mind.

Rosie's appearance, according to Jane, has undergone some change since they last met. She now wears goggles, and the tint of her hair is lighter. The abundant front tresses, indeed, suggest a real transformation. Presently Jane espies her husband helping a lady out of the train, and notes that he is bringing her towards the buffet. Happy thought! she will disguise herself with Rosie Nuttall's "front" and goggles, and act as barmaid. No sooner said than done, and Mr. John Bassett and the "shameless hussy" are waited upon by the irate wife. After a slight meal the couple make a hurried departure in consequence of the extraordinary attitude of the pseudo barmaid, John, however, returns for his lady's gloves, and finds not the barmaid, but his wife in tears. She pours out a torrent of reproaches; but at last allows him to speak. The lady is his sister Alice, who has come in person to tell the glad news of his reinstatement in the good graces of his people. Everything is forgiven, and the prospects of the Bassetts are at their brightest at the fall of the curtain. Jane declares that her first experience of "a change of front" will be her last.

Miss Fanny Brough handles the part of Jane Bassett with her customary ability; and is particularly droll in her expression of the jealous tantrums of the distressed wife. Mr. E. F. Mayeur is sufficient as the husband, and Miss Frances Wetherall may be highly complimented upon her barmaid. Alice is effectively presented by Miss Sybil Noble. At the fall of the curtain Miss Brough was called twice, and the success of the trifle was never in doubt.

Those very popular musical clowns, the Brothers Webb, return again to the Empire to renew their triumphs in an entertainment which, though it has a familiar aspect, is being always freshened up with novelty.

Clark and Hamilton are newcomers to the house, where their duo is something of a novelty. We note a general improvement of the dialogue, and the song given by Mr. Clark at the piano, which he plays remarkably well, is "extra." The lady's dancing concludes the turn, which has caught on. Round the World is going splendidly, and the turns include Johnson and Hart, Miss Olga Tcharna, Francini Olloms and Page, and the Vindabonas.

"THE ODD TRICK."

Sketch, in One Act, Produced at the King's Theatre, Portsmouth, on Monday, Jan. 24.

General Blazeaway ..... Mr. Henry Hare
Angelina Blazeaway .... Miss Frances Rutledge
Edwin ..... Mr. Christopher Steele
Ananias Hustle ..... Mr. Dan Mining.

The above farcical absurdity, produced for the first time on Monday night with every prospect of success, is just the type of entertainment for these hustling times. The scene is laid in the Marriage Registry Office in Bingville, U.S.A., where an eloping couple is hotly pursued by the irate father of the lady, and their efforts to avoid the fiery old gentleman lead to some side-splitting complications. The fun waxes fast and furious when the old gentleman is led to believe that Angelina, disguised as the Registrar's office boy, who for the sake of a handsome fee conspires with the young couple, is so like his daughter that he consents to her personating his daughter and playing a trick, as he thinks, upon Edwin, and consenting to the Registrar performing the marriage ceremony, when he was in reality witnessing the marriage of his own daughter. Once safely married the deception is confessed, and all ends happily by the General bestowing his blessing to the strains of the Wedding March.

The trifle is briskly played by all concerned, and the numerous witty lines and quaint business keeps the audience in the merriest of moods during the fifteen minutes it occupies the stage, and Mr. Hare can be congratulated on his smart little playlet.

"WANTED, THE CO-RESPONDENT."

A Quick-Change Comedy Playlet, Written, Invented, and Produced by Miss Marie Jones, at Collins's Music Hall, on Monday, Jan. 24.

The above sketch is distinctly novel and humorous to a high degree. The story tells of a husband who has an unfortunate mania for tracking down evil-doers. He has an ambition to become a great detective, but, unluckily for him, his wife does not share his enthusiasm, and does all within her power to discourage his efforts. Whilst employed upon the task of finding the co-respondent required to substantiate the evidence in a certain action, the husband's movements are much hampered by his wife, who impersonates in rapid succession several different people, who each contrive to make things rather warm for the husband, and in each case with much success. Fully discouraged at last, the would-be detective determines to give up all idea of ever becoming a criminal investigator, and his wife then unfolds her story, and tells her husband all about the method she has adopted to cure him of his foolishness. Everything ends happily, both in the story and in its representation. In fact, the whole playlet goes extremely well from start to finish, and will, without a doubt, prove equally as successful wherever it is produced.

Miss Marie Jones plays the arduous rôle of the wife with genuine ability. She has fourteen distinct changes occurring in her part, and the quickness with which she changes from one character to another and the mannerisms she adopts suitable to each occasion are greatly to her credit, and much praise is due to her. She is capitally assisted by Mr. Ernest Munroe, who works hard and with conspicuous success as the husband.

Bright variety turns and up-to-date pictures comprised the bill of fare at the Theatre Royal and Hippodrome, Shrewsbury, this week.

Mr. Alf Gibson returns to town on Monday. He commences at the Empire Hackney, and his time on the Moss and Stoll circuit will extend to the middle of August.

Many friends of the variety world will be sorry to hear of Mr. Claude Ginnett, jun.'s, illness since his return from the Continent. His own doctor called in a specialist, and it was feared at one time that he would have to undergo an operation, but fortunately that was avoided, and he is progressing favourably.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE Craggs, in their new act, The Territorials are featuring the brilliant American number, "By right of sword," with great effect.

ONE of the outstanding features of the Brixton pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk is the duet, "I'm looking for a sweetheart and I think you'll do," as sung by Miss Daisy James and Miss Marie Moss. This is the latest American duet published by M. Witmark and Sons, who are strongly represented this year in the duets, "Kiss, kiss," "Can't you see I love you," "Just some one," and "Smile, smile, smile."

MISS ANNIE SCHUBERTH'S beautiful voice is heard to great advantage in the number, "To the end of the world with you," which she is singing with great success in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford. This number has been acknowledged by all as a worthy successor to "Love me and the world is mine."

MISS KATHLEEN GRAY, the dashing principal boy of the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, has gained many laurels by her singing of "Just some one," which is fast becoming one of the hits of the season. This is a Witmark number.

ONE of the principal numbers that is taking the place of the weeds of the first nights, which the live managers are quickly pulling out, is "Kiss, kiss, kiss," a charming duet as sung by Miss Truly Shattuck, and Nellie Stratton in the Drury Lane pantomime Aladdin. Two other artists who have gained laurels with this number are Miss Maude Mortimer and Miss Yolande Noble in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe at the Theatre Royal, Hanley.

"JUST some one," the song success of New York last year, and which is rapidly repeating its success on this side, has a delightful exponent in Miss Nollie Emerald, the principal boy in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford. Miss Emerald has a manner of her own in singing this style of number.

MR. WALTER MUNROE has just been fitted with a song by M. Witmark and Sons entitled "They all take off their hats to Mr. Murphy," which, if its success in the States is any criterion, should be one of the biggest numbers he has ever had.

MISS DAISY MAYER will produce shortly a new rag-time poem set to music entitled "Shaky eyes." This is yet another blossom from Witmark's music-tree.

MISS RUBY CELESTE will feature in her forthcoming London season the English adaptation of the enormously successful Parisian song, "La petit' bonn' femme," which will bear the title, "She only said 'Bad boy.'" In securing this number for England and the States M. Witmark and Sons consider they have pulled off a very satisfactory deal.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE is featuring at the Tivoli with great success Witmark's latest chorus number, "Can't you see I love you?"

MR. HARRY RUSSON will introduce into his turn in the course of the next week or so a new American song entitled "I'll have to say farewell to you." This number has been a hit in one of the latest American musical comedies, and should be a big winner for Mr. Russon.

ALL the music in Herbert Darnley and Fred Kitchen's new show, Private Potts (in which Mr. Kitchen will star) has been selected and arranged by M. Witmark and Sons.

MISS MERREDITH MERREDRO has just returned from her successful Australian tour and will open shortly at the Tivoli and Oxford. She will feature her successful Drury Lane numbers, "Star of my life" and "Faded rose."

GREAT has been Mr. George Lashwood's success in America, and now Canadian audiences have been acclaiming him the popular idol of the hour. On his opening night recently at the New Majestic, Toronto, fully two thousand people had to be turned away, and the comedian was compelled to give seven songs before the huge concourse of delighted people would allow him to leave the stage, and capacity houses ruled throughout his stay. Mr. Lashwood's new songs, by F. W. Leigh, "There's another fellow looks like me" and "Send for a policeman" went tremendously, as did the comedian's older favourites "In the twi-twi-twilight" and "My latch-key." The singer is due back in England very soon.

A POSITIVE boon for young pianoforte students (and also those of riper years whose playing abilities are backward) is the new series of sixpenny volumes just issued by the Star Music Publishing Co., Ltd., under the name of "My Child's Music Book." Each of the six books contains a dozen popular pieces for young children, very easily arranged and fingered by Frederic Mullen, and they are well printed on stout paper and enclosed in a tinted wrapper. The series is in great request, and is in every way worthy of the demand that it is meeting with. No. 5 is operatic, and includes in its pages the Kermesse music from Gounod's Faust and excerpts from Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl ("I dreamt that I dwelt"), The Huguenots, La Figlia del Reggimento, Orfeo, Norma, Martha, Tannhäuser ("O Star of Eve"), Rigoletto, Der Freischütz, and Maritana ("Let me like a soldier fall").

MR. CHAS. HECTOR'S BENEFIT.

A well-deserved benefit was accorded Mr. Chas. Hector at the Queen's, Poplar, on Friday evening, Jan. 21, on the eve of his departure, after over two years' association with that hall. During Mr. Hector's régime here as manager considerable opposition has had to be met, and it says much for his powers of organisation, his thorough knowledge of the business, and his decided personality that all the different troubles have been so successfully overcome. Mr. Hector was not originally intended for the theatrical profession. Educated at Christ Church, he was trained for the medical profession, but when a very young man, and following on the death of his father, he succumbed to the allurements of the stage, and for the past twenty-two years has practically been closely connected with all the different branches of the profession.

Of this period Mr. Hector has been in London for over seventeen years, and as a manager for most of the time. He was at the London for two years and a half, and then went to Hammersmith, where he was actively employed in rebuilding the old Temple into the Palace Theatre of Varieties. He stayed here three years and a half. Following this, he migrated to Colline's, and was busily engaged for about nine years. Towards the end of this time Mr. Hector took sole control of the three establishments under this directorship, namely, the London, Collins's, and the Cambridge, which he christened the L.C.C. halls.

In addition to Mr. Hector's sterling qualities as a manager, he has won laurels as an author and song-writer, his latest sketch, My Friend the Thief, written in conjunction with Mr. Edward Thane, quite reaching to "top notch," and others from his pen are shortly to be launched before the public.

During Mr. Hector's association with the Queen's he has made himself extremely popular with all, and evidence of the manner in which he has endeared himself to his public was found in a house crowded in all parts at each performance, and in the large number of artists who appeared before the footlights on his behalf.

The most decided expression of appreciation was made when the committee, Messrs. B. Hart (chairman), Morris Abrahams (hon. treasurer), George Brown, Vic Wrigglesworth, Walter Bentley, J. Hall, W. Dickinson, J. Chapman, Geo. Pearson, J. Stowe, T. Rice, Geo. Manning, and Ben Abrahams (hon. secretary), who had organised the benefit, took the stage, and Mr. Geo. Brown, after a neat little speech, in which he eulogised the good qualities of Mr. Chas. Hector, presented him with a testimonial and handsome case of cutlery as a mark of appreciation from the proprietors. Mr. Hector walked to the footlights amidst thunderous applause, whilst musical director Hinkinson and his merry men struck up the popular refrain "For he's a jolly good fellow." When Mr. Hector was eventually able to make himself heard he thanked the audience for their loyalty and Messrs. Abrahams for their splendid gift, mentioning that what he had done during his period of management was simply a duty, but that the duty had been made a most pleasant one by the kindnesses he had received at their hands, and wherever he went he would always have memories of a most enjoyable term of office at the Queen's.

This presentation was not the only one, for the staff, wishing to show the esteem in which they have always held Mr. Hector, presented him with a handsome silver kettle, and then, finally, the committee—who had worked so hard for the evening's success—presented Mr. Hector with a large silver cigar-case, with the hope that he would be spared many years to use it. Once again Mr. Hector feelingly replied, once again the orchestra struck up "For he's a jolly good fellow," and then the lengthy variety programme was continued.

The programme contained some ninety-six items, of which the following artists appeared:—Gertie Gitana in her latest successes, Marie Kendal, Katie Lawrence, Flo Yaymen, Gladys Whitton, Peggy Pryde, Arabella Allen, Baby Baker, Vona Clifford, Lil Elfreda, Lily Farrar, Marie Jones, Lily Kirton, Lena Mildred, Eva O'Connor, Ella Shields, G. H. Chirgwin, who received a great welcome, Barney Armstrong, the Anartos, Frank Boyce, Chas. Baldwin and company, Arthur Boyne, Henri Cazman, Will Driscoll, Fred Durban, David and Mariot, Enid Erroll, Harold Endon, Arthur Farrel, Dave Land, Bros. Lawrence, Steve McCarthy, Poole and Maguire, L. J. Seymour, Jimmy Walker, Tom Woottwell, Chas. Whittle, Ed. Thane and company in the dramatic sketch My Friend the Thief, Marie Lord, Vendome and Chase, Orduna, and Caselli.

The management of the evening's entertainment was in the able hands of Messrs. Morris Abrahams and Ben Abrahams, who were assiduous in their attentions to the comfort of visitors. Mr. W. Biegen, the resident stage-manager, performed yeoman service, with the assistance of Messrs. W. Bentley, C. Beecham, E. Warner, and Sam Hart. The musical director's chair was occupied by Mr. W. Hinkinson, the orchestra for the occasion being augmented.

MISS DORMA MORGAN is scoring a big success at the Palace, Huddersfield, this week, with a new song, from the pen of Mr. Will Letters, entitled "Any old sort of an English port."

MESSRS. LEVY AND CARDWELL'S pantomime, Hop-o'-My Thumb, concluded a most successful run last Saturday at Oldham, and the popular manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood, was the recipient of a solid silver tea service, presented by the producers, and Mr. Sedgewick, the musical director, received a dressing-case from the same source. Mr. H. B. Levy made the presentations, both of the recipients responding in neat speeches.

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

1291½ SHILLINGS.

We are again making an appeal on behalf of the Music Hall Home Era Shilling Fund, and with that appeal we have very great pleasure in associating the name of Miss Vesta Tilley, who will for the next few months act as a sort of fairy godmother to the fund. "I think," said Miss Tilley, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "that the Music Hall Home is a very deserving charity and a very excellent thing. Something of the sort was certainly wanted for the poorer professionals. Every week of my life I give pounds away at the stage-door to numbers of the profession who call upon me for assistance. Now this year I want to create a record in the matter of collections for the fund, and I personally shall work my very hardest for it. In everything I wanted before the profession has always come forward very generously, and I hope that they will help me all they can now. I have a number of private friends who are going to work for me, too. I think, however, that most of the support should come from the professionals themselves. Outside people have their own charities to look after. I have asked my husband if he can arrange special matinées at each of his halls for the benefit of this fund, and he thinks that he will be able to do this. A great deal in that case will rest upon the artists, and if they would turn up we should be enabled to augment the funds of the Home very considerably. Wherever I am now appearing I am fixing up cards so that members of the same company for the week may put their names down for a subscription. I also hope by the sale of autograph postcards in the front of the house to collect a still further sum for the same purpose."

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

FRAME AND BURNS.

Mr. W. F. Frame, who gave "The Immortal Memory" of the Scottish bard on Tuesday night at the Hippodrome, Hamilton, is said to be one of the chief sustainers of the Burns spirit in the Land of the Thistle. Frame says that Robbie's pen has done more to foster the spirit of independence and liberty than all the swords that were ever unsheathed.

The "Hooch-aye" Scotchman has "Framed" his thoughts in the following verse:—

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.

Long years ha'e passed since Janwar's win'
Brocht handsome, bonnie Robin in,
An' the brichtest star that shines abune—
Oor ain immortal "Rabbie."
The Muse her plaidie rowed him roon,
An' Nature decked him wi' a croon,
An' a' the worl' wi' knee bowed doon—
Peys homage tae oor "Rabbie."
Whan'er is heard the Scottish tongue,
There's praises noo frae auld and young—
For Scotland's bard, oor "Rabbie."
There's no' an airt the win' can blaw
But there you'll find in cot an' ha',
The name that's worshipped by them a'—
Is Scotland's bard, oor "Rabbie."

ON resigning his engagement as musical-director of the Palace, Gloucester, on Jan. 22, the gentlemen of the orchestra presented Mr. Alfred H. Towell with a handsome silver mounted pipe as a token of their respect.

FOR the third consecutive year the wrestling championships (catch-as-catch-can), instituted by the National Sporting Club, are being held at the Alhambra. A commencement was made on Monday afternoon, and progress was accomplished in all three classes. The entries for the light-weights (10st. 6lb. and under) numbered 116, in the middles (12st. and under) forty-nine, and in the heavies thirty. There were three referees at work in succession on Monday, and the arrangements are in the hands of Mr. A. F. Bettinson.

THE SURREY.

Drury Lane drama and miniature musical comedy are both to be found in the current bill at the Surrey, where Mr. Roy Cochrane, the capable manager, has had to bring his administrative abilities into full play, for the audiences at each house have been overwhelming. The more elaborate of the two productions we have alluded to is an excerpt from that stirring "melo-farce" by Cecil Raleigh, entitled

"THE FLOOD TIDE."

Captain Jack Champion ..... MR. R. HAROLD GREY
Lord Sutton ..... MR. FRASER BRUNNER
Dick Champion ..... MR. ARTHUR T. LENNARD
Colonel Sir Russell Corry .... MR. JOHN SARGENT
Lieut. Drummond ..... MR. LESLIE PALMER
Miss Mabel Corry .. MISS MARGARET HARRINGTON

Though no reference is made to the sensational scene which gave the original its title, a capital condensation of the piece has been made by Mr. R. H. Grey, who has brought out its more romantic incidents and presented them in fairly consecutive form. Those who saw the play during its run at the Lane in the autumn of 1903 will remember that the hero is Captain Jack Champion, who has won the Victoria Cross in South Africa, and is given a commission in the Guards. The sketch opens with the return of Jack and his reception at the village inn, of which his father is landlord. Captain Jack, in common with many another who has risen from the ranks, suffers from the taunts of his brother officers led by the spendthrift, Lord Sutton, who is desirous of redeeming his fortunes by a marriage with the heiress, Mabel Corry, daughter of the Colonel of the regiment. Mabel, however, has given her heart to Jack, who is accordingly hated by Lord Sutton. Mabel goes to Jack's quarters to warn him that his confrères are about to pay him a visit with a view of "ragging" him, but before she is able to leave the officers are heard approaching, and Mabel is obliged to take refuge in a cupboard. After a heated dispute between Sutton and Jack, an onslaught is made on the room, the furniture being destroyed piecemeal. When a move is made towards the cupboard, however, Jack draws his sword and defies any of his persecutors to touch it. Fortunately, the Colonel arrives to quell the disturbance, and Mabel explains the reason of her visit, with the result that the Colonel reprimands Lord Sutton and his companions, and bestows his blessing on Jack and his daughter.

The three scenes that illustrate the piece are realistically set—racehorses, huntsmen, officers in dress uniform and ladies in hunting attire all figuring picturesquely. The playlet was thoroughly acted by Mr. Harry P. Selwyn's company, the leading part being taken by Mr. R. Harold Grey, the adaptor of the sketch, who, though not quite master of his lines, gave a good rendering of the rôle of the gallant young V.C., Jack Champion, and played to perfection in his scene with the vindictive Sutton. That unscrupulous lordling was cleverly impersonated by Mr. Fraser Brunner, his cynical utterances being delivered with every effect. Miss Margaret Harrington made a gentle and refined young lady of the "daughter of the regiment," and her spirited defence of her sweetheart gained a hearty cheer. The kindly old Colonel was artistically embodied by that widely experienced actor, Mr. John Sargent, whose well-modulated voice enabled him to gain the utmost effect out of his lines. Another sound performance was that of Dick Champion by Mr. Arthur T. Lennard, who won the entire sympathy of the audience by his rendering of a part of sterling sentiment; and Mr. Leslie Palmer gave an earnest portrayal of Lieut. Drummond. The success of the playlet was such as to realise the highest hopes of its promoters.

The second novelty was a musical comedy sketch, written by Chas. Cleveland, with music by W. Snell Robinson, and additional numbers by Frank Leedam, entitled

"CHARLEY'S WEDDING DAY."

Charlie Mashem ..... MR. CHARLES CLEVELAND
Frank Dash ..... MR. ALFRED BENNETT
Simon ..... MR. E. RUTLAND
Zambucjubi ..... MR. GEORGE F. IDE
Maria Hanah ..... MISS NELLIE COZENS
Letitia Lovelawn ..... MISS DOREEN CARR

Droll effects are secured in the above entertainment, in which all the elements of musical comedy are comprised. A merry party of bachelors assemble to give Charlie Mashem a send-off on the eve of his wedding, and get so noisy that the police are attracted, but succumb to the temptations of a drink. On the approach of the inspector, however, the officers of the law realise the necessity of making a capture, and the other members of the party having taken their farewell, arrest the prospective bridegroom. The next morning finds the "best man" and the bride awaiting the arrival of the bridegroom, who presently turns up in his evening clothes and with unmistakable evidences of the night's carouse. His ludicrous attempts at explanation serve only to irritate his betrothed, and Charlie's embarrassments are increased by the arrival of Maria Hanah, a half-breed lady, who claims to be his wife. The opportune entry of a Red Indian, the real husband of Maria, enables reconciliations to be rapidly arrived at and the wedding to proceed.

The burden of the fun rested chiefly upon Mr. Charles Cleveland, who made a comic personage of the bridegroom, and was indefatigable in provoking laughter. He had able assistance from Mr. Alfred Bennett as the "best man"; and quite a quaint character-sketch was that of a Verger by Mr. E. Rutland. Miss Doreen Carr was a prepossessing bride, and sang in cultured style a tuneful ballad with the refrain "Come and dwell with me." As the representatives of the coloured race Miss Nellie Cozens and Mr. George F. Ide acted with spirit and vivacity. A finish to the production is given by an efficient chorus, members of which join in a merry double quartett, after the "Tell me, pretty maiden" pattern, which is much enjoyed; and a couple of eccentric waiters and equally odd policemen add to the mirth-moving qualities of the piece.

THE GIBBONS' CIRCUIT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The liquidation of the Law Guarantee Trust and Accident Society, Ltd., has given rise to many rumours, the most damaging and annoying of such being a suggestion that I personally, with the London Theatres of Varieties, Ltd., have suffered considerable losses through the termination of the society. A professional organ, published on the 20th inst., is also giving great prominence to a rumour that Moss' Empires, Ltd., has acquired the Holborn Empire. I need hardly say that the suggestion has no foundation in fact, and there have not been any negotiations of any kind whatsoever with Moss' Empires or any other corporation or persons for the sale or purchase of the property.

I would be obliged, therefore, if you would insert this contradiction in your next issue; and, having regard to the fact that your contemporary's article referring to the Holborn Empire, either by accident or design, appears to lay stress upon the fact that the property was at one time in the hands of the Law Guarantee Trust and Accident Society, Ltd., I feel it necessary to publicly and emphatically state that the liquidation of the society has not in the slightest degree embarrassed either myself or my companies, or involved them in any loss.—Yours faithfully,

WALTER GIBBONS,
Managing-Director London Theatres of Varieties, Ltd.

The Showmen's Year Book, 1910.

It has been decided to issue the Year Book to members only of the Showmen's Guild. All applications for the Year Book must be sent direct to the Guild Secretary, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. The Rev. T. Horne's pamphlet, "What the Cinematograph Showman Must Do," will also in future be issued to Guild members only.

The Guild is also issuing official letter forms (with envelopes) in order to comply with the requirements of the Cinematograph Act, and to facilitate the necessary correspondence with the local authorities. These letter forms are issued at cost price for the benefit of the members of the Guild, and will be sent out in packets of 100 each. The Guild secretary, on receipt of a letter (or postcard) from a member will forward a packet of this extremely useful stationery.

All that the show proprietor or responsible manager will have to do will be to fill in the present address of the show, and to indicate in the blank spaces left for that purpose, where it is proposed to open the show and the date of the first performance in the new town.

When properly filled in and placed in the official envelope, the communication is bound to receive immediate attention, and the whole responsibility of carrying out the provisions of the Act then rests upon the shoulders of the local authorities, and the showman has no further duty in the matter.

Parliamentary Defence Work—Sessions 1910.

The Parliamentary Agent of the Showmen's Guild, Mr. F. Millar, has scrutinised all the Private Bill legislation of the coming sessions of Parliament. Contrary to the expectation of the executive council of the Guild, there still remains Corporations who refuse to profit by past experience. It was not an unreasonable expectation that after the severe lesson taught the Corporation of Oldham in the last session of Parliament, that no other Corporation would be found unwise enough to venture restrictive proposals of the same character as those condemned by Parliament in the Oldham Bill.

The important suburb of Handsworth, Birmingham, is attempting to get similar powers to deal with the show business as those refused Oldham and other towns. These extraordinary powers are set out in Clauses 125 and 126 of

THE HANDSWORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL ADDITIONAL POWERS BILL.

Bye-laws as to Shows, Roundabouts, Steam-organs, &c.

125. The Council may make bye-laws for all or any of the following purposes (that is to say):

For prescribing the hours within which during any fair or at any other time any show, booth, caravan, circus, or menagerie may be kept open, and for preserving order therein.

For preventing the use of whirligigs, roundabouts, steam-organs, or other similar contrivances, so as to be a source of danger or annoyance to residents or the public.

Prohibitions as to Vans, Tents, &c.

126. (1) The Council may by resolution, passed at a meeting of the Council, prohibit any vans, tents, sheds, or similar structures being erected or placed on any lands in the district where their use for human habitation is, in the opinion of the Council, likely to cause the pollution or fouling of any streams or ditches, and any person who shall be guilty of any act or omission in contravention of any such resolution, and the owner or occupier of any lands on which any such van, tent, or other similar structure shall be so erected or placed in contravention of any such resolution, and who may have knowingly permitted the same, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5, and to a daily penalty not exceeding 20s.

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to any tent, van, shed, or structure erected or used by any portion of His Majesty's naval or military forces.

(3) The Council shall cause notice of any resolution under this section to be published once in some newspaper circulating in the district, and to be served on the owners and occupiers of any lands affected thereby.

What the Guild Objects to.

The organised showmen will petition against the injurious Clause of this Bill, because their deliberate purpose is to place travelling showmen under special restrictive and injurious legislation.

One of the earliest fights in Parliament brought to a successful conclusion was against additional powers seeking to determine and fix the hours of business for shows and for the fairground business in general. It was established at the time that the ordinary law of the land governing all trade and enterprise was quite sufficient for the show business. That the butcher, the baker, the tinker, the tailor, and the showman should enjoy just the same liberty to carry on their business without invidious class legislation involving injury and the restraint of trade.

The same argument applies to special powers in excess of the ordinary law of the land for the preservation of good order. The Guild has maintained successfully in Parliament and out that the law of the land is adequate both for conduct and morals. It is too late in the day for the Handsworth Urban District Council or any other council, after the triumphs of Trade Defence in Parliament in the past, to expect that they will obtain (without contest) excessive powers already refused by Parliament to great and powerful Corporations.

With regard to the other part of this Clause concerning the use of roundabouts and organs it would be more honest on the part of the Handsworth Council to put the word "prohibit" instead of "prevent," for that is what the Council really is seeking—"the power of prohibition." There is already ample power at common law to "prevent" such contrivances being either a source of danger or annoyance to either residents or the public. It is an established axiom of British jurisprudence that special legislation against a particular class of traders or a particular kind of enterprise, shall not be granted until it is shown clearly that the general law fails to deal with the evil complained of.

It requires no legal training to know that no one is permitted to erect anything that is a danger to public safety. With regard to annoyance (a most uncertain thing to define), surely the Law Courts are open, and any citizen can seek and (if his complaint is a just one) obtain an injunction to restrain the offending party.

It seems ludicrous, when we give the matter connected thought, that local authorities like Handsworth should seek to constitute themselves by special legislation not only a court of first instance, but all the intermediate courts and a final court of appeal rolled into one. Or, to put it in another way, the members of the Urban District Council of Handsworth want to be vested with the judical powers of the Higher Courts, and even the Supreme Court of Judicature, to determine at their own sweet will and option things and causes that the greatest Bench of Judges in the world exists to determine.

See how this works out. According to the powers they are seeking they may over-ride the law of the land, with regard to the time when a man may carry on his business; they seek to fix the hours when he shall open and when he shall shut up his shop. They also seek supplementary powers in excess of those already possessed by the police authorities with regard to good rule and order. They seek to disestablish the Courts of Law, and to determine questions of both law and fact that only a properly constituted judicial tribunal should settle.

Special Powers as to Vans, Tents, &c.

It is a perpetual source of amazement to us, this obvious "pretence" of ignorance on the part of local authorities with regard to existing law. In the Clause numbered 126 in the Handsworth Bill, the Council is seeking powers to prohibit by mere resolution the erection of vans or tents on any land within their district, and to impose upon both the owner of the land or the tenant extraordinary penalties for so using land. This, in effect, means that Handsworth wants (no small demand) a Movable Dwellings Bill on its own account.

If the legal advisers of the District Council have not informed their clients of what Parliament has already done in throwing out similar proposals, then a very grave mistake has been made, and we warn the Council that great will be their enlightenment when they appear before the Private Bills Committee of Parliament.

With regard to the pollution of waters, which is the plausible cover for the attack on the liberty of showmen and property owners, it is more than sufficient to repeat once again—we have already done it a thousand times—that there does exist ample legislation to safeguard the health of the public from any possible pollution of streams or ditches. The Model Bye-laws of the Local Government Board, under the powers of the Housing of the Working classes Act, give local authorities all the safeguards necessary for public health.

It is ludicrous simplicity to imagine that the members of the Urban District Council of Handsworth are in ignorance of the law already in existence, or that they have not heard or read of the failure of Corporations to obtain the powers they are ill-advised enough to seek. There will be, we are certain, a great shock to the self-complacency of the Urban District Council when their appointed witnesses submit to examination before a Committee of Parliament.

The Continued Vigilance of the Guild Executive.

Negotiations will be at once opened with the Handsworth Council, and an exchange of views between the Council and the Guild will, it is hoped, take place. If these negotiations fail to effect a withdrawal of the Clauses a Petition will be immediately lodged against the Bill, and the same efficient and energetic means that were taken with regard to Oldham, Acton, Halifax, Hyde, Colne, Pontefract, Rawtenstall, Eccles, Mansfield, and a dozen other Corporations, will be taken.

Handsworth, like other local bodies before them, will be taught a salutary lesson, and will, in all probability, have to pay for being taught that lesson.

The showmen as lawful traders sincerely regret the necessity of carrying on this Parliamentary warfare. With regard to the towns concerned it is a serious loss of the ratepayers' money; with regard to the showmen it is also a considerable loss of time and money. The principal desire of the showmen of Great Britain is to carry on their business with the greatest possible accord and agreement with local bodies. The showmen recognise that conflict and friction with Corporations is a most undesirable thing.

When the severe lesson was given to the Oldham Corporation in the last session of Parliament the executive officials of the Guild did not anticipate that any other Corporation would have the hardihood to attempt an enterprise in which so powerful a Corporation as Oldham had failed. It is a great disappointment to find that the anticipated peace all round is not yet attained, and that once again the Guild will be put to the arduous work of Trade Defence in Parliament.

The Middleton Corporation Bill.

The vagaries of the Parliamentary draughtsman is again in evidence. One of the most extraordinary clauses imaginable (when we remember that the Cinematograph Act is in full operation) has been included in the General Powers Bill of the Middleton Corporation. In the same way that the Handsworth Council desire a Movable Dwellings Bill of their own, so the Corporation of Middleton wants a Cinematograph Act to itself.

They propose in Clause 117 that the Corporation may make bye-laws for the purpose of controlling and regulating cinematograph entertainments within the borough, and by any such bye-laws may prescribe the precautions against fire and other safeguards and conditions to be adopted and observed by persons holding such entertainments, and may prohibit the holding of such entertainments on any premises except such as are licensed by the Corporation for the purpose, and may provide for the granting of such licences.

This clause is bound to be struck out; it is so obviously unnecessary. The Cinematograph Act gives all Corporations the fullest powers with regard to public safety in cinematograph exhibitions. It is extremely difficult to understand why this most unnecessary clause has been embodied in the Middleton Bill.

There can be only one answer, and that requires a tremendous daring to shape it in words. Perhaps the Middleton Corporation want a Cinematograph Act of their own to over-ride the powers possessed by the Home Secretary to issue regulations from time to time of a reasonable character with regard to cinematograph exhibitions. Is that the additional power that Middleton is seeking? If it is, showmen may rest at ease with regard to the Bill. The Home Office will take care that no Private Bill shall pass into law that seeks to interfere with the powers vested by statute in the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

"Cinematograph Copyright." (The law affecting the same.) By William Jago, F.I.C., F.C.S. (Barrister-at-Law). Price 6d. Address, The Publisher, "The Era" Buildings, 5, Tavistock-st., Strand, W.C.

THE SHOWMAN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

PRESIDENT, PATRICK COLLINS.

Objects of the Guild.

1. To conserve the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers and entertainers, whether menaced by faddist legislation or by public bodies.
2. To vindicate the character and the avocation in life of the showman whenever unjustly maligned or attacked.
3. To defend the fairs and holidays of the people whenever and wherever threatened, and to encourage all legitimate efforts for the uplifting and betterment of the entertainments of the people.

The Coming Pageant at Sydenham.

The Festival of Empire and Pageant of London, which is to be held at the Crystal Palace in May, June, and July of this year, has many interesting features from the showman's point of view, as it has been decided to devote eight acres of ground for the purpose of constructing an Old England Fair, and, as will be seen by our advertising columns, showmen are now invited to negotiate for spaces. The Pageant is to be on quite a colossal scale, and some 15,000 performers will be utilised in its construction. The estimated cost of the enterprise is upwards of £50,000, and the great improvements which will be effected both in the interior and exterior of the Crystal Palace should prove a most attractive feature. In addition to the Pageant and Festival there will also be an exhibition on a most extensive scale of arts and inventions appertaining to Great Britain and her Colonies. The old-time stalls and cheap amusements in the interior of the Palace are to be swept away, and many interesting exhibits from at home and abroad will replace them. Mr. Frank Lascelles, who is the Master of the Pageant, claims that this will be the greatest thing of its kind ever attempted.

At the Carmarthen Assembly Rooms.

Boswell's Royal Circus has occupied the rooms for three nights this week—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday—and the company has presented a really first-class entertainment. The stud of educated ponies introduced by Mr. J. H. Boswell are an extraordinarily clever lot; Mlle. Verbena and her trained dogs give a splendid exhibition; Crusoe is most praiseworthy as a foot equilibrist; Little Togo gives a marvellous top-spinning and diabolo act, and his slide from the roof to the floor is sensational; the clowns provoke roars of laughter with their jokes and comical sayings; while Luigi gives a wonderful exhibition of his ability as a jumper, clearing eleven ponies with wonderful ease.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Once more Mr. Chris. Marner has been called upon by Mr. Walter Gibbons to open another of his entertainment palaces. This time it was the new Hammersmith Palace that claimed Mr. Marner's attention, making the fifth theatre that gentleman has opened on the Gibbons' Circuit. Previously we have seen him at Putney, Hengler's, Ilford, and the Camden. On Monday last there was a very brave array of variety world celebrities present for the initial performance, all loud in their praise of a really magnificent building.

"Isn't it a transformation?" said somebody. And that gentleman spoke truly. Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co., the architects, have put their best work into the new Hammersmith Palace; the colour scheme is cream and gold, and the upholstering and carpets a rich crimson, and a set of limelights is worked from a gallery built in the sliding roof.

It will be remembered that the old Hall was very narrow, and a few years ago the then proprietors acquired certain property which was utilised as a wide entrance to the stalls and saloons. The main wall between this entry and the Hall has been pulled down, and the whole space thrown into the theatre and stage, thus making the new building about fifteen feet wider. The new auditorium is of greatly increased width. An additional staircase to the new grand circle has been formed, taking up nearly half the width of the old stalls entry, the other half being utilised as an entrance to the new stalls. The former entrance remains with its domed ceiling, but the pay office occupies the centre of this room and pairs of handsome doors are provided, forming it into a vestibule. From here a fine marble staircase leads to a foyer and thence is continued up to the grand circle. The stalls saloon is a handsome decorated room with a recessed bar, the whole decorated and furnished in a light style of Louis XVI. Cloak-room and lavatories are also provided in conjunction. The subway is paved with Mosaic and the walls lined with white and green marble, the ceiling being richly decorated.

The greatest alteration is found in the auditorium, which has been increased to nearly double the original capacity. There is a good raking ground floor containing thirty-one rows of comfortable tip-up chairs divided into stalls and pit, the floor carpeted and walls decorated in rich designs. Over this is a large balcony of fifteen rows similarly seated and furnished, with large promenade at the rear, and over this again is the gallery containing fifteen rows of seats. There are no columns to interrupt the view, the galleries being built on the cantilever system, and the whole constructed of fireproof material. The position of the stage is as of old, but it is, of course, greatly enlarged.

The Hammersmith Palace stands partly on the site of the Temple, Hammersmith, which was carried on during the early 'eighties by a Mr. P. Dunn. It was acquired by the late Mr. Acton Phillips, who made very considerable alterations and extensions. With the advent of Mr. J. C. Coe, a prosperous licensed victualler, who had as his first manager Mr. Fred Reeves, the popular agent, the house underwent a further transformation. Mr. Coe retired from proprietorship last year.

The Era representative was received by Mr. Lionel G. Holding, the resident-manager of the house. This gentleman previously occupied a similar post at the Shoreditch Olympia, another of the Gibbons' Circuit houses. Mr. Holding has for his chief aide-de-camp Mr. Norman Victor, until recently assistant-manager at the Grand, Clapham Junction, and before that secretary for many years to Mr. Fred Trussell, at the London Hippodrome. Both gentlemen are young and energetic workers, with many phases of the business at their fingers' ends, and they can be trusted to quickly get in touch with the right people locally, and to make many friends and patrons for the most luxurious entertainment palace ever built in Hammersmith.

Fred Karno's Skating is the outstanding item in the first bill. This favourite pantomimical absurdity has been seen in many quarters of London, and is, as its title suggests, a skit on the popularity of rinking. The principals in it include Jimmy Russell as "Miss Zena Flapper," Syd. Chaplin as "Archibald," Geo. Craig, Jack Royal, Geo. Hoare, Frank Melroyd and company of over thirty artists.

Our old friend T. E. Dunville is in fine form, and his idea of a policeman's duties are very funny. Yet there is no clashing when Geo. Gilbey gives you his idea of the same official. Both comedians have original conceptions of a policeman's duties, and both get laughs loud and long, and that is all expected of either. Wyndham and Wyatt's act can be seen a hundred times and enjoyed just as much on the 101st. "The Professor and his Pupil" will always be welcome.

An extra turn—a lady and two gentlemen—would be well advised to cut their singing; they are fine dancers and weaken their act with discordant melodies. Sadie Lundy is a little girl with a very nicely trained and strong voice. Phillip Braham's "March Hares" are three very charming ladies and three gentlemen. They are not in good working order yet, and the get-up of the men spoils the picture. Straw hats and purple suits against the delicate pink dresses and fair tresses of their partners get on one's nerves. The "Entente Cordiale" song is very good.

"Getting Even," Sinclair and Whiteford's popular skit, is just as much a scream to-day as it ever was. Olive Dene, Lilian Elfreda, and Hunter and Maris get numbers in this performance.

EAST HAM PALACE.

Pursuing the policy of presenting the best obtainable entertainment and at the same time studying the tastes of his clientèle, Mr. Albert E. Hill, the popular manager of the Palace, has this week engaged a strong array of artists, and better entertainment could not be desired. Quite an important factor towards the success of the programme is the presentation by Mr. W. J. Mackay and company of the great artistic episode Man and the Devil, a vivid and soul-stirring drama in five tableaux. The skill of the actor is employed with considerable purpose by Mr. W. J. Mackay as Satan, the arch-fiend, his delineation being superbly dramatic. Mr. Mackay has now played this character over a thousand times, and the amount of realism with which he invests it stamps him as an actor of great ability. The rendition of Paul Halstead, a poor, struggling artist, is excellent, and does credit to the abilities of Mr. Stuart Lomath; whilst the part of Marian Halstead, the artist's faithful and loving wife, could not be better portrayed than it is by Miss Betty Stannard. In the character of Reuben Ransom, a wealthy stockbroker, the father of Marian, Mr. Howard Templeton is well placed. Apart from its grim and doleful side, the play has its humour, which is quaintly rendered by Mr. W. Hayward as Timothy Scud, a broker's man, and Miss Edith Hall as Tilda, a maid-of-all-work.

Eccentricity, cleverness, and humour are all rolled into one in the comedy acrobatic act of Tate and Tate, and much laughter is created throughout their novel performance of The Barmaid and Her Eccentric Customer. It is a long time since such sweet singing has been heard at the Palace as that of Miss Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale, and although this beautiful songstress from "down under" was suffering from a rather bad cold, her singing was wonderful, and her fine voice was heard to especial advantage in the two songs "Dreams" and "Skylark."

Another singer who reaped a harvest of appreciation was Mr. John Donald, the famous Scotch baritone, whose deep rich voice did full justice to that old-time ballad "I'll sing thee songs of Araby" and the popular song "Violeta." Beattie and Babe, two juvenile comediennes, provided the audience with a merry and bright scena, A Pavement Rehearsal, the eccentricities and funny facial expressions of the one girl in contrast to the lady-like demeanour of the other causing uproarious laughter throughout the presentation. King and Benson, in their musical burlesque Round the Town, provide an abundance of light comedy, and maintain their popularity with the Palace audiences. Their singing of the duet "I loved you once" gained for them well-merited applause. Sammy Shields was in his usual convivial mood, and his football songs quite touched the sporting tastes of the audience. Arthur Slater, "the whistling man in white," was loudly applauded for his very skilful whistling solos, and his imitations of a canary, a skylark, and a dog yelping after being kicked were extremely clever. The amusing boxing act by the Brothers Horne, entitled The Biter Bit, kept the audience in a merry mood; and Jolly Jimmy Walker also contributed successfully to the splendid programme, which terminated with some excellent pictures on the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

In conclusion, we must express our appreciation of the able director of the orchestra, Mr. W. S. Bassett, whose popularity is universal. The comfort of the audiences is well seen to by Mr. D. Wincott, assistant-manager, whose efforts are untiring.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

A strong programme is being presented to full houses at the Putney Hippodrome this week. Very much to the taste of the patrons is The Last Straw, described as a tragic emotional play by the Rev. E. S. Edwards. Cecil Gray ably sustains the principal rôle, that of an outcast from the ancestral halls, who returns on the eve of his brother's wedding to "keep his oath." Kind friends in front follow closely the unravelling of the story, and give unstinted applause to the tragic and rather gruesome ending. Miss Dora Eastlake and Messrs. Geo. Ridgway Thorne and Edward Warden in their respective parts afford efficient help.

A welcome relief to the sketch was afforded by Fred Evans in his novel absurdity Dreaming. It is certainly a novelty that evokes roars of laughter, and deserves all the applause it receives. Guest and Newlyn indulge in a little singing, patter, and dancing, the last being very much the best part of the turn. The Three Laurels, in their acrobatic and tumbling, contrive to earn considerable applause.

Fred Winn's company in The Light in the Window, a powerful dramatic sketch by Frank Dix, holds the audience from start to finish. Mrs. Wishart and her granddaughter are discovered talking over old times, and the grandmother is telling her it chances to be the birthday of her son, who is reported to have been drowned years before, and expressing her confidence that some day before she dies he will return to her. During the conversation Wilson, a warder at the neighbouring convict prison, comes in, and in the middle of making a proposal of marriage to the granddaughter is recalled to duty by the firing of a gun intimating the escape of a prisoner.

He rushes off, and when the women have gone to bed—the old grandmother first laying out food and drink and setting the lamp in the window for her boy should he ever return—there steals into the cottage the escaped convict. One familiar feature about the place and then another force on him the knowledge that he has indeed at last come home, and in the silence his mother comes upon him. She at first does not realise the truth, but when she does the shock is too much and she falls dead. Wilson the warder rushes in and holds up the convict, but realising that the latter is the father of his sweetheart offers to let him go. The convict, however, heartbroken at the sight of his mother, refuses to accept the chance, and goes back to his cell. The little sketch is full of heart interest, and is very well acted. Dora Daly, comedienne, sang "I've got a castle on the Nile" and "Topple you over"; and in addition to the Burton and Franklin Trio, the Carina Sisters, and Chas. Carr, there was the Imperial Bioscope. The music was under the able direction of Mr. Thomas Kearney.

KILBURN EMPIRE.

Mr. Foster Marner has a very varied programme on hand at this fine hall for the current week, and we found a very large audience enjoying themselves to the utmost. Fred Karno's company of comedians are presenting a new sketch to this hall, entitled Spring-Cleaning, and it proves to be quite as mirth-provoking as others we have previously seen here. The extremely ludicrous antics of the painters and plasterers who are doing up a house cause shrieks of laughter, and keep all in the liveliest of moods.

Rose and Chaloner are a most entertaining couple; the male partner is a very able mimic, as well as a good comedian, while his partner sings delightfully, and, together, give a very bright and acceptable turn. Minnie Paget is described on the programme "at the piano." She did not show her skill as a pianist on the evening of our visit, but instead gave a fine selection on the concertina, which she played capitally, and scored a most emphatic success. Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian, has in "The Pensioner" a fine number.

Lalie Brooke gives a clever scena "Past and Present," in which she appears in Early Victorian costumes, alternating with the most modern ones, such as the Gibson and Sandow Girls. It is a clever and interesting novelty, and the changes are very quickly made. The Leonards, in their interlude The Interview, are most diverting, and go well. Phil Parsons, comedian, has a very catchy song, "My wife's gone away," which he sings with great gusto, and makes himself very popular. The Five Vernons play a fine selection on the xylophones, and have to accede to a request for an encore. The Two Anartos are a couple of comedians who indulge in much cross-talk, which causes laughter, and finish off with a topical song. Some wonderful conjuring is presented by Oswald Williams, who performs many marvellous tricks. The disappearing box is extremely clever, and his whole show is quite bewildering and most interesting. The Four Amaranths display their skill in the performance of some clever acrobatic dances; and Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, who appears early in the evening, sings "Down the Vale" in a most artistic manner. His voice is very melodious and pleasing. Mr. Sheldon and his admirable orchestra put in some excellent work as usual, and the Bioscope, with election results, which are eagerly awaited, concludes the programme.

Mr. Edwin Barwick has sent 5s. to Mr. Harry Barnard for the Music Hall Home Fund.

Mr. S. Winks, the enterprising manager of the Grand, Halifax, had a novel advertisement out last week. He had sandwichmen parading the principal streets with posters—"Grand Theatre. Last night's result. Grand first. No change."

"Oh! George," a bright comedy sketch that is being played at Collins's this week by Miss Cecile Anson and Mr. Allen Leslie, was written, produced, and copyrighted ten years ago at St. George's Hall, London, by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas when they worked as society entertainers. They have now placed it on the halls, with the above artists under their management. It has been received very favourably, and Mr. Baugh has already secured it for the Surrey for next week.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

N.S.A. One Mile Southern Championship.
THE one mile Southern Counties amateur championship is to be held at the Empress Rink, Earl's Court, on the evening of Feb. 9. Entry forms may be obtained from Mr. W. Stanton, hon. sec., Roller Department N.S.A., 1, Hatfield House, Great Titchfield-street. Entries close first post Feb. 4, the fee being 2s. 6d. Competitors will be allowed to train on the track on the evening of Feb. 5, between 6 and 6.45, and Feb. 7, between 6.15 and 7. The Association's gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded respectively to the first, second, and third men, together with certificates. Time certificates will also be awarded to unplaced competitors doing 3.30 for the distance.

Olympia's Extension of Time.
ARRANGEMENTS have been concluded with the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders which enable Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins to continue the roller-skating season at Olympia until the end of February. The big night of the season occurs on Friday, Feb. 18, when a grand fancy-dress carnival will be held, with cash prizes amounting to £115.

Richardson Challenge Cup.
THE Richardson Challenge Cup will shortly be on view in the West-end of London. This cup is being presented by the Richardson Ball-Bearing Skate Company to the National Skating Association, and is for amateur figure-skating. The contest will take place in London, and the venue will be announced shortly.

Gandy Family for Holland Park.
A MOST attractive spectacle has been afforded Parisians by the Gandy family, who have been appearing every day in matinées and soirées at the Hippodrome. These delightful young girls are a veritable poem of grace and charm. As for little Alf (ten years), he is quite astounding. These clever youngsters have been engaged for the Crawford and Wilkins' Circuit, and open in London at the Holland Park Rink on March 7, for one week. Next week it is probable that Walter Stanton, and Dorothy Cullum will give a performance at this rink for the benefit of the Polytechnic Roller Skating Club, whose headquarters are at Holland Park.

Barnes at Holland Park.
MR. E. H. BARNES is now resident-manager of the Holland Park Rink, as well as supervising-manager of the provincial skateries of the C. and W. group.

"Willie" and "Albert" Join Forces.
MR. ALBERT GILMER has arranged with Willie Clarkson to supply his patrons at the Hove Rink, Brighton, with all manner of characteristic costumes for the Barnyard Carnival which will take place on the night of Feb. 17. The partnership of "Willie" and "Albert" should be productive of some fine effects.

The Colonel Back Again.
COLONEL WINSLOW, head of the great roller-skate manufacturing firm bearing his name, is back again in England, and will probably stay here until "the fall of the year," as his countrymen would put it.

Monohan at Finsbury Park.
ON Wednesday another skating rink was opened in North London, the Mayor of Stoke Newington performing the ceremony. Some 6,000 visitors attended. The new rink is in the Stroud Green-road, and adjoins Finsbury Park Station. Erected by the Premier Rinks, it is no less sumptuous than the others opened by the same concern. There are three sessions daily, and a specially reserved rink for learners. Monohan the Great was in fine form, and fully justified the selection of the management in having engaged him to star. Lieut. T. A. Quill, the late manager of the Clapton Rink, is in charge at Finsbury Park. Mr. A. G. Sandiland takes his place as manager of the Clapton Rink.

The One of Fifty.
ADOLF VOORZANGER, late conductor of the Niagara Hall Skating Rink orchestra, has been appointed bandmaster over the large military band which will be installed at the Maida Vale Skating Rink. He was selected from a crowd of fifty applicants.

New Hammersmith Rink Opened.
THE Hammersmith Skating Rink was opened last Saturday, and the the sister rink at Wood Green follows suit to-day, Mr. A. F. Wilson being the general manager. Both rinks are prepared with a view of providing visitors with all the latest improvements as regards floor and skates. The Hammersmith building, off King-street, looked extremely attractive last Saturday, and was thronged with both skaters and spectators. Being almost immediately opposite Ravenscourt Park station, and with cars passing the door, the place is easily accessible. If energy counts for anything in this world—and Mr. Wilson has plenty of it—the Hammersmith rink is already an assured success. Mr. Wilson hopes to get his music licence at an early date.

Maida Vale Rink.
WHEN the Maida Vale Roller Skating Palace opens it will be the largest permanent rink in the world—495ft. is the length of the building and 120ft. the breadth. The skating surface will be 375ft. by 106ft.—equal to 39,750 square feet. The building has cost £25,000 to erect and equip. A balcony lounge to seat 250, promenades providing seating room for another 1,500. A band of fifty performers has been engaged to play in the lounge, so that spectators or non-skaters will be well catered for. The floor is three and a quarter laps to the mile. Professionals will assuredly appreciate this latter for breaking some of the existing records. The rink will be under the management of Mr. H. F. Blackwell, whose experience in the rinking business is so well known. Richardson skates will be used exclusively, no less a number than 3,000 pairs having been ordered.

London Rink Hockey League.
Goys II. met Glendale in the Second Division of the London League at Cricklewood on Thursday night, and gave them a beating—4 goals to nil. Glendale played one man short, and during the first half they devoted their attention chiefly to "packing" their goal. Goys, however, would have scored several times had it not been for poor shooting. Just before the interval Darnton got through, and at half-time Goys led by 1 to nil. In the second half Glendale left their goal more open to attack, with the result that Darnton, Goodricke, and Parnall each scored a point.

Carnival at Leytonstone
THE second fancy dress carnival of the present season at this popular suburban skatery was held on Thursday, and was a huge success. The prizes, valued at £50, evoked keen competition owing to the many elaborate and novel costumes worn by the skaters. Mr. Lerry, the floor-manager, excelled himself in arranging the grand march of the competitors. The judges were Mr. J. Bert. Hancock (World on Wheels) and Mr. Herbert Ashton (The Era).

Rink Curling.
C. P. CRAWFORD is about to introduce "curling" on his Scottish rinks, having now acquired the rights of some patent "curlers" adapted for use on modern maple floors.

Items from Aberdeen.
AFTER the turmoil of the Election the rinks provide a pleasant "side," and this has been particularly evidenced in the magnificent American rink in Forbesfield-road, which has been liberally patronised by skaters and spectators of all ages. Under the able management of Mr. Basil Burrows, the rink is being conducted in a most business-like manner. The Arcade continues in the forefront of the rinking rendezvous, and the Aberdeen Rink, in the Trades Hall, continues to have an attraction all its own for many skaters and spectators. Like its rivals, the Bon-Accord Rink in Canal-road is putting forth the most strenuous and successful efforts to provide for the enjoyment of its many patrons. Every evening a treacle bun-eating race has been arranged for, and great fun is being provided to spectators and skaters alike. The Olympia continues to boom, and it would be difficult to imagine what Torry would have done during the last few months had it not been for the spacious "Palace." Every evening a series of games and competitions is taking place in the rink, and the handsome prizes offered are an incentive to skaters to enter.

Carnival in Belfast.
MR. J. M. M'CARTNEY continues to make things hum at the Exhibition Hall Skating Rink, of which he is the proprietor. Last Tuesday's carnival was a huge success, and the entire proceeds have been devoted to the City Coal Relief Fund. Special prizes were offered for the most original costumes, and the winners were—Miss Matthews, Mr. Evans, and Mr. W. H. Edgar. The latter was made up as a Chinaman, and attracted considerable attention. In the ladies' musical chairs competition, the prize was secured by Miss Parker. Two special prizes for waltzing were won by Master Charles Gray and Miss Marjory Rolston. The arrangements in connection with the carnival were carried out by Mr. H. Silvani, manager of the Rink.

Cœur de Lion on Wheels.
THERE were over 250 skaters at the carnival which took place at the Olympia Rink, Brighton, on Wednesday evening. It seemed as though a great history book with at least 500 coloured illustrations had been torn in pieces and scattered in the path of a hurricane as those brilliant people whizzed here, there, and everywhere. Yonder was Cœur de Lion in shining ring-mail, and here that lady whom history shall remember from her car-seducing legacy—the "Merry Widow." There were enough clowns to stock a couple of circuses—clowns in costume only, mind you, for all the revellers were expert skaters; there were Spanish girls, Moorish girls, gipsies, and scores of others, all happy and excited. When everybody was beginning to want a short rest Mr. Reed (the manager) brought in the "Little Olympians," the three little girls whom he is training. They are really clever Limelight in Dublin.

AT the Gymkhana held on Tuesday last at the Rotunda Rink, Dublin, an enormous crowd attended, and the events decided were both humorous and exciting. On Tuesday, Feb. 1, the proprietor, Mr. F. W. Chambers, announces a grand advertisement and fancy costume carnival. There will be numerous prizes offered, amounting in the aggregate to £50. On carnival night there will be special lighting and limelight effects.

Little Wheels in Mineland.
THE New Olympia Rink, Durham, is now in a completed state, and is receiving excellent patronage. On Saturday evening last the entire stock of 750 skates were in use, and a musical chair competition, arranged by the manager, Mr. Vivian D'Alby, proved immensely popular, especially with the male patrons.

Glasgow Items.
BUSINESS at the Zoo Skating Rink continues brisk. The great gymkhana, which was arranged for Wednesday last, was, owing to the General Election, postponed until last evening. Patrons will be glad to learn that Mr. Arbuckle, the popular manager, who met with an accident through falling in Buccleuch-street, has sufficiently recovered to be out again at business. The Cambuslang Rink is in every way in keeping with its contemporaries. The floor and general work of the rink leave nothing to be desired, whilst at the Govan Rink the introduction of hockey on the rollers is proving to be a decided attraction. The Ibrox establishment is drawing its quota of admirers. The management from week to week provides special features in the way of hockey matches. Special inducements are offered by the proprietors of the Dennistoun Rink, in Hillfoot-street, Dennistoun, to followers of the pastime, and those desirous of learning skating, as free tuition is given during the forenoon and afternoon. The rink run in conjunction with the Great Eastern Hotel draws many admirers, and the conditions for enjoying the pastime are of the best. Excellent patronage continues to mark the season at the American Rink in Victoria-road, where ample provision is made for the enthusiast of skating.

Wedding Bells.
MR. W. B. FISHER, the manager of the Beverley-road skating rink, Hull, had a pleasant ceremony to perform last Friday evening, when Miss Nellie Phillips, the lady instructor, was the recipient of a handsome marble clock and a purse of gold, subscribed by the patrons and staff. Miss Phillips leaves for South Shields, where she is shortly to be married to Mr. T. Evans, of that town.

Jarrow's First Skating Rink.
GUS LEVAINE, proprietor of the Empire Theatre, Riddings, and of the Babes in the Wood and several other touring pantomimes, has, in conjunction with Alec Payne, the skating expert, secured a splendid site in the above town, and they are forming a company to construct an up-to-date rink. The leading lights of the skating world will appear from time to time.

Kirkcaldy Olympia.
THE Olympia Rink has been taken over by a company of local gentlemen, with Mr. James Hunter as resident-manager. Mr. Hunter was recently married, and the staff met and presented him with many beautiful gifts. Mrs. Hunter is a graceful and accomplished rinker.

Lancs. Amateur Championship.
THE contest for the one mile amateur championship of Lancashire is being organised, and the arrangements are left in the hands of the Manchester Palace Skating Club. It is practically decided to hold qualifying heats at Blackpool, Bolton, Burnley, Liverpool, Preston, Rochdale, Warrington, and the final at Manchester.

Round the Leeds Rinks.
THE American Rink at Headingley continues to receive its full measure of patronage. The new Palace Rink at Armley has rapidly made a place for itself, and at every session at the Hunslet Rink large crowds of enthusiastic rinkers throng the floor. At the Chapeltown Rink large crowds are still the rule.

An Expensive Demonstration.
OUR Liverpool correspondent reports that a rink now in course of construction for the Vandora Noiseless Skate Company is approaching completion, and will be opened during next month. This rink, we are told, has been erected for the purpose of demonstrating the importance and value of the Vandora Patent Wheel. Richardson skates have been selected, and in place of the ordinary steel wheels the Patent Vandora Noiseless wheel will be used.

The Manchester Programme.
THE severe weather that has prevailed in Manchester has had a generally injurious effect on the attendance at the various rinks. At the White City Rink last Saturday there was one of the best crowds of the season, and something like eleven hundred skaters were present. The Olympia Rink in the Rusholme district of Manchester is another large rink where comfort is assured by the large floor space, and where skaters from that side of the city visit in great numbers. Recently a Ladies' Hockey Club has been organised at the White City, and the young women are in daily practice getting ready for incursions on the preserves of the ladies of other rinks of the North. The Gentlemen's Hockey Club of the White City has recently met with considerable success in their encounters with other teams in the League, and their position has improved greatly in the table of averages. Tuesday night a mile race for the White City medal was won by Kid Maddox beating seven contestants. A big skating dance will be held on Shrove Tuesday night, Feb. 8, and then preparations will be made for a big carnival at Easter. May 7 the rink will be again opened at the sides.

"Come Wheel, come Woe."
THE handsome skating rink erected at Oswestry in the short space of ten weeks was opened on July 20 by the Mayor (Dr. De la Poer Beresford) in the presence of a large company, which included the Mayoress. The introduction of roller skating to Oswestry is due to the enterprise of Mr. A. H. Taylor, of Liverpool, who, after acquiring an excellent site in close proximity to the two railway stations, formed the Oswestry Skating Rink Co., Ltd., of which he is chairman and managing director. The rink is certain to prove a great centre of attraction to large crowds of people scattered over a very wide area. It affords ample accommodation for between five and six hundred skaters. The building is admirably heated, ventilated, and lighted, besides having a café and band stand. The interior was beautifully decorated for the opening on Thursday week, and the whole building presented a delightful appearance. The Mayor, in a happy speech, spoke of the pleasure it afforded him to have the privilege of opening such a magnificent building. Oswestry, he considered, was well to the fore with its gymnasium and swimming bath and now its skating rink, while shortly it would have its public park. Speaking as a medical man, his Worship enlarged on the benefits, bodily and mental, to be derived from roller skating. The Mayor humorously observed that FitzJames, had he fought his duel there, might have been tempted to exclaim, "Come 'wheel,' come woe, this floor shall fly from its firm bed, as soon as I." He hoped the building would last till the crack of doom, and that when the final burst came the rinkers might be able to exclaim with Macbeth: "Ring the alarum bell; blow wind, come rack; at least we'll glide with grace from off the track" The rink manager is Mr. W. Eyre, the assistant manager Mr. A. Pike, and the secretary Mr. R. E. Grainger.

Valosky at Salisbury.
MESSRS. MOULDER AND KINGSTON have secured the services for the week of Valosky, the trick and fancy skater. His best items include some fine toe work through a maze of bottles placed on the floor, and some very fine jumping over chairs.

Notes from Sheffield.
RINKING still ranks high in popularity among the amusements of Sheffield. The patrons of the Alexandra Rink, Hawley-street, witnessed a five-mile race last Wednesday, the contestants being members of the staff. Prizes for this event were given. The management of the Olympia Rink, Bramall-lane, have engaged the services of Miss Bertha Doud Mack for a week, dating from Jan. 31. Large numbers of people flock daily to the Empire Rink, Abbeydale-road, where an annexe for learners is in course of completion.

Bertha Doud Mack at Sheffield.
MISS BERTHA DOUD MACK desires to thank Mr. C. Byng-Hare, through The Era, for his great consideration to her during the recent trouble she experienced through the death of her mother. Miss Bertha has a six weeks' contract with that gentleman. Next week she will be appearing at Olympia, Sheffield.

Two Miles Race at Southampton.
THE return match of two miles between A. H. Bear (London) and T. G. Court (Southampton) took place at the Coliseum, Southampton, last Wednesday night before a good attendance. Excitement ran high from start to finish. Court got off the better, and the smallness of the rink troubled Bear, for the local man did most of the leading, and was better at the turns. On entering the last lap Court had a slight lead, but he went wide, and Bear won. Messrs. Whitlock and W. Bulpitt were umpires, and Mr. H. A. R. Norton referee.

St. Valentine's Carnival at Stourbridge.
ON Saturday last the children's carnival at Stourbridge was a great success. Miss Ward took first prize as Peter Pan. She was closely followed by Miss Warr, who took second prize as a little Dutch girl. Master Leeson as a highwayman was well first amongst the boys, while second prize went to Master Young, dressed as a courtier. The rink has now been closed for fourteen days whilst a new floor is laid down. The rink will reopen on Feb. 5, and on Feb. 17 the manager has decided to hold a huge Valentine Carnival.

Tonypandy Gets on Wheels.
ON Friday last the Express Roller Skating Co.'s pavilion was opened at Tonypandy. With the exception of the Cardiff rink this is the largest hall in South Wales. The opening ceremony was performed by Mr. Owen Jones, President of the Rhondda Chamber of Trade.

Ten Goals to Two.
BATH retains its hockey record as the finest team in the West. The latest victims are Trowbridge, who were defeated at the Empress Rink on Monday last by 10 goals to 2.

Truro to Rink.
TRURO, Cornwall, is one of the latest towns to embark into the rinking business. A commodious rink is now being erected, and will shortly be opened. Messrs. Plimpton and Company, Liverpool, have been entrusted with the order for both maple and skates (Richardson).

At Tunbridge Wells.
WEDNESDAY evening, Feb. 2, has been definitely fixed for the grand farmyard carnival, as a red-letter night for skaters and public alike, at the Palace Rink, Tunbridge Wells.

Little Doris going to Paris.
"LITTLE DORIS," the wonderful ten-year-old girl skater, who has been appearing at the Sheffield Empire Roller Rink, has jumped into prominence at the beginning of her tour with Professor Gentil. She has been secured for the opening of the new American Roller Rink in Paris on Monday next.

Not Real(ly).
A CURIOUS scene took place a few nights ago at one of the fashionable skating rinks in Paris. A pretty, elegantly-dressed woman had been seen leaning for some time across the velvet rail of the promenade watching the revolving couples, when suddenly she uttered a shriek and raised her hands to her throat. Her necklace, a handsome row of pearls, that everybody had admired during the evening, had suddenly disappeared. The string had snapped, and numerous fragments of the necklace were scattered in all directions. The pearls were picked up one by one, but nine were still missing. The lady and her friends went to the Police Commissary, who noted every detail of the occurrence. The following day a friend offered to insert paragraphs in the daily papers promising a tempting reward. At this point the lady blushed and nervously intimated that she did not desire the matter to proceed any further, as the majority of her pearls were—not real.

Jessie Darling in Germany.
JESSIE DARLING is touring Germany. This week she is at Frankfort. Next Monday the dainty little lady will be starred at the opening of the new St. Didier Rink, Paris. A week later London will get the chance to welcome her again.

Rinking in Bombay.
MR. SOUNDY has been wearing a wonderful smile this past month, owing, no doubt, to the wonderful way the rink has caught on. Night after night during the festive season the whole stock of skates have been out on the rink, and we are now seeing some excellent and really expert skating. With a view to still further popularising the rink the management has announced a grand fancy dress carnival at an early date, and, as Bombay folk are great at fancy dress affairs, a huge gathering is anticipated. If this one is as successful as those of yore on the old rink, then we can expect a very crowded attendance.

"THE MAID OF POLARIA."
A Romantic Musical Idyll, Produced at the Hippodrome, Norwich, on Monday, Jan. 24.
Duke of Dainsbury .....MR. WALTER HAST
Antonio (a Gondolier) ..MR. DAVID URQUHART
Princess of Polaria .....MISS PEGGY LENNIE
This pretty, musical playlet, rightly designated "an Idyll," was given by Lennie and Hast on Monday evening last as above. The scene opens on the Grand Canal of Polaria, adjoining the Palace gates. The Duke of Dainsbury (an Englishman) is in love with the Princess, who returns his affection. The Duke bribes Antonio (a gondolier) to obtain an introduction, and to assist his enterprise he determines to assume the garb of a gondolier and take Antonio's place. Whilst putting on his disguise the Princess enters and gives a graceful dance. At the conclusion she questions Antonio as to the identity of the Englishman, and he informs her of the Duke's infatuation and of the plot laid for her. She determines on a counter plot, and also assumes the garb of a gondolier, passing as Antonio's son. She retires to change, and the Duke entering, disguised, sings a charming ballad. The lovers meet and indulge in humorous badinage. The Duke, showing her the snapshot photo of herself he has taken, asks her opinion of the subject. She disparages it. Finally he persuades her to join him in smoking a cigar, the result being that she collapses. The Duke accuses her of deceiving him and insists upon a duel. Foils are produced, but ere they are crossed Antonio enters and charges the Duke with attempting to cross weapons with a Royal personage, announcing her identity as the Princess of Polaria. The Duke declares his title, and as the Princess disappears into the palace he begs her to meet him again. She tells him they dine at the palace at eight. The Duke finishes the scene with a repetition of the refrain of his song.

Mr. Walter Hast gave great pleasure in the song, and was humorous in the dialogue. Miss Peggy Lennie, a charming Princess, gained favour on all sides, and Mr. David Urquhart made the most of the part of Antonio the gondolier. The scenery is remarkably pretty.

THERE will be two grand concerts on Good Friday (March 25) at the Crystal Palace, Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock having arranged attractive programmes. Among the artists announced for the afternoon are Sir Charles Santley, Mme. Clara Butt, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Maria Yelland, and Mr. Charles Saunders, and the London Symphony Orchestra will assist. Nowhere in the kingdom is there a place so famous for its musical treats as the Crystal Palace, and the Good Friday programme will surpass all others. The evening concert programme includes Miss Phyllis Lett and Mr. Herbert Heyner and the Coldstream Guards (conductor, Lieut. Dr. J. Mackenzie Rogan). The organist at both concerts will be Mr. F. Holloway, and Mr. A. Fox will be at the piano.

The International Cage Bird Exhibition, which is held annually at the Crystal Palace by the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, opens on Friday next, and will remain open until Tuesday, the 8th. The entries this year number nearly 3,000 birds, and exhibits have been received from Germany and all parts of the United Kingdom.

THE Classical Concert Society have arranged to commemorate the birth of Robert Schumann by a series of three concerts, which will take place during April at the Bechstein Hall. It is intended that the programmes shall be representative of Schumann's pianoforte, vocal, and chamber music.

RICHARDSON SKATES are the BEST in the WORLD.
They have held ALL WORLD'S RECORDS for twenty-four years, and every event of importance during the past few years, either fast or fancy has been won on RICHARDSON SKATES, including Harley Davidson's victory at Olympia Rink, London, February 26th, 1909.
STATEMENTS WHICH CANNOT BE DISPUTED:
The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co. positively equipped 85 per cent. of the Rinks operating in America. Sixty per cent. of the Rinks in this country operated by independent rink proprietors are equipped with Richardson Ball Bearing Skates.
Richardson Skates are the universal choice of, and used by, practically all the leading instructors, unless employed in rinks operated by other skate manufacturers. The Richardson is the most perfectly constructed Skate on the market. The front truck is under the ball of the foot, and the rear truck practically under the heel, which allows the skater to be over his work. This principle is acknowledged to be the best by the leading skaters of the world. Rear trucks extending back of heel only act as a leverage when skaters lose their balance.
The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Factory have equipped more independent Rinks than all other manufacturers combined.
The repairs of Richardson Skates are 50 per cent. less than those of any other make, and the simplicity of construction makes it an easy matter to effect repairs.
Manufacturers: Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co., Chicago, U.S.A.
Sole Distributing Agents for Europe: J. D. PLIMPTON & CO., Limited, Plimpton's Buildings, 116, Old Hall Street, Liverpool; 38 and 40, Curtain Road, London, E.C.

"THE ADDER'S TOOTH."

Dramatic Sketch, in Two Scenes, Adapted by Louis Taylor, from a Story in The Red Magazine, by T. W. Henshaw, Produced at the Bedford, on Monday, Jan. 24.

James Bannister .....MR. HODGSON TAYLOR
Teddy Maddox .....MR. FRED D. BROMWICH
Kate Bannister .....MISS KATHERINE CAREW
Mary Maddox .....MISS AILSA MAYNARD

Here we have a thrilling and deeply interesting drama in miniature, distinguished by dialogue that is often poetic in conception, and that possesses a literary flavour. James Bannister is interrupted in his editorial duties by the entrance of Teddy Maddox, at one time a journalist. The men have been chums, as we learn from the familiar "Jim" of the intruder, who is a sorry wreck. But their friendship must have evaporated when Maddox not only robbed Bannister of the love of his fiancée, but threw over his sister Kate to marry her. From the look of Maddox one would say that his career had been cursed by the demon of drink. Dipsomania seems to hold him as it were in a vice. Pride, self-respect, every quality of a once vigorous manhood has been sapped. He pleads pitifully to his former friend, but Bannister has tired of his continual applications for help for a starving wife and child, and inspired, perhaps, by a sense of the wrong that has been done him by the wretch now appealing to him, he does not mince his words. After a stormy interview Bannister departs; and his sister Kate enters to recognise the man to whom she was once engaged.

With infinite pity she talks to him—not so much of his past as of his possible future. She had put him on a pedestal in those happier days. Can he not rise from the darkness to the light of better things? No, there is no hope in the outlook of Maddox, but his heart is touched. On his return to the room Bannister announces that he has sent on help in the shape of money to Mary—Mrs. Maddox—knowing that at least it would not be spent in drink. Thereupon Maddox breaks into a paroxysm of fury. He hurls imprecations and threats at Bannister and, smashing the glass panel of the door of the room, makes his escape. Fearful of the consequences of this sudden madness, Bannister and his sister, in a taxi, follow Maddox to his home in the slums of the Borough. For the purpose of showing the exciting pursuit, the bioscope is employed, and the interest of the story is thereby admirably sustained. When Maddox at length faces his judges, the curtain rises on a wretched garret.

We now learn the truth. The man who has been hitherto regarded as a hopeless drunkard is really a martyr. He has been dragged down by his wife, who has become a morphia maniac. He describes the hopeless tragedy of his life. For eight years has he borne the shame and degradation brought upon him by her who had promised to honour him. She lies on the floor, an inanimate creature, stupefied by the drug, which she has been able to purchase with the money that Bannister has mistakenly sent to her. The poison has done its work all too fatally, and at the curtain fall one may hope that Maddox will climb to higher things, helped and encouraged by Kate, whose gentle forbearance will be his sheet anchor.

Mr. Fred D. Bromwich has a strong part in that of Teddy Maddox, and he is both impressive and powerful. As he depicts the terrible fate of a man shackled to a morphia maniac his acting certainly touches all hearts. Mr. Hodgson Taylor is earnest and dignified as James Bannister; and the true, womanly touch is given to the character of Kate Bannister by Miss Katherine Carew. There should be a most successful career for this remarkably interesting and powerful piece of dramatic work.

AGENTS' COMMISSION.

In the Court of Appeal on Tuesday Messrs. Ashton and Mitchell, concert and music-hall agents, appealed against a judgment of Mr. Justice Phillimore in favour of the defendant, Mr. Van Biene, the well-known 'cellist and actor. The action was to recover commission on an engagement, and the defence was that the engagement in question had been obtained by Mr. Van Biene direct.

Mr. Duke, K.C. (with him Mr. S. O. Henn-Collins), said that in 1907 the plaintiffs obtained for the defendant an engagement at £50 a week to go on what was known as the Stoll tour. That engagement, which was made with Moss' Empires (Limited), was for the season of 1908. The contract note which Mr. Van Biene signed stated that 10 per cent. commission on salary received by him was to be paid the plaintiffs, "and the like commission on the salary on the next engagement at the said establishment, or any other establishment under the control of Moss' Empires (Limited)." Mr. Van Biene fulfilled the engagement for 1908, but when the plaintiffs claimed commission amounting to £152, including that on the salary he received from the 1909 tour, he declined to pay, alleging that he had obtained the second season's engagement direct, and that the claim could not be sustained under the contract note. He paid a small sum into court with a denial of any further liability. Mr. Justice Phillimore decided that the plaintiffs were not entitled to the full amount claimed, but gave judgment for them for £17 odd over the amount in court.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams: You say that is not enough, and that under the contract note this second engagement was liable to commission?

Mr. Duke: Yes. I think the sum is £103 odd that we claim as balance.

Mr. Holman Gregory, for the defendant submitted that the learned judge had properly construed the agreement, and that the appeal should be dismissed.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams, in giving judgment, said that he could not agree with the construction placed on the contract note by the learned judge in the court below. In his opinion the plaintiffs were entitled to commission also on the 1909 engagement. The appeal would be allowed, and judgment with costs would be entered for the plaintiffs for the balance—£103 9s. 10d.—or whatever the sum was which they claimed.

The other lords justices concurred. Judgment accordingly.

LINN AND DARIUS have been presenting with gratifying success at the Hippodrome, Camden Town, this week, an original musical and vocal scena, which goes next week to the Holborn Empire.

AT the Hippodrome and Picture Palace, Ellesmere Port, the Tymes present a very laughable sketch this week, entitled The Enchanted Clock; Vera Snowdon creates a good impression as a comedienne and dancer; as an impersonator and mimic Delaware is responsible for an enjoyable performance; Jessie Jess, low comedy artist, is amusing; Harvey and Worth are genuinely funny, and provoke abundant laughter with their patter. Excellent up-to-date films are thrown upon the screen.

WILLIAM HEDGES, Streatham Park, conductor L.C.C. trams, was knocked down and killed by a taxicab when crossing the road at Christchurch-road, Streatham-hill, on his way home on Wednesday morning, Jan. 19. The deceased was well known by all who are frequent travellers on this route, and the poor fellow leaves a wife and four children (ages five to ten years). Management, artists, and staff of the Empress, Brixton, are doing what they can for the widow, and the smallest mite would be acceptable. Contributions may be sent to Mr. W. J. Grimes, the Empress, Brixton.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS
FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS.

How the Affairs of a Theatre can be most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.

By OUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.

Price, 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" (The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business-managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (3s 6d., The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.). The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

NOTICE.—OPTION CLAUSE.

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having, in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option,

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them.

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists working in the North of England who have odd weeks vacant are invited to communicate with the Local Manager at above Theatre, with a view to arranging a trial week.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terrier Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The Individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk's company is here in Her Luck in London. Mr. Hugh Carmichael gives a very excellent rendering of the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor; Richard Lenowen is well entrusted to Mr. J. C. Carlyle; and Mr. Douglas Tremayne makes a very effective Rev. Lionel Strong. Mr. T. Lionel Ellis is successful as Stephen Harborne; Miss Mary Neil acts with charm and grace as Nellie Harborne; Miss Dora Woodberry is an engaging barmaid; and other parts are in good hands.

ABERDARE.—NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Resident-Manager, Mr. Victor Knight.—Metz and Metz, top of the bill, delight with their unique speciality act; Lilian O'Gorman, comedienne and dancer, has a good reception; Frank Pope, character comedian, creates roars of laughter; and the Godfreys, in their musical act The Coon and the Slavey, are the recipients of loud applause. Some excellent pictures on the bioscope are given.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. George Edwardes' company, with The Dollar Princess, has been displaying the charm and allurements of this fascinating lady to susceptible sons of the granite city, who acclaim her to be superb. Amongst those players contributing to the general joy are Miss Ciara Evelyn as the Princess, Miss Norma Whalley as Olga, Miss Mabel Russell as Daisy, Mr. Eric Thorne, Mr. Leonard Mackay, Mr. W. Louis Bradfield, Mr. Percy Davison, and Mr. Paul Plunket.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—In a very fine programme this week, one of the most acceptable turns is that given by Les Marbas, delightfully clever and quaint acrobats; Selbit, the mysterious spiritualist; the Five Vernons, instrumentalists; Will E. Stopit, eccentric comedian; Dancit, a clever lady dancer; Miss Norah Noble, comedienne; Kendrick and Laura, in comedy and dancing act; and Walter King, comedian.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's company is presenting the new domestic drama, Only a Little Boy here. Mr. Oswald Douglas worthily sustains the part of the hero, Steve Kingdom; Mr. F. Marriott Watson is well suited in the character of Jim Bragstone; Mr. Elton Morgan as Ambrose Pennington displays ability; and Mr. Aubrey Winn distinguishes himself as Sir Philip Meynell. Mr. Cecil Raymond creates laughter as Joshua Snell, being ably assisted by Miss Flo. Norman as Deborah; Miss Florence E. Florence is a capital June; Miss Hettie Senior makes the most of her opportunities as Tag-Rag; Miss Fanny Olive does exceedingly well as Mona; and Miss Mary Ainslie is a capable Lady Mary Meynell. Miss Dot Forde as Billie Bragstone is to be commended.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr Walter Mould.—Messrs. Cullen and Carthy are presenting their excellent condensed pantomime, Babes in the Wood, here on the twice nightly system. Miss Bessie Cohen as Robin Hood charms all by her dash and versatility; Miss Maudie Forde is a winsome Maid Marian; and the Babes have capable representatives in Miss Dollie Cullen and Miss Elsie Jordison. Mr. Arthur Stratton puts in some good work as the Baron; Mr. Tom Drew makes up well as Peggy; and much hilarity is caused by Messrs. Cullen and Carthy, assisted by their diminutive companion Little Cluley, as the bold, bad robbers. Miss Marie Fern achieves a distinct success as the Fairy.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Babes in the Wood, provided by Mr. Clarence Sounes, is one of the best seen here for some time past, and although played under the two-house system, is as attractive as could be desired. Eddie and Ethel's clever act is vociferously re-demanded; and Collins's sextette of dancers are popular. Miss Mildred Bryan is a dashing principal boy, and her charming sangfroid as Robin Hood, and her tuneful rendering of vocal numbers are thoroughly appreciated; Miss Mabel Mignon gives a meritorious conception of the Maid; and Miss Ethel Lyle's Maid Helen is capital. Mr. F. Terry as the wicked Baron Stoney Broke assists to create many funny situations; Mr. Charles Paton is successful as Llorgie Georgie, and also attends to the stage management; as the Dame Mr. Freddie Webb is good; while as the two robbers Messrs. Eddie Lyle and James Graydon arouse much laughter. Mr. Lyle's eccentric dancing is one of the features of the performance. Miss Lulu Clayton and Miss Connie Haselden are the Babes.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The pantomime, Hop o' My Thumb, which has been on tour since Christmas, under the direction of Messrs. H. B. Levey and J. E. Cardwell, is being performed here this week Hop o' My Thumb is played by little Georgie Harris, a clever juvenile performer, and Mr. Harold Pyott as Tommy, the smallest man in the world, is also a unique figure in the panto. Miss Kitty Trewhitt as the Prince (Jo No is quite a favourite, and gets the ear of the audience with her songs; Miss Kitty Rafferty as Princess Meadowsweet, is full of gaiety, and scores with her singing; Mr. Vivian Wakeman plays Georgina with great success; the humorous Jerry finds in Mr. E. W. Selman a funmaker it would be difficult to surpass; a very comical couple are Messrs. Rice and Cowley as a couple of "sheenies"; Miss Evelyn Major wins great favour as Rupert; some clever juvenile performers are Master Randy Simpson, Master Stanley Annison, Miss Phœbe Crewdson, Miss Jenny Rockliffe, and Master H. Levey. As a sonsie Scotch lassie Miss Gladys Wyse attracts great attention for her precocity of talent; Miss Olive Purcell as Fairy Moonshine is quite satisfactory; and Mr. R. Allan as the Giant Blowhard, well made up, contributes valuably to the fun. The two scenic sets which attract most favour are "The Orchid Forest" and "The Moonland Palace."

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—The popular burlesque actor, George Mozart, heads the bill and proves a prince of laughter-makers. The Lovelaces (Jack and Marie) are again here; Will Willis is a clever comedian; Miss Diana Hope presents The Altar of Duty, the characters in which are vividly presented by Monty Bayly as the doctor, Mr. Chas. Levey as the valet, and Miss Diana Hope as the woman. The spasmodic comedian, Ted Waite, is a very acceptable "turn"; Johnson and Bert present a novel act, A Queer Customer; a gymnastic act by Les Supriskis is clever, expert, and daring. The bioscope picture is Dove Eye's Gratitude.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—For Love and the King, presented by C. Watson Mill and company, occupied the boards for the first three nights of this week, and drew good houses. Mr. C. Watson Mill himself appears as Gerald Meredith, and his fine forcible acting meets with much appreciation; Miss Joan Ellis pleased by her capable ertatment of the part of Natlia; Miss Rosalind Tate, in the rôle of Edith Meredith, also scores a success; as the Miser, Mr. Alfred Maurice fairly holds his audience by his fine acting; and Mr. F. K. Wicksteed (Prince Uros Dagomir), Mr. Geoffrey Chate (Carl Oppenheim), and Mr. Fred J. Webb (Valdimir Obrenovic) also portrayed their different parts with marked distinction. For the last three nights of the week the attraction was Mr. Seymour Hicks' company in The Gay Gordons.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Two Little Vagabonds is here. The cast is a very good one, and includes Mr. Frank Beresford as George Thornton, Mr. Lockwood as Capt. Darville, Mr. Charles Ludlow as Bill Mullins, the Gaffer, Mr. Phillip Beaufoy as Dido Bounce, and Mr. Fred Archer as the Cough-Drop, Miss Dorothy Milne as Marian Thornton, Miss Mabel Cooke as Barbara Scarth, and Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins. The Two Little Vagabonds are played by Miss Helen Granville as Dick and Miss Ivy Millais as Wally.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Smithson.—A capital programme is fully appreciated by crowded houses. Coram tops the bill, and proves his cleverness as a ventriloquist, his gags being very smart; Gene Morelle, a musical tramp, gives a screamingly funny show; Melia and Mozarabar, Oriental equilibrists, introduce a novelty in the form of trained ravens; W. R. Raby established himself a favourite—his song, "Sleep," brings down the house; Bros. Clair, the eccentric wheelists, give a clever act; Jules Kiaro, Continental equilibrist, has a neat refined act; the Zaid Trio please in their Oriental speciality; Ethel Thomas, Welsh soprano, renders two songs with great effect; and the Palacescope has entertaining pictures.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company with The Earl and the Girl is here. Mr. Bert Beswick is a ludicrously funny Jim Chese; and Miss Lilly Gullick is a charming Elphin Haye; Miss Beatrice Hayden is humorous as Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Aton Laina a pleasing Miss Virginia Bliss; and Miss Ida Stratham a good Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Ada Waugh makes an ideal Liza Shoddam; and Mr. Herbert St. John does well as Dick Wargrave.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company in Sindbad the Sailor is here. Miss Lily Sümmond makes a delightfully dashing Sindbad, and Mr. Fred Warner is an ideal Old Man of the Sea; Miss Lottie Collard wins admiration as Princess Yazora; Miss Ruby Collis does well as the Fairy Good Fortune; Messrs. Rand and O'Ryan are drolly effective as Biz Bad and Quis Bad. Others who do well are Miss Kitty Russell (Irza), Miss Gladys May (Selim), Mr. S. Dean (Mrs. Sindbad), Mr. Dan Lyall (Tinbad), and Mr. W. Melville (Caliph).

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Consul the Great is the chief item here this week, and this almost human animal astonishes all with the intelligence he displays; Tom E. Hughes is a first-class comedian; an exceedingly clean and clever balancing act is given by the Almas; Maggie Rimmer is a dainty comedienne; Mlle. Rosina is pleasing with an instrumental entertainment; Charles Craston is a comedian with some quaint humour and songs.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. C. Routledge.—Tate's Juveniles are giving an excellent entertainment here. Several sketches, clever and humorous, are much enjoyed. Some capital films are also given.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company is paying a return visit in the popular naval play, The Flag Lieutenant. The cast contains half a dozen artists who were here before in their respective rôles, namely, Mr. George Mallett (Vice-Admiral), Mr. Montagu Love (Major Thesiger) Mr. Hugh Wakefield (Horatio Hood), Mr. John Wheatman (Michael Palliser), Miss Stella Leigh (Mrs. Gough-Bogle), and Miss Florence Jackson (Mrs. Cameron), and these clever ladies and gentlemen play with all their former success and wonderful freshness. The newcomers include Mr. Edgar Kent as Dick Lascelles, whose breezy and devil-me-care representation appeals at once to the audience; he has charming support in Miss Dorothy Ripley as Hermione Wynne; Mr. George Percy does well as Walter Crutchley; and Mr. Olaf Hytten is suitably placed as Dormer-Lee. Mr. Lionel Isted hits off the part of General Gough-Bogle to the life.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The Troupe Lafaille introduce new and sensational gymnastic and equilibrist feats; Lew Lake's Six Buster Browns meet with a good reception in their vocal and dancing act; H. O. Lovell and Co. are seen in their comedy act, Mam'selle Pom-Pom; Tom Joy parodies two of the song hits of the day; Alice Gill warbles her Tyrolean ditties well; Sleath and Aldin perform an Irish duologue, "Under the Shamrock"; and Helene Stewart is heard in illustrated songs. Included in the pictures are Noel and The Young Redskins.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—The Gaiety (Dublin) pantomime, Dick Whittington, commenced on Monday of last week its run here, and undoubtedly the Belfast public have thoroughly enjoyed the production, especially the unique performance of Wee Georgie Wood, whose imitations of music-hall stars are so remarkably realistic. On Wednesday and Thursday afternoons Mons. Rouraud's company appeared in French classical plays.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here this week is the pathetic play As Your Hair Grows Whiter, presented by Mr. Herbert Fuller's company. Mr. Hubert Helliwell gives a fine impersonation of the Rev. John Alberry, his acting being beyond reproach; the rôle of Alice Walters is cleverly portrayed by Miss Agnes Collier; Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell furnishes an admirable impersonation of Farmer Walters; the rôle of Jack Walters is sustained with no little success by Mr. Percy St. Clair; the humour of the piece is largely in the hands of Mr. Herbert Fuller, who is most amusing as Timothy Slough, and is ably assisted by Mr. Louis Weston as Wagner Mozart; the iniquities of Squire Jack Stonely are luridly portrayed by Mr. S. Leigh Courtney; Miss Lily Fuller is capital as Diana Vanderbout; Miss Florence Delmar is a capable Mrs. Walters; and other rôles are adequately presented by Miss Emily Lewis, Miss M. Courtney, and Messrs. E. Jeffs, P. Byres, H. Jones, &c.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The star here is Miss Louie Freear, the clever comedienne, who on Monday gained much favour with her character songs, especially "Twidley Bits"; the act submitted by Les Piccolinos is decidedly novel; the remarkable feats of George the First, introduced by Dandy George, have aroused much enthusiasm; the Brothers Dean furnish a rare treat in their terpsichorean display; Miss Marguerite Ismay's White Coons gain much favour with singing and dancing; the Garricks in their song-scena afford much pleasure; and the Jees in their Musical Smithy are favourites. Also here are Bowden and Stol (novelty acrobats) and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Douglas's Jolly Bakers, comedy acrobats, billed as the star turn, did not put in an appearance here on Monday; Miss Millie Engler and company stage with undoubted success a farcical episode entitled Beauty and the Burglar, written by Mr. G. R. Sims; Walker and May gain unbounded applause for their vocalism and dancing; a capital musical sketch is provided by Clarke and Hayden, the vocalism of the lady being especially pleasing; the cycling act of the Westwoods is undoubtedly smart; Miss Ethel Dunford's cultured soprano has been heard to advantage in "Shadowland"; Miss Leonie Dixon sings "Peggy, the pride of the mill," in charming style, and dances neatly; and the programme is completed by Miss Gertie Grace (comedienne) and the Bioscope.

BILSTON.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee, Mr. A. L. Owen; Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Tunstall.—We have a powerful attraction this week in Messrs. Summers and Saunders' comical pantomime, The Babes in the Wood. Miss Olive Astor makes a captivating Robin Hood; the Maid Marian of Miss Lulu Lord is effective; Mr. A. McAllister is droll as Evalean, the dame; Denby and Dent work hard and successfully as Tim and Willie; and some clever and sprightly dances are introduced by the Sisters Mawdesley (the Babes) and the Salonicas.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. James Welch's company is on an initial visit here with the comedy, When Knights Were Bold, and presents a thoroughly successful and delightful entertainment. The cast is in every way an excellent one, including, as it does, Mr. H. Langdon Bruce, who, as Sir Guy de Vere, has a part that fits him like a glove; Isaac Isaacson is admirably represented by Mr. Chas. Lloyd; Mr. H. Winton is well suited as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe; Mr. Colin Johnston is an excellent Rev. Peter Pottlebury, D.D.; Lady Rowena Egginston is finely played by Miss Emita Lascelles; and the remaining characters are, without exception, in able hands. The little piece, Millie's Mother, forms an admirable curtain-raiser.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Keating.—A leading attraction in an excellent programme is supplied by Miss Beaumont Collins, who, supported by her able company, appears in an interesting playlet, entitled The Leaves of Memory, with distinguished success; Fred Edwards, assisted by Miss Bertha Northam and others, are prominent in their amusing sketch, Kleptomaniacs; and Miss Cassie Walmer, a clever contralto vocalist and dancer, is a general favourite. Other capital turns are those of Davis and Deane, comedians and dancers; Miss Bessie Lind, comedienne; Andy McLeod, comedian and instrumentalist; Mark Leslie, comedian, singer, and dancer; the Three Orleans, vocalists and dancers; and the up-to-date pictures of Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. John Tiller's company, in the comic pantomime Jack and Jill, has fairly caught on here. The title-rôles are splendidly represented by Miss Nellie Grimshaw and Miss Alice Maude respectively, and the comedians, Mr. Bruce Greene, Mr. Horace Jones, Mr. F. Le Cren, and Mr. H. Le Cren, work hard and successfully. A Scotch ballet is a prominent feature; the Tiller Troupe of dancers are well in evidence; and the Imperial Ballet Troupe execute some pretty dances. The auxiliaries are numerous and effective, and the scenic effects are first-class.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—There are heavy bookings for the pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk, in which Mr. George Robey, Miss Ada Reeve, Mr. Barry Lupina, and the Brothers Griffiths are conspicuous for excellent work. The picture matinées are being well patronised.

PRINCE OF WALES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Babes in the Wood pantomime continues to run smoothly, and crowded and enthusiastic audiences assemble at each performance. There is a strong company headed by Mr. Mark Sheridan and Miss Dorothy Ward.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Crowds are flocking to this popular house to enjoy the most popular and up-to-date pantomime ever staged here. Aladdin is presented by an accomplished all-round company, and there is not a dull moment from start to finish.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Miss Renee Glendower and her company are scoring a success in the drama What a Man Made Her. Miss Glendower in the character of Janet McAllister, an artist's model, has full opportunity of displaying her remarkable talent in a trying rôle; Mr. J. M. Olivert gives a good portrayal of the husband, Dr. Mark Haven; and praise is due to Mr. Edward Rawlinson (Rupert Danescombe), Miss Stella Carmichael (Lady Thora), and Miss F. Russell Spires (Elfrida), who sustain the heavy business. Mr. C. Hartopp also gives a clever character-study; and the other parts are in capable hands.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. H. Taylor.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is presenting The Luck of Roaring Camp before large audiences. The story deals with life in the Far West, and Miss Elizabeth Dundas provides an excellent character-study as the heroine, Nell Curtis. Mr. Douglas Murray fills the part of Will Gordon, a manly hero; and three unscrupulous adventurers are portrayed by Miss Doris Gilham, Mr. Chas. E. Johnson, and Mr. Ernest Clarke. The company is an excellent one, and the drama goes with a good swing.

ASTON THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Manager, Mr. F. Martin Morris.—Audiences here are thoroughly appreciating the drama Her Path of Sorrow, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's company. Mrs. Draycott as Pauline Ferrars and Mr. Draycott as Richard Burfield provide excellent character studies, and their acting is skilful and convincing. Miss Daisy Carlton and Mr. Will Hook work well together in the humorous situations, and other responsible rôles are successfully undertaken by Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne, Miss Nellie Freeland, and Messrs. Frank Etheridge, Frank Englefield, Theo. Balfour, and Charles Rayne.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Temptation, a drama produced by Nora Carton and Beatrice Selwyn's company, is proving a great draw, the story being one that appeals strongly to lovers of melodrama. Mr. Dudley Wynton sustains the part of Sir Charles Tremaine with credit, and the two characters portrayed by Miss Nora Carton and Miss Beatrice Selwyn provide an interesting contrast. Mr. Norman A. Overton cleverly fills the exacting part of the villain. Two splendid characters are also represented by Mr. Arthur Trail and Miss Olga Kay. Plenty of humour is introduced by Miss Mattie Crawford, in a dual rôle, and Mr. Willie Reid.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—A well-balanced bill is headed by Tom Leamore and Marie Kendall. The former, a versatile comedian and dancer, is a popular entertainer; and a warm welcome is accorded Miss Kendall, who sings her charming songs in pleasing style. Thrilling cycling feats are performed by Tom Davies and his confrère; an excellent pantomimical absurdity is ably presented by Albert and Edmund's company; W. J. Manning and Louise Gomersal perform cleverly in a comedy duologue entitled Knocked Out; quite a musical treat is provided by the Jackson Family; Mabel Sinclair is an up-to-date ventriloquist, her performance being novel and highly entertaining; Florence Esdaile is an accomplished vocalist; and Steve McCarthy is a smart comedian. Bioscope pictures of flood scenes in Paris are watched with keen interest.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Lovers of dancing have a special treat provided by Signoritas Mossetti and Patti and Signor Marcelli, who appear in an Italian ballet entitled Uncle Isadore; Miss Lottie Bellman, assisted by Mr. Bay Russell, creates quite a furore in her "Bits of Vaudeville"; a remarkable exhibition of tumbling and pyramid-building, in which feats of strength are prominent, is given by the Abdullah Arabs, twelve Moorish artists; Charles Lewis presents an original ventriloquial sketch; Frank Hartley is an extremely dexterous juggler; A Ba-Be's picture postcard album is an artistic novelty which greatly delights; a pleasing entertainer at the piano is Nina Wood; Rita Rhylle is a charming comedienne; Fred Keeton is a popular comedian; and considerable interest is evinced in the Bioscope pictures of the Paris floods.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—There are many good turns in the programme this week, and the most amusing is a sketch, The Sleepwalker, played by Walter Ellis and company, in which the situations are cleverly hit off. Jordan and Harvey, the popular Hebrew character delineators, are also strong favourites; Conway and Leland are amusing in a clever acrobatic performance; and Mi Narom has a good reception in low-comedy business. Ella Blair and her American Bowery Boys appear in a smart turn; the Birkenhead family are popular musicians; and Guest and Newlyn, the Oaks Duo, and Fred Kendall also contribute acceptably.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Barrasford's, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Baldry.—The highly-amusing farce The Bailiff is presented by Fred Karno's company, and they succeed in keeping the audience in a constant state of laughter; in French and Brazilian dances, Joly Violetta, assisted by Signor Arnand, is very successful the audience warmly applauding her clever and artistic work; Briff, Braff, and Broff appear in a refined comedy acrobatic turn; Leo and Roland are clever entertainers who perform daring tricks at ladder balancing; Sydney Brandon is responsible for interesting character impersonations; the Resas are warmly applauded for novel juggling feats; and an effective comedy element is supplied by the Arthur Gallimore Trio and Ritter and Foster.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Mme. Albani's appearance has resulted in this popular variety house being crowded at every performance. The famous prima-donna holds her hearers spellbound in several of her favourite selections, and arouses wonderful enthusiasm. She is assisted by Herr Jan Zakovsky, violin virtuoso, and is accompanied by Mr. Harold Craxton. Clever acting by Miss Sidney Hayes and Mr. George Cockburn is a feature of a dramatic sketch, The End of the Chapter; the Zanfrellas are daring pedestal equilibrists; Harry Blake, comedian, is immediately popular; Miss Elsie Bernard is an entertaining American comedienne; and Bert Davis, male soprano, and Cavalli, ventriloquist, are other bright turns.

CURZON HALL (AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL CIRCUS).—Director and Organiser, Mr. A. Edward Inshaw.—A good programme and full houses sum up the week's report of this hall. The Hodginis appear in an amusing sketch entitled Fun at the Seaside, and the audience applaud the eccentricities of the Four Miovskys. Melville's Last Stand is the title of a dramatic sketch produced by Mr. Fossett, in which clever animal training is a predominating feature. The very best talent is included in the programme, and there are plenty of amusing interludes.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Wm. Pardoe's company is paying a return visit with his pantomime Dick Whittington, a good house being present on Monday. Mr. George Hyam keeps the house simply convulsed by his clever jokes and patter; Mr. Tom Hulme as Alderman Fitzwarren and Mr. Jimmy Wood (the Cook) both do well; Mr. Alf Grady (idle Jim) and Will Robb (Capt. Binnacle) are full of good humour; Mons. Paull makes a realistic cat; Miss Lottie Holland in the title-rôle sings in catchy style; Miss Nellie Rose as Alice is charming in every way, and dances cleverly; Mr. Tom Griffitt (King Rat) is very fine, as is also Miss Kedward (Fairy Bowbelle). The chorus is powerful and the scenery good. The specialities include the Victor Brothers, the Edengale trio of dancers, and the Pauletti, trick cyclist.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Miss Edith St. Clare is drawing crowded houses with her funny pantomime Aladdin. Mr. Fred Russel plays Abanazar very cleverly; and Mr. Bob King as Widow Twankey is very smart. Messrs. Fremel and Fremel cause much amusement; the Sisters Voldecque are good as Prince Hi-to-Nee and Loo-Li-Ah-Tee; as Aladdin Miss St. Clare is very becoming, and her songs are well rendered; Miss Nan Farren as Princess Badroulbadour is admirable. The scenery and chorus are all that can be desired, and the Canton troupe of dancers are very clever.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Blackpool Amateur Operatic Society is in possession here this week, and under the able direction of Mr. Deane Percival is nightly delighting large audiences with an excellent representation of Tom Jones. The original scenery is used in the production, and all the costumes are entirely new.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Humpsti-Bumpsti (Pipifax and Pablo) supply a most diverting acrobatic turn here; James Fawn receives a cordial welcome; trained animals give an admirable performance under the direction of Carl and Mary Ohm; the Brasques are screamingly funny in a sketch; John Cronow gives "Moments with Celebrities"; Madge Goodall is a smart comedienne; Dave Carter is an excellent tenor vocalist; Bertha de Pas is a merry comedienne; and Adelaide Woldorf sings pleasing songs. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope shows the latest pictures.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The visit of Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and E. Stevens' pantomime company with the ever-popular Aladdin proved a pronounced success, full houses being the rule. In the title-rôle Miss Mabel Hind won the heartiest of applause; and Miss Lily Lonsdale, the possessor of a sweet voice, was at once a favourite with her charming rendition of the rôle of the Princess; the Widow Twankay of Mr. Tom Carrick was provocative of much amusement; Mr. Ernie Myers won favour as Abanazar; Mr. J. A. Aitken was much in evidence as the Grand Vizier; Mr. E. R. Beaumont, who is responsible for the production, made up as the Emperor of China; the Brothers Fiman as Bo Bi and Bo Ko created rich and enjoyable fun; and the Three Warners, whirlwind and speciality dancers, were accorded a brilliant reception, their turn being watched with great interest.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—This week we have The Arcadians presented by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Mr. Gus Oxley as James Smith and Simplicitas was a host in himself; Mr. Frank Collins was a great success as Peter Doody, the jockey; Miss Madge Haines as Mrs. Smith was good; Mr. Roy Sidney made an effective Jack Meadows, and Mr. Roy Lorraine as Bobby was both merry and bright. Miss Marion Edwardes as Sombra is the possessor of a good voice, which she uses to the best advantage; Miss Katie Yates as Chrysea is very neat and pretty; and Miss Mysie Devine as Eileen Cavanagh sings some pretty Irish songs. The augmented orchestra was under the bâton of Mr. Albert Bartlett.

GRAND THEATRE (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent company here includes the Sutcliffe Troupe of clever Scottish pipers, dancers, and acrobats; Mollie Edwards, a dainty comedienne; Monty Walker, a Bolton comedian; Alfonso Silvano in pyramid equilibristic feats; the Four Vagabonds, a comedy quartette of harmony-makers; Johnny Holland and company in a farce, My Friend Boots; Flake White, lightning artist; George Lawrence, actor vocalist; and Stewart and Morgan, Irish comedians.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bolton), Ltd.; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Fred Karno's company tops the bill here with The Dandy Thieves. Other turns making up a capital programme are the Kepples, operatic vocalists; Violet Beatrice, dainty boy impersonator; the Matt Wilkinson Trio, in their comedy sketch, The Registry Office; the Jackaways, in their laughable sketch, The White Statue; the Frohmans in a musical act; Kioto and Esa, in their wonderful equilibristic performance; the Three Sisters Macarte, in their novel scena, The Land of the Lotus; Sid Cotterell and company in their comedy success, The Substitute; and the Hippodrome Pictures.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint-Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. A. Burdett.—La Belle Parisienne, Mlle Liane D'Eve (from the Casino de Paris) in her original chansons and transformations, with novel picture changes of character, is again paying a visit; Starley Bros., acrobatic cyclists and motor cyclists, are a clever pair; George S. Melvin, comedian, is successful; Chas. D'Aix and his dog Arienne combine in a wonderful exhibition of canine training; George S. Hall, comedian, is good; Leslie's Cadets have a new and original naval scene, After Lights Out; and Minnie Mace, eccentric dancer, is successful.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Jack and the Beanstalk must rank as one of Mr. Hart's brightest and most successful efforts in the way of pantomime. The audiences are large, and applause and laughter continue to greet the efforts of the clever company.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Hearty laughter prevails during the performance of The Forty Thieves, and the efforts of the comedians of the company are unflagging. As a spectacular production the pantomime is undoubtedly Mr. Laidler's finest effort here, and his enterprise is fittingly rewarded.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—In his admirably staged adaptation of Rip Van Winkle Mr. Fred Storey (who is exceedingly well supported) is again earning applause for his artistic performance of the reckless, luckless Rip; Miss Juliette's performing sea lions are a wonderful example of animal training; Giovanni Wals, the Spanish Caruso, is a fine, robust tenor; and Jessie Albini is an accepted comedienne; Dolly's Deception, a smart and amusing sketch submitted by John Scott and company, finds favour; in her well-rendered contralto songs Bessie Slaughter wins applause; Sammy Shields, the entertaining Scotch comedian; Arthur Kenny, a remarkably clever trick cyclist; the Eight Lancashire Lads, dancers and singers; and O'Malley and Brown, comedians, contribute successfully. Pictures of the Paris floods shown on the Bioscope conclude.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—The Janowsky Troupe of acrobats, in a ladder act of considerable novelty and daring, win applause; Archie Pitt, comedian, contributes in quaint style; and a humorous turn by Damerell and Rutland, with funny patter, elicits much laughter; Frank Le Dent, an expert juggler, does some novel and funny hat tricks amongst other things; Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright, with rapid character sketches and good dancing in their turn Hi Wun, win favour; Will Rhodes is a vendor of quaint songs; the Baltimore Coloured Quartette entertain with characteristic humour; May Knight, comedienne, submits an acceptable turn; and the Palace Perfection pictures are amusing.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Robinson Crusoe is still running here with great success, the new songs, jokes, and dances being very warmly appreciated. Miss May Mars achieves distinct success in the title-rôle, her vocalisation being an especially prominent feature of the enjoyable performances. Miss Violet K. Oram as Polly Perkins dances herself into great favour; Messrs. Jimmy Fergusson and Lyons as Corkscrew Bill and Captain Kuttle provide plenty of fun, and are well supported by Mr. Dave O'Toole (Mrs. Crusoe) and Mr. George Campbell (Billy Crusoe). Last Monday evening about eighty members of local cycling clubs patronised the pantomime.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—The leading attraction here is the performance of Jack Brownson's musical comedy scena The Romanys, which is fully noticed in another column; Petro and Leon are smart gymnasts on the aerial trapeze; Stalman and Russell are warmly applauded for their comedy episode Borrowed Plumes; Ray Bliss is a pleasing comedienne; Roelcin's performing cockatoos provide an interesting turn; the Warringtons appear in a capital herculean equilibristic act; the Hulls are good in musical comedy; Henry Robinson is a double-voiced vocalist; Maudie Laurel, comedienne and acrobatic dancer, achieves success; Harry Fortman is a refined character vocalist; and an appreciated extra turn is given by the Two Tarrants, comedians and patterers.

The beauty of the whole production, the elegance and richness of the costumes, together with the all-round excellent company, would well account for the great success already achieved. Miss Lulu Valli is a sweet voiced principal boy, and plays her part of Reggie with much vivacity; Miss Alice Pollard is a graceful and attractive Goody, winning all hearts by her dainty style, excellent singing, and pretty dancing; Mr. Horace Mills, an old Bristol favourite, presents a quaint study of Mother Hubbard, and in the scenes in which he is associated with Mr. Charley Harvey (the Squire) the laughter is continuous; Miss Sydney Fairbrother makes a fine part of Mary, a maid-of-all-work, her quiet and somewhat melancholy style being most effective; Mr. G. H. Elliott works hard, and has become a popular favourite as Chocolate, his songs and scenas with the children going particularly well. He is an admirable dancer, and is encored again and again. On Saturday last the principals made collections on behalf of the Lord Mayor's Hospital Sunday Fund, the amount realised being £17 13s. 2d.

Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Robinson Crusoe is still attracting full houses. Miss Kitty Upton and Miss Blanche Marion are popular favourites in their respective parts of Robinson Crusoe and Polly Hopkins. The comedians, Messrs. Charles F. Martell, John R. Bennett, Edwin Garth, and Frank Dunlop, all work very hard, and are successful in keeping up the fun "fast and furious." The Misses Albert are pleasing exponents of Captain Lanyard and Sally; the Misses Gonson are very appropriately placed as Bob Mainstay and Susie; Miss Judith Espinosa makes a capital part of Friday, her clever eccentric dancing always being warmly applauded; and Mr. Dave Jenkins (Davy Jones) displays to advantage his fine voice in appropriate songs. Excellent speciality dances are introduced by the Four Sunrays. The scenery and dresses are much admired.

Palace.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Corman's Juveniles, twelve in number, present a very attractive scena The Waif, which is much applauded; John Grun Marx, "the modern Hercules," performs extraordinary feats of strength; Alice Cheshire and company amuse with their sketch, Wanted, a Wife; Leslie, Lyn, and Willie entertain with comedy and song; the Four Mexican Lasso Wonders do a smart act; Howe and Ardie are capable comedy acrobats and gymnasts; Fritz Von Liston, operatic siffleur and imitator of birds and animals, does an attractive turn; and Mlle. Tina is a graceful and expert gymnast. Animated pictures conclude.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Courtice Pounds and company are highly successful with their musical comedy sketch, Charles, His Friend; Lee and Kingston score with their smart absurdity, A Resourceful Lover; James Hare and company do well with their episode, Wrong 'Uns; Tom Jones, Welsh comedian, obtains considerable appreciation; the Three Romas present some fine gladiatorial feats; Staffo is a smart juggler; Susie Dole is a pleasing comedienne; and the Sprees entertain with their scena, Twickenham Ferry.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Cramer; Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—This theatre is reopened with Fred Granville's comic pantomime Aladdin, written by Joseph L. Barry. It was welcomed on Monday by a large and enthusiastic audience. The comic element is in excellent hands, and the other members do well in their several rôles. Mr. Bert Harrow is a very amusing and clever exponent of the magician Abanazar; Miss Amy Bellwood is a dainty and fascinating Aladdin, with a roguish smile, and full of energy; Mr. Happy Attwood as Widow Twankey is very clever, and his appearance called forth much laughter; Bernard and Weston as the police do a very large amount of clever comic business; Mr. Mansell Fane as the Emperor and Mr. Charles A. James as the Vizier also create much laughter; Miss Beatrice Harris is a charming Princess, and dances very gracefully; Miss Jennie Hallworth as Pekoe and Miss Hilda Zingart as Saucee do some acceptable singing and dancing; Miss Margaret Story (Radia), Miss Eileen Cross (Lumino), Mr. Bert Bernard (Wishee-Washee), and Miss Marion Walker (Lardi-Doo) also deserve praise. The Zingari Troupe of dancers are very smart. The scenery and dresses are pretty. Bert Harrow and Marion Walker are very amusing in the scena, On the Prom.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Carl Rosa Opera company is this week presenting grand opera. On Monday evening Bizet's Carmen was performed before a highly appreciative audience. The nom-rôle had a delightful interpreter in Miss Doris Woodhall; the singing of Mr. E. C. Hedmondt as Don José was greeted with enthusiastic approbation; and a sweet soprano, Miss Beatrice Miranda, did well as Micaela. Mr. Allan Turner did full justice to the rôle of Escamillo; and the chorus sang in excellent style. Special praise is due to the orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Van Noorden. In Faust Mr. Wilson Pembroke created an excellent impression; Miss Beatrice Miranda made a charming Marguerite; and the Mephistopheles of Mr. Arthur Winckworth was also highly successful. Pagliacci and Cavalleria Rusticana, The Marriage of Figaro, Destiny, Tannhäuser, and Il Trovatore are the other operas announced.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The top place on the programme here is occupied by Netta's Singing Jockeys, who are loudly applauded; a capital musical turn is given by Jessie Miller, cornetist and Dollie girl xylophonist; the Forsythes, in a vocal comedy duo, are funny; and King Luis and partner are smart acrobatic equilibrists. Extremely clever sleight of hand tricks are exhibited by Henri Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Mair; the Burnley Æolian Quartette are capital; Vennie Veldon, dusky male impersonator, possesses a sweet voice; and the Empire Theatrescope illustrates A Day in the Life of a Street Arab.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The ever-popular Arthur Lennard is the bright particular star here this week, and succeeds in gaining much admiration; Bromley and Fontein create roars of laughter; Tom York sings well; and J. H. Greener, singing pit lad, is re-welcomed. The Francolis, with the "Bill-poster and Living Lithographs," gain much applause; Amy Anderson and company raise laughter in their comedy act, The Banana Queen; and the Dainties dance in an accomplished manner. A Cattle Ranch and A Ragpicker's Christmas are shown by the Palace Pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—The Arcadians appeared here the first half of the week to a crowded house, and met with instant success. Fun ran fast and furious throughout, a state of things for which Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson (Simplicitas) and Mr. Alfred Beers (Peter Doody) were chiefly responsible. Mr. Arthur S. McDonald was a spirited and natural Jack Meadows; and Bobby was nicely played by Mr. Cyril Lane. Miss Gertrude Aylward gave a fine character sketch as Mrs. Smith, who, in conjunction with Simplicitas, caused roars of laughter. Miss Gladys May shone as Eileen Cavanagh, and danced cleverly; Miss Sybil Tancrede was a pleasing Sombra and possesses a fine voice and presence; Miss Muriel Dance also did well as Crysea. The chorus and band were first-class, and the mounting and dressing excellent.

CANTERBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon.—Cinderella, Mr. Falcon's own pantomime, is with us this week, and the popular lessee of the local theatre has never given us anything better in the way of pantomimes. Miss Cecilia Gold is a delightful and dainty Cinderella, and sings effectively; Miss Maude Nichols makes a dashing Prince Elegant, and Miss Lilian Drake a charming Dandini; Mr. Jack Waller as the bankrupt Baron is decidedly good, and he makes a great hit with his song, "Miss Goldstein's glass-eye," while he is no less clever as an executant on the violin; Messrs. Wal. Lesley and Albert Lawrence provide immense fun as the ugly sisters, Sweetie and Girlie, and both render some capital humorous songs. Mr. Lawrence also sings the soprano song, "Somewhere," in a rich falsetto voice. Humour of the most irresistible type is provided by Mr. Glen Alva as Billy Buttons, and the buffoonery of Messrs. Harley and Hardon is no less appreciated by the juveniles. These two gentlemen are also responsible for the amusing burlesquinade with which the performance concludes. Miss Beatrice Maude enacts the part of a dairymaid very pertly, and she is a speciality dancer of undoubted ability; as the Demon Mr. Bert Darrell is entirely successful, and he is the possessor of a pleasing voice to boot. Miss Rene Willoughby makes a dainty Fairy Godmother, and Miss Leila Carstairs is no less admired as Fairy Sunshine. The pantomime is being produced by Mr. Albert Evremond.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Regret is keenly felt in Cardiff at the closing down of the finest pantomime ever seen in this district, Dick Whittington, which has been a phenomenal success.

Theatre Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Graham Morrison; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay.—On Monday night Mother Goose entered upon its last week, and from the very commencement nothing but praise for management, principals, chorus, and orchestra has been heard on all sides.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—A visit is being paid to the Empire this week by Miss Amelia Bingham and company, in Big Moments from Great Plays. Miss Olga Petronowa, Russian conductress, and her military band, gave selections in a masterly manner; a return visit is paid this week by D'Arc's Marionettes, who present positively lifelike impersonations in miniature of well-known music hall artists; W. J. Churchill, a popular comedian, provides a humorous item; Tom Moore, character comedian and vocalist, is entertaining in his song, "My Last Cigar"; the Marsumas, comedians on wheels, are both funny and clever; Edith Harmer, as a vivandiere, sings daintily; Baby Betty Green, juvenile comedienne; and a bioscopic film of the Paris floods complete a strong and varied programme.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—A really entertaining programme prevails at the popular Palace this week. Wilton Heriot and company present a capital sketch, entitled Denbigh's Divorce, in which Mr. Heriot, Miss Jean Gilmour, and Master Jack Coyle make great fun. The world-famous Geraldos "go down" in their wonderful club-swinging act; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor are equally successful with their turn; The Dancing Master; Sim Moree, the indiarubber Mahommedan, gives a remarkable display of contortionism; Mabel La Blanche, comedienne; the Corney Bros., duettists; Chas. Byron, character comedian; and the Lannons, expert dancers, are others.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is here in Leah Kleschna. In the title-part Miss Bessie Rignold had ample scope for her abilities, and her intense and realistic acting created interest and appreciation; as Kleschna Mr. William Clayton played with assurance and skill; Paul Sylvaine was successfully impersonated by Mr. Charles Barrett; an excellent study of Raoul Barton was contributed by Mr. Algernon J. Hicks; and Mr. Graham Pockett's Schram was a clever portrayal. Mr. Edgar J. Coyne, in dual rôles, Miss Ethel Russel, and Miss Emmie Wallace gave excellent support, and the other characters were well placed.

CARMARTHEN.—Assembly Rooms.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Mr. Joseph Poole's No. 1 Myriorama, with a variety company, has paid a welcome visit to the Assembly Rooms this week for three nights. The Myriorama is quite up-to-date, all the latest events being faithfully portrayed, and the animated pictures are of a really entertaining character. The songs contributed by Mr. Bert G. Berry, the able and versatile guide, are well received; Miss Fredericka's performing terriers and "cake-walking" pony give a really marvellous performance; the Sisters Eileen and Maynie, the Dutch instrumental dancing duo, receive rapturous applause for their pretty act; Les Heuris give a fine exhibition in their equilibristic act; and Little Francesca delights with her dancing. Johnny O'Rourke is most amusing as "The Tourist"; and the Tissots (Willie and Marie) are remarkably clever in their living marionette entertainment. De Lilo, the lady bender, and Metz, the comedy juggler, are successful. The band is under the able conductorship of Mr. W. A. Abbey.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company is here in Her Love Against the World. Mr. Fred Emery is capital Eric of Strathmere; Miss Elsie Roberts a charming Princess of Idalia; Nello is appropriately played by Miss Rossie St. John; and Miss Blanche Steele acts with commendable care as Shulah. Mr. Oswald Cray shows ability in a clever impersonation of Prince Ulric; Mr. W. H. Hallatt plays with earnestness and sincerity as Prince Othmar; Mr. Chas. R. Hann puts feeling and force into the character of General Gessler; and Prince Maurice is carefully represented by Mr. H. Hallatt. Mr. Arthur J. Moss is admirably suited as Kaspar; Mr. Arthur Carruthers and Mr. John Mill as Heinrich and Fritz cause laughter; Miss Amy Hastings as Gretchen is bright and pleasing; and Miss Julie De Esco makes an amusing Katinka.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H Emerson.—A capital programme here is headed by the Five Jolly Bakers, in a comedy acrobatic act; Miss Ciss Cole and company have a clever sketch, A Naval Manœuvre; Webb and Edna Branston prove themselves to be artists in several operatic items; Chas. Rowen's songs rouse much laughter; and capital harmony is provided by Williams's original Royal Welsh Minstrels; Bonetti and Corrie's juggling wins warm recognition; Sylvern, as an equilibrist, receives sincere and unqualified praise; and Bert Allen's patter is enjoyed. Capital pictures by the Loyal Dominion Company are popular.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Leroux's cycling monkeys have been cleverly trained; Cecil Gray's company is appearing in a tragic play by the Rev. E. S. Edwards, entitled The Last Straw; Bert Crosbie is a comedian whose mannerisms please Barnard's patrons; Ida Howard dances capitally; Arthur Briton's company presents a boisterous production, A Sleepless Night; and Vita and Paul, in a gymnastic act, and Rose Everette, comedienne, complete. Lacey's Erascope keeps well up to date.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Mr. F. W. Bolam's company is here with The Sins of Society. Miss Grace E. Leslie fills the rôle of Lady Marion Beaumont with much success; Mr. C. F. Collings' Noel Ferrers is a praiseworthy performance; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson makes a manly Sir Dorian March; Miss Rosamond Bunton is a dainty Lady Gwendolen; and Miss Cissie Carlton a popular Lady Goldbury. Plenty of humour is extracted from the part of James Hogg by Mr. Maitland Marler; Mr. Sidney C. Sinclair gives a careful rendering of Mr. Morris; and other characters are adequately portrayed.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—Here we have Lily Ray, comedienne and dancer; Billy Hubbard, whose elderly dame impersonation amuses all; Tess Lilley, vocal comedienne; the Alberto Troupe of equilibrists, who are heartily welcomed upon their return visit; Joe Cookson, in a neat and novel ventriloquial act; Adele Moraw, who made an immediate hit on Monday evening; the Barton and Franklin Trio, in a popular musical act; and pictures by the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM. — Opera House. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Preedy and the Countess pay a welcome visit this week. Mr. Preedy is cleverly represented by Mr. Weedon Grossmith; Miss Ruth Mackay invests with personal charm the part of the Countess; Mr. Murray Carson gives a consistent and well-defined impersonation of Mr. Bounsall; Mr. Oswald Marshall is a satisfactory embodiment of dignified senility as Lord Kinslow; Mr. Edward Bonfield is well in the picture as the tolerant, easy-going husband about town; Mr. George Seegar is a perky, fussy Mr. Sidgrave; and his better half is amusingly played by Miss Lydia Rachel; Miss Evelyn Kerry gives a dainty impersonation of Emma Sidgrave; Mr. F. H. Dent plays with much spirit the part of the voluble Reginald Saunders; Mr. A. B. Murray is excruciatingly funny as Mr. Preedy's punctillous valet; and Miss Lynne Fontanne is good as the shrewd lady's maid. The farce is well mounted, and goes merrily from start to finish.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime, Puss in Boots, is proving very entertaining. Miss Victoria Carmen and Miss Ruby Emmerson stood out prominently as Colin and Princess Iris respectively, their gaiety being contagious and their songs particularly well received; Mr. Michael Madden, the Bros. Hannaway, Mr. E. D. Nicholls, Mr. Fred Lyndo, and Mr. H. A. Griffiths supplied humour ad lib. Mr. Harry Gilmore made an excellent Puss; Miss Nancy Renshaw quite a hilarious Pompey; and Miss Louie Love a very capable Fairy.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Raffles is here this week, the company being Mr. Leonard Boyne's. In the title-rôle Mr. Reginald Dance achieved a rare triumph, his entry being warmly welcomed, and the final curtain bringing him an ovation; Mr. Edward Irwin portrayed the part of Curtis Bedford with ease and cleverness and a fine sense of U.S.A. smartness; Mr. Oswald Griffiths gave a characteristic delineation of Crawshay; Miss Frances Titeradge was convincing as Gwen; Miss Mollie Tremaine most acceptable as Mrs. Vidal; Mr. Harold West showed ability as Bunny; and Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald was clever as Crowley; Mr. Arthur Willoughby in tone, gesture, and appearance aptly suggested the aristocratic Earl of Amersteth.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Moody-Manners' grand opera company is in its second week here, and repeated Samson and Delilah. Mr. Joseph O'Mara's Samson was a pleasing specimen of vocal power and beauty—the air "Israel, burst your bonds" was sung with soul-stirring fervour, and the sorrow-laden music in the second part was admirably expressed; as Delilah Mlle. Zelie de Lussan gave a charming representation, singing her numbers with delightful sweetness and finish; Mr. Dever as the High Priest of Dagon acquitted himself with distinction; Mr. Charles Moorhouse gave an admirable rendering of Abimlech; and Mr. Charles-McGrath as the Hebrew was duly dignified. The orchestra was excellent, and the staging perfect. Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Carmen, Aida, and The Bohemian Girl are also in the bill.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—Charles Perelle's Bijou Circus is very entertaining, the dogs going through a number of clever tricks; In The Daughter of the Regiment Mr. T. H. Wood as Sergeant Sulpice. Miss Nellie Moore (the Countess), Mr. Ernest Chas. Gittins (Bruno), Mr. Percival Harris (Tony), and Mlle. Adele Prescott as Marie give a very pleasing performance; the Brothers Artois, in comedy bar act, are a smart pair; Dome, comedy clay modeller, produces some clever models; Percival, pianist and variety entertainer, supplies a very enjoyable contribution; Nellie Coleman keeps the house in roars of laughter; Bradley and Barns, American comedy duo, and Charles Newman, baritone vocalist, also contribute; and the Palascope pictures are very good.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A warm welcome is extended to Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company, with a well-selected répertoire. On Monday the Lily of Killarney was given. Mr. Turner himself appeared as Myles-na-Coppaleen, and scored a success. Miss Jeanne Jeune made a capital Eily O'Connor, her singing being very impressive; Mr. Tom Griffith, who possesses a powerful voice, was responsible for Danny Mann; Mr. E. Macintyre appeared as Hardress Cregan; Mr. Geo. Ridding as Corrigan assisted by a powerful chorus. Faust, Il Trovatore, Maritana, Satanella, and The Bohemian Girl are also billed.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Crowded houses on Monday witnessed The Fighting Parson, by Mr. George Gray's company. The sketch was played admirably by the members of the company. Another good turn was a "Kindergarten" scene by Miss Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, who were encored again and again; the Norman and Leonard Trio, who style themselves "The Itinerants," are very skilful musicians; Richard Walley and his page give a very good juggling entertainment; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley appear in a comedy duologue, entitled Betsy's Blunder; Edie Anderson as a comedienne and dancer is very good; as is also Mr. Harry Leaton, character vocalist.

CREWE.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ambrose Fischer.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company is here with Miss Hook of Holland. In the title-rôle, Miss Nan Stuart is undeniably clever, and is heard to advantage in several musical numbers; Miss Madge White infuses plenty of "go" into the part of Mina; and Miss Laura Deen makes an excellent old market woman; Mr. Charles Sims as Mr. Hook causes endless amusement; Mr. Charles Berkeley makes a big success of Ludwig Schnapps; Mr. Edward Kipling gives a droll rendering of Simon Slinks; Mr F. G. Dunn plays the Bandmaster well; and Mr. Robert Selby is well suited as Captain Adrian Paap. The piece is beautifully dressed and staged, and the tuneful and well-balanced chorus is under the direction of Mr. Richardson.

CROYDON. — Grand Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—The Harbour Lights is well staged here. Mr. Frederick Victor acts with dramatic effect as Lieut. David Kingsley; Mr. Roland Daniel puts in genuine work as Nicholas Morland; Mr. Ernest Douglas is commendable as Captain Nelson; Mr. Elliott Ball is careful as Mark Helstone; Mr. Alec. Forbes deserves praise as Dick Hockaday; and Mr. Louis Palgrave is amusing in the rôle of Tom Dossiter. Miss Millie Ford is well placed as Lina Nelson; Miss Dorrie Roberts is excellent as Dora Vane; Miss Ethel Landeck is a capital Mrs. Chudleigh; Miss Lilla Norden makes a suitable Peggy Chudleigh; and Miss Hilda Comber is satisfactory as Bridget Malone.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Old Chinas in China is causing no end of fun, Mr. Lew Lake as Nobbler and Mr. Bob Morris as Jerry being very droll; the Warsaw Bros. submit a smart musical act; Mlle. Suzanne de Verneuil and ladies give some artistic classical poses; Dusty Rhodes is a jovial comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden are great in comedy duologue; Morton and Elliott win approval in vocal, musical, and paper manipulating act; Wilson Hallett is a clever child mimic; Bertha Winder's exquisite dancing is applauded; and others worthy of mention are Frances Letty, comedienne; Joe Archer, comedian; and Yvonne Lamor, comedienne.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here with Brewster's Millions. Monty Brewster is in the capable hands of Mr. C. Esdale, who gives an excellent performance; Miss Cicely Stuckey as Peggy proves herself an accomplished actress; Mr. Gorden Ash as Charles Harrison is clever; Mr. Harry Hampson as Archie Golden is quite effective; and other parts are well filled. The ship scene is a masterpiece of stage craft.

Hippodrome Theatre, Ltd. — Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—A capital bill is headed by Alan Holt and company in a dramatic sketch, entitled A Society Woman. Other artists are Reg Beauchamp; Terry and Tate, in song, story, and dance; Agnes Tina, mimic vocalist; Leon Hall, dancer; Ugo Nap company, in burlesque; Shrillo, whistler; and Miss Ada Oxley and company in the sketch Peggy, together with the Hipposcope.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton and Travis Green's company is here in Her Fatal Marriage. Mr. Jerrold Heather is very clever in the exacting rôle of Zaco Malletto, being well supported by Miss Hilda Shirley as Myra Malletto. Wilfred Grey is nicely played by Mr. Colin Heather; Mr. Gerald Byrne is good as the half-witted Paul; and Detective Smart is in the capable hands of Mr. Walter A. Chetham. Mr. Wilton Drury and Miss Amy Maitland are responsible for good comedy as Peter Pimple and Dolly Dimple respectively. Miss Ivy Ross also does well as Lily, the white angel.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Mr. Martin Harvey appeared here in The Breed of the Treshams on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. As Lieut. Beresby, Mr. Harvey repeated the signal and outstanding success he has made in the part. His gifted wife, Miss N. de Silva, in her original part of Batty, submits a remarkably clever and sympathetic sketch. The veteran, Mr. Fred. Wright, sen., supplies a capital depiction of the old soldier, Colonel Bagshaw; Mr. Philip Hewland gives a dignified rendering of the Viscount Dorsington; Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford is well-played by Mr. Charles Greeney; a masterly sketch is Mr. Leonard Craske's Cornet Tresham, and a soldierly performance is Mr. Owen Roughwood's Colonel Sir Henry Curwen; Miss Brenda Gibson is a charming Margaret Hungerford; and Mr. Edward Combermere as Captain Stanhope, Mr. Alfred Mansfield as Captain Rashleigh, Mr. Denholm Muir as Lieut. Willoughby, Mr. Percy Foster as Cornet Kit Peyton, Mr. George Cooke as Corporal Lumsford, Mr. Richard Neville as Corporal Saxton, Mr. B. A. Pittar as Will Lumsford, Mr. D. Bain as a servant, and Mr. A. Wilson as Jevons, with Miss Bessie Elder as Mrs. Bagshaw, and Miss Sybil Walsh as Helena Pierrepoint are all excellent. On Thursday A Cigarette-maker's Romance was given, and for Friday and to-night The Only Way was announced.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Moyes.—The principal attraction this week is Geo. Sheldon and company in their dramatic sketch, entitled Before the Dawn. The various characters are all capably handled, and the piece is in every way sucessful. Next on the bill is the Maximilian Troupe of equilibrists, who combine skilfulness with humour in an entertaining manner; the original Cestria, comedy jug gler and acrobat, is well received; Kitty Cameron is a pleasing comedienne and graceful dancer; Harry Maynard is a praiseworthy vocalist; and the same may be said of Wat Tyler in his dramatic scena, The Deserted Home; and the Sauteron Wonders are clever comedy speciality artists.

DEVONPORT. — Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The ever-popular Lotto, Lilo, and Otto again do some brilliant feats of cycling, the culminating item consisting of a football match; Graham's masterpiece marionette show, in which the operator presents stage celebrities of the past twenty-five years, has an enthusiastic reception, which its merits well deserve; Bert Williams supplies an original and witty ventriloquial number; the Calcotts entertain with an amusing wayside sketch entitled Rags and Tatters, and prove themselves banjoists of ability; Mlle. Pollo gives an interesting gymnastic exhibition; and Clifford Morgan is heard to advantage in a couple of good songs.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company give a highly-interesting performance of the Venetian drama The Tyrant. In the rôle of Angelo Mr. Roy Fortescue does some powerful acting; Miss Marie Robson supplies a highly creditable rendering of Tisbe; Mr. E. E. Louis is a success as Rudolph, Prince de Roma; Mr. Percy Folliss works hard as Hornoldel; and Miss Jean Scott cleverly interprets the part of Lady Catherine.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. James Kiddie is presenting his pantomime Dick Whittington here twice nightly. Miss Lena Page as Dick sings well and gives a charming performance; Miss Florrie Warner is a dainty Alice, her singing and dancing winning much applause. Amelia Florence is capably and amusingly represented by Mr. Tom Gott; Miss Flo Hilton as Sir Algernon De Mash proves herself a smart male impersonator and sings well. Mr. Bert Hudson is excellent as the Cat; Messrs. Clifton and Gibson are good knockabouts and cause merriment as Silly Peter and Lazy Larry; Charley Chard as Idle Jack keeps his audience in a merry mood. The part of Captain Navycutte is well sustained by Miss Annie Broughton, and Miss Edna Frances sings and dances well as Mhordee Yyzah. Mr. Charles Cork (Rodenta) and Miss Maude Leviette (Concordi, the Fairy) meet with approval.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler; Musical-Director, Mr. E. G. Summerfield.—Mr. Wm. Holland's pantomime Aladdin is the attraction here this week. Miss Bertha Clifton (who is deputising for Miss Helen Charles, who is unable to appear owing to illness) makes a dashing Aladdin, her singing being much admired. Princess Badroulbadour is impersonated by Miss Poppie Holland in a captivating manner, her singing and dancing being smart. The rôle of the Widow Twankey is in the able hands of Mr. Robb Wilton, his quaint sayings and mannerisms evoking roars of laughter; and uproarious mirth is created by Mr. Bob Selvidge, who undertakes the part of Abanazar. The Three Chanters are a trio of good singers, and do well as the Emperor Mi-Ti-Hi and the two Chinese Policemen; Mr. Kennedy Allen extracts much fun out of the part of Wishee Washee; Miss Francis Haskoll is charming as Pekoe. The chorus work well under the bâton of Mr. Caffyn Baxter.

Hippodrome. — General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. Jack Harris; Musical Director, R. H. Riley.—The Five Bombays' smart singing and dancing act is exceedingly well received here; Harcourt Mills is a clever actor mimic; the horizontal bar and comical business of the Maro Duo keeps the house in continuous laughter; Harry Tomlin is a singer of ability, and scores well; Leigh Leicester proves himself a versatile vocalist; Mueller and Coyne, in a sketch, There's No Place Like Home, do some good acrobatic work; and Aidee Mellor, vocalist, sings exceptionally well. The pictures are very good indeed.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's New Year's pantomime, Little Bo-Peep, met with an enthusiastic reception. Mr. W. H. Gatty was a realistic embodiment of the Demon Wolf; and in the characterisation of Fairy Moonbeam Miss Elsie Peach was effective. As Boy Blue Miss Eva May Rosslyn was universally popular; and Mr. Harry Rex enacted Baron Hardup with a fine perception of humour. A dainty impersonation of the titular-rôle came from Miss Lizzie Payne.

DUBLIN.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The pantomime of Aladdin has entered on its second week, and large audiences are attracted nightly. Miss Georgie Corlass has become quite a favourite as Aladdin, and her songs are heartily enjoyed; Miss Topsy Sinden is most pleasing, and her grand pas de fascination, so gracefully and perfectly executed, wins rounds of applause; as Abanazar, Carlton would be hard to excel, and his conjuring tricks are highly entertaining; Mr. W. H. Powell makes the most of his part (Widow Twankey); and Miss Gwennie Harcourt is scoring a big success in the character of Our Mary Ann.

Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. F. R. Benson entered on his second week here on Monday with a grand production of King John. Mr. Benson's impersonation of the unhappy monarch was magnificent, and he was warmly aplauded after each act; Mrs. Benson gave a clever and impressive reading of Constance and displayed considerable agility; Queen Elinor was admirably portrayed by Miss Elinor Aickin; Miss Mollie Terraine acted the rôle of Arthur with great success; and as Hubert Mr. Edward Harrison acted the part in an excellent manner. The parts of Prince Henry (Mr. Alfred Wild), Lewis (Mr. Guy B. Rathbone), and Philip Faulconbridge (Mr. Eric Maxon) were all capably presented. Julius Cæsar, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Macbeth, Much Ado About Nothing, and The Taming of the Shrew are billed during the week.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—The sensational drama, A Beautiful Fiend, occupies the boards here. Miss Sidney Crowe gives a powerful portrayal of the title-rôle, and as Count Karateff Mr. M. G. Montanini is quite realistic in his impersonation. Miss Netta Mitchell makes an ideal heroine, and the hero is ably presented by Mr. H. Skardon. Mr. Bert Woodin and Miss Madge Palmer are responsible for the humorous situations.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—An excellent array of talent is here. Sadie Stuart's songs are most popular, and her clever dancing wins rounds of applause; Harry Leybourn, "a man with many voices," is an entertaining turn; Victoria Dagmar performs some smart and neat gymnastic feats with great success; Harry Redford's songs are well appreciated; Ross and Lewis are accorded applause for their clever dancing; the Lukushimas, in their acrobatic and balancing performance, are quite thrilling; Flo Stanley and company, in an interesting sketch, The Prince of the Dandies, are most successful; and Rose Gower, comedienne, and the Brothers Waltman, dancers, also contribute.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—A capital bill of fare is provided here. The Dayton Family give a wonderful Risley entertainment, their feats being particularly smart and clever; Starr and Leslie are most amusing in their novel speciality act; Baby Myrtle Grove, a young vocalist and dancer, scores well; Shang Hai is a clever Chinese magician; Dott and Williams are warmly applauded for their sand dancing; Walter Barrett, a good baritone, is heard to advantage; the Days, in their performance, "The Acme of Telepathy," are well received; Pawson and Robson appear with success in a musical comedy scena; and Professor Norton does well as a shadowgraphist. The Tivoli Bioscope is always up to date.

DUDLEY. — Opera House. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. A. E. Smith's pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, is the best that we have had this season. Miss Elsy Denys is dainty and graceful as Princess Beauty, and a bold and dashing Prince is Miss Kathleen Garnon, who has some good songs; the Sisters Lesmere are a charming couple as Lord de Vere and Dorothy Dimple, and the Sisters Wynstay are exceedingly clever dancers in the parts of the Hon. Reggie and Daisy Buttercup. The comedy is well supplied by Mr. Billie Taylor as the Nurse, Mr. Fred Polay as John James, Mr. Tom Francis as James John, and Mr. Geo. Alderman as King Sol. Miss Mabel Lewin as the Witch and Miss Gertie Leno as Fairy Radient are both successful, the latter being the possessor of a good voice. The dressing and staging are excellent, and the chorus a powerful one.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The Five Whiteleys have an exceptionally clever wire-walking, musical, and acrobatic act; Delvere and Wallace introduce smart comedy and powerful singing; Lily Magarte, "the girl in the hoop," gives a daring performance; Vaubert, illusionist and smoke painter, is a very acceptable turn; as is also Emie Harlow, character vocalist. Saxo proves a good saxophonist and post-horn soloist; and Rosie Gaston as a dainty comedienne with good songs. The Empire Pictures are always enjoyed.

unabated force, and the audiences show by their laughter and applause their appreciation of the work of the clever company. Mr. Jack Lane's musical interlude is received with tremendous enthusiasm, and the artist is recalled again and again for his admirable performance; Mr. Sham Glenville's droll business as the King is excellent; Mr. Joe Nightingale's Dame retains its qualities of humour without coarseness; and the sprightly acting of Miss Iris Banfield, Miss Radie Furman, and the other ladies of the cast help largely towards the fun; Miss Clare Hartland's fine singing never fails to draw forth enthusiastic applause; and the Tiller Troupe dance with conspicuous charm and neatness.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager Mr. Amand Mascard.—Dick Whittington commenced a short season here on Monday with a plentiful sprinkling of Scottish humour and well equipped in the matters of admirable scenery and effective stage setting. The production was received with great cordiality by an appreciative audience. Dick and Alice are attractively represented by the Sisters Cora; Mr. L. C. Young is good as the faithful Cat; and Miss Topsy Johnstone as the Sultan's daughter, as well as Miss Connie Irwin and Helène Garland in fairy rôles, add to the musical merits of the performance; of the comedians, Mr. Sam Thompson makes a hit as Idle Jack, and he has strong aid from Mr. George Westland as Mary Ann, Mr. J. Randle Wilson who doubles the parts of Captain Bailey and the Sultan, Mr. W. Glanmore Jones as Alderman Fitzwarren, and Mr. Michael Kemble as the King of Rats; pleasing speciality turns are introduced by Lindsay and Harte, the Four Killarney Girls, and the Celestas Comedy Quartette of vocalists.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The most notable item in this week's programme is Mr. Campbell Todd's military sketch, Gentlemen, the King, produced by Reginald Eyre's company, including Henry Bedford, who creates a pathetic and thrilling effect in the character of old Sergeant McGilliveray; agreeable vocal turns are contributed by Annie Purcell and Ethel Bourne; George Rae and Victor Travers are amusing in their respective lines as Scotch and quaint comedians; and Frank Manra's exhibition of foot equilibrism is a dexterous display; the sketch The Ghost of Terry Bundler is made interesting by Harold Nuttall's company; Sydney James's Strolling Players are entertaining in a lively medley of singing and dancing; and the Four Regals appear in quite a sensational strong act; and the Saschoff Troupe of singers and dancers provide one of their energetic Russian scenas. An excellent series of pictures of the Paris floods is shown by the American Bioscope.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Manager, Mr. Talbot Cooke.—Saturday will see the closing for the season of this popular place of entertainment, and the present week has been given over to benefit performances of the clever principals of the company. The esteemed proprietor announced his benefit for Friday, when a bumper house was confidently anticipated.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—An enthusiastic welcome has been accorded Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow here this week. Miss Sylvia May as Sonia is dainty and graceful; Mr. Fred Leslie scores a conspicuous success as Danilo; a warm favourite is the Baron Popoff of Mr. Edward D'Arcy; Mr. Fred Fowler, an old Exeter favourite, is accorded a warm reception as Nisch; and Miss Kate May is a most attractive Frou-Frou, her dancing being exceptionally graceful; Miss Ada Thomas is an excellent Natalie; and the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon of Mr. Ripley Evans and the Marquis de Cascada of Mr. William Allison are well sustained.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Leo Merode is at the top of the bill this week in his "looping the loop" on a cycle; Susie and Protti contribute some exceptionally smart dancing; much amusement is caused by Elmo and Rego, quaint knockabouts; Arthur Rose is well received in The Actor's Last Call; and Dan Conroy is a comedian above the average; a comedy musical duo by Brull and Hemsley is aptly entitled Fun in a Music Shop; Cissy Curlette is a clever mimetic vocalist; and the Hippodrome pictures conclude.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company opened on Monday with a three nights' engagement of The Gay Gordons. As Angus Graeme William Green gave an excellent impersonation; Miss Clarice Lockstone was a taking Peggy; as Nervy Nat Edward Carlton was amusing; Miss Mabel Dent represents Victoria Siddons successfully; and as Mary McLeod Miss Tessa D'Aberti did well. During the latter part of this week Mr. C. Watson Mills' dramatic romance For Love and the King was played.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company, in the popular play A Message from Mars, drew a full and highly appreciative house on Monday. Mr. Aidan Lovett was the recipient of much applause for the high quality of his acting in the character of Horace Parker, and Mr. George P. Polson gave an effective presentation of the Messenger. A realistic impersonation of a Tramp was given by Mr. Norman Clark, and Mr. Alfred Lugg ably filled the rôle of Arthur Dicey. Minnie Templar had a dainty and excellent exponent in Miss Rose Hellene, and as Miss Parker Miss Aubrey Ashton was all that could be desired. A good study of a Policeman was submitted by Mr. Danelle Greene, and Miss Teresa Vanbrough was quite successful as Polly, the servant. Scenery and electrical effects were exceedingly good.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local-Manager and Licensee, Councillor Harold Arnold.—Mr. Harry Burns's Robinson Crusoe has been here. The dancing of Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls is smart; Miss Minnie D'Anbyn is a dashing Crusoe; dainty Miss Fanny Harris is a taking Polly Perkins; and chief among the comedians is Mr. Arthur Alston, who, as Will Atkins, scores a success. Messrs. Tray and Rich as the Captain and his Mate are fun-makers; Mr. Mark Stuart is immensely droll as the Dame; Billy Crusoe is well looked after by Mr. F. Henderson; Mr. Bernard Cox portrays Davy Jones dramatically; Mr. Geo. Harrie in the animal parts deserves praise; and Mr. Dan Hendry as Friday puts in a pleasing performance.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. F. W. Bolam and John Tiller's Jack and Jill has been very successful here. During this, its last week, the audiences have been most enthusiastic, Miss Broadfoote (the Prince) and the other lady principals winning warm praise. The comedians, headed by Arthur Rees and Will Lytton, have introduced some topical gags, which have been well received. The dancing of the Eight New Cocktails and the Twelve Manchester Mites has earned well deserved praise.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—A second visit to Aladdin amply confirms the good opinion formed of it on its first production, and the reasons for its popularity are not far to seek. Mr. Harry Tate, in his special scenes, keeps the audience in roars of laughter all the time he is on; and another strong favourite is Happy Fanny Fields, whose Gretchen is a most engaging personage. In song, dance, and Anglo-Dutch patter she scores in every scene, and has proved a big hit here. Then Mr. Malcolm Scott as the Widow Twankey has numerous opportunities of imparting his views on men and things to the audience, and as a Gibson Girl, or as Nell Gwynne, or a première danseuse he is equally mirth-provoking. Miss Bessie Butt makes a most versatile and volatile Aladdin, and works like a Trojan all through the pantomime. Messrs. Regan and Ryan are established favourites here, and their comedy business is always welcome. Their special dance, with two young ladies, is worthy of particular praise. Mr. Harry Claff sings well as the Emperor; Mr. George Hirste as the Scotch Vizier gives a clever performance; and the audience heartily enjoy the efforts of Miss Dorothy Firmin as the Princess, Miss Maie Dillon as Pekoe, and Miss Doris Dean as Chee-ki, the latter making a special feature of her dancing.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Sub-Lessees, The Scottish Playgoers, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Wareing.—The success of Mr. Arnold Bennett's play What the Public Wants was so decided that the Repertory Company kept it on another week, and postponed the revival of Arms and the Man till Thursday of this week, with Lady Windermere's Fan to come later.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Mother Goose is such an attractive pantomime that the attendances are rather on the increase than otherwise. Mr. Neil Kenyon, who is immensely popular, is still quite at home in his part, and his many quaint mannerisms and pawkiness of speech are productive of the most genuine mirth. He works hard, and meets with the success he so well merits. As Colin Miss Lily Morris is all that one could desire. She is admirably suited for the part, and has a cheery breezy style. Her singing is likewise capital, and her choruses are heartily taken up. Mr. Jack O'Connor has been a decided success as Jack Goose ever since the opening performance; he is a capital comedian, and a great favourite with the children. His appearance as a Boy Scout is particularly amusing. Miss Rhoda Gordon as Jill is capital in all she does; Mr. Fred Allandale as the Laird is made for the part, and does admirably; Mr. Chas. East as the Mayor ably seconds Mr. Allandale; Miss Lily Edwards and Miss Ray Gordon as Eric and Lady Ida respectively do well; Mr. Joe Arthur as the goose Priscilla is excellent in all he does; Miss Howell Hersee as the Fairy sings well, a like remark applying to Mr. Alec Davidson as the Demon.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Willie Winkie continues to draw good houses. With comedians such as Mr. Harry Levaine, Mr. Harry M'Clelland, Mr. Mount Stephens, Mr. Harry Rennior, Mr. Barry Gilmour, Mr. Fred Ingram, and Mr. Billy Oswald there is no failure of the mirth-provoking elements; and such charming comediennes as Miss Jessie Templeton, Miss Venie Clements, Misses Nita and Vesta Chrystal, Miss Edith Haley, and others who delight both eye and ear are ever welcome. Some new business and new songs are being introduced, including "Molly O'Morgan" and other melodies equally tuneful.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Who is She? a play with a Russian flavour by E. Hill Mitchelson, is here. Mr. James Stillwell imparted the necessary dignity to the part of King Vladimir; as Sergeant Metroff Mr. Alfred Grenville is responsible for a fine sketch of the brave old soldier; Miss Mabel Ronald as the Little King captures all hearts; Miss Georgette Thierry does well as the heroine; and the author is seen to advantage in the character of Prince Bora, the evil genius, being ably assisted by Miss Constance Medwyn as Novitch, Mr. C. H. Henderson as the Spy, and Miss Norma Dumayne as Sarette add a spice of humour to the play.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is on a return visit with Uncle Tom's Cabin. A touching portrayal of Uncle Tom is given by Mr. J. N. Boehm; Mr. A. Hayes makes a characteristic Phineas Fletcher; and as Mr. St. Clair Mr. Harrington acts with considerable polish. George Harris is played in manly fashion by Mr. David Blair; the parts of Legree and Dan Haley being suitably filled by Mr. Victor Gardon and Mr. E. Leonard. The Eliza Harris of Miss Ethel Vernon is a fine performance; Miss May Turner makes a handsome Mrs. St. Clair; as Aunt Ophelia Miss Helen Douglas does good work. A lively Topsy is seen in Miss Annie Watson; the Little Eva of Miss Gem Lloyd is pathetic; and clever studies are given by Miss J. Green (Aunt Chloe), Miss Mabel Bowman (Dina), and Miss Hettie Johnson (Cassy). An interesting plantation festival is given in the last act by coloured performers.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—A special treat is provided for Empire patrons this week in the powerful short play The Little Father in the Wilderness, with Mr. Huntley Wright in his striking personation of the missionary priest Père Marlotte. He is supported by an excellent company. Spissell Bros. and Mack, the American knockabouts, give their clever and amusing acrobatic item; the Georgia Coons excel as step-dancers, and their turn is much enjoyed. Rohda Bros. give an exceedingly clever and daring gymnastic performance; Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis take well in a turn combining song, dance, and acrobatic feats; Mike Nono, in a rollicking Irish song and dance, makes a good impression; Harry Friskey, an American comedy juggler, has quite a lot of clever new business, and keeps the audience heartily amused; Henry Helme, French vocalist, is received with much enthusiasm; and the Paris Floods on the Bioscope prove very impressive.

PAVILION, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Ada Colley tops the bill here, and once again demonstrates the wonderful flexibility of her voice; Sandy McNab and Bessie Arthur return to this city with their excruciatingly funny sketch The Egyptian Mummy, and are most heartily received; Hinton and Wooton in their football match on bicycles rouse the enthusiasm of the audience to a great pitch; the Musical Marvels give an enjoyable and artistic musical and dancing turn, which is well received; Tim O'Connor is a smart young dancer, and fully earns his meed of applause; Shamus and Kitty contribute a sketch of Irish character with some neat dancing; and another dancing turn is that of The Arntes, coloured duo. Wilman, an Australian instrumentalist, gives a clever musical turn, and is accorded a good reception.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Dale and O'Malley are a mirth-provoking pair; Mabel Thorne gives a genuine touch of humour to her songs; Fred Maitland, supported by Miss Pauline Walker and company, has plenty of scope in the humorous sketch Roots, Rash Chemist, of which the most is made; Frank Sylvo, comedy juggler; the Sisters Aindaw, talented musicians; Willie Atom and company in the pleasing absurdity Wiggles; the Three Stewarts, with wonderful feats in hand-balancing; and Leah Arden, vocalist, also contribute.

COLISEUM. — District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The Great Roland, illusionist, is the outstanding feature here, and, despite the frequency of conjuring acts, he keeps his place among the great illusionists of the age. Another interesting item is Our Empire's Defenders, a military sketch in which one hundred Glasgow children take part under the guidance and training of Wallace Selkirk. Falco and Eida illustrate the subtleties of ju-jitsu; and the Rexos present a new and original skating novelty. Other turns of note include J. A. Wilson, comedian and dancer, and his wonderful dog Private Towser; the Clement Trio, trapeze performers; J. W. Hall, eccentric comedian; Florence, lady mimic; a dramatic sketch, entitled The Three Thieves, by Maurice Vernon; and an interesting Bioscope display depicting the Paris floods.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Harry Wright, extempore vocalist, tops the bill here. The Bros. Garvey, character comedians and dancers; Nellie Elliene, burlesque actress; Jean Kram, the erratic juggler; and May Vernon, comedienne and dancer, are also entertaining. The Bioscope depicts the martyrdom of Adolf Beck.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—Ed. E. Ford, the Australian sundowner, amuses with facial mimicry; the Bomps are a clever troupe of girl singers; the Pichel Troupe are smart Risley acrobats; Ivy Aberdare creates a favourable impression; Stidder and Dunbar make fresh friends; the Three Sisters Urma are clever trapezists; Fred Neiman, ventriloquist, appears with success; and the Bangers, trick and comedy cyclists, are well received. The Palascope concludes.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Mr. Percy Williams is presenting The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Edward Lloyd gives a clever portrayal of Howard Wilson; Mr. Cyril Melton ably depicts the villain Robert Curtis; Mr. Harry M. Vernon is very amusing as Toto; Mr. Watson Hume contributes an excellent character sketch of the Janitor; Miss Ethel Kay sympathetically plays Mabel Wilson; Miss Leah Marlborough is excellent as Cora Wilson; and Miss Blanche Huber creates roars of laughter as Bridget. The dances and songs rendered by a troupe of children in Act III., are deservedly popular.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—A fine display of pictures is supplemented by some excellent variety turns. Oscar Wills and company appear with great success in a sketch, entitled My Friend the Count, Mr. Chas. Coll's catchy chorus songs are very popular; St. Ruth and Conyers ably render excerpts from well-known operas, and Mr. Walter Foster and company score with their stirring episode, For the Honour of the Family.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, with The Cingalee, has had an enthusiastic reception here. Miss Isa Bowman as Nanoya sings and acts delightfully; Miss Florrie Greensmith makes a sweet and attractive Peggy; Miss Winefred Stone wins favour for her dancing; and Miss Ray Anderson lends distinction to the rôle of Lady Patricia Vane. Mr. Frank Barclay scores a well-deserved success as the Hon. Harry Vereker, singing admirably; Mr. Hylton Warde as Chambhuddy Ram causes roars of laughter the Boobhamba of Mr. Frank Lennard is good; and Mr. Grafton Williams's impersonation of Sir Peter Loftus is capital. The chorus and orchestra deserve high praise.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The chief feature of the programme here is provided by Miss Mary Mayfern's company, who submit a strong dramatic sketch, entitled The Yellow Fang, which is well received; the Decars combine good comedy with clever acrobatic work in their scena Off to the Races; and liberal entertainment is supplied by David Poole, ventriloquist; Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers; Daisy Taylor, comedienne; G. A. Hope, baritone vocalist; and the Dromoscope.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Our Miss Gibbs is meeting with an enthusiastic reception on its first visit. It is presented by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Elfie Vincent gives a dainty study of Miss Gibbs, and dances and sings charmingly; Mr. Vincent Erne as Timothy Gibbs leads the comedy, and his drolleries are greatly diverting; he is ably assisted by Mr. Eustace Burnaby, whose impersonation of the amateur criminal, the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, is a capital piece of burlesque; Mr. J. S. Durant smartly realises Slithers, the professional thief; Miss Ellaline Thorne has a nice appreciation of Madame Jeanne, the Scottish-French dressmaker; Miss Amy Singleton acts the pompous Duchess of Minster very cleverly; Miss Florence Hilton displays pleasing vivacity as Mrs. Farquhar; Mr. Arthur S. Radcliffe sings well as Lord Eynsford; and others taking prominent parts are Mr. A. Gordon Begg as the Earl of St. Ives, Mr. Frank Sealey as Mr. Toplady, and Miss Lilian Birtles as Lady Elizabeth.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager Mr. F. Verner Walford.—A sensational dramatic sketch, which is very realistically presented, is Cash, in which Mr. Leonard Mortimer's company appear; it is very well acted; Lyons and Cullum are a couple of smart American entertainers, and the lady's dancing, and the gentleman's mimicry are especially good; Miss Gladys Hooley is a talented violinist, who presents her business in a novel manner; Spry and Monti are a diverting duo, and combine some good singing with amusing comedy; W. H. Downs, a coloured vocalist, provides a popular turn; Bert Lytton is a comedian with a good style; and Jack and Willie are expert equilibrists.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. George Dance's Miss Hook of Holland company has played to overflow business here this week, house-full boards being up each evening. Miss Marie Studholme has undoubtedly been a powerful attraction. She plays Sally very nicely, and has been accorded enthusiastic "calls." Miss Maud Denny is very good as Mina; and Gretchen is well played by Miss Lillian Constance. Mr. Alfred Wellesley is irresistible as Mr. Hook. His humour is so natural he never fails to carry the house with him. Mr. Frank H. Crimp has a part that fits him like a glove in the Bandmaster; Mr. F. Hobbs is good as Captain Paap; Mr. Fred Lyne's Slinks is a masterly study. All the minor parts are well filled.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Harry Roxbury's company is giving satisfaction at the Palace this week in Mother Goose. Demon Discontent and Fairy Content are well played by Miss Amy B. Ellis and Miss Lois Carr; Miss Kitty Russell is effective as Jill; Miss Marjorie Prenton is a charming Phyllis, and plays nicely; Miss Maud Prenton is a dashing and vivacious Colin; Mr. J. W. Gallagher (Jack) and Mr. Walter Dale (Mother Goose) keep the fun going merrily. The Society Quartette and the Eight Sydney Girls contribute some excellent dances; and the Miltons are successful in a skating act.

VICTORIA HALL.—The Halifax Amateur Operatic Society have this week produced Iolanthe. The company has been well trained by the popular operatic coach, Mr. H. C. Bedford, ex-assistant stage-manager at the Savoy.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mr. W. V. Garrod's company opened here with A Country Girl in London to good business. Mr. Garrod very ably takes the part of Frank Gordon; Mr. Chas. Halling is a capital Squire of Langdale; Mr. W. Bradford and Mr. O. Remonde are very good as the two villains—Godfrey Clinton and Job Smithers; Mr. Frank Dallas is well suited to the part of Henreich Oppenheim; Mr. S. Terry is excellent in the comedy part of Wilberforce Puddyphat; Miss Ethel Crawford does full justice to the rôle of Gwendoline Gordon; Miss Alice Clarke is successful as Adelaide Puddyphat; and Miss B. Kingston plays with feeling as Marjorie Hamilton. Are You the Man? was billed for the last three nights of the week.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Hayman and Franklin, Hebrew impersonators, in a highly-amusing farcical skit, A Suit for Divorce, are topping the bill here; Horace Wheatley, the original Harrigan, is accorded a warm welcome; Hampton and Bauman, coloured artists, furnish an excellent turn; Winona, in her expert rifle-shooting, is a highly-popular turn; Macintosh and Royal are warmly applauded for their clever dancing; Ella Dean is a popular comedienne; Gicordo is an expert juggler; and the Three Pinmans, comedy gymnasts, and the Bioscope make up an excellent programme.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Charles G. Elphinstone.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's well-chosen company in The Bondman is giving a striking performance. Chief honours fall to Mr. Philip Darien whose Jason reveals true histrionic ability; Michael, as played by Mr. Stanley Harrison is a fine piece of acting; Adam (Mr. Wilfred Beckwith) is well suited; Mr. W. H. Rotheram plays Grandfather and Father Ferati with every success; Dr. Boni is well represented by Mr. F. J. Waller; Mr. Chris A. Olgar as the Marshal is very good; Miss Madge Lanerton as Mrs. Farebrother is greatly popular; Mona and Danny, played by Miss Beatrice Maud Hughes and Master Walter Neville, are creditable efforts; Christian Anne is well portrayed by Miss Emelie Mayhew; to Miss Violet Macaree as Greeba too much praise could scarcely be devoted, both elocution and acting being perfect. The scenery is excellent and houses are large and enthusiastic.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Five Manchurians, Russian tumblers, top the bill and prove a great draw; the Four Amaranths are graceful acrobatic dancers; Daisy Mayer is a coon vocalist of the first water; the Four Black Diamonds, comedians and dancers, are very successful; Shirley and Ransome in Jim's Pal are very entertaining; Marjorie Russell is a decidedly clever illusionist; The Krags Trio are skilful gymnasts; C. Tamamoto, rope walker, is applauded; and the pictures are much enjoyed.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—Variety is the fare provided here this week. The Bellong Bros. are clever and artistic headliners; Earle and Melville are good dancers; and Bert Welda and Dorothy Wynne appear in a juggling act which goes well. Mr. Ernest Clifford is a remarkable dancer; the Brooklands provide an acceptable turn; and Leotard Bros. are wonderful hat throwers. Kirk and Saraski do a clever aquatic turn; Harry Goolburn, dramatic vocalist, and Maidie Barker, complete the bill.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—The first three days of the week the boards were occupied by the members of the Hastings and St. Leonards Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society with The Gondoliers. For the latter half of the week Mr. Charles Windermere and company, in Where is William? are billed.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The principal features in a variety entertainment are the Bioscopic pictures. These are varied and quite up-to-date, some of them being singularly original. Miss Ivy Lane is a charming comedienne and graceful dancer; and the Brothers Michael excel in their acrobatics

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. H. Barnsley; Managers, Messrs. Martin and Spence.—The return of Miss Grace Warner's company is welcomed by large and enthusiastic houses. The Wages of Sin was presented on the opening night. Miss Grace Warner as Ruth Hope excels in her clever acting; Mr. George Gordon as George Brand is an actor of much ability; the Josiah Deane of Mr. Frank Hertle is highly commendable; Miss Lallah Price merits praise as Barbara Dale; Mr. Frank Smith plays Stephen Marler with due appreciation; Miss Florence M. Daly as Mrs. Bloggs acts with rare spirit; Miss Lizzie Palmer as the precocious Miss Bloggs wins hearty approval; Mr. Roy Rhind and Miss Edie Rutland were responsible for the light comedy, to which they did justice; and Mr. Louis Nanton was highly amusing as Ned Drummond.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Durie.—Mr. Nelson Barrett's company with Cinderella opened on Monday to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Eva Travis in the title-rôle was an instantaneous success; Miss Georgie Hawkins played the Prince in fine style; Miss Isa Bernard was a charming Rose; and Miss Vera Leslie a veritable Fairy Queen; Miss Florrie Anderson, an old favourite here, as Dandini the Valet made a conspicuous hit; Mr. Jas. Mackenzie as Pepe created roars of laughter; Mr. Arthur Farren gave a very good impersonation of Baron Limerick; the Ugly Sisters, Lavinia and Jannetta, were faithfully rendered by Messrs. Alf Stokes and Eugene Maccabe; Mr. Harry May and Mr. Dave Anderson, as the footmen, Phil and Garlic, revelled in mirth and frivolity; Mr. Alf. Beverley was a typical landlord as Brewster; Mons. Le Claire's troupe of performing dogs gave a fine show; Le Zenith provided an artistic exposition of kaleidoscopic fire and butterfly dancing; Messrs. Bernard and May, comedy duo in song, dance, and story, were highly applauded.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.—GAIETY.—Sole Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Ainsley and Hall.—This week Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 Company is here with Florodora. Anthony Tweedlepunch is in the hands of that excellent comedian, Mr. Arthur Lenville; in the rôle of Cyrus G. Gilfain Mr. Edward Chester gives a clever impersonation; and Mr. Robert Hine as Frank Abercoed Mr. Eric Deane as Captain Arthur Donegal, and Mr. Jack Parker as Leandro add greatly to the success. Dolores finds a good exponent in Miss Daisy Lake.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Charming and artistic living pictures are presented here by Miss Irma Lorraine, assisted by Marjah, a graceful dancer, and Mlle. Leoni, from the Art Academy of Paris; Frank Frayne is a nimble-footed dancer; the Four Louberts do some smart acrobatic work; Miss Helen Martin is a ballad singer of merit; Harry Simms, comedian, contributes a couple of songs; Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford rattle brightly through their sketch, Getting Even; and Joe O'Gorman with his Irish humour gets there every time. The pictures complete.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—A good bill is topped by the brilliant Selbinis in their comedy and daring trick cycling. Also appearing are Margit and Lener, in a smart acrobatic turn; Enzer and Miss Clarice, in a clever exhibition of sword juggling and ju-jitsu; the four Burnells comedy artists; Miss Mona Vivian, an accomplished young mimic and dancer; Morny Cash, the Lancashire lad who fairly captures the house with his quaint humour; and H. R. Friscari, who does all sorts of funny things with top hats. The Palace Pictures are well chosen.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. George Dana's company, with Miss Zena Dare, is here this week in The Little Duke. This charming and vivacious artist makes a good impression and fills the rôle with her accustomed skill; Miss Dolly Castles combines histrionic gifts with her fine vocal powers, and is a delightful Diane de Noailles; Mr. Alec Johnstone has a good voice, which is pleasingly heard in the part of the Abbé; the comic parts of Baron and Baroness could have no better exponents than Mr. J. Danvers and Miss Nellie Dade; Mr. Frank Adair sings with taste. The play is finely mounted, and has proved a big draw in the city.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Pantomime replaces melodrama at this house, and Robinson Crusoe, fresh from his triumphs at Hanley, opened here for a three weeks' stay from Monday. Messrs. Dottridge and Longdon have sent with their production a very capable crowd, which includes Miss Maude Mortimer, who fulfils with her customary ability the title-rôle. The corps of comedians are a strong body, and Mr. Andrew Richardson (Billy Crusoe) is already established as a favourite; Miss Yolande Noble is a charming Polly Perkins; Mrs. Crusoe in the hands of Mr. C. Young Fixott is quite safe. With merry music and dainty dances the panto goes with merry swing, and it is safe to predict that its stay will not be a day too long.

PALACE. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Chairman, Sir H. E. Moss; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Barnett.—A programme of unusual excellence is headed by Reano and his band. The Barowskys appear in a smart acrobatic act; Mlle. Lucia presents a mysterious musician; John Macauley is a capable character ballad vocalist; Paul Barnes, a smart comedian and raconteur; Gipsy Woolf and her Six Sunbeams appear in a new musical production, The Mermaid of Margate; whilst amongst other contributors are Doff Woolf, soubrette; Harry Anderson, vocal comedian; Massona, eccentric juggler; and Lily Palmer, comedienne.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Here the premier position is occupied by Henry and Tyler, the cyclists, and there is not one dull moment in the act. A turn that takes well is Delvaine's Marionettes, the motor-car sketch being very well done. Other turns are Souplessi, described as the world's premier contortionist and ring artist; the Vanderbilts, in a comedy act; the Smalleys (Nellie and Seth) in a miscellaneous comedy act, introducing song, dance, patter, and feats on the triple horizontal bars; Nellie Duval, a comedienne with a budget of chorus songs; Eugene and Willie, double fiddlers; and last but by no means least in either stature or merit, James Brady, an eccentric singer of comic songs.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Brought to Ruin is being played here this week by Mr. Morton Powell's company. Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne distinguishes herself in the heavy part of Jessie Burton; Mr. Harry Scott cleverly handles the rôle of Harry Hailing; Mrs. Morton Powell wins favour as Winnie Waters; much laughter is caused by Mr. Sydney Bryant as Jack Jessie and Miss Jeannie Risley as Lucy Lawton; and the villainy of the piece is ably presented by Mr. Edward M. Heanley (Philip Edge), Mr. Alaric Barton (Solomon Sleek), and Miss Kathryn Eckhart (Mrs. Annie Burton).

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. R. Kennedy.—The La Frasers, vocalists, dancers, and patterers are well received; Eva Hamilton, soubrette; Ernest Wybert, comedian; and Ediscope and Barnum's pictures complete.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's No. 1 company are here this week in Pete, with Mr. Austen Milroy, a clever actor, in the title part. The honours were shared by Miss V. Malcolm Barnett in the trying part of Kate, Mr. Alfred Gray as Philip Christian, Mr. J. Edward Fletcher as Ross Christian, and Mr. Frank Stone as Cæsar Cregeen, are all well suited. Black Tom is capably played by Mr. Harry Pitt, Jelly by Mr. Chas. Clayton, and the Postman by Mr. Herbert Young. Miss Lucy Murray is a thoroughly humane Nancy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. H. Bostock.—Lady Mansel's Juveniles made their reappearance on Monday, and had a hearty welcome. Their performance is really better than ever. The Brothers Huxter are responsible for a good tumbling and acrobatic turn; L. W. Harris has some catchy songs; Bi-bo-bi is a clever eccentric musician; the Haverleys have a good reception in their American song illustrations; Herbert la Martine is an agile dancer; and Lennie and Hast produce a musical idyll called The Maid of Polaria.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company is here with a powerful drama, entitled For Wife and Kingdom. Mr. R. T. Fox gives a good account of the part of General von Nestolde; Mr. Mathew H. Glenville proves himself an excellent actor as Captain Maximilan Lubeck; Mr. Albert Guyon plays with skill and force the part of Baron Maurice Breslaw; Mr. J. Sutton Pateman is well placed as Karl Ludhayre; and Mr. Edward Hobart is quite at home as Sergeant Offenbach. Miss Lydia Audre looks and plays the Grand Duchess to perfection; Miss M. R. Frame gives a first-class rendering of Camille von Nestoldi; Miss Lilian Malvern is well suited as Esther, the wise woman; and Miss Alice Buckland is a neat Nita Constadt. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—A return has been made here to vaudeville. Trixo is a particularly clever man-monkey; Ess and Hoey appear as Canadian ski and skate dancers; Mabel Lester is a pleasing ballad vocalist; Phil Kaufmann renders a couple of songs successfully; Dick Kendall does a clever eccentric dance; the whirling comedians, the Mezzottis, are immensely good in their comedy horizontal bar act entitled "The New Recruit"; whilst the star turn is provided by the Marvellous Howards, who have not been seen here for some years.

KEIGHLEY. — THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Barrasford.—The boards are held this week by the Keighley Operatic Society in Tom Jones. This is the first Yorkshire society to undertake this work, although it has been performed by several Lancashire societies. Congratulations must be extended to Mr. Edward Bryan, of the Savoy Theatre, London, who can claim credit for having produced the greatest success yet undertaken by either of the Keighley amateur societies. New and beautiful scenery has been supplied by Messrs. Egerton, Bradford. The performances are under the patronage of Sir James Horsfall, Sir John Brigg, Sir Swire Smith, and Sir James Roberts.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Parcezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Parcez

Frank Carsdale; Mr. Ernest Fare did full justice to the rôle of Captain George Darrell, and Mr. Vernon H. Vane ably depicted Lieut. Allen Kingsley. The comic element was well sustained by Messrs. Will Percy and Dick Seddon as Quincey O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer. On Thursday and Saturday Louis Calvert's company is announced in Sunday, and on Friday Dolly Reforming Herself.

LEEDS.—Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The company appearing here this week includes Miss Lily Hammersmith in a sketch Rough Justice, the McBanns, Mooney and Holbein, W. E. Gillin, Bessie Mackenzie, Paul Paulton and George Doley, Billy Haines, Amber Austa, and Edie Veno.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—An amusing sketch is presented by the Grotesques, who burlesque a village concert. Will H. Fox, the clever pianist, gives a popular entertainment; Frank Danby, a big local pantomime favourite, is successful in a tabloid sketch; and the acrobatic cycling tricks of the Cumberlands are hugely appreciated. Charles T. Aldrich's lightning change act is one of the best we have seen; Barnard's Mannikins, Harry Clifford, and Arthur Ferries are also here.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Dick Whittington, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime is appearing here. Miss Ethel Campbell in the title-rôle acts vivaciously, and Miss Tina Franks makes a sweet principal girl; Mlle. Pauline Rivers' troupe of dancers add to the attractions.

The Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Owing to its enormous success Mr. and Mrs. Walters' Robinson Crusoe is retained for another week.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—General-Business-Manager, Mr. Walter P. Wright.—The last two weeks are announced of Messrs. Thos. McKenzie and C. St. John Denton's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor, which has throughout attracted full houses.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—Mrs. Frank Bateman's excellent company, including Mrs. Frank Bateman, Mr. Fred W. Goddard, and Mr. Percy Shaw (the whistling comedian) is here this week. On Monday evening The Way Women Love was presented, and is to be repeated to-day (Saturday). On Tuesday and Wednesday Sapho was the attraction, and for Thursday and Friday Camille was announced.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Heading this week's entertaining programme are the Boissets in A Trip to the Continent, a thoroughly amusing and cleverly-worked sketch, which creates boisterous merriment. At the other end is the favourite Scotch comedian, Jack Lorimer, who makes a well-deserved hit, his pretty Scotch scena Jennie McGregor being especially popular; the Royal Delomes are well received for their smart dancing; Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce are heard to great advantage in their delightful Japanese duologues and song scenas; Heeley and Meeley, eccentric comedians, create plenty of laughter in their cleverly-enacted scena Two Lucky Tramps, their acrobatic feats bordering on the marvellous; Tom Lloyd, a first-class comedian, scores with his two songs; Charles Matthews presents one of the cleverest and smartest jumping acts seen here; the Corcoran Brothers are good in their musical speciality and quick-change act; Stella Stahl is a dainty comedienne and smart dancer. The Bioscope realistically shows the havoc caused by the floods in Paris.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The chief attraction here is provided by James Willard and his players in the thrilling dramatic episode The Ace of Hearts. Mr. James Willard as John Fairburn; Miss Marie Everette as Lola Vane, and Mr. Jackson Wilcox as Dick Royston hold the attention of the audience throughout. Bottoming the bill are Les Montaldos, clever equilibrists on the slack wire, who introduce their highly-trained parrots, cockatoos, and micaws; Wyse and Adna are very popular and smart speciality entertainers; the Bros. Ford make a hit with their exceedingly clever dancing. Others in the programme who give entertaining turns are Lilly Denville, comedienne; Florrie Connolly, the Irish colleen; and George Geoffreys, who appears as deputy for J. H. Greener. The Bioscope has the usual fine films, including Wilbur Wright's aeroplane display.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor company is occupying the boards here. Miss May Poulton in the title-rôle makes an attractive principal boy, her songs being much appreciated. Miss Carrie Harding is a captivating Zorilda; Mr. Walter Adams scores a big success as Tinbad; Messrs. Newco and Sullo work hard and successfully as Baccah and Stoppah; Mr. George Collins deserves praise as Mrs. Sinbad; Mr. H. Van Lachterop sings well as Ali Loofa, as does also Miss L. Van Lachterop as Princess Zaider. Specialities are introduced by the celebrated Szarvasi Ferencz troupe of acrobats, Sisters Clare, duettists and dancers, and Newco and Sullo, patter comedians and dancers.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—The principal attraction here is L'Incognita, the masked singer, who gains rounds of applause for her excellent vocalism; the Ellimans appear with success in their musical scena; Ray, Miles, and Ray are smart juggling comedians; Craig, Roze, and Craig contribute a clever gymnastic act; the McAleavey Marvels give a capital exhibition of trick jumping; the Rosses, patter comedians and dancers, are deservedly applauded; the Five Olracs, acrobatic comedians, are highly successful; Gwennie Morgan is a dainty comedienne; and the Bioscope pictures complete a good programme.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The performances of that well seasoned musical comedy The Lady Slavey has been successful here this week at the hands of Mr. Harry Benet's No. 1 company. Miss Nora Morra makes an excellent Phyllis, and with Mr. Harry Quiningborough, who is well placed as Roberts, provides a capital burlesque scena; while Mr. Lister Morrah's vocal accomplishments give prominence to his rendering of the American millionaire; Miss Kitty Hyde and Miss Blanche Hounsell are specially attractive as Maud and Beatrice; Miss Reydon Dallas as Flo Honeydew and Mr. Tom G. Warren as the imbecile Lord Lavender quite maintain the traditions of their rôles; Mr. Charles Clark is a genial impecunious Irish major; and Mr. Presano's many old friends are glad to see him once more in his familiar part of Bill.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Mr. George Brydon Phillips has brought us a capital pantomime, admirably acted, beautifully dressed, and effectively staged. Miss Hettie Lee is a dashing principal boy, and sings well; Miss Constance Lait scores heavily with vocal work as principal girl; the Maples are a clever couple who win praise for their singing and dancing, and Miss Nella Dean's pas de seul is one of the daintiest things of the evening. Morrin and Cardiff put in a lot of droll work; Mr. Harry Rose, who makes the "Top-note" song go, is a mirth-provoking Dame; and Snow and Farron add greatly to the fun; the Old Man of the Sea, not named on the programme, is dramatically clever, and his make-up is highly artistic.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The Seener and Fridkin troupe of Russian dancers, in a bewildering series of evolutions, make a great hit; Baker and De Sales have a smart turn; and Harry Luck, Saletos, J. P. Carroll, Bessie Nellson and Amy Bathurst, with the Palace Perfection pictures, complete the programme.

Central Hall.—The Lincoln Amateur Operatic Society are presenting Jakobowski's opera Erminie here, and on Monday night opened with much success. Mr. A. Cramer is the coach, and his pupils do him high credit.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The second edition of the pantomime Red Riding Hood was presented here this week. The production has been considerably brightened by the introduction of several humorous items, among these being the eviction of the Dame and the taking of an inventory of her belongings, both of which provoke great laughter. Then there is a burlesque on the Territorials and Boy Scouts; and the Poluski Bros. have a motor-car episode which is smartly worked. The quick conversion of the vehicle into a coffee stall and the antics which follow are capital fooling. Included in the newly-introduced songs is "Do you want to buy any lavender?" sung by Miss Anita Edis (Jill). An amusing incident follows the rendering of a popular song "Tell Me." In response to numerous demands for an encore the audience are amusingly astonished to see a motley assortment of comedians, scene-shifters, and stage hands come rushing on with profuse bows. Miss Lily Hill, the sweet Little Red Riding Hood, introduces a fresh ditty, "Bogie Boo," which is of the "Bogie Man" type, and is received with satisfaction. Horace Lane (Squire) finds general favour with his ably-rendered "Let's all go down the Strand," four pretty girls assisting with the chorus; and Phil Ray (Dame) submits an acceptable number, "I really can't reach that top note." Miss Violet Lloyd (Boy Blue) is immensely popular; and Miss Maud Thorne (Miss Muffit) continues to make hosts of friends with her sweet singing and charm of manner.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Big business is being done here with Dick Whittington and His Cat, three matinées being necessary to meet the demand. Fresh business is being continually introduced. Miss Carrie Moore, the delightful Dick, was unable to appear on Monday night owing to indisposition, and Miss Frances Earle deputised for her most satisfactorily. Tom Foy's drolleries are going ahead like wildfire; Miss Ethel Negretti pleases greatly with her singing; and Harry Randall is still to the fore as the Dame.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. Morton Powell's A Girl's Temptation is here this week, drawing large audiences. Miss Gertrude Gilbert holds the part of Kate Sterling, which she presents in capital fashion; Mr. Frank V. Fenn plays strongly as Guy Warren; the rascally Mark Klaw is undertaken in convincing style by Mr. Clifton Earle; Miss Maud M. Powell does excellently as Lady Constance; and other prominent characters are Annie Brown, ably impersonated by Miss Blanch Lee; Sammy Sniggles, very humorously played by Mr. Dan Hardie; and Jemima Jossup (Miss Amy Corallie). The work is put on in Mr. Powell's well-known artistic style.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Her Road to Ruin is here this week delighting large audiences. Mr. Charles Dickens gives an excellent rendering of the part of the fearless curate, Frank Temple, whose aim is to rescue the fallen ones; Miss Ada Champion deservedly wins applause for her careful acting as the unfortunate Jess Willoughby; Miss Maud Gill submits a nice study of May Willoughby; Mr. Kendrew Milson in the rôle of the poor journalist Tom Wells, acts with discretion; Mr. Alexander Bradley plays strongly as the scheming Philip Hardy; and the comedy is in the able hands of Miss Grace Emery (Jenny Crackling) and Mr. Harry Talbot (Billy Boots).

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Home, Sweet Home is here this week, with Mr. Frank Lindo's capable company. Included in the cast is Miss Wakeford, who undertakes the part of Joan with conspicuous ability and earns commendation from her auditors; Mr. Leonard Lawrence makes an excellent Lucas Lyle; Mr. Lindo repeats his admirable picture of the young fisherman Stephen Armitage; and other worthy supporters are Mr. Norton Shields (David Armitage), Miss Helene Thompson (Sybil Fay), and Mr. Sidney Dench (Duke of Ancaster).

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The big item here this week is Lady Beerbohm Tree in a new sketch, The Sirocco, which is noticed elsewhere. Moran and Wiser give an exceptionally clever show as boomerang hat-throwers, for which they earn great applause; J. H. Scotland, possessed of a rich basso voice, renders several popular numbers; the Kramers (Annie and Maud) are a capital comedy couple, and receive due recognition; Alfred H. West proves himself to be an accomplished pianist; the Whilbys present a novel and pleasing entertainment with their magic blackboard; Charles Vincent is a lively comedian with good songs and parodies; Jennie Alexander, juvenile comedienne, pleases; and Maisie Hibbs dances in an accomplished style.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The big line here this week is Humanity, with the popular John Lawson in his well-known part; Robins and Collier prove exceedingly diverting in Mrs. Beacon's Easter Egg; a neat vocal and dancing scena, "Dancing in the Old Oak Tree," is given by the Six Manchester Lads, including Tom Vaughan, all of whom earn rounds of applause; Baddow is a capable young ventriloquist; Tom Lee has some amusing songs; Wallace Lupino, for a boy, dances cleverly; and Harry Taylor, comedian, also appears.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Good business is being done here this week with Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime Babes in the Wood, which is put on in excellent style. Miss Marie Brayman infuses a deal of spirit into the rôle of Robin Hood; Mr. Victor Wallace proves an amusing Baron; the Babes are nicely played by Marie May and Elsie May; Miss Mabel Osborne looks sweet as Maid Marian; Mr. Harry Elliston makes a funny Dame; August and September are the names of the comedians who humorously represent the Robbers; Miss Carrie Parry is a pretty Fairy; and the John Lloyd Quartet are the Foresters. Specialities are introduced by Mme. Teresa's Continental troupe of singers and dancers, the Eight Little Pinkies; and the John Lloyd Quartet. There is a full chorus and ballet, and the pantomime is produced by Mr. Harry Elliston.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The military drama Starting Price, by C. A. Clarke, is being given here this week by the stock company, the principal characters being in the hands of Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood (Benjamin Greenleigh), Harry Tresham (Gerald Greenleigh), R. Seath Innes (Obadiah), Sydney Grant (Culverstone), Tom H. Solly (Johnny Flaherty), Leo Montgomery (Brush), E. D. Allen (Trumble), Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Mary), Miss Lilian Radbourne (Hester), and Miss Gertrude Gilman (Widow Mulvaney). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope shows Hypnotic Suggestion.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Here this week is Mr. Ernest Stevens's Cinderella pantomime, which is full of good singing, spectacular, and funny. It was written by Mr. Stanley Rogers, who produces it. Miss Agnes Tandy is the Prince, which she undertakes in pleasing style; Mr. Harry Ongar makes an acceptable Dandini; Mr. E. Statham Staples causes endless laughter with his Baron; the Cinderella of Miss Felicia Firmin is entirely acceptable; Tiny, played by Mr. Alfred Clark, is very amusing; the Sisters are carefully held by the Misses Ethel Ramsey and Marianne Carozzi; Capers is smartly done by W. Leopold, jun.; and the Fairy Godmother is in the keeping of Miss Dorothy Moulton. Speciality dances are given by the Lottie Stone Troupe; and the Prince Milner Trio introduce a clever pot-pourri act of juggling, hoop-manipulating, wire-walking, &c.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—John Tiller's Red Riding Hood pantomime is putting in a second successful week.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company with The Woman Pays is drawing crowded houses; Roger Marchant is capably undertaken by Mr. Clavering Craig; Mr. Phil Harper as the young fisherman is a warm favourite, and carries out his part with striking success; Mr. Claremont Gaskell as Nathan Moss, a money-lender, acts with skill; Nurse Agnes finds an able exponent in Miss S. Porteous; and Tibatha is in the capable hands of Miss Florence Thorne. Polly Stokes is capitally undertaken by Miss Lily Beverley. The new scenery is painted by Mr. E. Egerton.

MAESTEG.—Town Hall Theatre.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Mr. John A. Thompson's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, is here. Miss Pattie McCarthy is a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Daisy Stone adapts herself well to the part of Maid Marian; Miss C. Williams and La Belle Sylvia (the Babes) are charming; Messrs. C. Ross and L. Ray, as Baron and Page, create roars of laughter; and the Bros. Chandos are amusing as Weary Will and Tired Tim.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The McConnell Trio in The Airship head the bill this week, and are very successful in this amusing trifle. The Stavordale Quintette give an artistic rendering of some popular airs on banjos; Miss Clarice Sefton, comedienne and dancer, is deservedly popular; France and Stewart in 100 to 1 Chance and Charlton, conjuror, do well; Miss Eily Adair, comedienne, and the Palace pictures complete.

MANCHESTER.—Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—An interesting drama of child life, Little Phil's Mother, is the attraction here, and is very well played by a company under the direction of Mr. Frank M. Thorne. Mr. Percy Ballard is well placed in the heroic rôle of Frank Towers, the corresponding part of Ruth Towers being equally effective in the hands of Miss Maud Russell. Mr. Henry Earlesmere as the villainous Oscar Titherton gives a good rendering; and Miss Violet Crauford as Elspeth shows plenty of dramatic force; Little Gertie Renaud as Phil is also worthy of great praise; and considerable humour is added to the story by the efforts of Mr. Frank M. Thorne, Mr. J. P. Marsden, and Miss Leslie Warner.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Billy Williams, the popular comedian, tops a good bill here this week, in old songs and new; the Havannas Troupe entertain in a smart tumbling act; the Merrions, vocal and instrumental artists, are very amusing; and some clever somersaulting and cycling on wire is done by James and Jenny Lee. Other pleasing turns are the Phœnix Trio, harmony singers and dancers; the Sages, in their burlesque comedy act; and Ida Kessanly's performing fox terriers.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—A full house here on Monday witnessed with unmistakable enjoyment the performance of Mr. Frederick Melville's latest bid for success, The Bad Girl of the Family. The story is interesting, and the parts are in good hands. Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves as Lieut. Marsh and Miss Daisy Cook as Gladys Erskine, his sweetheart, worthily figure in the centre of affairs, and Mr. Geo. R. Montford has capital opportunities as the rascally Harry Gordon. Mr. Luke Forster as Barney Gordon is responsible for a very clever character impersonation, and Miss Margaret Tueskie as the spiteful Honour Moore provides a fine contrast to the character of Bessie Moore, the title-rôle, which is neatly filled by Miss Violet Crossley. The humour is capably supplied by Mr. Tom May as Sammy Snazzle, Miss Amy Randolph as Sally Smithers, and Mr. George Belmore as Jerry Holmes.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company, still on the circuit, are entertaining local audiences here this week in The Prince and the Beggar Maid.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A really beautiful and artistic production here this week is that provided by O Hana San and company in A Vision of Japan, the corresponding place of honour on the bill being occupied by Fred Earle, the popular eccentric comedian. Herbert Darnley's The Barnstormers is a strong item; Rhoda Paul gives an enjoyable example of male impersonation; Vory's rag-painting novelty is much appreciated; James Stewart, the ragged virtuoso, is smart and amusing; the Bros. Gaudsmidt, clown acrobats, with their two poodles, are excellent; Bert Errol is really phenomenal as a female impersonator; and the Cavalotti Bros. give a nice turn in musical accomplishment. The pictures show the flooding of Paris.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Adolf Salge's beautiful and artistic act, The Triumph of Beauty, is a dream of delight, most effectively carried out; Sebastian Merrill and company are exceptionally droll and amusing in a clever cycling act of great merit; the Nine Kremos are Risley acrobats par excellence; Gwennie Llewellyn sings wonderfully well and is greatly enjoyed; Fred Elton, as usual, is highly entertaining at the piano, a well-arranged medley being particularly good; the Leslie Brothers make a decided hit as eccentric musical comedians; Olive Lenton charms with a pretty vocal scena, "Harvest Time"; Tom Bryce, ably and charmingly assisted, is good in comedy sketch A Dude's Wooing; Clown Argo is a clever imitator of sounds; the Northern Troupe of dancers foot it merrily; and the pictures are exceedingly good.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—The Moxon Trio, Continental acrobatic eccentrics, who are here this week have some excellent business, and make a big hit. An outstanding turn is also provided by the Five X-Rays, the "mad" athletes; Lionel Rignold causes no end of laughter in What Happened to Jones; May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, scores, as usual; Josephine Sabel does well as an international singer of the order eccentric; the Brothers Horne are exceedingly smart in an amusing boxing item; and other highly successful turns are Mather and Mayer, comedy duo, with smart dancing; Thiessen's clever dogs; and Ted Cowan, quaint comedian. Pictures complete.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Ivy Close, the Daily Mirror English beauty, is here this week in a pretty scena and several catchy songs; J. G. Grahame and Zerlina Harrington are exceedingly good in an episode of Russian Nihilist life, entitled Olga's Oath, and are ably supported; Muriel Harding, the Anglo-French comedienne, is deservedly well received; Warde and Jenner are very pleasing in a scena, The Echo; Daphne Hope is a charming vocalist; Harry Meegan is a capital comedian, but we should like some new songs; and smart items are offered by the Kahn and Kahn Trio in magical act; and R. K. Dunning in a ventriloquial sketch. The Bioscope pictures are good.

King's Theatre, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Zanora and Berg, the American comedy cyclists, are prominent here, introducing their burlesque "Fire Rescue." J. P. Ling, the popular comedian and mimic, is also a strong attraction; while the O-K-dians, in a miniature musical comedy presented by Kenneth Lyle and Percy Tarling, is a clever and enjoyable item. Other good turns are Alfred Mendies, the musical burglar; Geo. Payne's Wanderers, in a pretty caravan scene; Tony Freedman, light comedian; the Four Mayos in their entertaining skating speciality; and the Hargreaves Trio, comedians.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—Fred Karno's company in Skating occupy the chief place here this week, and cause endless amusement; Tod Lowen, comedian, is funny and popular; Ernest Tilbury, tenor vocalist, has a good voice and is well received; Tom Grave is exceedingly smart in his new motor act whizzing the wheel and shooting the bar; Stanley and Vandyke, the comedy duo, are as comical as ever; and Goodall and Knox add a good turn as acrobatic and patter comedians.

MANSFIELD.—Grand, — Managing-Director, Capt. C. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Clayton.—Messrs. Poole are here with the myrioramas and vaudeville entertainment. Mr. Bert Gates eloquently describes the places shown, and makes the capital picture instructive and interesting; the Gulliver family are a clever quartette of acrobats, and introduce a comedy boxing turn, which is very amusing; the Snow family accomplish some graceful skating; the Geo. French Troupe cycle in a marvellous manner; Learto is funny in a musical turn, assisted by his clever dog "Pom-Pom"; and Mr. Harry Dowsett is a comedian of merit.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Cinderella, presented by Mr. A. Austin's company, opened here on Monday. Miss Mabel Austin is a dashing Prince Charming; Miss Maidie Harrison is an attractive Cinderella; Dandini has a pleasing representative in Miss Phyllis Leslie; and Dubelle has a creditable exponent in Miss Eva Swinbourne; Mr. Fred E. Ellis makes a humorous Baron; and Mr. Tom Read scores as Pickles.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Nelson's Boys and Girls provide a pleasing turn in a singing and dancing scena An Impromptu Rehearsal; Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley are appreciated as the up-to-date cadets: Ada Whitton is a pleasing burlesque actress; the Leonas provide a clever musical act; Jerome Howard and Elsie Wallace amuse with their scena Taming a Wife; and Marcus Boyle is successful in his vocal numbers. The pictures are amusing and instructive.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—A very welcome visit is once more paid by the delightful D'Oyley Carte Repértoire Opera Company under the able management of Mr. H. E. Bellamy. The opening production was The Gondoliers, which met with hearty approval. Marco Palmieri and Guiseppe Palmieri were admirably represented by Mr. Henry Herbert and Mr. Leicester Tunks; and as Gianetta and Tessa Miss Everell Spain and Miss Beatrice Board were very charming. Equally successful was the Duchess of Miss Bertha Lewis and the Casilda of Miss Mabel Graham; whilst as the Duke of Plaza-Toro Mr. Henry A. Lytton was as much at home as ever; his attendant Luiz was in the competent hands of Mr. Sydney Granville; and as the Grand Inquisitor Mr. Fred Billington, the old and valued favourite, was very successful. The singing throughout was fine, the chorus and orchestra—the latter under the bâton of Mr. Francois Cellier—commanding high commendation. During the week The Mikado, Iolanthe, Patience, and The Yeomen of the Guard have been presented.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's No. 1 company is presenting The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The part of Monica, Princess of Illyria, is ably portrayed by Miss Stella Campbell; Prince Hildred of Sylvania receives full justice at the hands of Mr. Mayor Cooke; as Prince Olaf Mr. C. W. Standing is most successful, and the character of Prince Michael is competently played by Mr. Lionel Gadsden. The staging is good.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Large audiences nightly enjoy Harry Atkinson in his imitations of musical instruments; the New York Nippers go as well as on former visits; Martinett and Wallace, musical comedians; Rowlands and Ford, amusing comedians; Hyde and Cody trio, speciality artists; Miss Nellie Martell, comedienne; Jack Smiles, dancer; and the Empire pictures.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—Claude Bathurst, actor vocalist, and a programme of pictures give satisfaction.

Morecambe.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Julian.—Mr. Wilmot Edson's bright pantomime Aladdin is being much appreciated here. Miss May Faire is seen to advantage in the name-part, and Miss Margaret Geddes is a captivating Princess; Messrs. Matt Kilduff, Tommy Nelidon, and Reg Bolton are capable and entertaining comedians. Specialities are introduced by the Abadaroffs and the Three Jewels. A word of praise is due to the chorus, and the musical numbers have been arranged most effectively by Mr. Leo. Croke.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chisholm Taylor.—The Silver King is paying a return visit here with Mr. Fred. D. Daviss in the rôle of Wilfred Denver, and Miss Mildred Surrey as Nellie Denver. Strong support is rendered by an excellent cast and scenery and dresses are good.

NEATH.—Prince of Wales Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. H. and E. Johnson.—Leah; or, The Forsaken Jewess, was well staged on Tuesday night.—In the title-rôle Miss Sophie Campbell secured great applause for a clever impersonation; Miss Gertrude Mitchell successfully filled the part of Martha; Miss Kate Wain appeared to advantage as Anna; Miss Gussie Johnson as Rose scored a decided success; Mr. Philip Perry gave a powerful rendering of Joseph; Mr. Percy Barnett sumbitted a good study of Laronge; Mr. H. Evan Gibbon as the Schoolmaster was seen to advantage; Mr. Leonard Wallace was well placed as the Pastor; Mr. Aubrey Norton was a good Abraham; and Mr. Leo Main was responsible for much amusement as Peter.

Gwyn Hall.—Lessee, Mr. J. W. Robinson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. George.—Messrs Chas. W. Poole present their unique programme, which deserves the highest praise. Contests in the Clouds is illustrated by mechanism and myrioramic effects; a splendid tableau is the North Pole Expedition with Commander Peary. The Royal Banzais, Japanese jugglers, include Little Togo and Tiny Nogi, who give an excellent performance; the Bros. Rees are well received in their unique military act; W. L. Rowland greatly pleases with his mirth-making; Cairo Trio give a clever musical mélange; Sydney Bach scores in his imitation of Mrs. Jones; Inez and Pim give a refined gymnastic display; Mr. John R. Poole is a most entertaining guide.

NELSON.—Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson.—Another capital programme this week is headed by Ivan Tschernoff, with his educated ponies, dogs, and pigeons, their specialities include Marjutti, lady contortionist; the Big Four, vocalists, dancers, and comedians; Elsie Malpas, an accomplished child mimic and dancer; Nellie Nora, a pleasing instrumentalist; and Walter Aubrey, whose skill in dancing is greatly appreciated. In addition, the programme includes Sydney Bannister, a well-known local baritone; and Renson and Waite, Yorkshire humorists.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. T. N. Walter has presented to capital houses this week the musical comedy, The Flower Girl. In the title-rôle Miss Lena Brickwell is very charming, her singing being greatly appreciated; Mr. G. T. MacCallum in his original creation, Joe Wheeler, kept the audience in a constant state of merriment; Mr. Jno. Lathom depicts Johnny Wheeler with considerable skill, whilst as Reggie Rachitt, Mr. Cyril Delevanti makes a big hit, Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Elsa Brettingham are extremely good in their respective characters of Mons. and Mme. Racquet. The company also includes Mr. G. Burlington Rigg, a capital Scotch baritone, in the character of the Hon. Billy Greenhill. Miss Idalia May dances well.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham. The pantomime Cinderella has now entered upon the last fortnight of its run, and its popularity is still maintained. The fine work of the principals, Miss Cressie Leonard, Miss Iris Hoey, Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Lilian Levey, Miss Meg Hamylton and Messrs. Alexandre and Hughes, Johnny Schofield and Harry Brayne, has done much to making the production a most gratifying success.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The popularity of Pinkie and the Fairies is fully maintained during this the second week of its stay, and great praise is due to the various artists responsible for the production.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Married to the Wrong Man, presented by Mr. Frank Melville's company, is drawing large audiences here. Mr. Harry Lonsdale is entitled to much praise for his clever impersonation of Jack Gladwin; and the rôle of Ruth (the dumb girl) is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Mary Pemberton. Mr. Leonard S. Harrison submits a good representation of Sergeant Manners; Miss Cissie Bellamy is pleasing as Rose O'Connor; the villainy of Captain Deering receives full illustration from Mr. Geo. Arthur, who is ably assisted by Leonard Thackeray as Jasper Skinner. The comedy in the capable hands of Mr. Syd Clayton as Timothy Clinker and Miss May Day as Dolly Fretter, creates laughter and applause; and Nurse Manners is ably portrayed by Miss Irene Atchinson.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—Little Bo-Peep on Monday entered upon the final week of its most successful run. The principal boy and girl, Miss Nancy Hearne and Miss Zena Hay, have proved themselves capable artists, and with the rest of the company have been successful in their efforts to please.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Miss Clarice Mayne's wonderful versatility and delightful style are fully demonstrated in some clever impressions of well-known artists, and even more so in her own songs; O'Gust, the original clown mimic, in his imitations of birds, animals, &c., has had a good reception, and fully deserved the unstinted applause bestowed on him; Barton and Ashley, in their screaming absurdity, Canal Boat Sal, evoked roars of hearty laughter and unrestrained appreciation; a most amusing and clever show was provided by Keen and Waller, two comedy acrobats of more than usual ability; Lowenwirth and Cohan, Hebrew comedians, carried the "house" with them in a rattling go-ahead patter business and catchy, amusing ditties; Miss Ethel Newman, in an original monologue, Her Wedding Day, was successful; and good turns were also presented by the Crisps, in a juvenile dancing scena; Chas. Santon, double-voiced vocalist; and Stanley and Greenop, banjoists; the bioscope concluding.

NORTHAMPTON.—Palace of Varieties, Ltd.—Proprietors, Messrs. Samson and McNeil; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H. Gould.—Sydney Mason and Theresa Moore are topping the bill here with a tragic episode entitled Dr. Parker, Poisoner; Trojan, a one-armed athlete, is an expert weight-lifter, and his feats are loudly applauded; Ghita Corri gains a hearty reception for her phenomenal singing. Also appearing are Melba Twins, duettists and dancers; the Brothers Leo, Albert Hall, Harry Russon, and May St. Hilda.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's capable company is presenting The Girl Who Lost Her Character, which has met with a hearty reception from large audiences. As the Rev. Robert Everton Mr. Joseph Millane handles the character in clever style; Mr. Cecil Mannering in the dual rôle of Jack England and Private Johnson, scores a distinct success; Mr. Richard Ferris proves his sterling abilities by his smart performance of Captain Geoffrey Caversham; Mr. George Dapier is good as James Sutton; and Mr. R. Chester as Detective Weathersby deserves commendation. As Molly Vernon Miss Doris Brookes is as realistic as could be desired; Miss Maggie Hobart carefully depicts Rose Seymour; Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklyn makes the most of her opportunities, and some excellent comedy is introduced by Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch and Miss Mamie Thorpe as Isabella Jones.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—An attractive programme is headed by the Brothers Borella with smart feats on the silver chains; Andrews and Thompson, in their vocal scena, The Rube and the Romany, are much applauded for their singing; Ethel Wilford, in her comedy monologue, "The Red Sea," has been enthusiastically received; Telka Wyllie, comedy tramp musician, is very entertaining; Bert Kennedy, in humorous songs and stories, goes well; the Lamberts, speciality artists, are worthy of praise; and the Palace pictures are, as usual, interesting.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Miss Maud Western's company, in Folly's Fortunes, is here. Ben Burritt is well played by Mr. John Levey; Wilfred Esmond is ably depicted by Mr. Alex Alexander; Mr. Walter Buckstone is a typical Squire Esmond; Mr. Joe Ellis convulses the audience with his humorous delineation of Billy Boyd; Miss Maudie Lambert is well placed as Biddy Boyd; Miss Nellie Lambert is decidedly good as Eleanor Vaughan; Miss Ada Hender is fully equal to the trying part of the Miss Paumier's company opened here on Monday with The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Paumier as Paul Valmar is a prime favourite; Miss Margaret Brodie acts cleverly as Princess Astrea; and Miss G. Faunce as Rozel is very pleasing. Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes as the villainous Rudolph acts in a capable manner; Mr. Chas. Whitlock as Lieut. Strelsburg submits a good portrayal; Mr. John Nesbitt as the Crown Prince is smart; and Miss P. Laurence as Kathie causes much amusement.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Lancashire Lad is here on a return visit, being played by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. Mr. Harry T. Wood as David Elmore is well placed; Mr. Wilton Reed as Max Carlton is quite successful; and his partner in villainy, Lorna Wincote, is forcibly portrayed by Miss Muriel Inglis. Miss Madge Douglas acts daintily as Jessie Wincote; and Miss Nellie W. Warden is a typical Mother Wardle. Miss Lillian Rignold as Jane Alice Clitheroe causes much amusement; Mr. Bob Anderson as John Willie Wardle is funny in his acting and singing; Mr. J. W. Gadsby as Prof. Napoleon Boulanger furnishes a capital study; and Miss Gertie Anderson as Kitty de Vere and Miss Molly Shine as Trixie Golightly sing and dance well.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—The Eighteen Lancashire Singers are heartily applauded here; Chas. Baron's Burlesque Menagerie, introducing the racing cats, causes much laughter; Sara Rosebury, in her dialect songs and imitations, has a capital welcome; Cole and Rags are amusing as eccentric comedy jugglers; and a deputy (not named) sang well on the night of our visit in place of Louis J. Seymour. Sergt. Bert Powell is smart as a military mystifier; Fayre and Manning dance cleverly; and Allan Hanbury is good in song and patter. The Palace pictures complete.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—There is being presented at this house this week The Village Blacksmith by Messrs. Dottridge, Longdon, and Livesey's company. With histrionic ability Mr. Sam Livesey personates the title-rôle; Mr. Joseph Carter gives a well-finished portraiture of Captain Leo; Lucas Marler is capitally acted by Mr. Edwin Maydew; Mr. George Wilton as St. John Harman is praiseworthy; a faithful embodiment of Jeremiah Parkins is submitted by Mr. Thomas E. Marshall; and Mr. Fred Haining is decidedly funny and mirth-provoking in the rôle of Billy Twigg. Miss Maggie Edwards as Kate Strong furnishes a convincing portrayal; an excellent representation of Ruth Parkins comes from Miss Cassie le Grande; a fine character-study of Sal Parkins is submitted by Mrs. T. C. Livesey; and Miss Pauline Garside is conspicuously successful as a child actress in the part of Harry Strong.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—A mystifying performance is given here this week by John Warren (illusionist) and his company; Mr. Warren also contributes some clever conjuring tricks. A dramatic playlet, A Society Sinner, is artistically performed by the Forestiers; Guyer and Valli, as American comedy artists, are vastly entertaining; the Vays, in their comedy scena Life in the Slums, are heartily applauded; Mamie Iris is a chic comedienne and dancer; as a comedy and dancing duo Irene and Morton are quite successful; Netta Gray proves herself a delightful vocalist; Albert McKelvin contributes a Scotch song; and the Bioscope concludes.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. Neville Graham's company is appearing here to good audiences in the pantomime Aladdin. Mlle. Lucretia is an admirable exponent of Aladdin; as the Princess Badroulbadour Miss Lilian Earle is highly successful; Mr. Alec Taylor as the Grand Vizier causes much hilarity; Miss Harriette Loydall as the Widow Twankey is very funny; Mr. George Howard does exceedingly well as the Emperor; and Mr. Wilfred Lyndon is good as Abanazar. Specialities are introduced by Sinclair's Four Parisian Girls, The Astrays (in a series of bumps), Mr. Wilfred Lyndon; and Miss Cissie Clarke and Mr. Charlie Clarke in The Scarecrow.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—The Bouncing Dillons gain considerable applause by their remarkably clever somersaults on the bouncing spring; Harry Hayton, comedian and dancer, is very funny; Dolly Clyffe gives an acceptable turn; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, are well received; and a number of interesting pictures are depicted by the Karnoscope.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—For the last fortnight of the run a second edition of Robinson Crusoe is presented. Miss Lucy Coventry has a tuneful number, "Her clogs and her shawl," which suits the vivacious little actress admirably; Miss Mabel Lait gives a very pretty rendering of "Somewhere"; and Topsy earns fresh laurels with a first-rate rendering of "Sambo." Mr. Daley Cooper scores brilliantly with some new business; Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells revive an old favourite, "Is everybody happy here?" with great effect; and Mr. Scott Russell's fine baritone voice is heard in an additional number.

PALACE.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Bugler Carr's turn, consisting of balancing feats with regulation bayonets, &c., proves highly entertaining; Velanche's performing dogs show wonderful sagacity, and reflect great credit on their trainer; Miss Ethel Loftus is a first-rate comedienne; Johnnie Cecil and Jock Warman both prove popular; Wild Willie and West, comedy acrobats, are responsible for some hearty fun; and Louie Tracy completes an attractive entertainment.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Harry Benet is here in Dick Whittington, which is played to good houses. The piece is acted well, and the scenery and dresses are elaborate. Mr. Benet himself represents Idle Jack, and keeps his audience in roars of laughter from beginning to end. Miss Nellie Dyson is Dick Whittington, and fully deserves the enthusiastic welcome accorded her; in Miss Stella Millar we have a charming Alice, and she, with her partner Dick, is a great favourite; Mr. Bob Stanto as the Cat is excellent; Mr. Cliffe Owen is perfectly at home as Alderman Fitzwarren; and Mr. Denis Lyndon has made a big hit as Mrs. Kelly; Miss Eva Bently is a lively Captain Dunting; and Miss Cissie Ramsay is an effective Firefly; Mr. Ed. Benson is good as King Rat. Entertaining specialities are given by Kloof and Ramsay, musical entertainers; the Delorosas, trapeze artists; San Remo Girls, dancers; Stanto and Greene, tumblers, &c.; and the La Dor Troupe, who give a fine acrobatic turn.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. H. S. Davies and Phillips.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings Mr. Tom Owen, the Welsh comedian, gave an excellent variety entertainment to crowded houses.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Although this is the second week of The Dollar Princess the house is packed in all parts every night. Mr. Leslie Holland cleverly enacts the easy-going millionaire Henry Quonder; Mr. Alec Worcester as Freddy Fairfax contributes largely to the vocal success by reason of his rich, powerful voice; Mr. W. H. Rawlins is the embodiment of a fun-maker as Bulger; Mr. Sydney Lyndon is suitably placed as John Earl of Quorn; and Mr. Willie Warde, jun., makes the most of Sir Jas. MacGregor; Miss Norah Barry, well remembered here as Sonia, now repeats her success as Alice, her singing being appreciated; Miss Madeline Seymour, the possessor of a charming stage presence and rich contralto voice, does remarkably well as Olga; a vivacious, chic little Daisy is seen in Miss Peggy Primrose. A smartly-dressed, well-balanced chorus and elegant staging compel admiration.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—A sensational melodrama, entitled Was She to Blame? occupies the boards here. This play is replete with exciting episodes and humorous interludes, and is attracting large audiences. It is presented under the personal supervision of Mrs. T. G. Kimberley, the authoress, who herself undertakes the part of Mrs. Kate Roselle with great success. The play is well staged and the characters are in the capable hands of a talented company.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Captain E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Daisy Jerome, the electric spark, gives three humorous numbers, which are heartily encored; Ida Millais and company present the water sensation, Blackmail, which holds the attention of the audience throughout; the effort of Poole and Maguire, musical comedy duo, are much appreciated; the Elite Harmony Boys are effective in a vocal scena, entitled Messmates Ashore; the "Stoker" song of Arthur Albert is much applauded. An interesting programme includes Gordon Stretton, Clive Watts, Joan Deering, Henry Herne, and Rayne's Bio-Photoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—An excellent programme includes a powerful sketch The Littlest Girl, cleverly acted by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company; Gobert Belling and his highly-trained mule, donkey, bull, and dogs create much laughter; the Four Vagabonds delight with their vocal efforts; J. W. Rickaby is applauded for his songs; Maria Gabalda and her Spanish pantomime troupe present The Smuggler's Dream; Iaroe, on a mouth organ, gives capital imitations of bagpipes; some clever impersonations by Arthur Croxton, vocal harmony by the King's College Boys, eccentric feats by the Waltons, and songs by Lilian Rose are enjoyable items.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Austin Rudd is loudly encored for his songs "Grief and pain" and "Marching home"; Dorothy Chard, the principal boy in the local pantomime, is applauded for her songs "Polly and the holly" and "Ship ahoy!"; Everhart and his assistants manipulate hoops skilfully; Minola Hurst and her miniature marvels renew their acquaintance here; Horace Hunter and company are listened to in an exciting sketch Under Suspicion. Vocal harmony has exponents in Shirley Liggins and company; Willie Gardner is an expert roller and ice skate dancer; Ferguson and Mack are amusing eccentrics; Annie Heath sings and dances; the Dick and Dorothy Trio likewise win approval in song and dance.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—The Moody-Manners Opera company opened the second week of their engagement with Saint-Saen's Samson and Delilah, which was magnificently presented to a distinguished and appreciative audience. Mr. Albert Bowyer, in the rôle of Samson, was admirable, his solos and recitatives being rendered with much feeling; Miss Helen Culver as Delilah both sang and acted superbly; and Mr. William Farmer was heard to advantage as the High Priest, being especially successful in his duet with Delilah; Mr. Graham Marr as Abimelech was no less successful; Mr. William Anderson's magnificent basso was well suited to the musical numbers allotted to the aged Hebrew; Mr. Bartell as the Philistine Messenger has a baritone solo which was well sung. The opera is exceptionally well mounted, the new scenery and effects being admirably consistent. The chorus and orchestra were under the skilled direction of Mr. Cuthbert Hawley.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Clarkson.—Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime Cinderella is doing deservedly good business here this week. Will Penn as the Baron, and Crosby and Walker as Arabella and Isabella (the ugly sisters) keep matters lively when on the stage; Molly Doon is a winsome little Cinderella; the Carlsens as Cuff and Collar introduce some clever gymnastic feats; Miss Vera Mayne looks and acts well as Prince Brilliant; Jenny Clare is a sprightly Dandini; Leo Fields is much in evidence as Buttons (the page); and Pattie Varley, an excellent Queen Bountiful, sings duets with her sister. Specialities are also introduced by the Musical Keiths and Crosby and Walker.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank S. Burdett.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Little Cinderella is this week's attraction, and has certainly caught on. Leslie Hawkins is a humorous Baron Shipthalotte; Harry Bliss and W. G. Westley extract big doses of fun from the two ugly sisters; Harry Huthin is clever; Pimples, the Page, and his acrobatic dances are well received; Miss Kitty Avey is a delightful Cinderella, Miss Edie May, a dashing Prince Perfect, and Miss Lilly Ennis an excellent Dandini; Miss Fanny Douglas is a good Fairy Sunbeam in every sense of the word; and Mr. Bert Melrose a successful Malicio; the Lesando Brothers introduce their speciality act.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner, Mr. George T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's special répertoire company is proving an agreeable change in A Woman's Passion. Miss Louie Peebles was an interesting Winifred Hamlyn; Miss Lily Prescott an ideal Claire Trevenen; Mr. David McFarlane as Sir Randall did well; and Mr. Arthur F. Dudley made a good impression as Lord Vale. Mr. R. F. Stacey was good as the Gipsy Doctor, and Mr. Stephen Pritt satisfactory as Vicary. During the week His Wife No Longer and Almost His Bride, by the same author, have been billed.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Under the sole direction of Mr. Charles Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—After being closed for some weeks for purposes of cleaning and renovation, the handsome Royal Palace Theatre has been reopened under the sole direction of the enterprising Mr. Charles Evans, who has secured the services of Mr. Henry Bowman (for many years manager of the old Amphitheatre) as his lieutenant. There have been many important improvements effected by Mr. Evans during the time the theatre has been closed, additional arrangements having been made for the comfort of patrons. The pit seating has been extended, considerable expense has been devoted to improving the electric lighting, the front of the house has been much smartened up, and other points have been duly attended to. The reopening booking proved an extremely popular one, for on Monday evening the place was crowded, an enthusiastic audience keenly enjoying the performance of Mr. Walter Melville's dramatic play, The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Douglas Cecil finely assumed the part of the soldier Jack Brown; and Nancy Lee was portrayed with much ability and grace by Miss Dorothy Richardson. Mr. C. H. Matthews played the stage villain to perfection; while plenty of fun was introduced by Messrs. Scott and Albert.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Matthews; Responsible Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—We are this week having the pleasure of a première visit from The Cingalee, presented by Mr. Haldane Crichton's company. As Harry Vereker Mr. Arthur Cartwright sings well and acts convincingly; as Bobby Warren Mr. Scott Cullen is excellent; Mr. F. W. Ford makes an ideal Sir Peter; Mr. Douglas Munro a finished Boobhamba; Miss Florence Watson as Nanoya sings and acts charmingly; and Miss Pauline Hague is a dignified Lady Patricia. Miss Ida Ernest as Peggy Sabine is sprightly; and she and Mr. Jack Crichton (who as Chambhuddy Ram is clever and amusing) give the brightest and most amusing items.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Cavaliere F. Castellano's Royal Italian Grand Opera company is appearing here. The programme for the week comprises Carmen, Traviata, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Faust, Lucia di Lammermoor, and Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci. Brilliant performances have afforded a rich musical treat to lovers of opera.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Walter Bellonini, the renowned juggler, and his comedy assistant Wal head the bill, and give a very expert and amusing display; Martin Henderson, the blind instrumentalist, gives a brilliant performance on the English concertina and piano; Marie Magnus is a prepossessing artist with an excellent voice, and is also an accomplished storyteller; Ted Karno and company create great hilarity in their pantomimical sketch The Hotel de Quick; W. S. Hartford displays some fine acting as Old Joe Derrick in a dramatic episode Trafalgar Day, and is supported by Miss Eleanor Rose, Miss Emma Averne; Mr. Alfred Read, and Mr. Will George; Kate Gourlay is a smart and effective dancer; the McUlaffs, comedians and dancers, provide an acceptable turn; and Doughty and Laney appear with success in a comedietta entitled A Woman's Way.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here with The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning. Mr. F. Ronald Adair is a breezy Willie Mason, and Mr. Sidney Scirl is well placed as Bill Slater. Mr. Charles Ashwell scores as Jack Fenton, and Mr. Bert Agate is most amusing as Johnny Walker. Miss Nannie Meade has a strong part as Vesta Le Clere, and Miss Nellie James is very sprightly as Poppy Slater. Miss Florence Halton is pleasing as Lucy Coventry, and Miss Jessie Belmore secures the sympathy of the house by her sympathetic rendition of the part of Sophie Coventry in the title-rôle. The mounting and scenery are highly effective.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Hollands.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company, with The Sleeping Beauty, is here.—Miss Winnie Acton is pleasing as Fairy Benevolent, and Mr. Frank H. Morton as Demon Malevolent sings with general appreciation. Mr. Tubby Edlin is greeted with well-deserved applause as The Great Unknown. Miss Lillian Elliott is a smart Prince Fearless, and Miss Ivy Moore is charming as Princess Beauty. Miss Nellie Valentine scores as Viscount Broadlands, and Miss Eva Bechay is seen to advantage as Clonette. Mr. Tom Shenton is most amusing as King Half-a-Crown, and Mr. Willie Black is funny as Queen Half-a-Crown. Specialities are effectively introduced by the Three Martinettes, Tom Shenton and Chicks, the Eight Oowana Girls, and Messrs. John Leeck and Mabel Keith, who bring down the house with the cornet playing.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Constant.—A successful three days' visit was commenced on Tuesday by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company in the pantomime Cinderella. Miss Ella Wilmer as Cinderella made a very charming appearance, and with Miss Flo Wilton, a handsome Prince, sang in accomplished style. Messrs. Fred Hutchings and Herbert Colley as the Sisters did admirably, and Mr. Harry Maltan made an excellent Baron Shottle. The pantomime was effectively staged, and included some diverting speciality effects. The choruses were well sustained, and an augmented orchestra was under the control of Mr. George Encyl Lewis.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Miss Lena Stanton's company has excellent material in the pantomime Dick Whittington to provide over three hours' fun. Mr. Harry E. Joseph is responsible for the book and the lyrics, as well as the mechanical scenes. The scenery and dresses are pretty, and the music and singing are very bright and good. The title-rôle is well represented by Miss Lena Stanton, whose singing is very pleasing; Miss Mollie Le Mair is a charming Alice; Sisters Holman do good work as Lord Bob and Tootsie; Mr. G. Georgie is a most amusing Cook; and Alderman Fitzwarren is well presented by Mr. T. O. Hunter; Mr. E. Floyd Gwynne (Emperor Kopall). Brothers Hinson (Tommy and Billy), Mr. J. Harrington (Idle Jack), Mr. Hector Strange (Cat), and Little Keeno (the Mighty Atom) keep the fun rolling. There are several acceptable specialities by Little Keeno, the clever boy comedian; Sisters Holman, vocalists and dancers; Pagoda Troupe of Dancers; Le Mair and Harrington, comedy couple; Bros. Hinton, comedians and dancers; and the Zola Troupe of Acrobats.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—Harry Tate's No. 1 company in Fishing heads an excellent variety programme; Yangar, the West African magician, gives a very smart display of talent. Miss Kitty Colyer sings and dances into favour; Neville and Moss sing well and make much laughter with Both at the Same Game; acceptable items are also provided by Ronald Brookes, tenor; Agnes Molteno and company in pleasing tableaux entitled An Old-Time Story; Harry Vardon, smart ventriloquist; Marie West, refined comedienne.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, written by J. L. Barry, draws good houses (twice nightly). Miss Marion Scott is a dashing Robin Hood, and sings well; Miss Mary Dene is a charming Maid Marion, singing and dancing well; Will Scarlet is well sustained by Miss Nell Rene, and she has a couple of catchy songs; the Babes are represented by Millie and Lillie, a couple of juvenile singers and dancers; Mr. Brinsley Smith as the Wicked Uncle. Mr. Harry Rousby as Araminta Koffkake, Mr. Harry Conroy as Soft Sammy, and Gee and Atkins as the two Ruffians, keep the house in roars; Miss Emmie Mappin is a charming Fairy, and with Mr. Edwin Webb as Infernalito some enjoyable singing is given.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Messrs. Baring Bros. are presenting Miss Kitty Loftus, supported by a first-class concert party, at the above hall this week. The famous comedienne had a most appreciative audience, and in her répertoire entitled "Songs of Yesterday and To-day" she was delightful, giving about a dozen varied selections. One of her best was "On the Road to Holloway," a skit on the Suffragettes. Miss Violet Runciman has a good soprano voice and contributed some well-chosen numbers. A word of praise is due to Miss Gladys Cotterell for her tasteful violin solos. Mr. Oldbury Brough introduced some musical sketches and was very successful. Mr. Geo. F. Boyle acted as accompanist, and also contributed several pianoforte solos, which were loudly applauded.

SEACOMBE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—A welcome change is provided here this week with Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company in the new Irish musical fairy play Rollicking Rory. Mr. Chalmers Mackey, in the title-rôle, provides continuous amusement; Mr. St. John Stuart as the principal villain Stephen D'Arcy plays with skill, and his evil machination are ably aided by Mr. Lawrence Sullivan as Shaun Brady. The dual rôle of Mrs. Askleigh and Rosaleen is well worked by Mrs. Chalmers Mackey, and Mr. J. P. McBride is seen to advantage as Desmond. Peggy and the Queen of the Fairies are nicely played by Miss Nellie Delacy. Miss Nana Flensberg gives a sparkling rendering of Rosie, and Miss Jeanette Lyons is a natural and well-balanced Widow Callagan.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company are paying one of their welcome visits here this week. On Monday Hamlet was staged, and in the title-rôle Mr. Wilkie gained fresh laurels by a masterly interpretation. Mr. Alexander Marsh, an established favourite here, sustained the part of the Ghost with his well-known ability; Miss Carrie Baillie was a delightful Ophelia; and as Gertrude Mrs. Allan Wilkie gained hearty appreciation. The week's repertory has also embraced Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew, The Sleigh Bells, and David Garrick, Merry Wives of Windsor, and Richard III.

SHEERNESS.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Adam Seebold; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ted Williams.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's pantomime Little Bo-Peep is drawing crowded houses here. Miss Flora Morris is a thoroughly capable Bo-Peep; Miss Ruby Carter a dashing Prince Pastorelle; Miss Mabel Kessler scores as Boy Blue; and as the Baron and Bill Bash Mr. F. G. Royde and Mr. Ernest Hans are a great success. Mr. Gavin Wood is an immensely funny Lemuel Lea, and excellent specialities are introduced by Miss Mabel Kessler, instrumenalist; Flora Morris, soubrette and dancer; Ruby Carter, vocalist and dancer; Dorothy Douglas, vocalist; Rosie Stevens, speciality dancer; Mabel Howe, instrumentalist; Cissie Lenore, soubrette; Harry Howe, comedian; Hans and Luck, knockabouts; and Mr. Gavin Wood, bass.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Lovers of old English comedy have again cordially welcomed Mr. Edward Compton this week. Mr. Compton has again distinguished himself in a round of the famous parts associated with his name, and he has received loyal support from Miss Kathleen Leigh, Miss Marie Hassell, Miss Agnes Williams, Miss Nell Compton, Miss Stevens, the Misses Highgate, Mr. Henry Crocker, Mr. Frank Royde, Mr. Frank Snell, Mr. R. Pass, Mr. J. W. Austin, Mr. C. Marquand, Mr. L. Meade, Mr. Edward Holle, and that experienced "legitimate" comedian Mr. Philip Gordon. The week's bill of the play included The School for Scandal, The Reformed Rake, The Blasé Baronet, Davy Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, The Road to Ruin, and Tom Noddy's Secret.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—The successful annual Jack and Jill continues its prosperous run, and the legend "House full" is nightly hung on the outward walls. Miss Ella Retford, Mr. Charles Norton, Mr. Albert Le Fre, Mr. Jack Chromo, and Miss Josie Delaine are tremendous favourites, and the exquisite ballets are up to the Royal standard.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The pantomime of Dick Whittington concludes its successful Sheffield season to-night.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. J. W. Rowley, a well-tried vocal comedian, who is regarded with sincere affection by thousands whose hearts he has lightened by his genial and always healthy humour and his quaint homely touches, is starring here this week and "going great." Miss Lydia Yeamens and Mr. Fred Titus are another favourite pair who are sure of a hearty reception here. The Casey Army causes roars of laughter; The Globe of Life, presented by Wizard Stone and the graceful Irene Stone, is a clever act; Miss Violet Stockelle is a charming artist; and others who grace the programme are the Coloured Meistersingers, Mr. Larry Lewis, Mlle. Haydee's amusing mannikins, Miss Eddie Reynolds, and that talented and original droll, the "fool of the family," Cruikshank.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—Mr. William Watson's company opened to a crowded house on Monday in the lively and spectacular pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Mme. de Rose was successful in the title-rôle, and her singing of the pretty song "My mother's name was Mary," assisted by Miss Hilda Claremont, the bright representative of Alice, was loudly applauded; the pretty and graceful Sisters Gaye made a hit with songs and dances; the Waldrons (Joe and Ettie) repeated their well-known and amusing eccentricities; Miss Ruby Carlton made a handsome and melodious Mermaid Queen, and her duet with Mr. Cliff Dacre as Father Neptune was enthusiastically encored; Messrs. Lambert and Butler as Friday and Saturday were funny and smart; Mr. Billy Watson was a comically melodramatic "pirate bold" as Will Atkins; and Mr. Phil Lester, the Three Gilberts, Mr. Godfrey James, Mr. J. H. Hawtrey, and the Royal Temple Trio were all very successful. The scenery, dresses, and properties were first rate, and the general production was highly creditable to all.

CENTRAL HALL.—Lessees, The Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.—Mr. Arthur Hayes, Miss Gertrude Blanche, and Mr. A. W. Scott, together with a fine series of new pictures, headed by The Hessian Renegade, are pleasing good audiences.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Pictures and variety continue to attract large houses here.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Mr. Ian Robertson and his talented company were here the first three nights of the week with The Passing of the Third Floor Back. Mr. Ian Robertson played the title-rôle in a most artistic and cultured fashion, his acting being perfect throughout; Mr. W. O. Billington made a capital bookmaker as Joey Wright; Mr. J. Woodall Birdie merited high encomiums as Christopher Penney; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman as Major Tompkins played with care and ability; Mrs. Lena Delphine acted successfully as Mrs. Tompkins; Miss Barbara Everest made a most effective and attractive Vivian; Mr. Stanley Brown as Jake Samuels was clever in this Hebrew character; Mr. Herbert Garthorne was a bright and capable Harry Larkcom; Miss Drussilla Wills was exceedingly good as Miss Kite; Miss Blanche Ripley acted ably as Mrs. Percival de Hooley; Miss Helena Parsons made a capital slavey as Stasia; and Miss Jeannie Thomas as the landlady, Mrs. Sharpe, performed her part most creditably. Come Here! was the entertaining curtain-raiser, enacted by Mr. P. Gedge Twyman, Mr. Wilson Blake, and Miss Barbara Everest.

SMETHWICK.—ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy present the pantomime The Forty Thieves, a pantomime which both old and young enjoy. There are plenty of pretty songs and ballads, tuneful choruses, pleasing dances and ballets, and no end of rollicking humour. The company is a strong one in all departments. Mr. Harry Maxam is a funny Ali Baba; Mr. Johnny Johnson's originality and quaintness as the Dame cause the greatest fun; Mr. Ted Wootton sings and acts well as Cassim Baba; Miss Marie Reeve is a captivating principal boy, singing and acting extremely well; Miss May Otto is heard to advantage in the songs allotted to Morgiana, a charming slave; the droll antics of Mr. Syd Raymonde as the donkey are highly diverting; Miss Dora Frank Harvey's fine stage presence, added to her capabilities as an actress and vocalist, assure her instant success as Abdallah; Messrs. H. Hughes and J. Carney (members of the band) create much amusement in their boxing act. The chorus is strong, and the dresses and scenery admirable. Specialities are provided by the Hadji-Mohamed-Ben-Medani Troupe of Moroccan tumblers. The principal dancers are Mr. Sydney T. Russell's Acme Quartette.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company is scoring a success here with King of Cadonia. Mr. Bertie Wright, the chief fun-maker, scores all along the line as the Duke of Alasia; Mr. J. Warren Foster, a capital King, sings well; Miss Alice Moffatt is a fascinating Princess, singing and acting in delightful style; Mr. Jack Martin a dignified General; and others who do well are Messrs. E. Hartley-Summers (Panix), E. Thirlby (Bran), Cecil Tresilian (Laborde), Cameron Carr (Captain Laski), and Miss Molly Keen, a dainty and vivacious Militza. Mr. H. R. Matthews ably directs the orchestra.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Black-Ey'd Susan is the principal attraction here, and is admirably played by Mr. Adderley Howard and company. Godfrey Price is seen and heard to advantage in The Trumpeter; Victor and Louis score in their interlude The Golfer and the Caddie; Ted Curtis and company appear successfully in a novel dancing act; Dan Whitley is a quaint comedian; and others who do well are Luigi Salvino, Escourt, and Josephine Crooke.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—A capital bill of fare is headed by Parker, P.C., played by Chas. Austin; Ben Albert and Little Ganty, a couple of droll comedians, are loudly acclaimed; Rauschle gives some capital impersonations; Les Juanitos, Spanish acrobats, are popular; and Chas. Erard, mimic, Maud Wellon, and Marie Wilton, comediennes, complete a capital programme.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison.—The second pantomime of the season, Cinderella, was presented here on Monday by Mr. Charles Wood, under the supervision of the "Tally Ho" Trio and Mr. Sydney Cooper. The dresses and scenic effects are admirable. As the Prince Charming Miss Gladys Soman combines an attractive personality with vivacious acting and artistic vocalism, her best efforts being "Somewhere" and "By the side of the silvery sea"; the title-rôle had a piquant and winsome exponent in Miss Doris Langden, who was very successful both histrionically and vocally; Miss Bertha Belmore was a volatile and pleasing representative of Dandini; the comedy element was ably sustained by the Tally Ho Trio, Messrs. Ernie Chester, William Doust, and Eric Farr, whose grotesque rendering of the parts of Grabem, Geesem, and Baron Doonaught respectively kept the house in continued merriment; Sprightly, the page, had a versatile and clever exponent in Mr. Frederick Park; the Ugly Sisters had very capable impersonators in Mr. Charles Wood and Mr. Fred Anderson, whose whimsical "business" contributed greatly to the fun; Miss Fay Desmond submitted a charming portraiture of the Fairy Godmother, and her rendering of "Il Bacio" was much admired. Speciality dances were excellently executed by the Eight Sunrays.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell present their pantomime, The House that Jack Built, here. Miss Daisy Wood is a dashing Jack, having a good stage presence and a pleasing voice; Jill is charmingly portrayed by Miss Dolly Dodds; Mr. Jack Hayton creates a good deal of fun as Aunt Purdy; the merrymaking is kept up by Walker and Lake as Professor Pills and Squills; Doyle and Gibson as Scraggs and Scroggles; Mr. H. Hillerty as Squire Bounce and Little Chip as Wee McGregor, who is very funny. The large chorus is assisted by an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. J. Johnson.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richd. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—Miss Marquiss and her beautiful stud of ponies show wonderful training; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are juvenile vocalists of a high order; J. C. Scatter is popular here; Dion Wade, comedian and mimic scores well; the Brennans (May and Will) do a neat dancing act; and Dot Hardy, comedienne, and the bioscope complete a good bill.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The Babes in the Wood pantomime is being presented here by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company. Specialities are produced by Miss Winifred Norman (Maid Marion), Miss Marie Lumberg (Robin Hood), Miss May Curtiss (Fairy), and little Peggy McDonnell and Cissy Wyne (Babes), Messrs. Jimmie Watson (Babes' Nurse), Harry Tollett (Grinda), Neil Hardy (Baron), Graham and Barron (Ruffians), Levy and Cardwell's troupe of international dancers, and the Marguerite Quartette.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—A treat is provided for theatre-goers here with The Woman of Kronstadt for the first three nights of the week and The Passing of the Third Floor Back for the remainder. In The Woman of Kronstadt Mr. Keith G. Kenneth played the rôle of General Prince in an artistic and convincing manner; as Colonel Bonzo Mr. Montague Lane submitted a fine performance; Mr. Bernard Copping very ably sustained the rôle of Captain Zassonde; and Mr. Harry Colbert was good as Baron

FILM GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

L.C.C. and Licences.

The Theatres and Music-halls Committee of the London County Council, to whom have been delegated the council's powers under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, have received 250 applications for licenses under the Act, 101 of which are for premises already licensed for music, dancing, or stage plays. Of these 101 94 have been granted the new licence, and the remaining seven are under consideration. Of the 149 applications in respect of premises not previously licensed, ninety have been granted, ten refused, and the remainder will be dealt with as rapidly as possible after the premises have been inspected. Seven applications have been received for licences under the section which deals specially with movable exhibitions. The committee report that the condition attached to the licences prohibiting the opening of the premises on Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas-day has not been favourably received by the proprietors. The committee have decided in the meantime not to institute proceedings in respect of premises opened on Sundays, and hope to be able to report to the council fully on the matter shortly.

"A Quiet Honeymoon."

The Nordisk Company have just issued an amusing film, The Quiet Honeymoon. The Grand Hotel in a little town is not too well frequented. The hotel proprietor and his waiter are spending their days in peace, quietness, and sleep. Suddenly a young couple arrive, wanting to spend their honeymoon in a very quiet place. The hotel people are out of practice, due to their lack of guests. They try to do their best, but results are clumsy, and instead of the couple spending a quiet honeymoon they have probably the most trying time of their lives.

A Novel Story.

Why They Married is the title of a comic picture to hand from the Vitagraph Co. We are given some intimate glimpses of the married life of different girls. One has married a stockbroker, another a man who has a fondness for good horseflesh and good living. The third matrimonial venture was the result of the feminine belief that marriage will reform a drunkard. How these various lives are worked out is depicted in this very novel film.

A £3,000 Film.

The well-known firm of Pathé-Frères possess a unique film, depicting the Rise and Fall of Napoleon, various outstanding incidents of the Emperor's life being enacted for the occasion by living characters on the actual scenes of history. The film cost £3,000 to produce.

Pictures of Canada.

At the Palace Theatre on Friday in last week there was a private view of a series of animated pictures of scenes and life in Canada, which had been taken by the Charles Urban Company for the Canadian Northern Railway. These included views of wood-cutting, logging, farming, the brick, coal, iron, and paper-making industries, and, in fact, the multifarious work in which the people engage, together with some extremely interesting views of the towns and villages, including water sports and bathing. An outstanding feature of Canadian traffic totally different from anything known in Great Britain is the long haul. It is over 400 miles from Winnipeg to Lake Superior and 827 from Winnipeg to Edmonton, so that the railway, as compared with English roads, has immense distances over which to carry its freight. Regions where a few years ago the Indian was the only neighbour of the buffalo now own their own governmental telephone departments. The Canadian Northern has created over 150 town sites, of which all but about twenty-five have been named by its officers. These pictures have been secured by the railway company with a view to inducing a good class of emigrants to go out to Canada. Young people who are thinking of leaving the old country should certainly see these pictures, for they give a far better idea of the country than any verbal or written description could do.

A Glimpse of the East.

Scenes in Massaua is a Continental Warwick film. Massaua, lying near the Red Sea and surrounded by islands, presents a very varied succession of scenes of great interest. The arrival of camel trains at the harbour, the crude modes and loading and unloading the sailing boats, make a film full of animation. The native market place, the sports of the inhabitants and their quaint customs, and particularly the panoramic views of the scenery, form a series that will be a decided acquisition to any programme.

Forty Per Cent.

Mr. Roland Hill, presiding at the meeting of the Electric Theatres, Ltd., last Tuesday, said there were very few companies which could boast of having paid 40 per cent. in the first year of its existence, and made such progress in the establishment of its business on the sound foundations on which this company stood. The gross takings at the theatres amounted to £40,399, the amount realised from the sale of chocolate was £283, and with other items the gross revenue amounted to £40,876. The working expenses amounted to £22,965. They had paid three dividends of 1s. per share, and were now paying a fourth. The theatres had been opened gradually during the year, and the most important ones only within the last five or six months. They had others nearing completion. At present they were running eighteen theatres, and five would shortly be opened, two of which were in Birmingham. With these new theatres he thought the profits should be still greater next year.

Strand Theatre de Luxe.

The pictures shown this week at the Theatre de Luxe, Strand, included:—The Death Disc, Hungry Motor-car, Hunting Red Deer, What the Cards Foretold, The Living Doll, Into the Shadow, Mechanical Husband, and Paris Flooded by the Seine.

Gatti's "Arches."

Mr. W. Hancock, the architect appointed by the Cinematograph National Defence League, has been consulted with regard to the Arena, lately known as Gatti's Arches, to put same in order to fit the requirements of the L.C.C. under the New Act.

Westminster Palace.

The entertainment supplied at the Westminster Palace this week is by half-a-dozen variety turns sandwiched between "picture plays" by the Bioscope. Manager Douglas Payne is confident of the success of the venture. The Gordon Girls' scena The Porter and the Girls introduces some good comedy by the porter and singing and dancing by the girls. The baby of the party, a talented juvenile, is a splendid dancer. The pictures are the very latest subjects, and business is very good indeed.

Hunting Wild Deer at Exmoor.

The Kensington Picture Theatre has had a good programme this week. The subjects were:—All through tickling the servant (Warwick); Humble Love (Tyler); Mexican Army (Urban); Marvellous Garlands (Pathé); An Albania Rebellion (Williamson, Dressler, and Co.); and Magical Trees (Urban). A Kineto film, Hunting Wild Deer at Exmoor, is worthy of detailed mention. We see the "meet" by the old Yarn Market of Dunster, with Dunster Castle in the distance. Arrival of the huntsman and whip. The "pack" or main body of hounds are temporarily kennelled whilst the "tufters" (five couples of wiry old hounds) are taken to the woods to "rouse" a stag and make him break away to the open country. The huntsman rides back, unkennels the pack, and the whole "field" is away to where the stag has "broken covert." Huntsman, tufters and pack are joined by the riders; the huntsman "lays the pack on" to the line where the stag left the wood, the Master takes charge, and away they go. The stag leaves the hinds, and the tufters run full cry on his line. The riders pass along a typical Devonshire lane on to the moorland, where they start riding in earnest. The stag dashes down into the water, up and down stream, hounds close on him. The heavy and dangerous fellow turns upon the hounds with his antlers. Keen sportsmen dismount, enter the water, and, at the risk of their lives, catch his antlers and secure him, while the baying hounds are kept back, for they are not allowed to worry the stag.

London Bridge Picture Palace Opened.

With a fanfare of trumpets and a roll of drums from the band of the Queen's Regiment of West Kent Cadets (commander, Major Bennett, of Hoare's Bank), the new and magnificent cinematograph theatre and picture palace at 116-118, High-street, Borough, was opened last Saturday afternoon. The proprietors entertained, in addition to the Queen's Cadets and the Catholic Boys' Brigade, crowds of poor children of the Borough. Pictures depicting scenes in Canada, naval and military episodes, humorous incidents, and historical events were displayed. On Monday at noon Canon Horsley attended and declared the exhibition open.

Wood Green to Re-open.

On Tuesday last Mr. W. Hancock, the architect appointed by the Cinematograph National Defence League, put in an application for the re-opening of the Cinematograph Theatre, Wood Green, which had been closed by order of the Middlesex County Council. The application was presented by Messrs. Rubenstein and Myers and supported by Mr. Hancock. The permission was granted.

ALDERSHOT.—Alexandra Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Carpenter's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Connors.—The capital stories told on the bioscope are interesting and instructive, and are as easily followed as if given to the accompaniment of words, for the "people" taking part do everything but talk. Music is discoursed, and an excellent speciality turn is introduced by Norman Holt. The chief pictures shown are Pet of the Big Horn Ranch, a romantic love story; a scenic picture, De Vernazez to Triege; The Girl who Would Grow Up, Love's Strategy, Hot Pickles, The Conjurer, and The Kind-hearted Employer.

Wide World Pictures.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Bert Sloman.—A good programme is placed before the audience here, the films being clearly shown and highly appreciated. Amongst those shown are the Irish Blacksmith, The Orphans' Christmas, The Runaway Kids, True to His Trust, The Little Mother, The Destruction of Hyderabad, An Episode in the Reign of King Louis, The Two Sisters, How Jones Got a New Suit, French Troopers Crossing River, Thief by Necessity, Votes for Women, Little Merchant, &c.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—The New Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sims.—The pictures for the current week have many features of great interest for a variety of tastes. Through the Breakers is a cleverly-constructed series of situations, in which the "Sins of Society" are pictured. Butter-Making in Normandy shows the processes through which the article of diet which forms an important part of our breakfast and tea tables is put in preparation for our consumption. The Two Suitors is a very interesting domestic event, in the domain of love-making. The Conjurer is an exhibition of cunning and deceit. Into the Shadow is a touching, pathetic incident, in which a very good lesson is taught to parents and guardians of the young. Humour is the outcome of the picture A Short-sighted Sportsman; and Mr. Brown's Hustling is another which is most diverting. The Trick That Failed and The Painted Trunk are two other screamers. Mr. Alan Wright, the lecturer and baritone vocalist, sings "Daddy" and a chorus song.

Oddfellows' Hall.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Acting-Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—This palace of variety and pictures continues to secure a fair share of patronage from the picture-loving public. The Lady with the Camelias is a dramatic story which fixes attention. Every movement of the characters is of interest. Captain Fracus is another picture with features that are fraught with stirring and dramatic happenings. From Kidnapper to Rescuer shows how a young man, engaged to steal a child and destroy it, by a vile couple, relents, and, instead of carrying out the purpoee, is the means of preventing others from doing so. A Winter's Tale is a stirring incident, and humour knows no bounds in watching Calino Among the Cannibals and A Family Outing. The Love of an Inventor of an Aerial Torpedo shows some strange happenings in connection with aerial ships, and how he gets his girl at the finish. There are a couple of speciality artists engaged for a break in the picture entertainment, O'Boye and O'Brien, who are very good Hibernian humorists.

The Picturedrome. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. O. Leckie. — Mr. Leckie, the manager at this popular pleasure resort, continues to furnish good entertainment for his numerous patrons. This week's "bill" is headed with A Story of Circus Life, which narrates in a series of vivid situations how the wife of a clown goes astray from her home, and returns repentant to her husband—a touching domestic scene. The Postmistress is another domestic story, which shows how a woman was saved by a kind-hearted official. There are several other pictures; amongst them, Poultry Breeding, one of the educational series of films, and Teaching a Husband a Lesson is good. Humour is served by A Race for Brandy, and Calino's Fire Extinguisher, which shows the eccentricity of a comical gentleman. Ma Goes to Work is also a "side-splitter." Little Claude has the variety turn to himself. He is a clever juvenile in song, patter, and dance.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Picture Palace.—Lessee Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—The management here are providing a most attractive programme this week. The Flower Seller is a picture full of intense and pathetic interest; so also is Good for Evil. Other interesting pictures, grave and gay, are Tartarin the Second, Short-sighted Sportsman, and Our Friend the Plumber. An important factor for enjoyment are the selections ably rendered by the Scarlet Band, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Guest. A pleasing musical speciality act is given by Henriette and Selina, whose playing on various instruments calls forth hearty applause.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—An entertaining programme of pictures is provided here this week the principal one being Up San Juan Hill, a highly dramatic episode of the Spanish-Cuban War. Other dramatic series are The Fisherman's Bride, A Simple Story, The Tragic Idol, and Tommy my Soldier Boy. Of a laughable character are The Biter Bit, The Two Orderlies, and Bobby the Boy Scout. Mr. Leslie Clarke, coon vocalist, is a welcome addition to the "bill."

BELFAST.—New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—A fine series of pictures has been exhibited here, including The Sign of the Cross, A Dash to Earth, Muggins, V.C., &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by the Merrilees, capital comedians and dancers, and the Gentrys, in their acceptable and humorous duo, "Bits."

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Many interesting films have been presented here, including The White Slave; Miss Annie Kellerman, in some of her diving and swimming feats; A Christmas Story, &c. Miss Marie Bonner, lady baritone, who is the happy possessor of a fine voice, appears with success at each performance.

BIRMINGHAM. — King's Hall.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—A complete new series of pictures is shown here this week, and the audiences are not lacking in appreciation. The chief subjects on the programme are The Mystery of the Blue Swan Inn, The Child Benefactor, The Gentle Heart, and several excellent humorous pictures. The Haydon Trio, the Hayes and Dudley Duo, and Mabel Kingston, ballad vocalist, provide acceptable vaudeville items.

Queen's Hall. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—This hall continues to be a centre of attraction each evening, and a splendid programme, comprising the best up-to-date pictures and clever music hall entertainment, is provided this week.

BLACKBURN. — Central Hall. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. Arbury; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. W. Page.—The pictures at this hall are the following: A Corner in Wheat, a magnificent film dealing with the Stock Exchange; another strong item was A Woman's Treachery; Calino amongst the Cannibals is a humorous item; Simone, a beautiful coloured film, is of historical interest; amongst the humorous pictures is The Test, Ma Goes to Work, and The Trick That Failed. A very pathetic subject is The Poor Composer. The Galley Slave is the title of a very strong picture taken from Victor Hugo's work, "Les Misérables." During the evening songs were rendered by Master George Butterworth, juvenile vocalist.

Exchange Hall.—Manager, Mr. E. Gray.—Messrs. Raymond's have taken over this popular place of entertainment, and have opened it on the two-houses-a-night system. The pictures include Christmas Eve's Dream (children's picture), John Brown (comic), The Poacher's Revenge (dramatic), The Soldier's Servant and Foolshead the Timid One (comic), Kidnapper Turns Rescuer and The Death Disc were two very interesting films. Beatrice's Big Hat was a very laughable comic, and proved a very interesting study in millinery fashions. Miss Eva Carter, the lady baritone, sang very pleasingly, and Preston Holmes was very good in a musical act. Selections of music were given at intervals by the Scarlet Band.

NEW CINEMATOGRAPH HALL, GEORGE STREET, HULL.

This hall, which is now being erected in George-street, is to be used permanently for cinematograph entertainments. The site is a parallel one, running from George-street to Dock-street.

The building will be approached from George-street and Dock-street. There will be spacious lobbies, booking-offices, and marble staircase at the entrance, fitted with swing doors. The entrance vestibule at the front is 18ft. by 27ft, and is to be decorated and made quite an important feature. The ground floor will measure 70ft. by 37ft., and will have a gangway on either side, and at the back; the main hall measures 90ft. by 37ft. There will be a small platform and orchestra at the southern end with emergency exit and entrance for part of the ground floor. On the first floor will be a large circle and balcony, fitted with tip-up cushioned seats, and adjacent will be a tea and refreshment lounge. The operating box will be fireproof and outside the auditorium.

The floors will be supported on steel girders, and the roof will be of steel construction. The premises will be amply ventilated, lighted, and heated by radiators. There will also be cloak rooms and lavatory conveniences. The new hall will hold about 1,500 persons. The style of architecture will be Renaissance, the front being terra cotta. The architects are Messrs. Freeman, Son, and Gaskell, and the builders Messrs. George Houlton and Son, Hull. The proprietors are The Prince's Hall (Hull) Company, Limited. The hall will be under the management of the Messrs. Morton, of the Grand and Alexandra Theatres, Hull, with whom are associated the New Century Animated Picture Company, Limited, of St. George's Hall, Bradford, of which Mr. Sydney Carter is the managing-director. This hall will be one of the most imposing buildings of the city, and the cost of it £10,000.

BRIGHTON.—Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—The animated pictures exhibited here this week prove very attractive. Suffer Little Children conveys a drama of great human interest; Fools of Fate, The Roughs' Capture, and Sweet Revenge comprise stirring incidents; A Journey from Fretien to Vallorane is a fine travel picture; and much amusement is afforded by The Romance of a Boot and Slipper and The Interrupted Marriage. Mr. Osland Denner sings baritone songs in good style.

CANTERBURY.—St. Margaret's Hall.—This picture palace is as popular as ever, and this week the management, in addition to a full programme of dramatic and comical films, are showing nightly The Martyrdom of Adolph Beck. Crowded houses are the rule.

CARLISLE.—New Public Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Sydney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Peter Mooney.—Some fine films of the Paris floods are being exhibited here this week, and prove very interesting. The Best Man Wins meets with general approbation. A powerful dramatic story is told in the Mountaineer's Honour; much amusement is caused by A Sticky Proposal and Stick-fast Paste.

DARLASTON.—Queen's Hall.—Lessees and Managers, the Manchester Royal Animated Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Beesley.—Another very attractive programme of up-to-date pictures is being shown here this week, the chief films being The Hand, The Fisherman's Fiancée, The Curse of Money, and Jack Johnson in Training. Variety is given by Alwyn and Fisher, vocalists; and, owing to the success made by Ingram and Irving in their screaming absurdity The New Office Boy, they have been retained for another week, and are well appreciated.

DEWSBURY. — Industrial Hall. — Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Christian.—The pictures shown here this week are of a high-class order. Amongst the most prominent are The Light that Failed, a splendid dramatic picture. The Child Benefactor is another dramatic episode which is intensely interesting. The Motor Cyclist is a very amusing picture; so also is the one of the Foolshead series. Another excellent film is the one shown. Comedy and Tragedy; and the travel picture, Egypt, is very instructive. The Accomplice is also a powerful cinedrama. Illustrated vocal items are given at intervals.

DUBLIN.—Round Room Rotunda.—The Irish Animated Picture Company conclude their successful Christmas season to-night. A varied and interesting lot of pictures are being displayed this week, and the principal include The Recent Floods in Paris, The Fight Between Summers and Welsh, and a series of new comic pictures which are heartily enjoyed. Mr. Frank M'Grail and Miss Nellie Moore, vocalists, also appear with success.

Volta.—An excellent series of pictures are being shown here. The programme includes How Steel is Welded, Visions, Between Love and Duty, Berlin, concluding with a comic farce.

DUNDEE.—Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—At this popular establishment this week a splendid programme of animated pictures is provided by Mr. Lunn, who, judging by the large attendances nightly, has hit the Dundee public's taste to a nicety. Into the Shadow is the title of a very pathetic picture. When We Called the Plumber In creates roars of laughter. Up San Juan Hill depicts an enthralling and intensely human story of how a young American officer of proved intelligence was entrusted with, and delivered, a message from the late President McKinley, of the United States, to General Garcia, recognising the Spanish insurgent forces in Cuba, and declaring for American intervention.

Newman's Picture Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Newman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Noble.—Large houses are still the rule in Mr. Newman's establishment, where this week a capital assortment of films is on view.

EDINBURGH.—Pringle's Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—The Stage Driver is an admirable picture of Russian life; it tells in dramatic fashion how a stern father dealt with a reprobate son. The Broken Gate and The Hunchback Fiddler are both stories of love, which end, as they should, happily. The humorous films, such as Getting Even, are much appreciated; and Fred Collins (comedian) and Lule Bright (comedienne) contribute capital variety turns.

Operetta House.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Among many capital films shown here this week, Dimitri Donskoy, which is a beautifully coloured series of pictures of Russian scenes, is certainly the best; Across the Divide is a thrilling story of a gambler's repentance, while The Restoration is a dramatic American love story; The Bootmaker's Revenge and Foolshead Steals a Carpet keep the audience in roars of laughter; Horse Ranching in the Argentine is very interesting and exciting; and the Brothers Allison are very humorous as comedians.

GLASGOW.—Gaiety, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week, for the B.B. pictures have a splendid selection of films which are just the taste of their many patrons. Rosie Dawn evokes applause for her dancing, and Julia Gray, a soprano vocalist above the average, sings several attractive items.

GLOUCESTER.—King's Hall.—Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Some excellent pictures are shown this week, that of an aerial battle being most popular. The cinephone, illustrated songs, and Miss Gwynne, vocalist, make up a good entertainment.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—The Gem.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. V. Barr.—The management have brought their programme up to date by exhibiting this week a special film illustrating the Paris Floods. Mr. S. Smith, a local vocalist, is here this week and goes well.

GREENOCK.—Empire.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank L. Clayton.—Among the excellent pictures being shown here this week are The Death Disc, A Kind-hearted Employer, In the Window Recess, The Cripple's Matrimonial Stakes, and A Short-sighted Sportsman. "Swing Me Higher, Obadiah," is given on the Cinephone.

HANLEY.—King's.—The programme here is a lengthy one. The chief films are The Little Teacher, La Camargo, Too Beautiful, The Bold Corporal, The Vanishing Sportsman, and Wide Awake. Miss Linda Arthur is a splendid little vocalist, and is a great hit in vaudeville items.

KETTERING. — Vint's Electric Palace.—Proprietor, Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—This popular picture house is still receiving excellent support. The programme this week includes The Minstrel, Sweet Revenge, The Little Milliner, A Royal Outcast, and Circus Life. The Boriskes, Miss Kitty Woodford, and Alf Leonard are the variety artists.

KIRKCALDY.—Exchange Pavilion.—Licensee, Dr. Walford Bodie; Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The London Safety Bioscope Company are again in evidence in submitting the very best of films for this week's show, the principal of which are: The Bank Note, Foolshead Gets Married, Children of the East, Fraternal Jealousy, The Tramp's Unlucky Day, Sunshine After Storm. Lenoma Coady tops the bill, and her catchy chorus songs, rendered in her own naïve style, are accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

LEAMINGTON.—Electric Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—The programme this week is well up to the standard of excellence. Topping the bill is a picture entitled The Kind-hearted Employer, brimful of dramatic interest, whilst The Miniature is a beautiful film of love and jealousy. Other pictures providing great interest and amusement include Toilers by the Sea-shore, No Excitement, Almost, Will of a Youngster, and An Improved Inkstand. Miss Mina Langton again sings illustrated songs with great artistic merit, whilst the elocutionist, Mr. Bert Williams, who has already established himself a warm favourite with local audiences, gives a very fine rendering of Mr. Geo. R. Sims' famous poem "Fallen by the Way."

LLANELLY.—The Picturedrome.—Lessee, Mr. T. H. Samuel; Manager, Mr. H. B. Parkinson.—This establishment, better known as the Athenæum, is quite a success. The chief picture this week is that of The Life Story of George Washington, the first President of the United States of America.

NORTHAMPTON.—Temperance Hall.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrews' Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—An excellent series of dramatic and amusing pictures is shown here this week; the principal ones are The Brothers, Redwing's Gratitude, and The Diver's Remorse. Miss Margaret Payne sings very nicely.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Black.—The subjects presented here this week include Lieut Rose,

The Painter's Trunk, A Shortsighted Sportsman, Scenes in Massua, &c. The Howards, mystery entertainers, appear, and are heartily greeted.

HOWARD HALL.—The bill of fare presented here is of a varied and entertaining order. The Floods in Paris is a very interesting film, and A Corner in Wheat and The Theft of Diamonds are also greatly enjoyed. The Romance of an Umbrella, What the Cards Foretold, &c., make up a good programme.

GAIETY PICTURE HALL.—Patrons here are again well catered for, Lieut. Rose, On the Border, The Little Violin Player, and other pictures being greatly enjoyed. Miss Iris Smith, ballad vocalist, appears with success.

NORWICH. — AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Mr. E. V. Barr continues his interesting entertainment of animated pictures, and has been well patronised. This week the list of films include The Rag and Bone Merchant's Wedding, Trapped by Bioscope, an election skit, Scroggins Puts Up for Blankshire, A Mountaineer's Honour, a thrilling Mexican drama, The Señorita, a beautifully-coloured dramatic film, The Hunchback Fiddler, and one of laughs, No Excitement; but the principal and attractive film is The Great Paris Flood, which is admirably depicted and watched with great interest. During the show, in illustrated scenas Mr. Tom Taylor, with much taste, renders "The Skipper" and "Sister"; Miss Bessie Hardman also pleasingly sings "Somewhere," and the duet "Excelsior" by the two artists meets with much approbation.

CENTRAL HALL, UPPER MARKET.—Lessees, The Goodman Entertainment Co.; Manager, Mr. Syd Goodman.—This place of amusement is highly attractive and well patronised. The films this week are The Scales of Justice, An Unlucky Picnic, Peeps into Nature's Realm, The Legend of the Lighthouse, The House under Repair, A Smart Burglar, In the Land of Goldmines, and A Child of the Forest.

OLDHAM.—ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—This week the Floods in Paris are drawing good houses, the pictures being quite realistic and clear. Another fine picture, founded on Tennyson's poem of Launcelot and Elaine, is most enjoyable. The Poacher's Revenge is a good dramatic film, as is The Vendetta. A Good Tip is a capital picture. The Conquest is a most comical picture; and another one is Peddling Peter Pinches Poultry. A most amusing film is one entitled How a Parliament Dissolves. Mr. Don Cameron contributes a capital song.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lester King. A good bill is provided this week, the pictures including a capital dramatic film, Lieut. Rose and the Robbers of Fingals Cave. The following are also included: Benvenuto Cellini The Airship Destroyer, Fresh Air Fiend, Mr. Giddy's Revenge, The Tempting Necklace, and The Child with the Dancing Jack. "Don't forget to drop a line to mother" is sung by Mr. King.

BROWN'S ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown.—The Paris Floods are drawing good houses nightly. The Flower Seller is a fine picture, and is very popular. The Cowboy's Romance and The Poacher's Revenge are very dramatic. The funny pictures include Not What He Expected, Menagerie Let Loose, and a good trick picture, The Mirror of Life.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hughes.—Through the Breakers, a drama of domestic life; Comata, the Sioux, a tale of the Wild West; Masterpiece; and Diamond Cut Diamond, are in the bill. A capital series of comic films are included; and a good song is given by Mr. H. Dawson.

READING. — VAUDEVILLE ELECTRIC THEATRE (Broad-street).—A splendid film depicting scenes from the lives of George Grossmith and Edmund Payne and a scene from Our Miss Gibbs creates great amusement. An up-to-date film depicts the Paris Floods. Other good films are The Fickle Girl, The Little Violinist, and The Hempen Bag.

WEST'S PICTURE PALACE (West-street).—Paris Under Water is the subject of a splendid film, showing the terrible flood calamity. A number of other interesting and amusing films are shown.

ROCHDALE.—EMPIRE AND PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Ralph Pringle.—The pictures here continue to attract good houses. Briton and Boer depicts scenes in the Boer war; some pretty scenes are depicted in the story of Lancelot and Elaine; sensational subjects include On the Little Big Horn and Lieutenant Rose, R.N.; and others of humorous subjects, with variety turns by Les Zelovas, acrobats; Newman and Brown, in a musical episode, "What might have been"; and The Mysterious complete a capital bill of fare.

SALFORD.—OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—Cycling Honeymoon, Innkeeper's Daughter, Judge Not, Wonderful Coat, Marvellous Mesmerist, Kidnapper to the Rescue, Smart Burglar, Country Doctor, and Delight of the Sport are among this week's Regent animated pictures. Mr. Tom Sherlock sings illustrated songs.

NEW CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, Matt. Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilbert.—This week's Raymond pictures include The Postmistress, Foolshead Among the Savages, A Kind Employer, No Excitement, Coffee Planting Industry, Musical Family, Cabin Boy to King, and Drowsy Dick's Dream. Mr. Gilbert's songs are enjoyed by large houses.

STALYBRIDGE.—ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Manager, Mr. W. Llewellyn.—The above management have secured a splendid programme for this week, and among those that the audience seem to appreciate the best are The Waif, Indian Bill, The Lie, the Corsican's Revenge, and Bobby Wide Awake. Helsingborg to Cape Collen, a very pretty travel subject; The Blunt Knife, The Widow, His Doom, Foolshead, and The Theatre Pass. Mr. M. B. Lees, a local baritone, sings to prettily-illustrated songs.

FORESTERS' HALL.—Lessees, Bros. Lens; Manager, Mr. Frank Lens.—A very pleasing programme of bioscopic films by the above management at this hall. The main pictures are Into the Shadow, a pathetic story of a mother's grief at the supposed death of her youngest child; The Drunkard's Reformation, The Son of a Soldier, A Girl's Noble Sacrifice, The Pillagers, The Gibson Goddess, Love Should Not be Trifled With, The Kids on a Spree in Brussels, and a very funny election picture entitled Scroggins for Blankshire. A witty comedian is found in Bobby Burns.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden.—A crowded audience was assembled here on Monday night, and a good programme was on view. Chief among the pictorial section were His Reformation and The Flower Seller, both fine dramatic items. Sands and Vincent gave a turn which embraced much good comedy and capable vocalism; Leicee Prinella, soubrette, gave a pleasant turn; Wilfred Gregory is a contortionist of high order, and was heartily recalled.

PALACE THEATRE. — Hamilton's Picture and Variety Co.—A good bill is being well received this week. Dick Donovan is an excellent film, and very popular. The variety was also good. Carelo gives an unusually good juggling act; Yettmar and O-Sasa-San are particularly smart magicians; and a very amusing burlesque act is given by the Hersleb Brothers.

WHITEHAVEN.—MARKET HALL.—The pictures shown here this week are of the usual high-class order, the principal ones amongst them being: Stricken Blind, A Tragedy of Love, Gentle Hearts, The Awakening, and The Subterfuge. Mr. E. J. Sheldon, comedian, is also in the bill.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, The London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. W. Reynolds-Benjamin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hickman.—This new place of amusement is gaining that success it undoubtedly deserves and the provision of afternoon tea for ladies is a welcome innovation. The pictures this week are quite up to the high standard of their predecessors, and include the following: The Way of the Cross, a descriptive picture full of interest; A Trick that Failed, which causes roars of laughter; Professional Duty; Across the Glaciers, a beautiful travel picture; The Innkeeper's Daughter, a drama of heart and hand affection. Some excellent films are shown of the recent disastrous floods in Paris.

YORK.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Bowman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bradley.—Through the Breakers is a picture full of interest, The Captain's Misadventure is very funny, The Restoration is also full of merit; the variety company is also a good one, and includes the Three Cymbelines, Fred Sidney, and Carlos Blondell—all clever turns.

VICTORIA HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Bert Butler.—The Dr. Bodie Pictures are crowding the house nightly; the Floods in Paris are cleverly shown, and The Trick that Failed is also good. Fox and Melville, in their latest successes, are well received.

CINEMATOGRAPH ACT (1909).

THE CONDITIONS ATTACHED TO LICENCES.

At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, the Theatres and Music Halls Committee presented an important report containing the conditions to be attached to all licences granted under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, the number of applications received, points arising under the Act, &c.

The report was as follows:—

The Council on Dec. 14, 1909, delegated to us its powers under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, and on Dec. 21, 1909, approved the form of licence to be granted under the Act. The regulations made by the Home Secretary, a copy of which will be laid on the table, were received on Dec. 21, 1909, ten days before the Act came into operation. No. 3 of the regulations requires that every licence granted under the Act shall contain specific conditions for complying with regulations Nos. 1 and 2, relating to the general arrangement of the building, and also a clause providing for its lapse, or, alternatively, for its revocation by the licensing authority if any alteration is made in the building or the enclosure for the cinematograph apparatus without the sanction of the licensing authority. In the case of licences granted for premises at present licensed for music or dancing or stage-plays, the following conditions have been attached, in addition to the condition prescribed by the Council on Dec. 21, 1909, prohibiting the opening of the premises on Sundays—

(1) That, in the event of any alteration being made in the building or enclosure without the sanction of the Council having been first obtained, the licence will be liable to be revoked by the Council.

(2) That the rules required to be observed when the premises are used under the music licence be complied with.

In the case of licences granted for premises which are not licensed for music, &c., the following conditions have been attached in additions to the condition prohibiting the opening of the premises on Sundays—

(1) That in the event of any alteration being made in the building or enclosure without the sanction of the Council having been first obtained the licence will be liable to be revoked by the Council.

(2) That all the exits be indicated by notices clearly painted to the satisfaction of the Council over the doors or openings at a height of at least 6ft. 9in. above the floor.

(3) That each exit door or opening do have a distinct light fitted over it, such light to be on a different system from the main lighting of the building, to illuminate the exit notice, and that such light be maintained throughout the performance.

(4) That all exit doors, if fastened during the time the public are in the building, be secured during such time by automatic bolts only of a pattern and in a position to be approved by the Council, and do have a notice clearly painted on them indicating the method of opening.

(5) That the management do allow the public to leave by all exit and entrance doors, which must open outwards.

(6) That the seating be set out so that there shall be a space of at least one foot in depth between the front of one seat and the back of the next, measured between perpendiculars, and that where chairs are used they be battened together in lengths of not less than four or more than twelve chairs.

(7) That all curtains covering doors or in passages be hung on sliding rings, and so as not to trail on the ground, and be parted in the centre.

APPLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Two hundred and fifty applications have been received for licences under the Act, 101 being for premises already licensed for music, dancing, or stage-plays. Of these 101 applications, ninety-four have been granted, and the remaining seven are under consideration. Except in a few instances, where works required by the Council under the music licence had not been executed, the licences have been granted for a period of twelve months. Of the 149 applications received in respect of premises not licensed for music, &c., ninety have been granted and ten refused. The remainder will be dealt with as rapidly as possible, the procedure being as follows—a preliminary inspection is made of the premises, and if it is found that the premises are not absolutely unsuitable for cinematograph exhibitions a licence for one month is granted. At the same time an intimation is given to the licensee that the time at the Council's disposal has not been sufficient to enable all the facts in connection with the application to be considered, and that the grant of the licence must not be deemed to prejudice any action which the Council may take upon an application for a renewal of the licence. A detailed inspection is then made of the premises as rapidly as possible, and particulars of alterations necessary to make them suitable for cinematograph exhibitions are forwarded to the licensee, with an intimation that the alterations will have to be executed before the expiry of the licence already issued if a renewal of the licence is required.

In a few cases where it was possible for detailed reports on the premises to be made before the issue of the licences, licences have been granted for three months, the special works required to be executed to the premises being endorsed on the licence in the form of additional conditions.

Seven applications for licences under the section of the Act which deals specially with movable exhibitions (sec. 7 (3) (a)) have been received. The Act contemplates that yearly licences shall be granted in respect of movable shows; but as some of the applications received appear to raise questions under the London Building Acts, licences for one month only have been granted pending a consideration of these questions.

SUNDAY OPENING OF PREMISES LICENSED FOR CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITIONS.

The condition attached to the licences prohibiting the opening of the premises on Sundays, Good Friday, or Christmas Day, has not been favourably received by the proprietors of the premises, and a deputation from the Kinematograph Trade Protection Society, Ltd., and the Cinematograph Defence League, Ltd., has appeared before us and urged that it might be withdrawn. We have also received a deputation representing the Variety Artists' Federation, the Actors' Association, the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, the National Association of Theatrical Employees (including cinematograph operators), and the Imperial Sunday Alliance, which urged that the prohibition against Sunday opening inserted in the licence should be maintained, and that no relaxation of this prohibition should be allowed except under the same conditions as those insisted upon in the case of premises licensed for music, viz., the conditions laid down by the Council on May 4, 1909 (p. 1037-8). We now have under consideration the representations made by the deputations, and hope to be able to report to the Council on the subject on Feb. 15, 1910, and we have given an assurance to the Kinematograph Trade Protection Society that in the meantime no proceedings will be instituted by the Council in respect of premises being opened on Sundays for cinematograph exhibitions.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Legal proceedings for an infringement of the provisions of the Act have been taken against the proprietor of the Royal Cambridge Music Hall. In this case cinematograph entertainments were given at the premises after Dec. 31, 1909, notwithstanding that the Council's requirements respecting the electric lighting installation had not been complied with, and as failure to comply with these requirements also involved non-compliance with the Secretary of State's regulations, proceedings were taken under the Cinematograph Act. The magistrate inflicted the maximum penalty of £20 and £5 a day for the three days included in the summons, and ordered the defendant to pay one guinea costs.

POINTS ARISING UNDER THE ACT.

We have been advised by the solicitor that, as regards cinematograph exhibitions in club premises, any such exhibition for the purposes of which inflammable films are used comes within the operation of the Act, and a licence in respect of the premises must be obtained if such entertainments are given at the premises on more than six occasions during the year, and if used on fewer occasions the provisions of section 7, sub-section 2, must be observed. We have also been advised that a cinematograph exhibition given to the inmates of a workhouse cannot be regarded as an exhibition in a private dwelling house, and is therefore not exempt from the provisions of the Act.

New Barry Picture Show.

MR. LEON VINT, the well-known entertainer, has now practically completed the work of converting the old Salvation Army hall and barracks, Thompson-street, Barry Docks, Glam., into a first-class picture house, and it is expected to open the place in its new capacity to-day (Saturday). The hall internally has undergone complete alteration. The four formerly bare walls have been tastefully decorated, and a commodious gallery has been erected. It is probable that variety as well as pictures will shortly be introduced into the programme. Mr. Arthur Brogden is to control the concern.

"The Flood" in Bradford.

BRADFORD is singularly well served in the matter of cinematograph pictures, for scarcely any great world event occurs but it is served still topically hot by the managements of the picture shows in the city. The terrible floods in Paris form the subject of a lengthy and excellent film which has been shown at St. George's Hall. Mr. Henry Hibbert, of the Temperance Hall, is also to the fore in dealing with the pictorial presentment of these devastating horrors. Having sent members of his staff, at considerable expense, to take photos, he has obtained some striking results, which were shown last Saturday.

Stoll's Panopticon, Cardiff.

AN enjoyable programme has been presented this week at Stoll's Panopticon, St. Mary-street, Cardiff. The American Bioscope Company have shown Lieutenant Rose, R.N.; or, The Robbers of Fingall's Cave, and the scenery in the pictures is remarkable for fidelity to nature. The Romance of a Cowboy thrills with excitement and provokes breathless interest. Other items include A Menagerie Let Loose, Paris from the Eiffel Tower (a scenic picture of absorbing interest), the beautiful spectacle of The Dance of Fire, and the humorous comedy Not What He Expected.

Hull's New Picture Palace.

THE new picture palace in George-street, Hull, is to have spacious lobbies, booking-offices, and marble staircase at the entrance, fitted with swing doors. The entrance vestibule at the front is 18ft. by 27ft., and is to be quite an important feature. The ground floor will measure 70ft. by 37ft., and will have a gangway on either side and at the back; the main hall measures 90ft. by 37ft. There will be a small platform and orchestra at the southern end with emergency exit and entrance for part of the ground floor. On the first floor will be a large circle and balcony, fitted with tip-up cushioned seats, and adjacent will be a tea and refreshment lounge. The floors will be supported on steel girders, and the roof will be of steel construction. The premises will be amply ventilated, lighted, and heated by radiators. The new hall will hold about 1,500 persons. The style of architecture will be Renaissance, the front being terra cotta. The architects are Messrs. Freeman, Son, and Gaskell, and the builders Messrs. George Houlton and Son, Hull. The proprietors are The Prince's Hall (Hull) Company, Limited. The hall will be under the management of the Messrs. Morton, of the Grand and Alexandra Theatres, Hull. This hall will cost £10,000.

Grand, Rawtenstall, Changes Hands.

WE learn that the Grand Theatre, Rawtenstall, which was recently leased by Mr. William Matthews, of Darwen, and has since been running under the management of Mr. J. A. Whitehouse, will at this week-end again change hands, Mr. Matthews having sold his lease of the theatre to the Manchester Electric Theatre Co., who take immediate possession and open on Saturday next.

THE Company intend to convert the theatre into a picture palace, producing the moving pictures in natural colours (Smith Urban Patent). The new venture is to be under the management of Mr. William Renshaw, who has been stage-manager of the theatre ever since its opening in 1899.

Todmorden's Enterprise.

THE new Olympia Picture Palace, Todmorden, was opened on Monday evening by Messrs. A. and H. Andrews, the well-known entertainers of New Compton-street, London. The whole of the receipts have been generously given by Messrs. Andrews to local charities. The building was formerly used as a skating rink, and has seating accommodation for 1,250, including tip-up chairs upholstered in velvet for the stalls. There is an orchestra of five, and variety turns are intended to be run as well as pictures. Mr. Charles Tyers has been appointed manager.

New Wolverhampton Picture Palace.

LAST Saturday the London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd., opened one of their up-to-date Cinema White Theatres in Queen-square, Wolverhampton. Mr. W. Reynolds Benjamin is the general-manager.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—The pantomime Dick Whittington as presented by Messrs. Murray King and Clark's company is proving a great attraction here. Miss Gertrude Gillian in the title-rôle is charming; a bewitching Alice is found in Miss Norah Dwyer; Mr. Murray King is irresistibly funny as Idle Jack; Fitzwarren is enacted in capital style by Mr. Ardene Linden; Messrs. Hebbert Walton and Jamie Dallas as Captain Pott and Peter Pann could scarcely be better placed; Mr. Tom Walls makes an admirable Dame; the Fairy Felina of Miss Edith Jefferies is excellent; and Miss Adele Levey, a strikingly handsome Emperor of Morrocco, is highly successful. Mr. T. R. Pinaud, jun., imitates the Cat to perfection.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. George Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland is paying a first visit here. Mr. Edmund Russell wins repeated applause for a talented and humorous impersonation of Mr. Hook; Mr. Arthur Ballance acts and sings well as Van Vuyt; Mr. Wood Mancey as the Captain gives a good impersonation; Mr. Fred Dark is exceedingly droll as Simon Stimks, and Mr. George Mudie jun., is seen to advantage as Schnapps; Miss Gertrude Melville presents a charming exposition in the title-rôle; Miss C. Sephton gives a clever performance as Mina, and earns repeated encores in her vocal numbers; Miss Cissie Garthorne is an attractive Gretchen. There is a strong and efficient chorus.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Edward Crosland's Melodi Makers, in a musical scena, The Burglar's Dream, achieve great success in their vocalisms. Little Sophie is a clever juvenile artist; Captain Kettle gives a skilful demonstration of coin palming; Miss Madge Allan, comedienne, supplies a spirited turn; Charles Grantley, comedian, is highly amusing; Bains and company present a laughable act, and Mlle. Sylvesto, contortionist, gains much approval.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Les Marbas, acrobats, give an extraordinary display; Valvero's electrical exhibition, "Naval Bombardment," provides a great attraction; Fred Coyle, comedian, is a popular turn; Gladys and Alba, comedy duo, are a success in smart comedy business; Burley and Green are first-class acrobatic tumblers; Miss Margaret Ogilvie is a dashing comedienne; the Sisters Draycott, duettists, are greeted with much applause, and A. G. Spry is an entertaining comedian.

WALLSEND.—BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Duffy; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hy. Hearn.—The Royal Diamonds, one-legged equilibriste and dancers, head the bill, and are accorded a flattering reception; the Monckton score a success in an original sketch entitled Are Wives Dummies?; Chas. N. Daly and company are seen to advantage in a comedy sketch; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, singing box-makers, score in ballads and concerted items; the Danas cause much mirth; and Dot Moss, dancer, &c., Joe Dale, comedian, and pictures complete the programme.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT. — Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—Pantomime again holds sway here, and the visit of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in Aladdin has been attended with success. Miss Kittie Rayburn, in the title-rôle, makes a dashing principal boy; her singing and dancing alike are excellent, and she has won all hearts here. Miss Nancy St. John is an entertaining Princess; Miss Cissie Esdaile as Pekoe, Maisie St. Hilary as Ni See, and Miss Dorothy Erskine are most efficient. Mr. Fred W. Graham as Widow Twankey is exceptionally successful, and irresistible humour permeates his work throughout. Mr. Maneto Klitgaard as the Emperor scores well, and sings with pleasing effect; Mr. Bruce Lindley is good as the Grand Vizier; Mr. Harry Morgan as Abanazar scores a big success with "Let's all go down the Strand," and proves himself a comedian of the versatile order; Mr. Cecil Clayton is very funny as Wishee Washee; and a pair of smart comedians are Messrs. Carl and Carr as the Chinese policemen. Capital specialities are introduced, and the dancing of the La Belle Trio wins appreciation. Mrs. Victor's troupe of juveniles are decidedly clever; the Nine Follettes and the Three Trees are also worthy of praise. The chorus is well balanced and very effective, and the scenery and dresses are in accord with such a light pantomime. Mr. Ashley Richards wields the baton, and Mr. Jack Parsons is the acting-manager of the company. The entire show goes with a merry swing throughout.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—Crowded houses have been the order here. Charles R. Whittle has again had a warm reception; Ruby Babl's Merry Mannikins are well received; Geoffreys and Benson score in the sketch Romeo and Juliet, the lady doing effective work as the slavey. Roy Beavis is a smart magician, and Rene a dainty girl juggler. Percy Dalton does well with a speciality dance, and Guy Rider whistles selections from grand opera. The pictures are good.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—The Creedons' comedy sporting act is good; George James is a smart comedian; and Rose Elliot has a bass voice and sings her songs with taste. Frank E. Ford is a clever dancer. The pictures are a choice assortment.

WATFORD.—PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Responsible Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Wright.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company in Sherlock Holmes is drawing good houses, and deservedly so. Mr. Stewart's impersonation of the name-part is too well known to need further reference. Mr. Charles Brandon is a convincing Prof. Moriarty; and Mr. Eric Morden a Dr. Watson in keeping with one's imagination of the part. Mr. Arnold O. Raper (James Larabee), Master Thos. Russell (Billy), Miss May Beatrice (Madge Larabee), and Miss A. Bruce-Joy (Miss Faulkner) are other well-sustained characters. The thrilling play is well mounted.

WELLINGBOROUGH. — EXCHANGE HALL.—Three performances of The Thief by the Alban and Bernard Limpus' company were watched with the keenest interest and admiration at the beginning of the week. Mr. Bernard Limpus was very fine as Richard Chelford, and Miss Georgina Wynter as Marise quite confirmed the good opinion of her ability formed on her visit some time ago; Mr. F. Morland's interpretation of Raymond Leyton was first-class; Miss Mary Forrester was distinctly pleasing as Isabel; and Mr. C. W. Lindsey did well as Harry; Prothero had a very suitable exponent in Mr. W. Somerset. The fit-up was most effective.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn is presenting the powerful Anglo-Indian drama A Traitor Prince, in which Mr. Beaudyn himself takes the part of Prince Reo Dalmiroz with great skill. Mr. G. E. Dunstan fills the rôle of Lieutenant Frank Derrick; Miss Irene Munroe in the difficult part of Vashti, the Indian snake charmer, is excellent; Miss Phyllis Rae is good as Pansy Blossom; and Miss Irene Stanhope's Lola Vane is a charming study; the other parts also being in very capable hands. The play is excellently mounted.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joe Hastings.—In addition to the pictures at this place of amusement, which, as usual, are up to date, there are some clever turns provided by Will Hebden, the inimitable; Webberley, Drew and Marshall, and Paulette.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Granville.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's pantomime Aladdin is being presented. The work is beautifully staged, and it is replete with good music and up-to-date songs and patter. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Miss Hettie Zillwood, who does it full justice; Miss Lou Charlesworth is also very sweet and dainty as the Princess; Mr. Chas. H. Gallier, Mr. Fred Osmond, Mr. Clarence Turner (Widow Twankey), Mr. Frank Sutherland, and Mr. Pulo fill their respective rôles well, and the fun is never allowed to flag. The speciality artists include the Bros. Lavelle (quaint comedy acrobats), the Sisters Wingrove (duettists and dancers), the Gando Sextette of male voices, and the Venester troupe of dancers.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The Suffragette, played by Bella and Bijou, is greeted with screams of mirth; Richard Corbin's dogs are intelligent and well trained; Chas. Mildare, whistler and bird mimic, is a great success. Other artists who come in for generous applause are the Sisters Caselli (duettists and dancers), Waul Langtry (dialect comedian), and Great and Good (in an amusing "bumpity-bump" turn). Good Bioscope pictures complete.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Messrs. Poole's Myriorama and variety show is paying its annual visit here, and can be said to surpass all previous shows. Mr. J. B. Poole makes an intelligent and interesting cicerone. Amasis thoroughly mystifies his audiences; the Eltemas are received with much favour; the Seven Bramusas are exceptionally smart; Harry Raymond's coon songs are well rendered, and Mr. Geo. Price's illustrated songs are above the average; Willie Dean proves a clever comedian.

WHITEHAVEN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jacques. Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is appearing here in the Lyceum version of The Christian. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin submits a powerful portrayal of John Storm; and Mr. Arthur D. Layland cleverly enacts the character of Drake. Mr. John Blake is convincing as Lord Ure; Mr. Edwin Ling makes a dignified Father Lamplugh; Miss Sissie Murdock feelingly enacts the part of Polly Love; and Miss Muriel Marsden is to be complimented on her fine acting as Glory Quayle.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The F. R. Benson (North) Shakespearean Company is here in a series of plays, including The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Tempest, Twelfth Night, Hamlet, King Lear, Richard the Second, and Macbeth.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—Roller Skating, Fred Karno's latest sketch, causes endless amusement, some clever exhibitions of roker-skating being also given; The Casuals, another of Karno's absurdities, is also mirth-provoking; Orpheus is an exceptionally clever musician; Ruby Royal contributes catchy songs, and Barney Stuart proves himself to be a smart mimic; Ellis Barrieton's vocal efforts are successful; and the Long Brothers sing and dance themselves into favour; others who contribute are the Swifts, comedy cyclists; and V. Duovocine, vocalist.

WISHAW, N.B.—PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse.—Fahndy Troupe of Hungarian acrobats are topping the bill here in a daring and sensational acrobatic act; Tiny Arnold is a very big favourite for so small a person; Paul Cavalli gives a pleasing athletic exhibition; Seely West and Rhodesia are entertaining in a musical juggling turn; Marie Powell, waif impersonator and violoncellist, is an excellent turn; Lytton and Bland, comedians, together with the Bioscope, conclude.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard.—Mr. Wilson Howard's company, in Under the Iron Heel, is the attraction here. Mr. Wilson Howard plays effectively as Rene de Maupassant; the villainous Otto Marx has an able representative in Mr. W. J. Richards; Mr. John Tafford is good as Father Mirbleau; Mr. Austin H. Longford is an excellent Sergt. Bleucher; and Mr. Carl Vallender is an amusing Schultz. Miss Carlotta Anson pleases as Germaine Mirbleau; Miss Jessie Yatman is particularly good as André; and Miss J. Douglas Hicks is well placed as Maman Goutte.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Jan Rudenyi, the violinist, is starring here this week in The Power of Music. Able support is rendered by Miss Hilda Stewart as Eileen Granville and Mr. Drew Mackintosh as Renard Corona. Dutch Daly's humorous patter keeps the audience in one perpetual roar; Mme. Dalmeire's performing animals are interesting; the Donatos, one-legged acrobats, show remarkable agility; and other pleasing turns are contributed by the Hamiltons, comedians; Ada Martine, comedienne and dancer; Spry and Austin, comedians; and Fred Hallam, comedian and dancer.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh are presenting With Edged Tools. The cast is a strong one, and includes Mr. J. Geddes as Sir John Meredith.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—The Evalos, in jocular jugglery, Mr. "E.," with up-to-date jokes, and the Two Lilleys (negroes) all do good turns. Dove Eye's Gratitude, a strong Mohawk picture, wins applause. In the Window Recess is also a very good film.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Mack.—Great Scott, a versatile comedian, Muriel Dante, vocalist, Le Wist, ventriloquist, and the sleight-of-hand man Remo, with capital picture novelties, including The Little Rancher, all help to make up an attractive programme.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—On Monday the pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk was presented by an efficient company, among whom may be mentioned Misses Lallah Melrose, Vera Dudley, Lucia Edwards, Clara Edwards, Rene Ashley, and Messrs. Matt Melrose, Fred Beck, Phil Inglis, J. E. Cowell, George Tichborne, J. Ebworth, and J. D. Hunter.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. J. Scott.—Leslie and Player, comedy duettists and patterers, cause roars of laughter; the Wys, in their comic and acrobatic pantomime, create plenty of fun. The other artists include Alf Tristram, descriptive vocalist and clog-dancer; and Tom Maynard. The Bioscope Pictures this week are extra good.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—There is much that is beautiful and funny in Mr. Charles Elderton's pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Miss Dulcie Lawrence looks the dashing Crusoe, and sings with taste; Miss Isa Gibson is smart in figure, a clever dancer, and sings with much grace—altogether a delightful effort; Mr. Teddy Worth as Billy never seems to tire, and has achieved an immense success; Miss Nina St. Elmo is a dashing Captain Kettle; and Miss Ivy Boulton a captivating Polly. A clever impersonation of Will Atkins is given by Mr. Fred Boulton; and a characteristic study of Dame Crusoe is given by Mr. J. H. Booth. Specialities are introduced with much effect by the Three Ellons on the bars; Carson Hicks, a clever dancer; Miss Bartinelli, contortionist; the Marblesque Trio, living statues; and the Lottie Stone Troupe of Dancers.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Abridged operas have proved a huge success this week, crowded houses being the rule. In Cavalleria on Monday Mr. J. F. O'Sullivan was heard to great advantage; Mr. Leonard Russell sang with much skill and effect as Turiddu; and the efforts of Miss Toni Seiter (Santuzza), Miss Anna Hope, and Miss Muriel Jeffries were much appreciated. The variety turns are also good. Marie Racko and company give a clever acrobatic performance; May Baskerville sings sweetly; Carl Muller is an eccentric dancer of a high order; the Mars Trio are clever acrobats; and Barnes and West, dancers; Hess and Chivers, skaters; the Carlton and Maie Trio, acrobats; and Shawn Desmond, comedian, all do well.

EXHIBITION HALL.—The Royal Italian Circus remains another week. Fresh turns are introduced, and new comic scenes provide much amusement.

Going to Birmingham.

MR. FLETCHER, manager of the Theatre de Luxe, Strand, is taking up his duties at the Masonic Hall, Birmingham, on Monday next.

A STRONG attraction is provided at the Leamington Theatre Royal by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company, which is appearing with great success in The King and the Unknown Woman. Mr. Wolfesley Draper embodies Prince Loris admirably, his manly bearing greatly enhancing the performance, and as the intriguing Prince Menski Mr. Stephen E. Scanlin acts tactfully. As the unknown woman, Zora, Miss Violet Carlyle displays much charm and grace; Miss Gertrude Sterroll gives a very effective portrayal of Countess Melvitch; much amusement is provided by Miss Cissie Podmore, who appears as Schnapps, and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen, who plays Corporal Stack. Other creditable performances are the General Platz of Mr. W. R. Winning, the Captain Gava of Mr. Cyril Harrison, the Keloff of Mr. Fred R. Roper, the General Bralveff of Mr. C. H. Henderson, the Cascar of Little Elsie Clark, the Else of Miss Ellen Richmond, and the maid of Miss Ada Douglas. The piece is elaborately staged and dressed.

"CINEMATOGRAPH COPYRIGHT." (The law affecting the same.) By William

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore began an engagement at the Empire Theatre last Monday, and received a most enthusiastic welcome. They appeared in The Mollusc, and repeated the success they made in the same play during their last visit to this city. The fashionable audience that filled the theatre evinced the heartiest enjoyment of the fine performance given by these distinguished artists, and one may learn from a mere glance at the newspapers that Sir Charles Wyndham enjoys the highest degree of favouritism whenever he comes to this country. In fact, his personality is one that has always impressed the Americans most agreeably. At the end of the second act, after numerous recalls, Sir Charles addressed the audience. Six months ago, he said, the welcome he received was as warm as the weather, and he was glad to find just as much warmth in a January reception. When Sir Charles announced that he had arranged to pay an annual visit to America during the next five years there was a round of applause.

"The King of Cadonia" came to Daly's Theatre on the 10th inst. with good recommendations from London, but had a cool reception. Described as a great success "across the water," the piece was "Americanised," according to the announcements, which probably means that it was transmogrified. At any rate, it seemed decidedly tame and ordinary, although the company included several clever players who did their best to be entertaining. Miss Marguerite Clark, who appeared as Princess Marie, was the star, and Mr. William Norris, as the Duke of Alasia, was "featured." Mr. Melville Stewart's fine voice was heard to advantage in several songs, and Miss Clara Palmer made a hit as Militza, her song, "Come along, pretty girl," being a very popular number.

"The Arcadians" scored an instantaneous success last Monday at the Liberty Theatre. The newspapers praise the production unreservedly. The exquisite setting, the beautiful music, and the charm and grace of the lady artists who play the principal parts combine to make this the most attractive entertainment of its kind that the New York stage has seen during the present season. Miss Julia Sanderson, as Eileen Cavanagh, danced and sang delightfully, and was repeatedly recalled. Miss Ethel Cadman, a newcomer, as Sombra, the Arcadian girl, captivated the audience completely. She sang "The Pipes of Pan," "Arcady is ever young," and "Light is my Heart" with exquisite taste and feeling. In the comedy scenes Mr. Percival Knight, as Peter Doody, the lugubrious jockey; Mr. Frank Moulan, as James Smith; and Miss Connie Ediss as Mrs. Smith were highly entertaining. Mr. Knight's droll rendering of Doody's pessimistic ditty, "My Motter," brought down the house. The performance as a whole was remarkable for its grace and beauty.

"The Jolly Bachelors," a musical spectacle in two acts and seven scenes, has won the favour of the public at the Broadway Theatre, being the sort of entertainment that pleases those who seek amusement at the theatre. The book is by Glen MacDonough, the music by Raymond Hubbell, and Lew Fields is the producing manager. The piece is crowded with incidentals, or specialities—call them what you will—that divert the mind and please the eye. The attractions booked by the Shuberts have always excelled in that respect. But the success of the entertainment largely rests on one catchy song—the sort of air that the listener with a "quick ear" whistles and hums for several days afterwards, as if it were the only tune in existence. English audiences know the song, but it has only just reached us. "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" is the name of it, and it is safe to say that the organs will soon be grinding out the question continually. At the Broadway Theatre it is sung for all it is worth by Miss Nora Bayes, and to say that it makes a hit is putting it mildly. The plot is so small that it is in danger of being overlooked. Three young bachelors who have sworn to pass their days in a state of single blessedness stick to their decision until Astorita Vandergould (Miss Nora Bayes) crosses their path. Being an heiress, this young person decides to marry for love and to put her suitors to the test beforehand. In other words, she seeks one "whose heart does not make a noise like a cash register." In pursuance of her plan she takes a situation as a cashier in a drug store. The three bachelors fall head over heels in love with her and spend a good deal of time amongst the medicine bottles. Then a mistake is made in giving a bottle of poison mixed for a refractory elephant to a college student who wants a morning "bracer." The mistake is soon discovered, and the faithful trio are despatched in a hurry by their mutual inamorata to recover the fatal potion. Part of it, however, has fallen into the hands of a German housemaid who has taken ship for the Fatherland. But by means of an airship she is reached before it is too late, and all ends well.

Miss Bayes plays Astorita Vandergould bewitchingly. Mr. Jack Norworth, Miss Stella Mayhew, Miss Elizabeth Brice, and Mr. Al Leech are prominent in the fun-making, and Mr. Walter Percival is conspicuously successful. Mr. Lionel Walsh plays a "silly ass" part amusingly. Another "song hit" with a non-forgettable melody that everyone has learnt by the time the curtain falls is "What am I going to do to make you love me?" Mr. Billie Taylor, too, puts the audience in a good humour at the outset by singing a capital song, with a swinging chorus, called "Tax the Bachelors."

The new Globe Theatre, at the corner of Forty-sixth Street and Broadway, was opened on the 10th inst. by Mr. Charles Dillingham with a brilliant performance of George Ade's comedy, The Old Town, in which the favourite funmakers, Dave Montgomery and Fred Stone, made a decided hit. In fact, these frisky farceurs are practically "the whole show," for the piece has very little plot. Two enterprising youths named Archibald Hawkins and Henry Clay Baxter leave home, expecting to make a fortune in a year, and when they find themselves "broke" they try to restore their fortunes with a circus. This gives Stone an opportunity to cut his comical capers ad lib., including a burlesque tight-rope walk and lariat dance that wins a storm of applause. Montgomery, with his broad grin and ready speech, is very amusing, and he sings a Japanese song with a capital chorus. The comedians appear as Swedes, and also introduce themselves as a pair of braw Scotsmen with the usual appurtenances. Whatever they do is diverting, and crowded houses are the rule whenever they appear in this city. Mr. Claude Gillingwater, Miss Ailene Crater, Miss Ethel Johnson, and the Hengler Sisters contribute to the success of the piece by their singing and dancing. The new playhouse is handsomely appointed and up to date in every particular.

"The Goddess of Liberty," a musical farce in three acts, the book by Adams and Hough, and the music by Joseph E. Howard, has had a few weeks' run at Weber's Theatre. Lord Jack Wyngate, an English nobleman, has inherited his father's title through the death of his brother. To restore the family fortunes he decides to marry an American heiress, and succeeds in winning the consent of Hope Butterworth. But Hope has a cousin named Phyllis Crane, and Wyngate falls in love with her. Phyllis reciprocating. By having a telegram sent to him, announcing that the report of his brother's death is untrue, Wyngate succeeds in breaking his engagement to Hope, and his betrothal to Phyllis follows. Mr. Edward Abeles appeared with success as Wyngate, and Miss May de Sousa played Phyllis Crane attractively. Miss Frances Demarest made a hit as Hope Butterworth, and Mr. Charles Aveling as Lord Algernon Banbury played a foppish part amusingly.

Miss Annie Russell is appearing as Lady Teazle in the performances of Sheridan's comedy at the New Theatre. Her interpretation of the part has won the approval of the Press and the public. Miss Russell will play Viola in Twelfth Night in the forthcoming production of the Shakespearean comedy at the New Theatre. Mr. Louis Calvert will appear as Sir Toby Belch, Mr. Matheson Lang as Orsino, Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk as Sir Andrew Aguecheck, Mr. Oswald Yorke as Malvolio, Mr. Henry Stanford as Fabian, and Miss Leah Bateman-Hunter as Olivia.

"Love Among the Lions," a new comedy by Winchell Smith, based on a story by F. Anstey, will be produced very shortly by Mr. Charles Frohmann.

Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney, who have been appearing at the Comedy Theatre, New York, in The Affinity, were so well received that their engagement was extended for another week. It is announced that Mr. Irving will enter the field of American theatrical management next season in association with the Shuberts. He will appear in a comedy of American life, and will take over several new plays from England that have never been produced in America. These will be staged under the personal direction of Mr. Irving.

Miss Maude Adams has fulfilled her annual engagement at the Empire Theatre, appearing with marked success once more in Barrie's delightful comedy, What Every Woman Knows.

The Columbia Theatre, situated at the corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh-street, was recently opened to the public. It is to be devoted to burlesque performances, and the initial attraction is called The Follies of New York and Paris. The interior of the new playhouse is designed in the Louis XVI. style. Smoking is permitted.

Mr. R. A. Roberts made a big hit last week at the Plaza Music Hall in his protean sketch Dick Turpin, the house being crowded at every performance. His versatility and celerity are wonderful, and by many in the audience his complete changes of personality were viewed with frank amazement. During this, the second week, of his engagement at the Plaza, he presents Cruel Coppinger. Mr. Wilfred Clarke and his company, in a farce called No More Trouble, are at the same house, their act being received with roars of laughter.

Miss Fannie Ward has been appearing at the Colonial Theatre in an abbreviated version of a play called Van Allen's Wife. Miss Ward gives a vivid portrayal of a woman who believes herself a murderess. She is ably assisted by Miss Janet Slater, Mr. John Dean, and Mr. Henry Duggan.

"Ma Gosse," produced last week at the American Music Hall, created a sensation at the popular variety house conducted by William Morris. It goes the Apache dance one better, and is a big drawing card. There is always a good programme at the Morris houses, and the audiences are correspondingly large and appreciative.

Laddie Cliff, whose popularity on this side is firmly established, is at the Fifth-avenue Theatre. His style is original and pleasing, and his songs are well chosen. His "Stop your nonsense" provokes much laughter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The Faith Healer, a play, in three acts, by William Vaughan Moody, author of The Great Divide, was produced at the Savoy Theatre on the 19th inst. Its theme is the power of suggestion upon the sick. Ulrich Michaelis, the Faith Healer, as described by the author, is "a man of powerful frame, and his manner has the freedom and largeness that comes from outdoor life." He is a type of man better known in the Middle West than in the East. At one time in the New England villages such as he vied with the local "bone-setter" in earning a reputation for remarkable cures. Michaelis is a shepherd. Whilst tending his flocks on the mountain side he hears voices, sees visions, and feels within him the growth of a miraculous power. So he goes forth to spread the doctrine of physical and moral redemption among the suffering and sinful. At a lonely farmhouse in Missouri, where the entire action of the play passes, he raises a bedridden woman to her feet and casts a spell over some members of her family. Her husband and sister-in-law are sceptical, however, their attitude being explained by the portraits of Darwin and Spencer that hang on the walls. Soon the neighbours feel the Faith Healer's presence, and the sick follow him. His ministrations bring him in contact with a physician and a preacher, and they discuss theological and scientific questions from their varying viewpoints. Then the Faith Healer tries to revive a dying child, and finds that his powers have left him. The cause lies in his carnal love for Rhoda, his host's niece, who is bearing the secret burden of a sin. He would abandon his mission and dwell with her in worldly happiness, but he discovers in the physician the girl's betrayer, and drives him from the house. Then his infatuation for Rhoda becomes a pure and holy love, and with the change his power to heal the sick returns. The bedridden woman, who has suffered a relapse, is raised again, and the child is cured. Mr. Henry Miller as the Faith Healer was earnest and impressive. The character as conceived by the author was truthfully represented. The critics praised his performance, but found the play too discursive and deficient in dramatic interest.

Mr. Andrew Mack, who used to be seen in Irish plays before he went to Australia, and stayed away from New York for a long period, is appearing at the Hackett Theatre in The Prince of Bohemia, a musical play, in two acts, by J. Hartley Manners and A. Baldwin Sloane, the scenes of which are laid in England. Mr. Mack impersonates Dick Conyers, a devil-may-care Irishman, who follows Angela Tritton (Miss Christie MacDonald), whom he loves, to England, Angela being a daughter of Uncle Sam. She is accompanied by her father and brother, and the former disapproves of Conyers. The brother is friendly, however, and with his connivance Conyers impersonates a valet in order to be near the girl he loves. Angela hears of his plan, and, to have a little fun at his expense, she puts on male attire and appears before him as a young English lord very much in love with the American girl and determined to marry her. Posing as a young "sport," she is forced by Conyers to smoke a cigarette and take a whisky and soda, which she does, with amusing results. Angela's father (Mr. W. T. Carleton) is finally won over, and the lovers come to an understanding in a pretty scene at the close of the play. Mr. Mack's humour is diverting, and his songs delight the audience. He is as popular as ever. Miss MacDonald, too, is a great favourite, being a sweet singer and a graceful comedienne. She renders "Gentle river," "Just a little bit of blarney," and several other numbers in an extremely pleasing manner. Mr. W. T. Carleton, Miss Georgie Lawrence, Mr. Harold Crane, and Mr. Henry Norman contribute to the success of the performance. The two scenes represent the palm garden and lounge of a seaside hotel and a lock on the Thames, with a houseboat near by.

Miss Maude Adams is now a yacht owner. Her private signal will shortly be hoisted on the Peter Pan, an 18-foot racing motor-boat, which has won fourteen trophies on Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, and Lake Michigan.

Holland has been chosen as the place for Mr. William Collier to disport himself in his new play A Lucky Star, produced on the 18th inst. at the Hudson Theatre. In a way it is a "book play," Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner, who dramatised Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, having constructed the new piece from incidents in a story called "The Motor Chaperon," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. The play is in four acts, and Mr. Collier appears as Ronald Lester Starr, a bustling American, who does his best to disturb the calm of the phlegmatic Dutch. He hires a motor-boat for a tour of the canals, and the right to use the boat is suddenly claimed by two young ladies, one English and the other American. Starr invites them to accompany him, and telegraphs to Scotland for Lady McNairn, his aunt, to join the party as chaperon. She cannot be found, however, so Starr advertises for an aunt, who must be middle-aged and charming, and speak with a Scotch accent. After interviewing several Dutch applicants, he engages a lady of uncertain age, who wears spectacles, and whose efforts to speak the Scotch dialect prove highly amusing. Starr bears the expenses, and the several couples are soon engaged in love-making. Sir Alec McNairn has read in the society news that his wife, Lady McNairn, is with the boating party, the substitute having taken her name, and is led to suppose that his spouse has eloped. He descends on the party, with the result that the identity of Starr's "aunt" is disclosed. Discarding her wig and spectacles, she proves to be such an attractive young woman that Starr falls in love with her, and with the pairing of the three couples the play ends. Mr. Collier's quick, dry witticisms cause constant laughter, and the fun of the piece is kept at a high pitch. Miss Marjorie Wood makes an excellent chaperon. Mr. Frank H. Westerton, who appears as Sir Alec McNairn, and is also the stage-manager, deserves honourable mention, the other parts being well played. The scenery is quaint and pretty. Gazing at the sky, the chaperon points to her "lucky star," which gives the title to the play.

"Mr. Buttles," a comedy, in three acts, by Frederick Arnold Kummer, was produced last week at Weber's Theatre, with Mr. Henry E. Dixey in the title-rôle. The piece is a dramatisation of the author's own story, which was published in The Smart Set. Buttles is an English butler who enters into a co-operative arrangement with the other servants of the household to keep the establishment going, although his master, the Earl of Everdun, is out of funds. The servants, having had to depend on tips in lieu of wages, are naturally much perturbed when the master decides to give up entertaining and is about to apprise his prospective guests. The butler agrees to assume all financial responsibility, and even pay the master a sum of money for the privileges enjoyed. A company is formed called "Buttles, Limited," and the estate is leased during the hunting season, when a considerable income is derived from the genteel blackmail imposed on the guests and dignified by the name of "tipping." By the terms of the agreement the Earl is to receive £1,500 a year, and be a mere figurehead, as usual. But he soon tires of remaining at The Towers, and allows his chauffeur, who is his double, to impersonate him. Ralph Hemingway, alias James Huggins, a London newspaper man, out for a good "story," is the chauffeur. He begins by falling in love with Sally Flighter, an American girl, who, with her mother, is staying at The Towers. All sorts of complications arise. Sir Percy Palmerston tries to elope with Mrs. Bill Flatsaddle, and Captain Flatsaddle plans to do likewise with Sir Percy's fiancée, Miss Dottie Dorrington. Buttles agrees to assist the two men for the usual consideration, and tells each one of the plans of the other. Buttles manages everything. He figures in every adventure and pockets the tip with suavity and despatch. Sally Flighter throws herself at the bogus Earl for the sake of the title, and when the real Earl returns from Paris he has to convince the irate Flighter, president of the Flighter Canned Goods Co., of Chicago, that he is not anxious to marry Miss Flighter. And it is just plain Huggins, the chauffeur, who wins the title-hunting heiress after all. Mr. Dixey's Buttles is a laughable characterisation. Mr. Cyril Chadwick as the Earl of Everdun, Mr. Frank Goldsmith as Huggins, and Miss Minnette Barrett as Sally Flighter help to make the piece amusing. Miss Olive Terry, a niece of Miss Ellen Terry, appears with success as Dottie Dorrington.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WELLINGTON, Dec. 15.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson.—Messrs. Williamson's dramatic company, headed by Mr. Julius Knight and Miss Beatrice Day, fulfilled a three weeks' season here. The opening play was The Breed of the Treshams, with Mr. Knight as Lieut. Beresby, followed in due course by An Englishman's Home, which aroused no enthusiasm in an audience largely composed of people unable to appreciate the conditions. Other plays produced during the three weeks' season were Monsieur Beaucaire, A Royal Divorce, The Scarlet Pimpernel, and The Sacrament of Judas. The leading members of the company were Messrs. Sydney Stirling, Aubrey Mallalieu, Reynolds Denniston, and Leslie Victor. Drama gave place to vaudeville, and Mr. Edward Branscombe's Scarlet Troubadours. The essence of their entertainment is lightness and irresponsibility, which suits Colonial audiences admirably. The choicest items are perhaps Miss Gertrude Parker's songs, "Janie" and "The curate and the maiden," the selections of Mr. Ford Waltham, and Mr. Alfred Cunningham's song, "When bright eyes glance," not forgetting the male quartet, "Lovely Night." Mr. Leonard Griffiths is a very hard-worked accompanist.

AMUSEMENTS IN BOMBAY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BOMBAY, Jan. 7.—The opening of the Novelty Theatre took place on Saturday last, when Mr. Sydney T. Pease presented For the King. Bombay theatre-goers were given an exceptionally fine treat, as the staging was first-rate. Mr. Sydney Pease as Oliver Cromwell gave a masterly exposition of the character, and was recalled after each act to bow his acknowledgments. He was ably seconded by Messrs. Rivington, Brampton, Storey, and Sweet. The Sergeant was played by Mr. W. H. Smith, who was loudly applauded for his fine rendering. Miss Dreury soon won her way into the hearts of the local playgoers, and is now a firm favourite. Miss Lilian Lloyd and Miss Osborn have played during the week several dainty parts; and Miss Minnie Rayner, another old favourite, recalls many pleasant evenings in the past. The company is a strong one, and has deserved its successful season. A distinctive feature of the season has been the delightful way in which the plays have been presented. During the visit the company have played Mrs. Dane's Defence and You Never Can Tell. Mr. Chas. Osbourne is the courteous advance representative.

Pollard's Lilliputians are paying a visit to Bombay, at the Empire Theatre, after many years. Bombay still remembers the former visit with pleasure. These bright and talented "kiddies," all under twelve, throw themselves heart and soul into the spirit of the plays, and act, sing, and dance with a verve and youthful cheerfulness which are delightful.

At the Theatre Royal, Macclesfield, A Destroyer of Men is presented by Miss Hilda Beverley's company. Miss Beverley as Olga Mishla handles the rôle in artistic style, and accomplishes the task with much distinction; Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh is highly successful as Count Starevitch; Karl Mishla has a capable representative in Mr. H. Pearson; Mr. J. Jarrett is an excellent Michael Mishla; Fedor Strellitske is well depicted by Mr. J. Armstrong; and Mr. Edward Keith does well as Coco Tachoski. Miss Mary Brammer gains laurels as Vida Ravel, and Miss D. Hildebrand makes a pleasing Nina Patticake.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Dec. 21, 1909.—The Catch of the Season, by the J. C. Williamson Royal Comic Opera Company, was produced to a very large audience on the 17th at Her Majesty's. The new production was elegantly dressed and daintily scened (the latter by Gordon, Little, and Board), and an augmented orchestra, guided by Mr. Andrew McCunn, heartily welcomed on his return from London. Miss Fanny Dango was the Angela, and she made her saucily dainty. Miss Florence Vie, a newcomer, was Lady Caterham, and a real breezy fairy godmother, too; Mr. Andrew Higginson got all possible good out of the Duke of St. Jermyns; and his mother was in the attractive custody of Miss Alma Vaughan. The stuttering, impossible Dundreary gave Mr. D. B. O'Connor a chance of versatility, and he gripped it readily. Mr. C. Bantock as Sir John Crystal and Mr. Victor Goriet as Mr. Gibson had little to do. Miss Georgie Musgrave (Lady Crystal) and the Misses Lydia Flopp and Nellie Wilson were the stepmother and daughters of poor Cinderellised Angela to the letter. Miss Flopp danced well with Mr. Fred Leslie, who played Higham Montague. A clever young actor, Master Roy Seaton, made Bucket a most laughable part. Miss Minnie Hooper was loudly called for her tuition of the clever dancers. Miss Fanny Bauer, newly returned, came on and sang a song in the drawing-room scene.

The coal strike has seriously interfered with the usual Christmas influx of visitors, but the theatres will have attractive programmes.

Her Majesty's will, in addition to the comic opera at night, have matinées daily of The Climax, in which Miss Florence Young and Mr. Reginald Roberts will appear.

Rupert Clarke and Meynell will produce The Girl Behind the Counter with a full company. Julius Knight and his coterie will revive The Corsican Brothers at the Royal; the Hugh Ward Comedy Company will be at the Palace with A Bachelor's Honeymoon; and the Tivoli will have a holiday programme worthy of Harry Rickards' traditions.

MELBOURNE, Dec. 20, 1909.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait.—The Christmas extravaganza Aladdin was produced on Saturday evening in the presence of an immense audience. Miss Lily Iris made an ideal principal boy. Tall, shapely, handsome, piquant, and winsome, Miss Iris did full justice to the dainty songs allotted her. The other newcomer, Miss Clara Beck (Princess Balroubadour) has also many recommendations as principal girl. Miss Beck gave a painstaking and conscientious performance. She possesses a fine voice, which resulted in most of her songs being encored. Owing to indisposition, Mr. Harry Phydora was unable to appear in the character of the Widow Twankey, which was taken (at very short notice) by Mr. Victor Loydall, who did full justice to the part, and thoroughly deserved the rounds of cheers the audience gave him. Mr. J. M. Campbell made a most comical Emperor of Japan, his patter being both original and entertaining. Mr. Watson as Ting Ting was highly amusing. A feature of the pantomime was the acrobatic turn introduced by Price and Revost. These artists were recalled again and again for their clever performance. The extravaganza throughout is most lavishly mounted, while the songs and music are of a bright and "catchy" nature. Aladdin will run till further notice.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Clarke and Meynell; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—Othello, presented by Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, is only to be played for three more nights. The Merchant of Venice, with Mr. Asche as Shylock and Miss Brayton as Portia, a part which should suit her admirably, will be produced on Thursday evening next.

King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—After a most successful season of two weeks Hamlet was produced for the last time last night in the presence of a large house. The theatre will be closed for the rest of the week to allow of special rehearsals being held of the Christmas pantomime, Babes in the Wood, which will be produced on Monday evening next (Boxing Night).

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Several new artists made their appearance here on Saturday evening. Amongst these were Corrie and Golding, who gave an excellent turn, composed of comedy and dancing; Miss Maud Florance also made her first appearance in a number of startling dances, which won great favour with the audience; Franco Piper gives a clever performance on his banjoes; the Kremka Brothers are now established favourites, with their clever acrobatic act. Other artists appearing on the programme with success include Walter Emerson, Gwennie Hasto, Tom Dawson, Post Mason, Hilda Lane, Will Dyson, Baby Watson, and Eva Hughes. On Saturday evening next the Wille Brothers will make their first appearance in Australia.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—Mr. Brennan is keeping faith with his patrons as regards frequent change of programme. On Saturday evening a large house did full justice to the generous bill of fare provided by Hugo Lear, juggler; Joe Lashwood, comedian; Mabelle, champion dancer; Lucy Lavinia, comedienne; the Weston Sisters, Lily Vocker, Nellie Morrison, Addie Barton, James Craydon, and Con Carroll; while a splendid series of pictures were shown on the Miorama.

West's Pictures drew a full house on Saturday evening. A large and varied programme was submitted to an appreciative audience. Among the films presented was one depicting an incident in the life of Napoleon, which was followed with keen interest throughout. Another picture, illustrating scenes from Fennimore Cooper's book, "The Last of the Mohicans," met with great approval. Tait's Pictures at Olympia, World's Pictures at the Bijou Theatre, and Hoyt's Pictures at New St. George's Hall, all continue to do excellent business.

SYDNEY, Dec. 28, 1909.—Royal.—Mr. J. C. Williamson raked up, out of his dramatic muniment chest, The Corsican Brothers, to give his chief melodramatic actor, Mr. Julius Knight, a Christmas chance. Certainly the age-crusted story was well told, amid the most elaborate and correct surroundings, and the old ankle twist by which the ghost of Louis Die Franchi crossed the stage, as in the sixties, was no longer to the fore. All was absolutely illusory. Mr. Knight impersonated the brothers Fabian and Louis most effectively, and with weird success. The Chateau Renaud of Mr. Sydney Stirling was sufficiently hate-worthy. Baron de Montgiron showed Mr. Leslie Victor in a congenial rôle, and the cast gained by his inclusion. Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu made Aldred de Meynard more important than is usually the case. The innocent cause of all the trouble, Emilie de Lesparre, has never been better played than she is now by Miss Dorothy Grimston; all the old-fashioned courtesy is there, and no lack of naturalness either. The other rôles were well rehearsed and capably interpreted.

Criterion.—Clarke and Meynell staged The Girl Behind the Counter on Boxing Night in complete style, scenery, dresses, dancing, and general mounting being very fine. Mr. William Cromwell, Miss Ruth Lincoln, Mr. Harold Thorley, Mr. Edwin Brett, Miss Emmeline Orford, Mr. J. W. Deverell, Mr. Tom Payne (who sprained an ankle, but mended it before curtain-fall), Miss Essie Perrin, Messrs. Harry French and Phil Carlton were all in the cast. Details next mail.

Palace.—By far the funniest production ever staged in Sydney is A Bachelor's Honeymoon, as performed by Mr. Hugh Ward's comedy company. Without plot, or any distinctiveness of characters (save that they are dressed differently to each other), the story is a ceaseless flow of joke, complication, and absurdity, just the thing to divert one's mind from the annual balance-sheet and the cruel coal strike. Mr. Ward is a past-master in a fun factory; Miss Grace Palotta is as much grace as Palotta; and Mr. H. H. Wallace displayed his usual care as the comic valet, Joe.

Her Majesty's.—The Catch of the Season keeps the box plan busily engaged in filling itself, and will run for many nights to come. As a daily matinée attraction The Climax will be produced.

The Tivoli is packed at every performance of Mr. Harry Rickards's big company of vaudevillians. Mr. Franco Piper has astonished his onlookers and listeners by his deftness and versatility; Mr. Bert Terrell sings (and sings well) Chirgwin's "My fiddle is my sweetheart"; we have still Mdlle. de Dio, Fred Graham and Nellie Dent, Fanny Powers, Fred Curran, and a long list of others.

Mr. Herbert J. Bentley and Miss Eva Truman were married at St. Augustine's, Neutral Bay, on the 22nd, by the Rev. G. Northash, M.A., the Thespian's friend.

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. H. B. Warner, who has made his mark in several dramas produced in New York during the last five years, has won golden opinions for his sincere and convincing portrayal of a "crook" in a four-act play, by Paul Armstrong, called Alias Jimmy Valentine, which has just been produced at Wallack's Theatre and promises to have a long run. Jimmy Valentine, an expert safe-cracker, is "doing time" in Sing-Sing for a crime which he did not happen to commit. His "ten specker in stir," as Jimmy himelf describes it, has been brought about by the false accusation of another criminal whom he threw off a train for insulting a young lady. The scene of the first act is the office of the Warden of the State Prison at Sing-Sing, who is receiving a delegation from a ladies' aid society, the ladies being escorted by the Lieut.-Governor of the State and his niece, Rose Lane. The latter has just related the story of an adventure she met with on a railway train, when she recognises Valentine as the one who protected her from insult. She immediately pleads with her uncle to obtain a pardon for the man, and Valentine makes a good impression when he protests his innocence of the crime for which he has been imprisoned.

In the second act, the father of Rose Lane, a banker in the West, gives Valentine employment in the bank at his daughter's request, she having fallen in love with the reformed safe-cracker. All goes well until two old pals of his, Bill Avery and Red Jocelyn, turn up and persuade him to rejoin them in their burglarious enterprises. Valentine is about to yield when he receives a note from Miss Lane which keeps him in the right path. Enter Detective Doyle, who is willing to keep his hands off the ex-convict if the latter informs on other members of the gang. The cracksman defies Doyle, gives Avery some money to help him along, and goes West with Red Jocelyn, determined to lead an honest life. Three years later, at Springfield, Ohio, Jimmy Valentine has become Mr. Lee Randall, assistant cashier of the bank of which Miss Lane's father is president, and Red Jocelyn is the uniformed watchman. Detective Doyle has lost sight of Valentine, but has kept an eye on Bill Avery, and through following him to Springfield discovers Valentine. The latter receives a telegram from the detective, and decides to brazen it out. He has fortified himself with an alibi for the job in Massachusetts, for which he is wanted by the police, with the aid of a book of newspaper cuttings about his cousin, Lee Randall, now dead; and Bill Avery, now turned photographer, by means of a double negative has produced a picture showing the ex-convict sitting at a banquet at the time when he was really in Sing-Sing. Pending the arrival of the police-officer there is an effective little scene in which the banker's daughter, on hearing of her protégé's profession of undying devotion, throws herself into his arms. The detective scoffs at "Randall's" denial that he is Valentine until he proves his alibi. Then the officer has to admit that he is mistaken. The only way he can account for it is to conclude that Randall is a double of the man he is after. Then comes the big scene of the play, when the apologetic Doyle is taking his leave and Randall is congratulating himself on his victory. Red Jocelyn bursts in, crying "Jimmy!" and announcing that Rose Lane's sister has been accidentally locked in the bank vault. Quick action is necessary, and with his old confederate to help him, the expert cracksman is soon "on the job." Guided by his delicate sense of touch, Valentine works in the dark, manipulating the "combination" to swing back the big steel door. His finger-tips have become unaccustomed to the old work, and he scrapes off the skin with sandpaper to expose the nerves. And as he works his horrified sweetheart stands unnoticed in the doorway, while the detective, with a sardonic grin on his face, stands ready to pounce on the "old hand," whom he has caught red-handed. At last there is a click, the door swings on its hinges, and the child is saved. Lee Randall, alias Jimmy Valentine, is about to be taken away when his sweetheart pleads for his release. And of course the detective's heart is touched. "I guess she needs you more than Massachusetts does" is the way he puts it, and the play ends with Jimmy and his faithful sweetheart locked in each other's arms. Miss Laurette Taylor won high honours as Rose Lane, her grace and naturalness creating a most agreeable impression. The supporting company was excellent, Messrs. Harold Hartsell, Edmund Elton, Frank Monroe, James E. Wilson, and Earl Brown being conspicuously successful in their respective rôles.

"Mother Goose" is proving a capital attraction at the Theatre Royal, Rochdale. Mr. Harry Rich in his impersonation of Mother Goose keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Charles Rich is prominent with a humorous embodiment of Jack; Mr. Fred Barnes makes up well as Lord Pudsey; and Mr. Henri Dore creates amusement as the dude, Wibsey Slack. Miss Ethel Hall wins golden opinions as Colin, and Miss Vera Velma is a charming Jill. Miss Lola Patey is a prime favourite with everyone as the Dutch servant, Gretchen. The traditional parts of the demon Malignum and the good fairy Heartsease are well sustained by Mr. Charles Homer and Miss Violet Romaine. The Goose is realistically presented by Mr. Douglas Campbell, and the Brothers Smart cleverly work the donkey and the horse. Mr. Charles Lee contributes to the success of the performance as the Mayor of Topham.

Mr. Gaston Mayer's company paid an initial visit to the New Theatre, Cambridge, on Monday night, with Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Miss Sophie Lingwood was the Mrs. Wiggs, and she played the part in a thoroughly interesting and amusing manner. Miss Rita Carlyle (Miss Hazy) rendered her part very capably. Mr. Frederick Forrest gave a realistic portrait of Mr. Stubbins; Miss Ruhamah Catton was very sweet and charming as Lovey Mary; Mr. Harry G. Wright made an enterprising H. Hunkerdunkus Jones; Miss Miena Connell was good as Tommy; Mr. Ernest Ruston Mr. Wiggs; Miss Beatrix A. Bell Mrs. Eichorn; Miss Maud Trevor Mrs. Schultz; Miss Rhoda Beresford Miss Lucy; Miss Gladys Noble Tina Viney; Mr. Walter Hicks Billy Wiggs; and Mr. Sidney Carlyle Chris Hazy must also be complimented upon their rendering of their respective characters.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ALFRED WELLESLEY.

Mr. Alfred Wellesley does not come of a theatrical family, and it was merely a financial interest in a friend's tour of A Woman of no Importance that led his thoughts in the direction of the stage. Purely in a spirit of devilment he "went on" one night for Lord Alfred Rufford on the above tour, and violent stage fever resulted; he also read up and appeared as Archdeacon Daubeny and Gerald Arbuthnot in the same piece for one week each. Within two months of his first histrionic effort Mr. Wellesley had secured the part of Chamboran in Proof, which he played for five months with Messrs. Giffard and Ward. A rather amusing incident marked this engagement. Mr. Neil Kenyon, the Scotch comedian, had settled for this part, and Mr. Wellesley had arranged to play the Count de Leval, the heavy. Mr. Kenyon in those days did not fancy the humorous rôles, and inclined strongly towards "villains," so by mutual arrangement and the concurrence of the management, the two actors exchanged parts!

Tours followed with Mr. Stuart Cleveland as the Lock Keeper in Queen's Evidence, with the late Lawrence Daly in A Woman's Honour, with Hill and Ayrton as Joe Strawbones in A Sailor's Knot, and Moses in Work and Wages, &c. He then joined Mr. W. W. Kelly's Royal Divorce, playing Grimaud over 1,000 times; and it is a curious fact that he also played Napoleon for seven months with Mr. Kelly's evergreen drama. His pantomime engagements include Fitzwarren with Mr. Pitt Hardacre at the Comedy, Manchester; Dame Crusoe with the Eden Theatre Co., at Brighton; Fitzwarren at Newcastle; and Baron at York and Harrogate.

Mr. Wellesley has played in all (including seven stock seasons) some 170 parts, ranging from light comedy to heavy lead. His first musical comedy experience he gained with the Milton-Rays, creating the Captain in A Hot Night, and afterwards playing the Professor in the same piece. He was then engaged by Mr. Louis Calvert for two tours as Sir Gavin Macalister in The Garden of Lies and as Farmer Wake in Dr. Wake's Patient.

Deserting the theatres for the music halls, Mr. Wellesley's "old man" study of the title-rôle in The Peacemaker so impressed Mr. Frank Glenister that he was booked at the London Pavilion for thirty-two weeks. He next produced and toured for over a year his latest sketch, Uncle's Courtship. During the recent music hall agency dispute, when dates were uncertain, Mr. George Dance renewed an old offer of Mr. Hook, in Miss Hook of Holland, and cancelling a few dates in the halls, Mr. Wellesley returned to the theatres and is now playing Mr. G. P. Huntley's part on tour with Miss Marie Studholme.

MR. FREDERIC SARGENT.

Mr. Frederic Sargent has been on the stage ten years. He was educated at the Quaker School, Ackworth, and Durham University, from which he graduated in 1897 with the degree of Bachelor of Letters. Before commencing as an actor he put in a year at journalism on the editorial staff of the Newcastle Daily Leader. In March, 1899, Mr Sargent began his theatrical experience under particularly pleasant auspices, being engaged by Mrs. Louis Calvert to play the juvenile parts in Proof and The Lyons Mail. A six months' tour with Mrs. Calvert was followed by a year with Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, with whom he played about thirty parts in a tour of as many weeks. In May, 1900, through the kind offices of Mrs. Calvert, he was engaged by Miss Julia Neilson to play in a suburban tour of As You Like It, with herself, Mr. Mollison, Mr. Louis Calvert, and other noted artists. In this engagement Mr. Sargent played Le Beau, the First Lord, and Jaques de Bois. A season at the Haymarket Theatre followed, when he played Mercer in the original cast of Sweet Nell of Old Drury. Tiring very much of small parts, he returned to the country to play Tigellinus in Mr. Wm. Greet's Sign of the Cross company. Another short season in town followed, Mr. Sargent being in the cast of Lion Hunters, when it was produced at Terry's Theatre. Shortly afterwards, Messrs. Edwardes and Frohman engaged him to play one of the juvenile parts in the first tour of Are You a Mason?

A chance call on Mr. Ben Greet in the summer of 1902 led to Mr. Sargent being engaged to play Sherlock Holmes, a character he successfully sustained for two lengthy tours. Several special engagements followed, when he appeared as Henri de Flavigneul in There's Many a Slip, with Messrs. Morell and Mouillot's company, and Clarence Vane in Our Flat. About this time, too, he was a member of Mrs. Patrick Campbell's company, playing Herr Holtzmann in The Joy of Living and Morse in The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, during a season at the New Theatre. The autumn of 1903 saw Mr. Sargent with Drury Lane drama, sustaining the part of the Boer boy, Paul de Lahne, in The Best of Friends. One or two special engagements early in 1904, included a few nights at the Court Theatre, and the successful production of a curtain-raiser, entitled Love's Comedy, which he wrote in collaboration with Mr. Leon M. Lion. In March he sailed for South Africa, where he remained for the rest of the year, playing the romantic leads with Mr. Leonard Rayne's company.

Shortly after his return from abroad, in the early spring of 1905, Mr. Sargent was engaged for leading romantic work in Shakespeare and old English comedy. During the summer he played the leading part in the Hon. Mrs. Henniker's play, The Courage of Silence, and several other special productions. Further legitimate work followed, and he appeared as Hamlet, Othello, Romeo, Brutus, Orlando, David Garrick, Claude Melnotte, and Charles Surface on a first-class tour. In the spring of 1906 he was engaged by Mr. R. C. Buchanan to play the title-rôle in Jevan, the Prodigal Son, when it was produced at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow. Later on in the year he fulfilled an interesting engagement, playing the Duke of Guisebury in The Dancing Girl, and the double, Laroque and Luversan, in A Man's Shadow. This was followed by some pastoral work with Mr. Ben Greet's company, and in the autumn of 1906 he sailed for America to sustain a varied round of parts with Mr. Greet, with whom he remained for a long season of forty-two weeks, making a comprehensive tour of the United States, and including four months of pastorals and a season in New York. At the Garden Theatre, New York, Mr. Sargent played Macbeth, Jaques, Cassius, Bassanio, and Sir Charles Pomander (Masks and Faces) with great success, and his other parts during the engagement included Orlando, Lysander, Ferdinand, and Feste. On the strength of his performances with Mr. Greet in New York he was engaged by Mr. Frohman to support Mr. Otis Skinner in The Honour of the Family, an engagement which lasted for two years and has only lately concluded. In the original production of this comedy, which had a prolonged run at the Hudson Theatre, New York, during the season 1907-8, Mr. Sargent played Captain Potel. Last season he was Mr. Skinner's leading man, playing Commander Max Gilet in the same piece.

MISS AMY LLOYD EARLE.

Miss Amy Lloyd Earle's first appearance was made at the Alhambra Theatre, Leicester Square, as a little girl, playing the Fairy Coral in The Black Crook. At the end of the run she went to Glasgow to play Louise in The Two Orphans, and afterwards returned to town and went to the Elephant and Castle under Aubrey and Henderson to impersonate Jenny in The Orange Girl. Three tours with the celebrated Charles Dillon followed, the young actress getting well grounded in Shakespearean parts. She had the distinction of playing Ophelia to Mr. Dillon's Hamlet at two hours' notice, the great actor patting her on the back and saying she was a clever girl. Subsequently she fulfilled engagements with James Bennet, Henry Loraine, etc., and then went to Sadler's Wells for stock. After several similar seasons in Liverpool and Chester Miss Lloyd Earle started to play lead, being engaged for Jeanie, Jeanie Deans, then for tours as

MISS AMY LLOYD EARLE.

Kate McTavish in Old Soldiers and Piccolo in During Her Majesty's Pleasure. For several years she played lead in the late Frank Harvey's plays, and under the management of the late Henry Percy in the principal provincial theatres. More recently she has fulfilled two tours with The Village Blacksmith, playing Sal Parkins, and two tours with Is Life Worth Living? Her latest theatrical engagement was with Master and Man, which was followed by one with the Kurios for a sketch on the Moss and Stoll halls.

MISS CLARISSA SELWYNNE.

Miss Clarissa Selwynne had the good fortune to obtain her first engagement under the management of Mr. Arthur Bourchier, at the Garrick Theatre. For close upon a year she remained there, playing small parts and understudying practically everything, thus gaining very valuable experience. She next went to the Shaftesbury, in Miss Tita Brand's production of Othello. First experiences of touring followed, and the novelty was thoroughly enjoyed—for a time! One of Miss Selwynne's happiest engagements was with Mr. A. B. Tapping's company, in which she spent the next eighteen months, and had the advantage and pleasure of playing many varied and interesting parts, among them Mabel Vane, Sybil Crake, Julie de Noirville, Nancy Roach, and Fuchsia Leach.

At Christmas, 1906, Miss Selwynne joined one of Mr. F. R. Benson's companies to play a round of parts, which, in the course of the tour, included Player Queen, Audrey, Third Witch, and the Nurse. During this engagement she was sent for by Messrs. Charles Cartwright and A. B. Tapping to play Rosa Dartle, in their approaching tour of David Copperfield. Owing to the kindness of Mr. Benson in releasing her, she was able to accept the offer. A very happy tour followed, during which David Garrick and The Coping Stone (by Miss Fay Davis and Mr. Gerald Lawrence) were staged. On one occasion, owing to the absence of Miss Fay Davis, Miss Selwynne was called upon, at a moment's notice, to play Ada Ingot, to the Garrick of Mr. Gerald Lawrence. At the conclusion of this tour she rejoined Mr. Benson's company, this time in the capacity of leading lady. The plays toured included The Rivals, As You Like It, The Taming of the Shrew, The Merchant of Venice, and Macbeth. Miss Selwynne always recalls with pleasure the help and encouragement which was afforded her by Mr. Hugh Moss during the long and arduous rehearsals for these important parts. The next engagement was under Miss Lena Ashwell's management, in one of her Diana of Dobson's companies, with which Miss Selwynne remained until recently.

MISS DOROTHY RICHARDSON.

"The youngest leading lady on the stage" is a title that seems rightly to belong to Miss

MISS DOROTHY RICHARDSON.

Dorothy Richardson, who at the age of seventeen took up last year the heroine of Mr. Walter Melville's drama A Soldier's Wedding, a part she is still playing with undiminished success. Miss Richardson began young. At five years of age she played a child's part under Mr. and Mrs. Kendal in The White Lie. Later she was with Mr. George Alexander at the St. James's, and subsequently with Miss Marie Tempest at the Prince of Wales' and with Miss Jeannette Steer at the Garrick. Then she toured with Mr. C. W. Somerset and afterwards with Messrs. Polini and Melford in The Silver King. After a few terms at a high-class ladies' school in the south, Miss Richardson was sent to a convent in Belgium to finish her education. On her return to the stage she was engaged by Mr. George Dance for his Catch of the Season company, with which she remained for two tours. Then came some real good experience as a member of Mr. Arnold Bell's company at the "Brit.," where she played such parts as Paul in The Octoroon, Sam Willoughby, Madge Frettleby in The Mystery of a Hansom Cab, the dumb girl in The Hand of Justice, and Joyce in East Lynne. Afterwards she played May Edwards in The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and Madge Lorrimer in When Rogues Fall Out.

MR. ERIC H. ALBURY.

Receiving his early education in Germany, Mr. Albury was intended for the medical profession, but at the age of seventeen he entered the Cape Colonial Civil Service, and during the three years thus engaged was a prominent and active member of several amateur societies. He made his first professional appearance at the Opera House, Cape Town, with Messrs. Henry Dallas and Joseph Ashman's company, in May, 1899, as Johnson, in In His Power, and, in a varied répertoire of plays. Mr. Albury commenced touring with Mr. Joseph Ashman's répertoire companies, and remained with that manager for several years, playing a varied and extensive round of parts, viz., Charley and Jack, in Charley's Aunt; Jack Tempest, Who's Brown?; the Spider, Silver King; Capt. Hawtree, in Caste; Dr. Candy, also Felix Roach, in The New Boy; and various others in The Bells, The Sorrows of Satan, The Magistrate, East Lynne, A Pantomime Rehearsal, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and in first productions of A Noble Outlaw, and dramatisations of Rider Haggard's "Pearl Maiden" and Mrs. L. T. Meade's "Jill." With Messrs. Noble and Pollard's company he visited Buluwayo and other Rhodesian towns, playing in What Happened to Jones, Confusion, Turned Up, My Friend from India, &c. He afterwards toured the length and breadth of the South African continent, and during the war experienced many exciting and unique adventures. He was subsequently with Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler for two tours, and with the George Giddens' Comedy Company, playing principal parts in Are You a Mason? A Night Out, Husbands and Wives, On and Off; The Sign of the Cross, The Marriage of Kitty, &c.

Returning to England Mr. Albury devoted some time to journalistic and Press work. Engagements with Mr. John L. Shine (Jack Scarsdale, in Hogmanay, and in other sketches), and Mr. Chas. Macdona followed; with the latter gentleman he played George Fisher, in Are You a Mason? He was next engaged by Mr. Lionel Rignold for the juvenile parts in his comedy répertoire company, and for the German Count in Why Smith Left Home, making a distinct speciality of the German dialect and gestures in the impersonation of this character. A tour with Mr. Brandon Thomas's company, in his old part of Jack Chesney, in Charley's Aunt, came next, and at the conclusion of this engagement he was re-engaged by Mr. Lionel Rignold, for Tom, in The Early Worm, and as stage-manager. Although chiefly impersonating varied characters in farcical comedies for a number of years, Mr. Albury has played many Shakespearean and costume play parts, such as Gratiano, Cassius, &c. He likes Colonial touring for the work entailed in presenting a large number of various plays, and is keen on giving attention to detail.

MR. PHILIP DARIEN.

Mr. Philip Darien was born in London and received his tuition for the stage at Mr. Henry Neville's studio. During several years he gained experience by playing small parts and understudying in several London productions. His first engagement was in The Lackey's Carnival at the Duke of York's, which was followed by a long run with Sir Charles Wyndham in The Mummy and the Humming Bird. Thence he went to the Prince of Wales's with Miss Marie Tempest in English Nell. He was subsequently engaged to play Monsieur Beaufremont in A Queen's Double at the Garrick Theatre with Miss Janet Steer.

After several summers with pastoral work with Mr. Arthur Grenville Mr. Darien was engaged for a stock season at the Standard Theatre, London, being retained to play the leading parts in his provincial tour by Mr. Fred Melville, under whose management he remained four years. For the past three months he has been with Mr. Wentworth Croke, playing Jason (Mr. Frank Cooper's part) in The Bondman. Mr. Darien is an ardent athlete, golf, hockey, and cricket being his favourite games. He has repeatedly been advised to become a professional cricketer, but prefers to wield the willow only as a pastime.

MR. PHILIP DARIEN.

MISS FANNY WENTWORTH.

A long, varied, and productive career is that which stands to the credit of Miss Fanny Wentworth. Intended by her parents for a solo pianist she began her studies at the early age of four, and, until she was fourteen, trained under the best masters, including Sir Julius Benedict, whose favourite pupil she was (to use his own expression), for some years. She first played in public at the age of twelve at St. James's Hall in company with such artists as Mme. Patey, Mme. Lemmens Sherrington, and with Mr. George Grossmith, who did a "musical sketch." She also appeared at Covent Garden Promenade Concerts—always under her own name of Fanny Albert—under the late Mons. Riviere, who remained till his death a few years ago one of her oldest and dearest friends.

At seventeen the accomplished concert artist became "stage struck," and left the platform for the regular boards. Her first manager was Mr. (now Sir) Charles Wyndham, with whom she played Rebecca in Pink Dominos, in which she made her professional début, and also in the juvenile leading part in Bronson Howard's plays, Brighton and Truth. She then essayed comic opera, and became in one night a prima donna, playing Serpolette in Les Cloches de Corneville in all the big cities in England. Next came a visit to America, where she had a chequered and varied experience for a year or two, playing leading parts in all the comic operas of that time, and during a summer season in Montreal fourteen leading parts in fourteen weeks, a fresh one every Monday night, with eight performances a week. These parts included Patience and Lady Angela in the same opera, Iolanthe and Phyllis in Iolanthe, Ruth in The Pirates, Josephine in Pinafore, the Grand Duchess, Fatinitza, and Boccacio (Suppé's operas), Olivette, and Mascot.

Returning to London, Miss Wentworth made her first appearance on the metropolitan stage in Kenilworth at the Avenue Theatre in company with Misses Violet Cameron, Phyllis Broughton, Arthur Roberts, and the late E. J. Lonnen. She played Janet Foster, and made a big hit with the Spanish tarantella she had brought with her from America. Next she toured with Messrs. Van Biene and Lingard's company, playing the title-rôle in Falka, and creating the part of Pepita in Lecocq's opera of that name. The new work was produced at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, the cast including Mr. Charles Manners as Bombardos, and Bertie Sims Reeves, Horace Lingard, Louis Kelleher, and Miss Wentworth's sister, Miss Maud Albert. Next came The Old Guard at the Avenue, London, again (Murielle); Chopinette in Paul Jones, with Agnes Huntingdon on her American tour; and last, but not least, a delightful opera, in which Miss Wentworth again created the title-rôle, Delia, by Bucalossi and Frank Desprez. A tour on the Continent as Carmen in the burlesque of Carmen up to Date, from the Gaiety Theatre, London, followed, Miss Wentworth's colleagues being Mr. Fred Wright, jun., Mr. Akerman May, Mr. Eric Thorne, and the late Grace Huntley.

It was in 1894 that Miss Wentworth decided to become an entertainer at the piano. She obtained an opening at the Palace Theatre, where she had a two weeks' trial engagement, and was retained as a star turn till the following February—nearly nine months. Since then Miss Wentworth has been with her musical monologues to Australia, America, South Africa (twice), New Zealand, appearing practically in every English-speaking theatre in the world, and always with a most remarkable success. Miss Wentworth writes nearly all her own sketches and music. Last spring she went through the provinces with Mr. Frank Curzon's Englishman's Home No. 1 company, entertaining for half an hour at the piano in lieu of a curtain raiser. This was no mean achievement in such large houses as the Theatres Royal, Manchester, Glasgow, Nottingham, &c., in front of a patriotic play, but the audiences were throughout most appreciative.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The programme of the Students' Concert on Wednesday evening commenced with Miss Ada M. Billings' well-played piano solo "Mazurka No. 4" (Godard). In Von Ahn Carse's song "O Happy Childhood" Miss Kathleen Shelley greatly pleased the audience, and a clever boy student of the school, Master Charles Coverman, gave a very promising account of Wieniawski's violin solo "Legende." Sullivan's air "Lord of our Chosen Race," from Ivanhoe, was somewhat ambitious, but Miss G. M. Powell, aided by a good voice and excellent training, made a most favourable impression, and the same remark will also apply to Mr. Alfred Steed's able singing of "Sound an alarm," from Handel's Judas. The concert was agreeably varied by a humorous monologue, Mrs. Jones' Christmas Shopping (Campbell), in which Miss Katrine St. Clair, pupil of Mr. Bassett Roe, gave a very amusing account of a lady buying presents at the stores. Mr. Sydney A. Roe's capitally-played violin solo of De Beriot's Andante and Allegro from Concerto in G. was warmly applauded, while Mr. J. Packer Ramsay deserved much praise for his singing of "Arise, ye subterranean winds!" (Purcell). Miss Emmeline Forster proved herself a skilful executant in her pianoforte solo Allemande, Courente, and Gique, from Suite No. 9 (Handel), and Miss Grace Hawkins, another clever pianist, was very successful in two Studies in F sharp, by MacDowell and Arensky. Denza's song "May Morning" was sung by Miss Edith White, and the programme concluded with a recitation, "The Ballad of Splendid Silence" (Nesbit) by Miss Dinah Freudenheim, a clever pupil of Miss Kate Rorke. Miss Jenny Hyman accompanied.

PANTOMIME is again occupying the boards at the Batley Theatre, and Mr. Richard Nightingale, in Aladdin, provides a popular attraction. Foremost in his strong band of comedians is Mr. Walter Bishop as Abanazar, who continually keeps the audience laughing. Mr. Harry Alberry is a success as Widow Twankey; Miss Edna Latonne as principal boy is dashing and vivacious; and Misses May and Violet Rivers are pretty dancers and tuneful singers. Misses Amy Pauline Gradwell and Marie Radcliffe score a big success in the duet, "The moon hath raised." Specialities are introduced by the Brothers Lloyd, Perth and Oban, Francis and Francis, and Max Merlin.

MESSRS. J. MARRIOTT WATSON AND JAMES USSHER'S company is at the Theatre Royal, Crook, in The Face at the Window. Mr. Chas H. Phelps as Le Loup was powerful; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe's acting in the character of Paul Gouffet was of the best; Miss Clare O'Sullivan made a hit as Marie de Brisson; the part of Lucien Cortier was safely entrusted to Mr. James Williamson; and Mr. John A. Stimson as Peter and Miss Frances Day as Babette were both excellent.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

[Second Notice.]

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's fourth pantomime was a success from the first, and now that a second edition has been inaugurated it has become a firm favourite with the audiences here, many of whom come again and again.

The scenery is unusually elaborate, the fine set scene of Old London being especially good, and the woodland scene, with real deer quietly feeding, its solid trees, and babbling streams, is nightly received with loud applause.

Miss Maisie Ellinger's popularity as the Prince is undoubted, her songs being given with all her accustomed brio, and the number of encores appears to rest entirely with the artist herself, as the audience never tires of redemanding her verses, and she has many telling ones. The coon song, "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," with its taking chorus and accompaniment of dance by the Sunflower Troupe, is perhaps one of her best, although "Wake up, ye Britishers," in the Ball Room scene, runs it very close in popularity. One cannot imagine a more dashing Prince Charming.

Miss Dorothea Clark as Cinderella has become a great favourite, and her pretty voice gives sweet effect to her songs and duets. She has conceived her part in all seriousness, and thus is enabled to invest it with reality and interest. A new song, "My dreamland prince," is feelingly rendered by her, as she sadly sits by the traditional kitchen hearth, and the pantomime success, "Somewhere the sun is shining," goes well in the second scene. When dressed for the ball and in the brilliantly illuminated fairy coach, she wins all hearts, and has been the recipient of some especially handsome floral offerings.

Mr. W. H. Kirby as Peter Pepper, the page, has worked up his part tremendously, and now has trained his audiences highly in the art of chorus-singing. He is full of new business, and perhaps "Don't take me home" is the song with which he provokes the most enthusiasm.

Everybody roars at the entry of the genial Paddy Dupres, who makes the Baroness a screamingly funny impersonation, and by quite legitimate means too. His gags are numerous and original, and his treatment of the Baron (Mr. Will May) causes much mirth. Mr. May has a new song, "I must go home to-night," which he delivers with great effect, and co-operates most heartily with the others, and helps to make the fun go merrily enough.

The two broker's men, Bill and Ginger, acted severally by Messrs. Stacey and Williams, are a great acquisition, the climax of their efforts in the song and dance line winning for them rounds of hearty applause, their step-dancing being exceptionally neat and clever.

Miss Cordelia Knight, as the fairy-godmother is something removed from the conventional immortal of the pantomime stage, and speaks her lines with much distinction.

The Fairy Queen, Miss Lillian Mildred, is a very dainty lady, and introduces a new song in the second part, which goes excellently, and is often re-demanded.

Mr. Dutton Nicholls, as the Demon, is an acrobatic dancer of much merit, and his difficult dance in the Kitchen scene, although it makes great demands on his energies, has always to be repeated.

The Sunflower Troupe of dancers are especially finished exponents of concerted dances, and their efforts are freely applauded and much appreciated.

Mr. Leonard Gautier is simply untiring in his attentions as musical-director, and great credit is certainly due to him for the finish and correctness of all the choruses. The X.L. Quartette of glee singers render valuable assistance by the tuneful glees which are appropriately introduced from time to time, and now that the pantomime is nearing its last nights all concerned in it may be heartily congratulated on accomplishing a complete success.

Miss Nellie Sheffield has made the ugly sister Phyllis quite a character part, and her quaint sayings and very capable dancing, are much enjoyed.

THE CORONET.

On Mouday, Jan. 31, the Play, entitled
"PINKIE AND THE FAIRIES."

Pinkie and the Fairies at the pretty Notting Hill Gate theatre has been notable during the second week of its run for the substitution of Miss Kathleen Yorke for Miss Hermione Gingold in the part of Eleanor, alias Pinkie. Miss Kathleen Yorke is the charming little actress who has been playing the part of Elf Twinkle, and indeed was the original exponent at His Majesty's Theatre. Besides looking as pretty as a picture in her little pink frock, she acts exceedingly well and sings and dances prettily and skilfully. Her part of Elf Twinkle reverts to little Miss Winnie Goodwin, who is all that could be desired in the part, and by no manner of means strikes one as a novice, acting her rôle with brightness and spontaneity. The piece is really beautifully staged with special scenery by Mr. Hobbs, and tasteful and charming dresses by Miss Jennie Moore, and the lighting effects are exceedingly well-managed. The dances arranged by Miss Elise Clerc, of the Alhambra, are both cleverly and artistically designed and delightfully executed, and the wonderful smoothness of the performance reflects great credit on the rehearsing and stage-management. Miss Estelle Thebaud as Sleeping Beauty, with her sweet singing and clever acting, Miss Lucie Caine as Cinderella, with her vivacity and espieglérie and her capital rendering of the good "goey" song of Cinderella's glass slipper, Mr. Sam Wilkinson as the Cat, Master C. Haviland Chappell as Tommy, Mr. T. P. Haynes as the Gardener, and Mr. Ribton Haines as Uncle Gregory, not forgetting dear old Auntie Caroline (Miss Lucie Evelyn), giddy Aunt Imogene (Miss Haidée Gunn), and the dear little Fairy Queen (Miss Kenyon) and her herald (Miss Somers) are all better than ever in their parts.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Play, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

Mr. Wentworth Croke, in presenting this week at the Dalston Theatre Hall Caine's play The Prodigal Son, is providing North Londoners with an entertainment which fully meets their tastes. Acting, scenery, and costumes all claim commendation from the crowds of onlookers which nightly applaud the interesting production. Chief among the cast are Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Magnus Stephenson and Mr. S. Herbert Humber as Oscar Stephenson, the two sons of Stephen Magnussun, the Governor of Iceland (Mr. Ernest Rivarz). The acting of both the brothers in the story is really excellent, the noble nature of Magnus being effectively portrayed by Mr. Montgomery, while Mr. Humber imparts striking interest to the part of Oscar. Miss Barbara Gott is Anna, wife of the Governor of Iceland. The factor, Oscar Nielson, is ably played by Mr. Philip Renouf; and his daughters, Helga and Thora, have extremely attractive representatives in Miss Betty Castle and Miss Valerie Crespin. Miss Crespin wins admiration as Thora, and the attractiveness of Miss Castle as Helga is undisputed. Miss Dorothy Harding is seen to advantage as Lady Slingstone; and several other interesting characters have able exponents, among which should be mentioned Margaret Neilson, the factor's sister, Miss Marie Harcourt; the Sheriff, Mr. Barnard Merefield; Dr. Olsen, Mr. Charles Brownless; Neils Finsen, Mr. Charles A. Maynard; the Pastor, Mr. George W. Hewetson; Director of the Casino, Mr. Fred Manners; Eric Arnasson, Mr. Arthur Hall; Madame Pandher, Miss Gertrude Rose; Marta, Miss Ellen Dee; and John Vidalin, Mr. G. R. Goodfellow. The stage management is excellent and the general presentation in every way efficient.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Play, in Four Acts, by A. Conan Doyle, entitled
"THE FIRES OF FATE."

The Fulham Theatre has resumed its ordinary season with an attractive programme, the opening piece being the powerful drama based on Sir A. Conan Doyle's story, "The Tragedy of the Korosko." The story is a little masterpiece of grim and almost unrelieved tragedy. The play necessarily lacks the direct simplicity of the original, but has been enriched with highly dramatic scenes. Mr. Vedrenne's company is strong at all points. The central rôle of Colonel Egerton is finely played by Mr. Stephen Ewart, who gave an impressive rendering of the man of action, apparently doomed to an early and painful death. Quite as attractive was the sincere and manly representation of the impulsive minister, Roden, by Mr. Herbert Vyvyan, while Mr. Charles Francis contributed a thoughtful study of the cautious materialistic physician. Mr. Stanley Logan showed command both of feeling and humour as Cecil Brown; and Mr. E. A. Coventry as Belmont, Mr. Herbert Moule as Mr. Brodie, and Mr. Gerald Mirriclees as Monsieur Fardet, all brought out the several national characteristics of their parts. Mr. Alfred Sandoe was excellent in all phases as the dragoman Abdulla; Mr. Fred Worlock made a characteristic Bimbashi, keen and boyish, and apparently irresponsible, of the type beloved of Kipling. Mr. G. G. Lambert as the spy, Mr. E. Vanderlip as an Arab chief, Mr. Dennis Bryan as another Arab, and Mr. Ansell as the Butler filled their parts well. Miss Lydia Hayward did good work as Mrs. Belmont; Miss Gwendoline Floyd was delightfully American as Miss Adams; while Miss Ruth Bower showed great charm and sincerity of feeling as Sadie Adams.

OPERA HOUSE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Play, entitled
"A BUNCH OF VIOLETS."

Messrs. Glenville and Elliston's company is paying a visit here this week with Mr. Sidney Grundy's popular play A Bunch of Violets, and a good interpretation is given by a well-selected cast, the members of which show much ability and judgment in the portrayal of their various parts. A word of commendation must be bestowed upon the ladies' dresses, which are charming. The prominent character of Sir Phillip Marchant is very ably undertaken by Mr. Whitmore Ledger, who, maintaining a strong hold of the audience, offers a clever rendering, and is successful throughout. Mr. Ross O'Brien evokes considerable laughter as Jacob Schwartz. He handles the part in a very capable manner, and scores highly. Mr. H. Lewis imparts much humour to the rôle of Mark Murgatroyd, and gives a good delineation of this lowbred, though wealthy, Yorkshireman. Lord Mount Sorrell has a fitting representative in Mr. Charles Tempest, who makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. Gerald Shirley is a capital Harker; and Mr. Chas. J. Perry is suitably placed as the Hon. Harold Ingles. Miss Marie de Ross affords much pleasure in her characterisation of Mrs. Murgatroyd, and achieves distinction by a very capable rendering. Violet is sympathetically essayed by Miss Elsie Williams. Miss Enid Edoni does ample justice to the part of Lady Marchant, and supplies a clever portrait. Assistance is also rendered by Mr. Arthur Burroughs and Mr. Percy Speirs.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Romantic Drama, entitled
"THE BREED OF THE TRESHAMS."

For the current week Mr. Frank Bertram's company is providing very enjoyable fare in the presentation of the romantic drama The Breed of the Treshams. The play is admirably mounted and costumed, and an excellent representation is given, and duly appreciated by large audiences, who are not slow in bestowing applause on the numerous points which meet with their approval in the course of the evening. Mr. Sydney Bland is in every way suited to play the difficult part of Lieut. Reresby, known as "the Rat," and around whom the whole story is woven. The varying moods portrayed in this picturesque character are excellently depicted, and an impressive rendering is given which meets with very flattering results, which are entirely deserved. Mr. Alfred Holles does well as Viscount Dorsington, and delivers his lines with good effect; Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford is ably undertaken by Mr. George Butler, who is successful; Mr. George Traill and Mr. L. Lingham both fill their parts well as Col. Sir Henry Curwen and Col. Bagshaw respectively; Mr. S. F. Courtney as Capt. Stanhope and Mr. G. Fitzgerald as Capt. Rashleigh make the most of their opportunities; Mr. Walter Grahame as the impulsive Cornet, the Hon. Francis Tresham, acts with sincerity and conviction; Miss Grace Harlington shows to distinct advantage in the character of Batty, and makes the utmost of her chances; Miss Mildred Hodson gives a satisfactory study of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, and acts in a sympathetic manner; Miss M. Cottier and Miss D. De Lille as Miss Bagshaw and Helena Pierrepont respectively supply pleasing characters; and valuable aid is also rendered by Mr. George Jackson, Mr. Wilfred Kelly, Mr. W. C. Crowley, Mr. Wilson Blakemore, Mr. George Quicke, and Mr. George Scott.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Drama, entitled
"THE DIVER'S LUCK."

This week Mr. Wentworth Croke is presenting to his patrons Mr. Andrew Emm's successful production, The Diver's Luck. The play is capitally staged and contains some effective situations, besides the addition of a vivid presentation of the bed of the ocean, with real diving apparatus "as used in the latest expeditions." Mr. William Macready realises well the strong part of Martin Faber, and plays it admirably. Mr. Edmond O'Grady is capitally cast in the congenial character of Barney Bawn. Mr. William Dexter's robust acting as Tom Hall adds materially to the success of the play. Snowball is effective in the hands of Mr. William Bristow; and Mr. H. T. Walton is good as Maurice Wyngate, as is also Mr. Chris. Felton as Pedro. Miss Haselton is also useful as Daffodil Bolter, and Mr. Clifford Hamilton as Bolter deserves praise. Miss Pearl Noyle, as Peggy, contributes a capital piece of bright acting; and Miss Maud Mellis, too, must be awarded praise for her excellent portraiture of Helen Wyngate. The performance went with spirit and gave pleasure to Mr. Croke's clientèle. Mr. Fred. S. Jennings is, as usual, assiduous in looking after the comfort of visitors to this cosy suburban theatre.

Mr. Frank Elliston and company are the chief attractions at the Alexandra Theatre, Pontefract, this week in My Lady Betty. Emmie Ames is a decided success in a song-scena Emmie's Christmas Tree; Irve Hayman and company appear in a sketch, Christmas Eve; Major Arnold is one of the smartest of conjurors; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, has made himself a favourite in his song "Fifty long years ago"; Rose D'Aulby, chorus comedienne, is assisted by her little daughter; and other turns are Queenie Royal, comedienne and dancer; Dan Filmer, comedian and dancer; and the Alexscope.

MR. FRANK ROTHSAY'S BENEFIT.

The Stratford Borough Theatre was well filled at the special matinée on Tuesday, a complimentary benefit to Mr. Frank Rothsay, who has been acting-manager since the opening of the theatre in 1896. Many congratulatory telegrams were received by the beneficiare during the afternoon, including one from Mr. Geo. R. Sims. The programme consisted of the first half of this year's successful pantomime Cinderella, in which the members of the company introduced special numbers for the occasion, the second half being taken up by variety turns. In an interval Mr. Frank Rothsay appeared on the stage, and in a fluent and felicitous speech thanked Mrs. Ellis Fredericks for so kindly lending the theatre, Mr. Fred Fredericks (the general-manager), the staffs at the back and front of the theatre, the members of the orchestra, the pantomime company, and those professional friends who were assisting that afternoon. An unrehearsed incident here followed, the principal boy and principal girl coming from the side of the stage and, on behalf of the principals of the pantomime, presenting Mr. Rothsay with a splendidly fitted leather dispatch case, each afterwards imprinting a chaste salute upon the blushing, yet not displeased, recipient ere leaving him, a touch of humour being added to the genial situation by Mr. Arthur Stigant (attired as the Dame of this year's Marlborough Theatre pantomime) then coming forward and doing likewise, to the accompaniment of roars of laughter from the large audience. Another presentation was a handsome silver cigar case, suitably inscribed, from the Stella Girls. Those who contributed to the very long programme included Miss Ethel Ward (Cinderella), Miss Madoline Rees (Prince Charming), Miss May Garstang (Dandini), Mr. Barney Armstrong and Jimmie Steel (Baron and Kelly), Mr. Fred Lincoln (Clorinda), Mr. Harry Rogerson (Page), Mr. Sidney Young (Thisbe), Miss Alys Eden (Baroness), Miss Mabel Gordon (Fairy Queen), the Stella troupe of dancers, Mr. Ernie Mayne and Mr. Hal Forde, who appeared for the nonce as cross-talk comedians and were immensely successful; Mr. Arthur Stigant, who had a very flattering reception for his dame song; Mr. Tom Morton and Miss Maggie Bowman, in their speciality number, which was enthusiastically received; Mr. Harry Pleon, whose sketch was one of the tit-bits of the programme; La Sylphe, who created a furore in her "Diavolo" dance; Miss Jennie Lee, who epecially appeared in her original part of Jo in a scene from Dickens's "Bleak House" and was very cordially welcomed; Mr. J. H. Barnes, in a highly impressive recitation; Master Lloyd Shakespeare, whose fine cornet solo received an encore; Mr. Phil Ward and Miss Agnes Rothsay, who appeared in a clever musical trifle; Miss Ethel Oliver; Miss May Walton; and Mr. Leslie Burgess. The acting-managers were Messrs. Sam Fredericks, Bert Ashton, Percy Briggs, Charles and Ben Webb, S. Silver, E. Fielder, Hughie Felming, E. Stokes, and J. Davis; while Mr. G. N. Finlay was secretary and treasurer. Mr. Ben Barrow (Borough Theatre) and Mr. Ernie Woodville (Marlborough Theatre) were the musical directors; and Mr. Will L. Clement must be congratulated upon the exemplary way in which he stage-managed the matinée.

MR. H. A. JONES AND SIR CONAN DOYLE.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Lady Doyle were the guests of the New Vagabonds' Club at a dinner at the Hotel Cecil on Saturday. The Chairman, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, in proposing the toast of "The Guests of the Evening," said that whatever qualifications Lady Doyle might possess for mixing with vagabonds, he would not be rude enough to inquire, but her husband's qualifications as a vagabond could not be passed over so lightly. He felt he was right in calling upon Sir Arthur to justify his presence. To begin with, he did not look like a vagabond, but then neither did some of the rest of them. The Bishop of Ripon, whom he counted it a great honour to call his friend, did not look like a vagabond, nor did he possess one single claim to be called one, except from the fact that he had honoured them with his company, and that at times he had very courageously and splendidly defended the English stage from its detractors. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle did not look like a vagabond, nor did he look like the creator of Sherlock Holmes. What might they imagine the famous creator of the famous Sherlock Holmes to look like? They would picture him as mysterious, sharp-featured, lynx-eyed, slimly elusive, with a bundle of foot-prints in one pocket, a bunch of keys in the other, with damning proofs of convictions in his hat-lining, and all sorts of clues tucked up his sleeve. Could Sir Arthur Conan Doyle produce a single footprint or one single clue? He would seem to be evading his qualifications and hiding his identity if they did not know him to be the veritable author of the most famous, the most popular detective that ever fiction or the stage had seen. If he were asked to sum up Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, apart from his artistic qualifications, in one brief sentence he would say he was just an Englishman. And if he were asked what sort of Englishman he would say, just the sort of Englishman that keeps the old country together.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, replying, said the chairman had put two questions to him which he had to solve, the one being how he could prove he was a vagabond, and the other being as to the authorship of "Sherlock Holmes." As to the vagabond question, he would only say there was an Act of Parliament not yet repealed by which all players and play-writers were by their very nature rogues and vagabonds. As to the authorship of "Sherlock Holmes" the true fact was that the real author was no other than Henry Arthur Jones, who years ago brought him the manuscripts when he was at the height of fame as a dramatist, and in a weak moment he consented to put his name to it. In order to get an understanding of that dramatic faculty, and that instinct of literature and that tact which told one what to say and what not to say, there must be an inborn characteristic.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Jan. 31, the Drama, by Walter Howard, entitled
"TWO LITTLE DRUMMER BOYS."

After a long and successful season of pantomime, the cosy little Kingston theatre reopened the dramatic season on Monday with that popular drama Two Little Drummer Boys, which was presented by a thoroughly capable company under the direction of Mr. Frank Weathersby. The interest in the play was ably sustained throughout, and it was well received by a numerous audience. Miss Phyllis Orme made a deep impression by her portrayal of Margaret Rivers; and Capt. Carsdale was capitally played by Sidney C. Kearns. A telling piece of acting was that supplied by Mr. R. Barrington Foote as George Darrell; and Miss Roberts Pulleyne gave an effective rendering of Alma Kingsley. The lighter work was in the experienced hands of Mr. Conn Allister as Quincey O'Quirke, Mr. Chris Ainslie as Timothy Trimmer, and of Miss Heba Barlow as Molly Meadows, all of whom succeeded in keeping the audience in merriment; and other parts were well sustained by Miss Nellie Morris and Miss Winnie Webster (the two little drummer boys) and by Messrs. C. A. Chandler, E. Stidwell, and H. Wallerton.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the first meeting of the new Council, held on Feb. 1, at 32, Regent-street. Present: Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (solicitor), Messrs. Cyril Cattley, F. H. De Quincey, F. J. Arlton, Lewis Casson, Edward Morgan, Langford Reed, Chris Walker, F. Annerley, Murri Moncrieff, and Henry Le Grand, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Joan Pereira, and Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young, secretary.

The chairman read letters from Mr. Charles Boult advocating the advisability of trying to get a three-quarter concession to all members of the Association for travelling, and the secretary was directed to acknowledge receipt of Mr. Boult's letter and to say his proposal had been before the Council on several occasions, but they had not been able to get the consent of the railway companies. After discussion, it was decided that the correspondence on the subject be looked up by the secretary and a report presented at the next meeting of the Council.

A letter from Mr. Morland was read suggesting certain action with regard to the House Committee and the Social Committee, and his approval of the appointment of a permanent chairman for the year. The consideration of the question of a permanent chairman was referred to the next meeting of the Council. Mr. Morland was thanked for his letter.

The chairman likewise read a letter from Mr. Carnelle Joye, containing many valuable suggestions. The secretary was directed to acknowledge receipt of Mr. Joye's letter, and to thank him for his suggestions.

A letter from Mr. Cecil Raleigh was delivered during the Council sitting in which Mr. Raleigh stated his opinion of certain matters referring to his policy, and tendered his resignation as a member of the lately-elected Council. The secretary was directed to acknowledge receipt of Mr. Raleigh's letter, and say that his resignation was accepted by the Council with regret.

A letter was read from Miss Rose Mathews tendering her resignation of the office of trustee of the Debenture Fund; and on the motion of Mr. Cattley, seconded by Mr. Annerley, the secretary was directed to thank Miss Mathews for her kind letter and to inform her that the Council would feel obliged if she retained her position of trustee of the Debenture Fund, as the fact of her being no longer a member of the Council did not at all hinder her being a trustee of the Debenture Fund.

Mr. Basil Deane wrote expressing his inability to be present on the occasion of the first Council.

Mr. Arlton gave notice of motion to co-opt Mr. Shepherd as a member of the Council in place of Mr. Raleigh. This was seconded by Mr. Cattley.

The chairman read a letter from Richard A. Greene, referred from the old Council, but the suggestions contained therein were not considered practicable.

The secretary was instructed to write to the former vice-presidents of the Actors' Association who resigned in 1907 acquainting them of the invitation to return, which was passed by the members at the annual general meeting at Terry's Theatre on Jan. 25.

The following committees were appointed for the year:—The Finance Committee: Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. Edward Morgan, Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood, and Miss Beatrice Chester. The House Committee: Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Langford Reed, Miss Rose Cazelet, Miss Agnes Imlay, Mr. Murri Moncrieff, Mr. Lewis Casson, and Mr. Walker, with power to add to their numbers. The House Committee was directed to report to the Council once a fortnight. The Social Committee: Miss Lucy Sibley, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Vita Spencer, Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. H. Le Grand, and Mr. Clarence Derwent, with power to add to their number.

The secretary presented a draft of scheme for the new register which was approved by the Council, and directions were given to provide an estimate for presentation at the next Council meeting. In view of the near approach of the date for payment of the debentures it was agreed that a new issue of £1 debentures be made in lieu of the present existing £5 debentures (confined solely to members of the Association), subject to approval and advice of the hon. solicitor.

The hon. solicitor reported on two legal matters. Messrs. Derwent and Cattley were appointed additional signatories for the signing of cheques, and the secretary was instructed to acquaint the bank authorities.

Elections:—H. Carnelle Joye, Roberta Pulleyne, Leslie Oswell, and Cyril Ashford. Nominations:—Ethel Trevor Lloyd, Cora Bush, Dudley Carlton, Blanche Johnstone, Marie Ault, Josephine Middleton, Mabel Leathem, Paul Beckett, and Cicely Wade.

MR. RALEIGH RESIGNS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As I put the general good of the actor's calling above their party politics, I have addressed the following letter to the Council of the Actors' Association:—

"Might I venture to ask that you will read this letter to the Council at the earliest possible moment, as, in my humble opinion, a condition of things has arisen which ought to be considered and dealt with by the Council before it passes to the transaction of any ordinary business.

"What I mean exactly is this: Without troubling to consider whether resolutions passed at a general meeting are legally binding on a council or not, and without troubling to analyse the exact distribution of votes at the election, we are face to face with the fact that the views of the members of the Association as reflected at the annual general meeting favour a managerial return, while the votes of the members as expressed in the anti-managerial majority elected to the Council are against a managerial return. Here is a deadlock—the possibility of an angry waste of time and an endless snatching backwards and forwards of party resolutions. Whatever our views may be, I think we should unite in an attempt to put an end to this condition of things.

"At any rate I have made up my mind exactly as to the course I personally mean to pursue. To my thinking two facts are perfectly clear. Although it is true that two of the anti-managerial party were put in at the top of the poll, it is equally true that Mr. Robson Paige and myself were put at the bottom of the poll, that Miss Rose Mathews was left out, and that Miss Sibley was not elected. I assume the result would have been proportionately about the same if every member of the Association had voted. It is impossible, therefore, to deny that those who favour trades unionism, like myself, have only the support of about one-third of the members of the Association. I regret the fact, but I realise it quite completely.

"The second fact emerges from the statement made by Mr. Clarence Derwent to the annual general meeting concerning the utterances of Sir Herbert Tree. Sir Herbert stated quite frankly his acceptance of the £2 minimum, and, what is more, he said of the cardinal points in our standard contract, that every reputable theatrical manager in England would accept them if properly approached. Now, everybody knows that the various managerial societies have been approached and that they have refused to discuss our contract with us. It is evident, therefore, that in the opinion of Sir Herbert they have not been properly approached. Personally I take this to mean that while the managers remained outside the Association they would not deal with it, but that if the trades union barrier were removed they would deal with it, and that Sir Herbert himself would accept, and do his best to make all the others accept, the standard contract, which contains the £2 minimum payment for matinées, payment for rehearsals, payment for cab fares, and so on.

"Now, if I am right—and it is very easy for those who have been in touch with Sir Herbert to ascertain whether I am right or not—we should put the public good before our personal predilections. We should do everything in our power to facilitate securing for the actor's calling, and more especially for the poorer members of that calling, the benefits which would result from such a standard contract as ours, if it could be obtained. Therefore, as I personally cannot conscientiously vote against my trades union principles, I feel that my presence upon the Council will be a hindrance and possibly an obstacle to the developments I have foreshadowed. Consequently, with the utmost regret, I must beg the Council to accept my resignation from their body, a resignation which I tender in the fervent hope that the proper approach to the reputable managers indicated by Sir Herbert Tree will be immediately made, and that with his sympathetic assistance and invaluable influence the standard contract and its £2 minimum will in the space of a few weeks become an established fact."

Might I in conclusion venture to point out that your leader of last Saturday was not quite accurate in its detail. The meeting at which I took the chair on March 14, at the Criterion Restaurant, was the inaugural meeting of the Actors' Union, and not a meeting of the Actors' Association.

I must also take a little exception to your general description of the result that followed the recent A.A. Council election. The result of that election, combined with the annual general meeting, produced a condition of chaos, for the general meeting endorsed one set of views, while the postal vote endorsed the absolute opposite. As an escape from the muddle, I think it would be a very good thing if the managerial party were given a free hand to capture for us, if they can, the minimum wage and the standard contract, on which we set so much store. I personally could not act with the managerial party, because I never like doing anything in secret, but I can stand aside and watch them realise their own poster, which is what for the moment I am perfectly contented to do, a course which I trust will meet with the approval of my fellow members of the Association, in which I shall always continue to take the keenest interest.

Yours faithfully,
CECIL RALEIGH.

"JOANNA FROM BOOKER'S FLAT."

Play, in One Act, by Arthur Hood, produced at the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, on Jan. 31, 1910.

Jack Carruthers ..... Mr. E. Taylor
Vera ..... Miss Traill
Joanna ..... Mrs. Mends-Gibson

Joanna from Booker's Flat should meet with considerable success as a curtain-raiser, for it is full of human interest, and the dialogue is crisp. Jack Carruthers, after a roving life in the Far West, has settled down as an English country gentleman, and married an Earl's grand-daughter. In his past life is a guilty secret, for his first wife, whom he had deserted and left in California, is still living. The conversation between Carruthers and his so-called wife, Vera, turns on a society scandal, and Vera, with decidedly Puritanical views, makes it plain that she has no sympathy with the sinner.

When she leaves the room, Carruthers' meditations are interrupted by a tap at the door. There enters unannounced a handsome woman, flashily dressed—no other than the deserted wife, "Joanna from Booker's Flat." It does not take Joanna long to discover how matters stand, but, womanlike, her anger is directed less at Carruthers than at the girl who has supplanted her. She announces her intention of enforcing her rights, and he implores her to let them face the music and get it over. Vera returns, and taking Joanna for one of Carruthers' "impossible" Californian friends, treats her with freezing politeness. The other woman, stung by the girl's hauteur, is about to declare her identity, when a child's crying in the hall arrests her. Vera goes to her boy, and the husband and wife are left together. The voice of a little child has touched some chord in Joanna's better nature. She sees that Carruthers' love will never be hers again, and that enforcing her claims will wreck his life and that of his child. After a sharp struggle with herself she tells Carruthers that "Jo of Booker's never rounded on a pal yet," and consents to return to California and give him up for ever. Vera comes in time to witness Joanna's departure, and, little dreaming of what the woman "with dreadful clothes and cheap scent" has given up to her, gingerly lifts Joanna's gloves with the tongs, and drops them in the waste-paper basket. Mrs. Mends-Gibson was commendable in the difficult rôle of Joanna; Miss Traill made a refined Vera; and Mr. E. Taylor an acceptable Carruthers.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

An interesting concert, and one very creditable to the students, was given in the concert room at the Trinity College on Monday afternoon. Mr. Herry Gray gave organ solos of Fantasia per Organo Pleno, "O quanta qualia," (Ancient), "Plain Song Melody" (C. W. Pearce), and Basso Ostinato, Op. 5, No. 5 (Antoine Arensky, Arr by C. W. Pearce). Mr. Gray played with much intelligence, and greatly pleased the audience. Miss Mabel Hardy was also successful in her singing of Lotti's "Pur decesti." A very fine young pianist, Master Alfred J. Tyler, neatly executed Mozart's Fantasia in D minor, while Mr. Sidney H. Sheppard, who has a voice of good quality and considerable power, sang "The heart so sadly broken," from Verdi's Simon Boccanegra, and "The Yeoman's Wedding Song" (Poniatowski) with credit to himself and his professor. Although Miss Dorothy Meallin somewhat dragged the time in the opening portions of Sarasate's difficult violin solo, "Zigeunerweisen," she displayed marked ability, both in execution and tone; and Miss Gertrude Wallis's singing of Giordani's fine air, "Coro mio ben," certainly deserves praise. Miss Constance M. Hatton gave a good account of Von Carse's "Miniature Suite" for pianofore. Other clever students were Mr. Edward S. Mitchell, L.T.C.L., who played Arensky's piano solo, "Sea Sketches," Mr. Joseph Myers, set down for Sullivan's song, "Love laid his sleepless head," and Mr. John A. Tatam, for an organ solo, "Andante con moto, in F," by Henry Smart.

Mr. Wilson Benge's company is at the New Theatre, Consett, in The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Cecil A. Melton is a capital George Tremain; Squire Leverton is well played by Mr. Ben Carr; Mr. H. Danson as Dick Leverton is good; Paul Cairshaw is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. Dockwray; Miss Pauline Nanton gives a fine portrayal of Marvis Leverton; and as the adventuress Miss Annie Hylton is clever. Miss Nita Imeson is a success as Gwen Younger.

Potier, the celebrated favourite of the theatre of the Port St. Martin, at Paris, was condemned in 1823 to pay 25,000 francs damages, as an indemnity for the loss sustained by that theatre, in consequence of his absenting himself for ten months, in breach of his contract. The damages were laid at 400,000f., calculated on the average receipts of the house of 60,000f. per month, and considering him responsible for the loss on each representation, in consequence of his defection.

"THE CRIMSON BUTTERFLY."

Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, Lyrics by William T. Ivory, Music by Eugenio Cappo, produced at the East Oxford Theatre, Oxford, on Monday, Jan. 31

Doctor Sealey ..... MR. HORACE GIBB
Sir Bouncer Buffington ..... MR. GEO. KEITH
Jack Armitage ..... MR. SEN HOLLOWAY
Wedwell ..... MR. OWEN FORD
Horatio ..... MR. HARRY DOUGLAS
Mick ..... MR. JAS. MAILEY
Marjorie ..... MISS KITTY CLARK
Mrs. Dunne Brown ..... MISS NITA MAYEU
Maisie Kissington ..... MISS EVA NELSON
Lizette ..... MISS ROSA MAY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The chief motif of the play is created by the endeavours of a wealthy and simple widow (Mrs. Dunne Brown) to secure, through a matrimonial agent, a suitable partner for her second venture. By payment of a double fee she obtains the choice of a twofold selection. Through an unhappy blunder on the part of the agent, Wedwell, an appointment has been made for her to meet both suitors, Dr. Sealey and Sir Bouncer Buffington, at the same time at the Metcecil Hotel. Sir Bouncer Buffington has always been regarded as the prospective husband of the doctor's daughter, Marjorie, but neither of them care for each other. She is in love with Jack Armitage, a captain in the army. Miss Maisie Kissington, a music hall artist known as the "Crimson Butterfly," whom the doctor's son, Horatio, has jilted on account of his "family pride," arrives on the scene burning for revenge. Wedwell, to help himself out of his difficulty, arranges with Maisie to impersonate for the time being Mrs. Dunne Brown. This exactly fits in with her idea of revenging herself on Horatio, as the prospect of his having to look upon her as "mother" if she marries his father will be too much for him. The doctor resents Maisie's advances, whom he easily recognises, but falls in love with the real widow. He arranges a visit to a seaside town—Saltborough—with Mrs. Brown, but Maisie follows, as do most of the others, Horatio included.

At Saltborough, to rid himself of his rival, Sir Bouncer, the doctor tries to get his daughter and Sir Bouncer married by special licence, for which he advances the money; but a conspiracy is formed with Jack Armitage, Sir Bouncer, and Marjorie, which results in Jack and Marjorie being happily united. At last the real Mrs. Dunne Browne, finding that both her suitors appear to be flirting—the doctor with Maisie and Sir Bouncer with Marjorie—in her rage turns to Wedwell, who, to obtain possession of her wealth, finds himself suddenly bound to marry her. Finally Maisie, the Crimson Butterfly, releases the doctor, and having as she thinks sufficiently tantalised Horatio, marries him. The doctor and Sir Bouncer once more join hands in friendship.

The play on the whole was well received, and is pleasing. The musical numbers are tuneful, and were rendered with spirit. The dialogue, which is somewhat commonplace and aimless generally, is probably the weak spot. There is need of more real comedy. Whatever success was attained was largely due to the feminine section of the cast, and of this Miss Eva Nelson as Maisie Kissington, the Crimson Butterfly, was the chief factor. Her acting throughout was of so easy, natural, and winsomely charming a character that she is deserving of the highest commendation; her singing is a delight. Her artistic individuality captivated her audience at her first entrance. Miss Nita Mayeu as Mrs. Dunne Brown was also one of the successes of the evening. Miss Kitty Clark gave a dainty portrayal of Marjorie, and Miss Rosy May was restrained as Lizette. Mr. Horace Gibb did what he could with Doctor Sealey; Mr. Sen Holloway gave effect to Jack Armitage; and Mr. Owen Ford infused plenty of life into Wedwell. Mr. Harry Douglas may be credited with one of the "hits" of the evening, his portrayal of Horatio, though somewhat on the conventional lines of the dude, being very humorous. Mr. Jas. Mailey made a good attempt as the Irish waiter, Mick, though unfortunately there was little low comedy business for him to do.

SUGGESTED MEMORIAL TABLET TO SAMUEL PHELPS.

Mr. Harry Plowman, F.S.A., presided at a meeting of the Islington Antiquarian and Historical Society held at the Central Library, Holloway-road, on Wednesday evening, when Mr. W. H. Pratt read a paper on Samuel Phelps. Mr. Plowman, in introducing the lecturer, gave some interesting personal reminiscences of the distinguished actor-manager. The reason he had been asked to preside on that occasion was because he probably knew more about Phelps than any man now living. He first became acquainted with the famous actor more than fifty years ago, when he was a small boy, for he was the companion of Phelps's youngest son, and the friendship thus formed continued uninterruptedly until the actor's death. He helped to nurse him in his last illness, and was with him when he died. Phelps was a good husband and a fond and devoted father. By nature shy and retiring, he was always uneasy in the company of strangers, but such friends as he had he "gripped to his heart with hooks of steel."

On one occasion, after a supper on the stage of the Lyceum Theatre, said Mr. Plowman, he heard Henry Irving say, in reply to someone who had complimented him on his productions: "The work I've done in this theatre is nothing in comparison with the work done by Phelps at Sadler's Wells." In conclusion, he thanked Mr. Pratt for reviving the memory of one who was so great a credit to the profession which he adopted. After a long experience of the stage he regarded Phelps as the finest actor he had ever seen. It was resolved that an application should be made to the Historical Records Committee of the London County Council, asking them to indicate by a memorial tablet the house, No. 8, Canonbury-square, Islington, where Samuel Phelps resided for many years.

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL'S company is this week presenting, at the Crown Theatre, Eccles, the new romantic play entitled From Convent to Throne. Mr. Graham Woods, as Lieut. Ernest gives a capital performance; Mr. A. F. Stuart as Maurice Prince of Carpathia proves himself an actor of sterling worth; and in the character of Baron Strelsau Mr. William J. Miller is all that can be desired. Mr. William Passmore as General Von Hapsburg gives a clever character study; Miss Mary Fulton in the difficult rôle of the Princess is a most capable and painstaking actress; Miss Esme Malim as the Lady Rotha plays with artistic restraint; and Miss Dorothy Cecil as Lady Violetta is to be complimented on her rendering of a by no means easy character.

A SHORT dramatic season opened at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, on Monday, with a visit of the Nottingham pantomime, Mother Goose, direct from the Grand Theatre, Nottingham. Mr. J. C. MacMillar undertook the title-rôle in a very humorous fashion, while Mr. Jack Lennox was equally successful as the ne'er-do-well son of Mother Goose. Miss Minnie Love as Colin and Miss Elsie James as Jill were an admirable principal boy and girl; while Miss Laura Wright added to the gaiety of the piece by the introduction of a maid-of-all-work of the deutscher type. Messrs. Stevens and Brett were a pair of specially good knockabout comedians; and other characters were ably sustained by Mr. Fred Seymour, Miss Ethel Monks, Miss May Davis, Miss Clara Pierse, Mr. Harry Reynolds, &c. The Berlin Belles gave some specialty dances, and Miss Maud Murray some clever aerial and serpentine dances.

"NO MOTHER TO GUIDE HER."

Brooks ..... MR. J. HERBERT
Judge ..... MR. R. GRAEME
Counsel for Prosecution ..... MR. B. HEATHER
Prison Chaplain ..... MR. JOHN RILEY
Warder ..... MR. J. GRIMM
Policeman ..... MR. A. WRIGHT
Muriel Clifford ..... MISS MABEL LISTON
Grace Beale ..... MISS C. MIDDLETON
Mary ..... MISS PRISCILLA BARNARD
Trixie Mackinlay ..... MISS KATE HUGHES

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The plot of this play is as follows:—Muriel Clifford, an orphan and heiress to a rich uncle, secretly weds Captain Dudley Stewart. The latter is an unscrupulous villain, who will do anything to further his own ends. One of his many victims is a certain girl named Grace Beale, whom he has separated from her lover. He has gone through a form of marriage with her, and afterwards ruined and left her. He also contrives to get the lover, Richard Thorpe, dismissed from his position as a coachman. Muriel discovers that Stewart has married her for her money, and breaks off all connection with him. Stewart is ordered to South Africa on active service with his regiment. Six years have passed, and in the second act we find that Muriel has married Sir Arthur Langley, thinking herself free, as a report to the effect that Stewart was killed at Magersfontein had been published. Sir Arthur is in ignorance of her former relations with Stewart. Stewart unexpectedly appears, and, finding Muriel alone, demands certain diplomatic papers, which are in her husband's care. She refuses to give them up, and he is forced to steal them. Muriel visits Stewart's rooms, and gives him money to keep her secret, but they are discovered by Sir Arthur, who, regarding her as faithless, casts her off. In Act III. Lazarus Marks, a money-lender, relates to Sir Arthur the story of Muriel's unhappy connection with Stewart, and Sir Arthur, repenting his hasty judgment, shows his gratitude by paying off the debt due to Marks by Stewart. He resolves to seek and find Muriel and make reparation. While doing this he is arrested for the murder of a man supposed to be Stewart, but who in reality is Richard Thorpe. Thorpe, out of work, had been employed by Sir Arthur as a groom, and in the course of his duties he and Dudley Stewart had met. Thorpe was shot by Stewart, who afterwards changed clothes with his victim. The second scene of the third act introduces us to a London hospital, where Grace and Muriel are engaged as nurses. News comes of the arrest of Sir Arthur for the murder of the supposed Stewart. In the last scene of the act we find Sir Arthur in prison. Here, through the kindness of the chaplain, he is visited by Muriel. Their vows of love are renewed, and they are remarried by the chaplain. The concluding scene of the last act takes place in the court house, where Sir Arthur is on his trial. Stewart himself, disguised as a labourer, gives evidence against the panel, but is thwarted by Marks. The Jew had been a witness of Stewart's crimes, and takes great pleasure in unmasking him. Everything is satisfactorily cleared up, and the finish to a rather exciting melodrama comes with the suicide of Stewart.

For a first night Mr. Graham Arthur's play went very well indeed, and with a little pulling together here and there should do good business for him. In the heavy part of Dudley Stewart the author was quite at home, and was ably supported by the rest of the company. Miss Mabel Liston as the motherless girl acted admirably; and Mr. Harold Heath was good as Sir Arthur Langley. The comedy element was supplied by Messrs. Fred Bentley and David Phillips and Miss Kate Hughes in their respective characters of the dude the money-lender, and the bright American girl.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Brahms' Quintet for Strings in G major, Op. 111, the opening item in the programme of the students' concert on Thursday evening, Jan. 27, was well interpreted by Mr. Thomas Peatfield, Mr. Eugene Goossens, Miss Rebecca Clarke, Miss Janet Macfie, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe, the beautiful Adagio being particularly well played. A young student of the college, Miss Gladys Cawston, gave a capital performance of Glazounow's Prelude and Fugue for piano, and was recalled four times to the platform. In the last instrumental work in the programme, Dvorák's Trio for Piano and Strings No. 2 in F minor, Op. 65, such advanced students as Mr. William Murdoch, Mr. Philip Levine, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe secured excellent results, and were most heartily applauded. To the vocal side of the concert Miss Celia Turrill contributed "Occhi belli," a charming old Italian air, arranged by Lindner. "Occhi belli," with its quaintly florid music, is an admirable exercise for the voice, and Miss Turrill sang it with considerable fluency and purity of tone. Her second song was one of Rubinstein's, in which the young artist was not so entirely successful. Apart from slight nervousness, Miss Hilda Marchand displayed ability in her singing of "Orpheus with his lute" (Sullivan), and will do greater justice to the famous air when she has acquired more experience. A characteristic song of Delibe's, "Mysto," was cleverly rendered by Miss Marguerite Owen, A.R.C.M., the fortunate possessor of a very pleasing voice. All the vocalists had a very hearty reception from the audience. The accompanist was Miss Constance Stockbridge.

"THE LITTLE DAMOZEL" opened at the Bournemouth Theatre Royal and Opera House on Monday, with Miss Ida Molesworth in the title-rôle, and Mr. Mark Blow as the Hon. Fitzroy Lock, the insurance agent; Mr. Frank Lacy presents a clever, natural, and convincing portrayal of Recklaw Poole; Mr. Geo. A. Brandram plays the part of Captain Neil Partington with admirable restraint; and Mr. Townsend Whiteing's study of the Proprietor of the Café Angelique is to be highly commended. The company also includes Mr. Julian Cross as Papa Bartholdy, Mr. Wm. J. Stack as Franz Pepo, Mr. E. L. Hocking as Abraham, Miss Roxy Barton as Sybil Craven, and Mr. Arthur Redmond as a servant. The play is preceded by Aunt Rebecca.

THE attraction at the Royal County Theatre, Bedford, this week is The Swiss Express, presented by the company of Messrs. C. and R. Renad, who themselves play the parts of the two eccentric servants James and John. Mr. Wilford Bailey is a whimsical Dr. Gondimar Gull; and Virginia Squeeze is charmingly personated by Miss Dorothy Deakin. Mr. Victor T. Raymond is good as Dudley Green; and Mr. James Hawkes cleverly enacts the rôle of Bob Rollingstone. Mr. George Power, a droll Rhino, creates much laughter; and Miss Lottie Stone's Palace quartette of vocalists and dancers give a capital performance.

A SERIES of special matinées of French plays has been given at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, by Rouhaud's Parisian company. On Monday Molière's comedy L'Avare, and Le Voyage De Monsieur Perrichon, by Labiche were played. Tuesday was devoted to Les Fourberies de Scapin, and Les Précieuses Ridicules, and Les Romanesques and L'Anglais Tel Qu'on le Parle.

THE Crystal Palace Orchestral Society and Choir will render Verdi's Requiem at the Crystal Palace on Saturday evening next. The work, it is interesting to recall, was composed in memory of Alessandro Manzoni in 1875, and was produced at Milan. For the present performance a strong list of artists have been engaged, including Miss Edith Evans, Miss Maria Yelland, Mr. Webster Millar, and Mr. Julien Henry. The programme will also include overture, "St. Paul" (Mendelssohn), Psalm, in eight parts, "Judge me O God" (Mendelssohn), and "Marche Héroïque" (Saint Saëns). The concert will be conducted by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock.

AT the Theatre Royal, Glossop, Mr. Andrew Melville's company is playing Driven from Home to crowded houses. Anthony Raybrooke is finely portrayed by Mr. Felix Pitt; Walter Hatherleigh finds a good exponent in Mr. G. George Beresford; Geoffrey Waring is cleverly presented by Mr. John B. Shinton; in the dual part of Walter and Laura Miss A. M. Ryder is successful; Adam Marley is ably sustained by Mr. Henry Helling; as the outcast, Willie, Mr. Percy Dawsone does well; good comedy business is supplied by Mr. Fred C. Imbert as John Anderson, Miss Susie Beaven as Margaret Bailey, Miss Madge Muriel as Jane, Mr. A. Winters as Tom Mortlake, Mr. Sam G. Hardy as Phineas, Mr. F. Bates as Tim, and Miss A. Williams as Mrs. McCarthy; and in the part of Dick Saunders Mr. E. Finla is very fine.

PREPARATIONS for the Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace are being pushed forward with all despatch, and the country is promised one of the most magnificent spectacles of the last fifty years. No fewer than 15,000 persons will take part in the Pageant of London, and contingents of 200 from each colony will figure in the final scene, symbolical of the children gathered round the mother country. The most dramatic scene of the pageant will be that of the Norman Conquest, which will be carried out on the most elaborate scale.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Jan. 27.—The Palais-Royal have given us an amusing farce that is likely to have a successful run. Olympe, a young girl from the provinces, married to Dr. Thomerel, a medical man practising in Paris, receives a number of anonymous letters accusing her husband of not being faithful to her. In the beginning she laughs at these accusations, in the firm belief that her husband is much too serious and too devoted to his profession to lead a fast life. But her friend, Colette Dubois, to whom she confides her doubts on her husband's fidelity, suggests putting that gentleman to the test, a scheme, however, fraught with difficulties. Whilst they are planning a way there is a ring at the bell, and Olga de Brandebourg, a demi-mondaine, enters, and asks to see the doctor for her throat. It so happens that Colette has known Olga when that lady was only a little workgirl; and as Olga has to leave that same day for London, Colette asks, as a special favour, to be allowed to take possession of her apartment for a couple of days. Olga consents, whereupon Colette at once writes a letter to the doctor—signed Olga—asking him to call on her at once. Dr. Thomerel does not know Olga; and as he has never seen Colette, the latter, out of friendship for Olympe, will be able to judge whether the doctor is faithful to his wife or not. So far, things are very simple; but complications soon arise, and these complications are personified by the doctor's nephew, a young hopeful, to whom he wants to give a tutor. Young hopeful, who dreads this kind of surveillance, manages things so cleverly that the tutor—supposed to have been engaged—is put aside, and his place is taken by Toupin, a chauffeur. From this moment there is a series of quid pro quos at Olga's house, especially as that lady's protector is no other than Colette's husband, who has passed himself off as an admiral. A Japanese Prince and a number of other curious people also come on the scene, and help to increase the complications, until, finally, in the last act, there is a general reconciliation, whilst the chauffeur is kicked out. The farce was capitally acted by Mlle. Yrven, a charming Olga, and especially by M. Milo, who, as the chauffeur-tutor, keeps the fun going all the time.

MM. FERNAND NOZIERE AND ALFRED SAVOIR have dramatised Tolstoy's Kreutzer Sonata, and the work was brought out at the Théâtre de l'Oeuvre. But a more dismal way to spend one's evening than by witnessing that performance cannot well be imagined. Tolstoy's pessimistic ideas do not come out so strongly in the book, where they spread, so to say, over a large surface. But in the compressed form of a play we have a little too much of them, although the authors have kept away as much as possible of the philosophical side, and made the most of the gruesome story. As a play it is decidedly thrilling; and the nervous tension increases up to the climax at which the hero's suppressed fury breaks out, and he stabs his wife while she, in fear and trembling, embraces him.

THE Comédie-Française has added to its repertoire Le Mariage d'Angélique, an old comedy by François Ponsard, which, thus far, has never been produced on a large French stage. The hero in the play is Molière, and the plot is pretty. It is laid in the year 1651, when Molière, then in his thirtieth year, is touring with his company, and is giving performances in Vienne, in the Dauphiné. There he meets Angélique, who tells him that she is anxious to marry Bellerose, a sergeant, instead of young Purgon whom her father wants to force upon her. A comedy is at once improvised wherein Mlle. de Brie, an actress in Molière's company, plays the part of a countess who bamboozles the little Purgon, giving Angélique an opportunity of meeting her beloved sergeant. The two acts met with an excellent reception.

THE Théâtre Shakespeare, in the hands of M. Camille de Sainte-Croix, is making rapid strides to popularity. It will be remembered that the organiser proposes to give twelve representations of the different plays of Shakespeare, following each other at a fortnight's interval, each performance to be preceded by a lecture. To-day we have arrived at the third Shakespearean soirée, having had A Winter's Tale, Troilus and Cressida, and A Midsummer Night's Dream. The company is composed chiefly of the pupils of the Conservatoire, many of them showing marked talent and a classical understanding. The charm of the performances is the unconventional treatment of the characters, the youth of the artistes imparting to them more than the stage semblance of truth. The scenery is arranged in an ingenious fashion, simply with a background representing either a castle, a camp, a fairy scene, or whatever may be the requirements of the work. And here in all fairness we must compliment M. Simas, the scene-painter of the Opéra-Comique, who has shown himself once more a consummate artist. For it is he who not only paints the background, but combines the colouring in the costumes to make a complete harmony. In a city like Paris, where the costumiers have such excellent taste, it is not difficult to find costumes for such plays, as already enumerated. But here again, even among Conservatoire pupils, there is the same difficulty to contend with as among full-fledged artists. M. Decaye has a wonderful comic gift, and is sure to make a name. We have seen him in the space of six weeks as Autolycus and Bottom, and in both rôles he created a sensation. Another of the clever actors is M. René Rocher; and among the ladies Mlle. Capazza—daughter of the well-known aeronaut—who was an amusing Puck. M. de Sainte-Croix very ably directs all these young people, and it is to be hoped that he will see his way to give more than one performance of the Shakespearean plays. Cymbeline is the next work to be produced.

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 3.—We have had a national nightmare. In the midst of Paris we have passed through half-dark streets turned into ponds, spaces roped off every few yards, the ground crumbling below our feet, houses falling down, and the yellow waters of the Seine threatening to overflow the bridges, tearing along at a wild pace, carrying along a fearful amount of wreckage, including articles of every description. Standing on the Alma Bridge I saw a piano carried away by the wild flood, and in its wake chairs, tables, bedsteads, pieces of timber, barrels, &c. The waters held Paris in their grip. Through the drains they reached up to unexpected levels, overflowing everything, and driving the terror-stricken inmates out of their houses. In the centre of the town the pavement sank in many places, and people asked one another what was going to happen to our beautiful city. Yet, in the midst of this awful disaster, the Parisians behaved with marvellous fortitude and self-possession. Patient and resigned, all helped one another, and, although the damage to property is incalculable, there were hardly any lives lost. The waters are now falling rapidly. The Seine begins to assume its usual aspect, but the visitation has left fearful traces that will take long, very long, to wipe out.

The theatres, of course, have also suffered. The Opéra, Cluny, Michel, and Sarah-Bernhardt had to close their doors for several nights on account of the floods, some on account of the absence of electric light, others because their cellars were filled with water. M. Gaston Akoun, the manager of Luna Park, came generously to the rescue of the inhabitants of the flooded districts by placing at the disposal of the authorities twenty-five boats of his water-chute, which, being flat-bottomed, could navigate in a foot of water, and carry heavy loads without danger. The dress rehearsal of Chantecler, announced for Monday last, is only taking place this evening, and many other houses also had to modify their programme. So much money has been lost that it is more than probable that our theatres are not likely to have a good season.

The only novelty this week has been Mademoiselle Don Juan, an amusing trifle by M. Antoine Yvan, brought out at the Théâtre Grévin. Don Juan, old, retired from business, feels time weigh heavily on his hands. He knows he has many children scattered about the world, and he orders Leporello, his faithful servant, to unearth one of these—a daughter by preference—on whom he might bestow his paternal affection. To save himself trouble Leporello asks Juanita, a young flower seller, to pass herself off as Don Juan's daughter, a proposal which the girl accepts, especially as she has fallen in love with Don José, Don Juan's nephew. But Leporello wants a reward for having secured her a comfortable home, and he will be quite satisfied if the girl will pay him "in kind." But when he attempts to take his reward by force Don José appears and gives him a tremendous hiding. Don Juan, on the other hand, hearing that his supposed child is in love with his nephew, gives his consent to their marriage. The wily Leporello, however, bent on revenge, informs Don Juan that Juanita is not his daughter, and that the best thing he can do is to marry her himself. The conceited old Don Juan, delighted with the idea, turns Don José out of the house. Leporello rubs his hands with delight, whereupon Juanita makes him believe that she has fallen in love with him, and arranges matters so that he is caught by Don Juan embracing her. Don Juan, mad with rage, wants to kill his servant, who, in order to save his life, swears that Juanita is really Don Juan's daughter, and that the latter, therefore, cannot marry her, and she becomes Don José's wife.

"L'HOMME A DEUX TETES."

Spectacular Play in Four Acts and Twenty-four Tableaux, by M. Louis Forest, produced at the Chatelet, on Feb. 2.

At the last moment the Chatelet management decided to launch their new piece, the première of which had been postponed till next week. The hero of the play has that in common with Jekyll and Hyde that he, too, leads a double life. That is to say, in society he is known as the fascinating Count Sylva, whilst to the members of his gang he is Jack, the brigand chief. It is in every way a profitable combination, for as Count Sylva he has every opportunity of preparing the robberies which his other self and his companions carry out. If the police are on his heels, all he has to do is to throw off his false wig and beard and don the garb of clubman. Unfortunately, the author does not tell us which of these two incarnations is the right one and which is the "disguise." But, unlike Mr. Louis Stevenson, the author of L'Homme à Deux Têtes does not trouble his head about psychology. All he wants is to amuse us, and in this he more or less succeeded. The story, which plays in Edinburgh, is as follows: Lady Helena, daughter of the late Lord Sullivan, immensely rich, is in love with Ralph, lieutenant in the Scotch Guards, and wants to become his wife. Coveting the lady's millions, Jack decides to get Ralph out of the way, and, under the name of Count Sylva, offers the lady his hand. Et voilà tout! In the end the villain is punished as he deserves to be, and Lady Helena marries Ralph. All this, however, does not go without trouble, and the persecuted Ralph would never have triumphed had he not been helped by Frispoulet, a gamin de Paris, who acts as Ralph's guardian angel. It is he who is the first to discover that Sylva and Jack are one and the same, and it is on Frispoulet that devolves the honour of killing the villain by a well-aimed revolver shot. The piece was fairly well acted and fairly well staged.

At the last hour the dress rehearsal of Chantecler, fixed for last night, was put off till Saturday, with the result that hundreds of motor-cars and broughams drove up whose occupants knocked their heads against the closed doors of the Porte-Saint-Martin. Complaints were numerous and loud, but the Parisian turns everything into fun. Along the pavement were a crowd of men and boys who enjoyed the annoyance of those who had come a long way to see Chantecler, and by way of compensation these pavement artists offered the society ladies and gentlemen a gratis performance in the way of an imitation of every bird in a farmyard. It was irresistibly funny, and the disappointed guests drove away roaring with laughter.

THREE large theatres are in process of erection in Berlin with the object of bringing high-class artistic dramatic and operatic productions within the reach of the masses. The "Grosse Oper," which, as its name indicates, will be devoted principally to the production of grand opera, will have seating accommodation for 3,000 spectators, and is to be opened in the autumn of next year.

THE second theatre, to be known as the "Volkskunsthaus," is being constructed by the Neue Freie Volksbühne, Berlin's premier dramatic society, numbering some 38,000 members. This society, which is presided over by Dr. Josef Ettlinger, intends to produce principally modern plays, for which purpose it has meanwhile taken a lease of the old Wolzogen Theater, in the Köpernicker Strasse. The first performance will be Ibsen's Pillars of Society, with which the Volksbühne made its début twenty years ago.

THE third new building, which Herr Hermann Gura, the famous singer, is having erected on the Schiffbauerdamm, will be known as the "Richard Wagner Volkstheater," for the production, at low prices, of the great composer's operas, the copyright of which expires in 1913. One-half of the available 3,000 seats will be on sale at 3s., 2s., and 1s. respectively. In order to ensure a first-rate orchestra, the budget of the new enterprise provides a sum of £5,000 for a whole year's rehearsals.

A NEW comic opera, called The Superior Sex, written by H. D. Banning, and composed by J. H Maunder, will be produced for the first time in the metropolis by the London Operatic and Dramatic Society at the Chippiegate Theatre on Wednesday. The work was originally given at the Empire Theatre, Southend-on-Sea, last March, and noticed in our subsequent issue.

THE King and Queen, accompanied by Princess Victoria and suite, witnessed the performance of The Dollar Princess at Daly's Theatre on Wednesday evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE had a representative audience at the first night of The O'Flynn at His Majesty's on Tuesday. Prince Francis of Teck was seated in the front row of the stalls, Mrs. Asquith was in the stage box with Miss Viola Tree, and other distinguished persons were Lord and Lady Craven, Lady Newborough and Lord Churchill, Sir Melvill Beachcroft, Sir Edward and Lady Clarke, and Mr. Charles Gill. The stage was represented by Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Fortescue, Lady Hare and her daughter, and Mrs. George Alexander.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will again perform a function which is customarily allotted to the chairman of the Parks and Open Spaces Committee of the London County Council, and will formally open the extension of Ruskin Park on Saturday, Feb. 19. This latest addition to London's open space, which is named after the great essayist, is situated on Denmark Hill, Camberwell, where Ruskin for some time resided.

MR. ROBERT HILTON'S production of Richelieu at the Strand Theatre on Thursday evening is being anticipated with the keenest interest, inasmuch as that young actor-manager's assumption of the title-rôle will differ materially from that of his many famous predecessors. In a recent interview Mr. Hilton states: "The part, by reason of its enormous possibilities, appeals to me from every point of view. Many actors have made Richelieu merely cruel, cunning, and crafty; but in the many published lives of this remarkable man I have read I cannot find that he was any of these things. His first consideration was for his country, everything else had to go under; whilst underneath his love of state and power there existed the most beautiful affection for the people. In every sense of the word he was a 'human man,' but when country comes into the question, one may use the old quotation, 'The end justifies the means.'"

THE mounting of the play, it is rumoured, will be on a most lavish scale; the garden of the Louvre, with its white marble terraces and background of green poplars, in addition to being an exact replica of the historic scene, will be a triumph of scenic art. Mr. Hilton, who is a Trinity College (Cambridge) man, has had considerable experience in the provinces, where he has made an enviable reputation for himself. His recent success as Richelieu at the Coronet is still fresh in our memories.

DURING his season Mr. Hilton proposes to introduce a number of novelties, the first being a little wordless play, written by Miss Aimée Lowther, with wonderfully descriptive music by R. Burnham. The conception of the piece is at once fanciful and charming, and it serves to give Miss Mabilia Daniell, who plays the Pierrot, opportunity to exhibit her well-known skill as a "mime." The wordless play will precede Richelieu, for which special scenery and handsome costumes have been provided.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH presented a very pretty little Blue Bird hand-painted fan to each lady of the audience at the 125th performance of Rudolf Besier's brilliant comedy Don at the Kingsway Theatre on Tuesday. Some charming postcards have been specially designed by Cayley Robinson for the Blue Bird, and are on sale at the theatre. They are very tasteful and attractive.

THE People's Free Theatre Company has been formed with the object of providing free performances of classical drama for the benefit of the working classes. Under the direction of Mrs. Gwendolen Bishop the company furnished on Saturday evening last at Toynbee Hall in Whitechapel a free performance of Euripides' Electra in the English translation by Dr. Gilbert Murray. The revival, which was strictly classical in style and costume, was witnessed by a crowded and enthusiastic audience. It is intended to provide performances for other poor quarters of London.

"TANTALIZING TOMMY" is the name selected for Paul Gavault and Michael Morton's new four-act comedy in which Mr. Cyril Maude will reappear at the Playhouse on Tuesday, Feb. 15. Mr. Maude will again have the assistance of Miss Marie Löhr, who will enact the title-part, Mr. Kenneth Douglas will have an important rôle, and interesting additions to the Playhouse company will be Mr. Fred Lewis, Mr. John Beauchamp, Mr. H. R. Averell, Mr. John Harwood, Mr. M. Wetherell, Mr. A. G. Onslow, Mr. C. B. Keston, Miss Sybil Ruskin, and Miss Maidie Hope. The scenes will include a cottage in the New Forest and a room in the Colonial Office.

A SOLEMN warning to theatrical speculators in America was uttered by Mr. Hayman, a prominent manager, at a dinner of the Associated Theatrical Managers of Greater New York. That city, he pointed out, with a population of 4,500,000, is asked to support more than 300 performances of grand opera in a season of twenty weeks, thirty-nine first-class theatres, and forty-eight theatres devoted to vaudeville, burlesque, and popular-priced attractions, besides more than 500 theatres and halls licensed for moving pictures. These are more theatres and places of amusement than are possessed by London, Paris, and Berlin combined. Managers and capitalists, added Mr. Hayman, were going theatre mad. A halt must be called, or a colossal amount of money would be lost.

THE second annual pantomime supper given by Mr. Charles Barnard, the proprietor of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, took place on Tuesday. Supper was served on the stage at twelve midnight to a large gathering, nearly 150 being present, the host himself occupying the chair. Mr. Norman Thew gave the toast of "Messrs. Stephens and Buchanan" (who are responsible for the present successful production of Cinderella), and regretted the inability of these gentlemen to be present. In acknowledgment Mr. J. W. Bayliss, their representative, thanked Mr. Barnard for the cordial way in which he and the whole company has been received at the theatre.

THE toast of "The Elephant and Castle Theatre and Mr. Charles Barnard" was proposed by Mr. Moss Chapman, who spoke of the many improvements which Mr. Barnard had made for the comfort of his patrons during his first two years there. Replying, Mr. Charles Barnard said he had done his best, as he would always continue to do, for his friends the audience, and they in their turn had shown their appreciation of his efforts by supporting him. He wished to add, however, that his present success at this house could not have been attained but for the good fortune he had experienced in always having a hard-working and loyal staff around him.

THE health of the ladies was proposed by Mr. A. Bird, and responded to in humorous speeches by Miss Mary Ambrose (who plays Prince Casimir in the present production) and Miss Lilian Errol (Cinderella). During the evening Messrs. Dan and Sydney Barnard spoke in very high terms of the staff. Dancing took place after supper, and was continued until the early hours of Wednesday morning. Messrs. J. H. Bayliss, Will Cutler, and Will Cartwright are to be congratulated upon having arranged and carried through a most enjoyable function.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY concludes the fourth week of what is proving to be a very successful tour at the Grand Theatre, Derby, to-night. A feature of the current week has been the huge attendance of Midland Railway workmen, who have given Mr. Harvey and Miss de Silva remarkably enthusiastic greetings. On Monday the Harvey company appear at the Opera House, Southport, which, under Mr. Percy Hutchison's vigorous management, is rapidly becoming one of the most successful houses in the provinces. To-day week Mr. Harvey, in response to many requests, will revive The Corsican Brothers.

"RICHARD III." is due at Dublin on April 13, and is expected to prove one of the most interesting performances Mr. Harvey has ever essayed. Months of preparation have been devoted to the production, and Mr. Harvey has had the advantage of consulting some authoritative works, very rarely available, from which he has been able to cull much illuminating material. In Dublin the production is regarded as an event of prime importance.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, it is satisfactory to learn, has so far recovered from his recent operation to warrant his removal next week from the West-End nursing home to his residence in the Finchley-road. Very soon Mr. Hutchison expects to complete all arrangements for the tours of the great London successes, Don and Smith, both plays being practically cast and the tours booked for spring and autumn.

MR. W. W. KELLY, at the Birkenhead Theatre Royal this week, introduced his audience to When Knights Were Bold, which amusing piece had not hitherto been played in the town. Mr. Langdon Bruce gave a capital performance of Mr. Welch's successful rôle; and Miss Ernestine Lascelles also distinguished herself. On Monday Lucky Durham will be presented by the Armitage-Leigh combination. At Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, this week, Mr. Frank Lindo and Miss Marion Wakeford have drawn crowded houses in Home, Sweet Home, and on Monday Mr. R. C. Buchanan takes his successful pantomime Aladdin to the Paradise-street theatre, with Miss Mabel Hind in the title-rôle.

THE Grand Opera season to be run by Mr. Thomas Beecham, commences on Feb. 19 at Covent Garden with Richard Strauss's tragic opera Elektra. The principals, who have already sung in the opera, include Mme. Edyth Walker, Mme. Frances Rose, Frau von Mildenburg and Herr Weidemann. The orchestra of one hundred performers and the chorus of eighty will be British artists, the special scenery has been designed and painted "at home," and the costumes will also be British made.

THE annual Shakespeare Festival at Stratford-upon-Avon will, for the twenty-second time, be under the direction of Mr. F. R. Benson. This year's programme, which will extend to nearly four weeks, bids fair to surpass in interest any yet presented to the pilgrims to the birthplace. A list of the eminent artists who will grace the Festival proceedings was given in our last issue. Sir Herbert Tree will open the celebration on Friday, April 22, with a performance of Hamlet, given in curtains.

THE carrying through of the festival will entail much work upon the Benson company, as the programme will include sixteen plays of Shakespeare, Beaumont and Fletcher's Knight of the Burning Pestle, and the Prize Play, the latter being the winning play out of the 315 sent in for the recent competition for a prize of £300.

THE Ben Greet Players have been appearing at the Garden Theatre, New York, in The Little Town of Bethlehem, an allegorical play, by Katrina Trask, which deals with the story of the Nativity and several important episodes of the same period, bringing out the racial peculiarities and jealousies of the Jews, Greeks, and Romans. Through the play runs the love story of Faustina, a proud maiden of the Roman aristocracy, and Cariston, a Greek poet. Her scornful treatment of Joseph and the Virgin is punished by leprosy, and she becomes a wandering outcast for thirty years. Then she hears of the Healer of Nazareth, and, being cured of her disease, is restored to her lover. Mr. Ben Greet as Cariston and Miss Keith Wakeman as Faustina give excellent representations, and are supported by a capable company. The performance is decidedly interesting.

A PLEASING ceremony took place at the Cambridge Theatre, Spennymoor, last week, when Mr. Claude Seaton, who has for the past few years acted as stage-manager, was presented by Mr. David Collins, the resident-manager, and staff with a timepiece and smoking cabinet. Mr. Collins handed over the presents, and spoke in eulogistic terms of the abilities of Mr. Seaton. The recipient feelingly responded, and stated that the gifts would be highly prized for the remainder of his life, and would bring back happy recollections of his stay at Spennymoor.

NOTWITHSTANDING the heavy fall of snow in Southport last week—the heaviest that has been known for years in the town—the populace, as also the outlying districts, turned out in their hundreds to be at the last representation on the Saturday night of The Arcadians. Seldom, if ever, except for the visit of The Merry Widow, has such a house been seen, and the enthusiasm over Mr. Robert Courtneidge's magnificent production was unbounded.

AT Trinity College of Music, London, the Maybrick prize for ballad singing (£5 5s.) has been awarded to Eveline Matthews. The following scholarships and free tuition have been awarded for one year, with possible renewal:—Organ: Herbert Dawson. Pianoforte: Edgar S. Mitchell, Briana Prager, Ruth A. Strickland. Free tuition: Jenny S. Russell. Violin: Olga Corrigan, Hazel B. Giles, Constance E. Martin. Singing: Eric R. Cooper, Mabel E. Hardy, Eva K. Sly, Robert A. Strong. Free Tuition: Stanley J. Evans, Leonard van Mentz. Violoncello (free tuition): Kathleen Thompson. Flute (free tuition): Harry Gardner.

MR. H. LOUIS WILSON has been engaged by Mr. F. W. Bolam as business-manager for the Drury Lane drama The Marriages of Mayfair.

OWING to the indisposition of Mr. Frank Ridley the part of Colonel Dacre in The House of Temperley at the Adelphi Theatre is at present being played by Mr. Archibald Forbes.

A NEW extravaganza, entitled Robin Hood, written by Medicus, with music by Mr. C. T. Davis, Mus. Bac., was produced by an amateur society at the Byculiah Athenæum, Enfield, on Saturday. The plot proved to be original, and the various parts were generally well performed. Miss Dorothy Britain, in the rôle of Maid Marion, was charming, and displayed decided talent. Mr. Horace Sequeira as Widow Winsome was cleverly amusing, and worthy of praise were Miss I. Sequeira, Miss V. Chapman, Miss H. Harris, Miss H. Burton, Mr. H. C. Chapman, Mr. B. Potter, Mr. S. Sequeira, and Mr. J. L. Fryers. A lullaby sung by Miss Brenda Williams was enthusiastically encored. Great credit must be given to Mr. E. Green, under whose direction the performance was given.

MR. TOM CRAVEN has decided to alter the title of his new farcical comedy. Instead of It isn't Cricket it will come to the footlights under the title of The Family Ghost, "a piece of fooling in three acts." Mr. Craven is arranging to produce this, his latest effort, early in May. It may not be amiss to add that a play under that title was produced at the Theatre Royal, Hanley, in March, 1881.

"THE WAY THE MONEY GOES," a play, in three acts, by Lady Bell, will be the chief production of the Stage Society at their performance at the Shaftesbury on Sunday, Feb. 13, and the following afternoon. The cast will comprise Miss Agnes Hill, Miss Helen Hayo, Miss May Congdon, Mr. Leonard Calvert, Miss Mabel Adair, Miss Estelle Stead, Miss L. M. Revell, Miss Eily Malyon, Mr. Alfred Harding, Mr. H. Nye Chart, Mr. Douglas Gordon, Miss Evelyn Kirkby, Mr. Guy Heilbrough, Mr. Ernest Cosham, Miss May Kendal, Miss Helen Boucher, Mr. Roland Hope, Mr. Holliday Attlay, and Mr. William H. Brown. The new play, as we have stated, deals with the industrial classes in a large manufacturing town.

PRECEDING the principal piece will be A Lioness and Her Whelp, by Fred D. Barker, in which Mr. Rudge Harding, Miss Esmé Hubbard, Miss Florence Lloyd, Miss Evelyn Marthèze, and Mr. Roland Hope will appear. Little notion of the nature of the play can be gleaned from the scene in which it is laid, namely, at MRS. Smith's, in London, Sunday evening.

THE annual supper and dance held in connection with the pantomime at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, took place on Monday at the Constitutional Hall, Hammersmith-road. There was a large assembly, and amongst those present were Messrs. Stratton Mills, Charles Goff, A. J. Nicholls, George Fisher, William Rokeby, Horace Middleton, Norman Walters, A. Bradshaw, and Percy Selby, Mesdames Olivia Eltona, Ray Wallace, Minnie Blanchard, and the Tiller Troupe. Her recent severe indisposition was the cause of Miss Edna Morgan's absence.

ABOUT a hundred ladies and gentlemen sat down to a very excellent supper, and after the usual toasts had been moved and carried with acclamation the hall was cleared for dancing, which was kept up until a very late hour. The arrangements were excellently carried out under the energetic supervision of Mr. Norman Walters, the popular manager of the King's, and Mr. A. Bradshaw, his able assistant.

A CURIOUS incident occurred in the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on the evening of the 28th ult., while Aladdin was being performed before a large audience. The pantomime proceeded with the usual smoothness until Mr. Harry Tate had contributed his very amusing motor-car turn, when the fireproof curtain descended, and the orchestra played the National Anthem. As there was still a scene to go, there was much speculation among the audience as to the cause of the unusual occurrence. Some concluded that fire had broken out, and quite a number lost no time in getting into the street.

THE explanation of the incident is a simple one. The fire curtain, it appears, is worked by power supplied from the hydraulic station in High-street, and an accident had occurred at the station which caused a diminished pressure at the theatre, with the result that the curtain dropped slowly until it rested on the floor. As the curtain weighs some eight tons, it was absolutely impossible to raise it again, and thus the performance came to an end.

MRS. STAFFORD SMITH, who will be well remembered by playgoers of forty years ago as Miss Mary Parker, a young and very popular actress, passed away at Merton on Thursday, the 27th ult., after two years' suffering. The deceased lady commenced her career with the late Mr. Harris at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, and thence went to Mr. E. D. Davis, at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle. When only seventeen years of age she played all the leading parts in a six months' stock season at the Theatre Royal, Norwich, under the late J. F. Young's management.

IT was while acting as leading lady during stock seasons at the New Prince of Wales's Theatre, Rochdale, that Miss Parker was married to Mr. Stafford Smith. On that eventful occasion nearly half the mills of the town closed down, and at the church there were hundreds of the mill girls, who almost worshipped her. She leaves her husband, two daughters—Mrs. Ernest Shand and Miss Mary Stafford Smith—and three sons to mourn her sad loss.

MESSRS. ERNEST STEVENS AND R. C. BUCHANAN'S Elephant Theatre pantomime Cinderella is still playing to big business, but must be withdrawn on Saturday next to make way for the commencement of the dramatic season, the arrangements for which were made long since.

"CINDERELLA" at the Crystal Palace Theatre has been meeting with such success that it could very well run for several weeks more, but the management are compelled to withdraw the admirable production in order to make way for the opening of the spring season on Monday next. The attraction will be the great Lyceum drama Pete, which will pay its first visit to the Sydenham theatre. The cast is an exceptionally strong one, and includes Mr. Austin Milroy as Pete and Miss Violet Barnet as Kate.

"THE LIVING DEAD," a play in four acts, by Lee Wilson Dodd, was produced for copyright purposes at the Court Theatre, on Feb. 1.

HAVING recovered from their indisposition Mr. C. V. France (Time), Mr. Rigby (Bread), and Miss Ina Pelly (Water), resumed their parts in The Blue Bird at the Haymarket on Monday evening.

A FOUR-ACT play, entitled Pinnacles of the Future, by Daisy Halling, will be produced at the Pankhurst Hall, Hightown, Manchester, on Feb. 11, by the Pankhurst Hall Amateur Dramatic Society. The authoress will play one of the principal characters, and will thus make her first appearance at the footlights since she retired from the theatrical profession two years ago.

MR. PERCY WOODROFFE, the conductor of the orchestra at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, has composed a new dance, which is being executed in the pantomime by Benn's Dutch Girls and is meeting with much success.

MR. CHARLES LAKE, poducer and stage-manager of the successful pantomime Robinson Crusoe at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, was overwhelmed with presents on his leaving on Saturday night last to take up his appointment as general manager of the Lyceum Pete (South) company, which is now appearing at the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich. Among the most costly gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake were a purse of gold from the principal ladies and gentlemen of the pantomime, silk hat and case from Mr. Alty (manager of the Theatre Royal) and Mr. Jacobs, a travelling rug with worked initials from the local ladies and children, and a pedestal work-basket, set of hair-brushes, and silver manicure set from the Sisters Albert, Miss Clarence, the local staff, and others.

MESSRS. DOTTRIDGE AND LONGDEN'S pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, terminated its five weeks' run at Hanley on Saturday last, after one of the most successful seasons ever known there. On Monday it was reproduced at Mr. Morton's Theatre, Hull, where it was received with great enthusiasm, and its run of three weeks is assured of crowded houses.

THE announcement of the death of Mr. Charles E. Lambert will come as a sad surprise to many members of the theatrical profession. Mr. Lambert and his wife, Miss Louie Walton, belonged to Mr. Morton Powell's A Girl's Temptation company, and both were to appear this week at the Liverpool Rotunda Theatre, but last week Mr. Lambert was seized with pneumonia and bronchitis while playing at Mountain Ash, and was laid aside for only five days, when the end came on Wednesday, his loving wife relinquishing her Liverpool engagement to nurse him.

MR. LAMBERT had had a long experience on the stage. About twenty years ago he and his wife were members of the old stock company at the Liverpool Adelphi, in the days when as many as six different pieces were put on each week. When that place closed they joined touring companies, and had several very long runs, Mr. Lambert having alone appeared in Her One Great Sin some 1,600 times, Miss Walton being also a member of the company for the same period. Personally, both were held in the highest esteem, and general sympathy will be felt for the widow and two daughters (Nellie and Maudie). The latter are also worthy and accomplished members of the profession in which their parents have spent so many years. Mr. Lambert will be buried at Mountain Ash to-morrow (Sunday) at two o'clock.

OWING to a sudden indisposition, Mr. Freddie French, who plays the part of Hercules, Baron de Debtington, in the Elephant pantomime of Cinderella, was unable to appear on Monday last. His part was undertaken at short notice by Mr. Will Cutler, who came through most successfully in both matinée and evening performances on that day.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND" brought its successful season at the Court Theatre to a finish on Saturday night amidst unbounded enthusiasm and every indication that the run might well have been extended for many weeks. All the principal artists were "called" again and again, little Ivy Sawyer coming in for a perfect ovation and receiving floral and other tributes from countless admirers. The proprietors and producer were heartily called for on Saturday night and cheered to the echo by a packed house. Messrs. Stedmans are in negotiation for another West-End theatre to reproduce the charming play on a still more extended scale at Easter.

THE Victoria Theatre, Broughton, has re-opened this week, and there is every indication of a new life of success being attained. It has been leased by Mr. James Cramer, a Manchester gentleman, who has retained as manager Mr. J. Fred Watson, who occupied a similar post during the last few years. It is fully licensed, and the intention is to have the best dramas presented, Leah Kleschna being announced for next week.

THE football team connected with Mr. George Dance's Our Miss Gibbs company, which is appearing at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Grimsby, played a match with an eleven from H.M.S. Skipjack (stationed at Grimsby) on Tuesday. The Miss Gibbs' representative won by four to one.

MR. CHARLES A. W. BROWN, late of The Devil company, has been engaged by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter to play William and the Mayor in their Pete company (North), opening at the Dalston Theatre on Monday.

MISS CONSTANCE BACHNER has been engaged to play the leading part of Kate in Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's spring tour of Pete from the Lyceum Theatre.

THE new musical comedy company which Messrs. Denton, Bode, and McKenzie are working in conjunction with Messrs. Rupert Clarke and Meynell, have sailed on the Orsova, to open in Melbourne on Easter Monday with The Arcadians. They have a repertory of six London successes. These firms will also, in conjunction, do a big pantomime at Christmas.

MISS KITTY DALE, now appearing at the Stoke Newington Theatre, has been engaged by Mr. Milton Bode for a principal singing part in musical comedy in the autumn, and also by Mr. Bode as principal boy at Christmas.

MISS MAUD ESMOND, the favourite Dick Whittington and Crusoe of the Brixton Theatre, has been engaged to play principal boy at this theatre in a special production of Red Riding Hood on the 14th inst.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Violet Ellicott, Miss Winnie Tempest played the part of Josephine in A Royal Divorce, at the Opera House, St. Helens, on Monday last, and scored a success.

MR. NEWMAN MAURICE will take his benefit at the Brixton Theatre on Tuesday evening, when many of the stars in London will crowd round him to make the night a record.

MR. FRED MELVILLE'S successful pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, will be played for the last time on Saturday, Feb. 12. On the following Monday Mr. Melville proposes to produce Little Red Riding Hood, with Miss Maud Esmond as principal boy and Miss Dorothy Miller as principal girl. The remainder of the characters will be undertaken by the present popular company.

MR. HUGH FLEMING, who completes to-night an eight weeks' engagement as manager for Mr. Fred Fredericks' Babes in the Wood pantomime at the Marlborough Theatre, has been engaged as press representative by Mr. Robert Hilton for his season at the Strand Theatre.

MISS WARD, who has been seriously indisposed, has, we are glad to learn, quite recovered, and is resuming her old part of Rose Avondale in His Real Wife.

WE regret to announce the death of Miss Bella Richardson, who was found dead in bed at Edinburgh on the 26th ult. Miss Richardson played the child in Green Bushes and other small parts with Madame Celeste, and later, with Mr. Branson, at the Adelphi, Liverpool, enacted Zoe in The Octoroon and Topsy in Uncle Tom's Cabin. At the Prince of Wales's, Liverpool, she played with W. Anson and Joseph Eldred in Shakespeare and in adaptations from Dickens, and was for years a member of the stock company at the Theatre Royal, Liverpool, under Mr. de Frece's management. She also acted with Messrs. Osmond and Edmund Tearle, with Mr. Edward Terry in Liverpool, and at the Strand under the Swanborough management. The funeral took place on the 29th ult. at the Eastern-road Cemetery, Edinburgh. Among those present were Messrs. Frederick and Ernest Richardson, brothers of the deceased; Mr. Whitehead, manager of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh; Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Mr. Hall, Miss Kitty Douglas (Mrs. Roy Jackson), and Miss Hilda Hatton.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S pantomime The Forty Thieves concluded its run on Saturday last at the Fulham Theatre amid scenes of great enthusiasm. The pretty theatre was packed with an audience most of whom had evidently seen the pantomime several times. Miss Hettie Gale (Sisters Bartholomew), Miss Lillah Lassah, Miss Grace Hampton, and Miss Rosa Male had an ovation and the stage in the Palace scene resembled a miniature Covent Garden, while pictures, boxes of chocolate, etc., were presented by admirers.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY MCCLELLAND desire, through our columns, to thank Mr. Waldon, the ladies and gentlemen of the Princess's, Glasgow, pantomime company, and numerous other private friends for the beautiful wreaths, &c., and expressions of sympathy in their recent bereavement.

MISS PHYLLIS RELPH, who is supporting Mr. Derwent Hall Caine in the famous "Betrayal" scene from his father's play, The Eternal City, which has been played with considerable success on the Gibbons' Circuit, will be going to the Lyceum presently to play the part of the heroine, Jane Fielding, in the new four-act piece, by E. W. Ferris and B. P. Matthews. The young actress, who comes from a well-known theatrical family—her mother being on the stage—had prepared herself by hard work in the provinces and suburbs, and her experience should stand her in good stead at the house in Wellington-street.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company with Brewster's Millions is drawing all Darlington this week, despite the inclement weather in the North. The advance booking for Sunderland promises to be enormous, the entire production opening at the King's Theatre next Monday.

AT the fall of the curtain on Saturday evening last at the Grand Theatre, Southampton, on the termination of Mr. F. Mouillot's successful pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, the principal ladies, Miss Hilda Vining, Miss Daisy May, and Miss Mary Pittcarn, presented the stage-director, Mr. J. R. La Fane, with a solid silver engraved card case. The comedians, Mr. E. Sefton and Mr. Mat Powell, gave him a silver-mounted umbrella, and the Viviand Co. presented him with a travelling thermal flask.

MISS TITTELL-BRUNE, the Australian actress who has recently arrived among us, is handsomely garbed as the faithless Lady Carew in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde at the Queen's. One superb dress is a study in black and gold, represented by satin, and long borderings of jet fringe and Indian gold embroidery of a very intricate and effective appearance. A further novelty is a wedge-shaped incision at the side of the skirt above the hem, which discloses the gold shoes worn. Another gown that makes a great sensation introduces the vivid yet dark serpent green colouring that is a striking novelty of the moment, against a black background.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN will this month complete thirteen consecutive years of management. During that time Mr. Norman has run one of the few remaining répertoire companies (in the strict sense of the word), and has produced every type of play from Shakespeare to modern farce. A great number of well-known people have played with Mr. Norman at one time or the other. At present there are over twenty ladies and gentlemen playing in the West-End theatres who have formerly been members of Mr. Norman's company. A great deal of the success of Mr. Norman's productions has been owing to the admirable performances given by his charming leading lady, Miss Beatrice Wilson. During his management Mr. Norman has only had three leading ladies, including Miss Audrey Ford, the wife of Mr. James Welch.

MR. ARTHUR SCOTT CRAVEN, who has so well adapted Auguste Strindberg's play Simoom as The Sirocco for Lady Tree, is by way of preparing for British delectation other small plays by the Swedish poet and dramatist, whose play, The Stronger Woman, was produced in December at His Majesty's Theatre.

"THE FIGHTING CHANCE," a thrilling drama by E. W. Ferris and E. P. Matthews, which is to follow the pantomime at the Lyceum, will bring back to the "popular playhouse" many of its favourite actors. Mr. Matheson Lang is winning fame in America, and a new leading man will replace him in the person of Mr. Robert Minster, a fine actor, who has had wide experience. He has recently been distinguishing himself with Mr. Percy Hutchison's productions on tour, and played Charlie Harrison in that gentleman's revival of Brewster's Millions at Wyndham's last year. Mr. Frederick Ross returns to the Lyceum company, and is cast for the part of the hero's uncle, who has his eyes put out by hot irons; and Mr. Eric Mayne will resume the rôle of the villain.

MISS FLORENCE SMITHERS, who is appearing with such great success in Aladdin at the Lyceum Theatre, has been re-engaged by the same management for their next pantomime.

AN "ocean theatre" will be inaugurated by Mr. Charles Frohman when the Mauretania sails for England from New York next week. He intends to present Mr. Edward Lock's three-act play The Climax, which is to be seen in London towards the end of this month, and will stage it as effectively at sea as in New York. There will be a fixed charge for seats, and the proceeds will go to the Seamen's Fund.

NEGOTIATIONS are in progress for the erection of a new concert hall near Regent's Park, not far from Queen's Hall and the new St. James's Hall. The new building will have a seating capacity of 3,000, and its shape and general plan will be after the style of the old St. James's Hall.

MR. JOHN MCCORMACK, the Irish tenor, was entertained at a banquet in Philadelphia on Wednesday evening, when 500 admirers presented him with a golden loving-cup, beautifully engraved. Mr. John Murphy, Lieutenant-Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, in making the presentation, said:—"Ireland is a land of song. Nearly everything in its history has been sung, and the power of the ancient bards was next to that of Kings. Irish singers make their appeal to the heart, and as long as the heart can be appealed to the world will stand in loving admiration of Tom Moore and John McCormack."

THE Playgoers' Club is this afternoon inviting 4,500 of the poorest children of the Metropolis to witness the pantomimes at the Britannia and the Elephant and Castle Theatres. Thanks to the generosity of their members and the public, the Club has had the pleasure of taking 120,000 children to such a performance, giving them a substantial meal in addition.

ONLY limited success has attended the competition for the prize offered by the Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians in London. Speaking at the Guild's twenty-second annual dinner on Monday, Dr. J. H. Lewis, the honorary warden, said that upwards of sixty compositions had been sent in for the prize, but there were only two awards, some of the compositions being simply dreadful.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Acting Unimproved.

"I scarcely think that the standard of acting can be said to have improved," says Mr. George Alexander, in The Standard. "The modern spirit is, of course, responsible for a studied reticence in declamation and gesture; but it is also responsible for a sad deterioration in the art of speech, of enunciation and articulation. Every school has the defects of its qualities, and it is only when the seasoned man—the old actor—catches what is good in the methods of the modern histrion that we come near to the ideal. And nothing, I may add, is more gratifying to me than the alert adaptability of our veterans to the best methods of the hour. Their reverence for tradition has not blinded them to the virtues, even to the fashions of to-day, and the 'old guard' of the theatre are found in the procession smartly stepping with the recruits."

"EVERY sort of play now is 'safe' if it be excellent of its kind. The serious drama need not be morbid, and realism is not synonymous with pruriency. A play may be born out of its time—and Guy Domville, I may, I think, cite as an example of this. It would be interesting, perhaps, to put one's theory to a test, and I may yet revive Mr. Henry James's clever play.

Still Learning.

"ONE thing, however, I can tell you," said Mr. Alexander to a Mail man, "with all my experience I feel as much a babe as ever in the conduct of his strange business of the theatre. From talks that I have had with men engaged in business, professions, and the arts, I cannot find evidence of such a glorious uncertainty as curtains this business of the theatre. To be successful in it one has sometimes to neglect its conventions, like Gainsborough, who, when he was told he could not use blue in a certain way immediately set about painting his 'Blue Boy.'

The Fascination of the Footlights.

"I HAVE great faith in the future of the English theatre. Plays are not harder to find than they were twenty years ago, and the proportion of playgoers to the population has greatly increased. Notwithstanding the counter-attractions of the music-halls, there are more people attending the theatres to-day than ever before. For myself the fascination of the theatre is greater than ever. It must be always so for one who got there because he loved it. I know of many actors who cannot get work on the stage. We all do, yet speak to one of them, say to him 'Why not try something else?' and the answer comes back—'No, I cannot.' That is the fascination of our calling."

His Lucky Month.

"I PRODUCED Lady Windermere's Fan eighteen years ago—to be exact, in 1892, on Feb. 20. February, I think I may say, has been my lucky month, for it was in February that I began as an actor-manager with Dr. Bill, in February that I produced The Idler, in February that Oscar Wilde's second success, The Importance of Being Earnest, was presented here, in February that Alfred Sutro's Mollentrave on Women started upon a profitable career, in February that I had the pleasure of producing Sir Arthur Pinero's His House in Order, and it was on Feb. 2 that I have celebrated the twentieth anniversary of my reign at the St. James's.'

Mr. Courtneidge's Experience.

MR. ROBERT COURTNEIDGE, in an article in London Opinion, relates an early experience of his with a travelling company at Barnsley. "Here," says Mr. Courtneidge, "fortified solely by hope, we hired an old circular wooden theatre, out of which we were presently turned by the proprietor, a burly and truculent ex-prize-fighter. One might have supposed that with this desperate plight our misfortunes had reached their limit, but privations still more acute were in store. We then secured the public hall and opened up, but the rent swallowed every penny of our meagre takings, and at last things reached—for me at least—the breaking point. For three nights I wandered about or slept in the fields, and during that time tasted no food."

A Hungry Villain.

"THE irony of it. I, the wealthy villain of the piece, was so emaciated that a puff of wind might have blown me down. Upon the fourth night of my fast I crawled to the hall in such a state of exhaustion that I could not go on. So it was agreed that I should take the first money that came in. The scene remains with me vivid to this day: A pallid mummer, leaning his wasted frame against the wall, waiting for the first coin. It came—a threepenny piece, paid at the gallery entrance. I took it eagerly, and walking unsteadily to a neighbouring bun shop ate for five ecstatic minutes. Then, strengthened by new resolution—and old pastry—I returned and played the villain amid the execrations of a small but virtuous audience."

These be Bitter Words.

MR. WILLIAM GILLETTE, at the annual dinner of the Theatre Managers' Association in New York, made a satirical speech, in the course of which he said:—"I am very happy to get in here at last and meet you face to face. Of course, it's perfectly well known to everybody that theatre managers are scoundrels and I'm glad of this chance to tell them so to their faces. There is only one thing that I know of that has gone down lower than you have—the drama itself. I ought to know something about this, because for twenty-five years I have been helping to sink it. The drama has been rapidly and gracefully declining ever since it started seventeen or eighteen centuries B.C. You might imagine that after a while there wouldn't be any place left where it could sink to."

A Merry Monarch.

MLLE. DEMOUGEOT, of the Paris Opera House, and Mlle. Robinne, of the Comédie Française, who recently entertained the Kaiser at the French Embassy, are in raptures at his affability. "The Emperor is delightful," said Mlle. Demougeot to the Daily Mail correspondent. "He talked to me for at least ten minutes about art and music, and he asked if the acoustical properties of the Paris Opera are still as poor as when he was in Paris incognito as a young man in 1878. The Kaiser said he was sorry that contemporary composers could not write music like Bach and Gluck and Mozart." Mlle. Robinne's description of the Emperor is even more glowing than Mlle Demougeot's. "Why," she said, "he isn't a bit like the mailed Lohengrin he is always pictured to be. He is a born causeur, and how amiable he is and how heartily he can laugh! He assured us he had not been so amused for a long time."

Almost.

MADAME MAZARIN, the representative of the heroine of Richard Strauss' Elektra, at the Manhattan Opera House, told the Press that the theme of the opera was the most awful that any composer had ever undertaken to embody in opera, and at times during the rehearsal, she added, "I seemed to have been almost as insane as Elektra herself."

Running a Risk.

"THERE will be no regular intervals in Mr. Bernard Shaw's new play; 'it will be left to the audience to decide when the curtain shall fall.' This is risky," says the Pall Mall. "They might ask to have it down after the first five minutes and refuse to have it up again." The same paper remarks: "We hear of a French actress taking lessons in aviation. The experience thus gained should come in handy for flying matinées."

Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy describes his work as a "tale of love and war," and "an original play derived from many sources." It is a free, dashing, breezy, active historical melodrama, with a decided tendency towards Jacobitism, and a leading part which Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree must enjoy playing, that of a dauntless poetical, romantic soldier of fortune. We find The O'Flynn in the first act in his ruined castle, where there is plenty of home-distilled whisky but nothing to eat. He has just returned from the Continent, where he has been serving as a soldier of fortune, and, on his way home, has rescued a beautiful heiress, Lady Benedetta Mountmichael, from the attack of a highwayman. She comes to thank him, and he makes love to her ardently and poetically. She is an earnest supporter of King James II.—the date of the play in 1690—and is betrothed to Phillip Defford, Earl of Sedgemouth. Benedetta believes Defford to be the soul of honour, and regards him as a paragon; but he is really a traitor, in the pay of King William. In order to help James and win Benedetta's favour, the O'Flynn goes to Dublin with a company of strolling players, getting their business man to advance to him the cash necessary for a new suit of clothes on the strength of a story about buried treasure at Castle O'Flynn.

In the second act, at a Dublin inn, the O'Flynn hears Sedgemouth speaking disrespectfully of the Lady Benedetta, and fights a duel with him, in which the Earl is slightly wounded. Lady Benedetta, not knowing the provocation given, bitterly reproaches the O'Flynn, who remains deeply in love with her, and raises a regiment to assist King James. In the third act, in the trenches before Knockmore Castle, which is held by William's general, Luitprand Van Dronk, the O'Flynn, in order to spare Benedetta's feelings, takes upon himself the discredit of an amour with a courtesan called Fancy Free, who is really the mistress of the Earl of Sedgemouth. O'Flynn also obtains admission into Knockmore Castle by pretending to be a deserter, is invited by Van Dronk to sit down to a drinking-bout, drugs the General's wine, and putting on his wig, impersonates him when Sedgemouth arrives on a mission of treachery to King James. After obtaining written evidence of the Earl's duplicity, the O'Flynn pulls up a rope ladder to the window by a string, and admits his soldiers, who seize the castle by a coup de main, and arrest the garrison.

In the last act The O'Flynn is in high favour at James's Court at Dublin Castle, and Sedgemouth is conspiring to force James to sign his abdication, and to kidnap him afterwards. This scheme is frustrated by The O'Flynn, who substitutes himself for the King, the conspirators being worsted, and Sedgemouth being disgraced and shot dead by a soldier as he rushes to assassinate the O'Flynn. The Lady Benedetta, correctly informed of the villainy of her unworthy fiancé, and of the chivalrous devotion of his rival, confesses that she has always loved the O'Flynn, and is taken by him to his heart.

Sir Herbert Tree as the O'Flynn was the central figure of the variegated stage picture, and he played the part in a style quite in sympathy with its character. His performance was, from beginning to end, a delightful piece of fantastic romance. Making love in verse, fighting a duel and getting drunk at the same time, deluding a Dutchman or dancing an Irish jig in turn, Sir Herbert was always animated, sentimental, picturesque, and vivacious. It was not a part which called for deep study, and Sir Herbert took it as it was written, and treated it in exhilarating style. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy's Lady Benedetta was bewitching in its silvery distinctness and delicate daintiness, in its firm, clear, refined treatment, and in the genuine sincerity and sweetness of its tone. She was exquisitely refined, and yet entirely human and feminine. Mr. Henry Ainley as the Earl of Sedgemouth looked exactly the polished, sly, serene schemer, and, endowed his reading with all the airs and graces of the period. The polished sarcasm of Mr. Ainley's tone was in vivid contrast with the rugged earnestness and eager intensity of Mr. William Haviland's Hendrigg, a strong, resolute, and intense impersonation. Mr. Edward Sass supplied a firm, unctuous, and sturdily individual representation of Luitprand Van Dronk; and Mr. Scott Craven gave a bold, soldierly rendering of the rôle of Lieut. Trusham. Mr. Sydney Paxton's Duke of Tyrconnel was a highly-coloured portrait of a bibulous nobleman of the period; and Mr. Hubert Carter gave an amusing and elaborate representation of the travelling manager, Burden. Very fortunately was Miss Auriol Lee cast for the rôle of Fancy Free. Her features and figure suited the part exactly, and she played it with all imaginable impudence and coquetry. Mr. Shiel Barry gave a smooth and highly finished rendering of the rôle of Conamur; Miss Elinor Foster was amusing as an affected tragedy actress; and the other strollers had clever and competent representatives in Mr. Jules Shaw, Mr. Nigel Playfair, and Mr. William Mackintosh, who had a special round of applause on his first appearance as the business-manager, Beggles. Miss Helen Ferrers was a very aristocratic and imposing Duchess of Tyrconnell; and Lady Belinda Fanshaw and Lady Barbara Jarmyn were charmingly depicted by Miss Hilda Moore and Miss Hemingway. A neat bit of portraiture was supplied by Mr. C. H. Croker-King as James II.; and the Stuart King's aristocratic supporters were well embodied by Mr. Frank Esmond, Mr. Frederick James, and Mr. Harry C. Hewitt; Mr. J. W. Braithwaite and Mr. Edmund Gurney being picturesque'y droll as two process-servers, and Mr. W. G. Fay comical as a shabby Irish servant of royal descent. Mr. Henry Morell did useful work as Bandy; and Mr. Wilson Gunning was commendable as a tailor. The scenery, an important part of the production, was admirably prepared by Messrs. Joseph Harker, Walter Hann, and H. W. Owen, Mr. Harker having the largest share of the work, his view of Knockmore Castle being a masterpiece. The O'Flynn had an enthusiastic reception, and will delight all who can enjoy a drama of adventure, sentiment, poetry, and inexhaustible incident, acted with exuberant animation, and mounted with appropriate picturesqueness.

"THE STRONG PEOPLE."

Original Play, in Four Acts, by C. M. S. McLellan. Produced at the Lyric Theatre on Monday, Jan. 31.

Richard Murray ..... MR. LEWIS WALLER
Colonel John Pontifex ..... MR. LYN HARDING
Jack Borinski ..... MR. GUY STANDING
Conrad Borinski ..... MR. A. E. GEORGE
Lieutenant Trench ..... MR. S. J. WARMINGTON
Lieutenant Goodrich ..MR. W. CRONIN WILSON
Judith Grant ..... MISS DOROTHY DIX
Meda Borinski ..... MISS MARJORIE DAY

The weak point of The Strong People is its ethics; the effective value of it is in the vivid humanity of its personages and the earnestness of purpose and energy with which they have been endowed by the author. The condition of things at the commencement is that an American manufacturing company, competing with a rival in the city of Minetown, has ruined its opponents utterly. Their works are closed, the men are thrown out of work, and they are not employed at the new factory which has been built by the conquerors. But a similar state of things might have been created by a fire or by a new invention. The plight of the workmen thus disengaged is a painful one, but it does not justify them in an attack on the successful factory, or, indeed, in any kind of violence. Mr. McLellan's sympathies, however, appear to be with the men of Minetown in their lawless action and against Richard Murray, one of the partners in the victorious company; and, perhaps, from a popular playwright's point of view, the author of The Strong People is wise. There is now so much indignation felt on both sides of the Atlantic with trusts and syndicates that is is safe to attack them in play or book. To the impartial eye, however, it appears that Murray has merely been fighting the business battle on business lines, and that the men were decidedly wrong in rioting. This is the opinion of Colonel Pontifex, of the United States Army, who is sent to Minetown to quell the disturbance. The leader of the workmen is Jack Borinski, who is eager for a fight, and is quite willing to take the consequences. His father, Conrad Borinski, is an old shoemaker, cautious, shrewd, and moderate, and a prominent person on the side of the people is Judith Grant, formerly secretary to the defeated manufacturer, who has committed suicide in despair. In order to induce her to cease her inflammatory harangues, Pontifex invites her to his headquarters, where she meets Murray, who has come, under the name of Brandon, to see what is going on at Minetown. Presenting himself as a pressman, he gets the entrée everywhere; and Pontifex takes him into his confidence. The Colonel, who holds stock in the successful company, is quite ready to bring on an émeute; and, as Jack Borinski is equally eager for the fray, there is certain to be much bloodshed, unless time can be gained for the workmen's passions to evaporate. This time, however, Pontifex refuses to give; and, as a foretaste of the horror of civil war, shows Judith the corpse of her brother, who has just fallen in the street skirmish.

In the second act, Murray goes to Conrad's shop to try and get Jack Borinski to come to terms; but the popular leader is adamant, and sends back an insolent message to the commander of the troops. War to the knife is imminent; and, as the troops have machine-guns and the populace only rifles, there can be little doubt of the result of the struggle, which can only be prevented, Judith thinks, by the death of Pontifex. She goes to the Colonel's headquarters with a knife to kill him, but is prevented from doing so by Murray, who tells her he will deal with the difficulty himself. He does so by defying the Colonel, telling him that he (Murray) has arranged that, in the event of his death, the Colonel's connection with the successful company and his motives in forcing on a combat will be published in all the papers, which it appears will result in the ruin of Pontifex by the force of public opinion. The Colonel "caves in," and postpones his attack on the workmen; and the act ends with the realisation by Judith of the identity of the generous journalist with her bête noire, Richard Murray.

The last act is occupied with an argument between him an Judith for and against her marrying him. In the end she is overcome, and consents to be his wife on the understanding that they shall remain in Minetown and watch over the happiness of his workpeople.

The acting of the company was better than the philosophy of the play, which held the audience, on the whole, very firmly, despite the argumentative nature of much of the dialogue. Judith Grant is a difficult character to cast, and Mr. Lewis Waller must be congratulated upon having secured for it an actress so suitable in every way as Miss Dorothy Dix. Her dreamy, mysterious, resolute expression, her grave and serious beauty, and her exquisitely modulated voice were very valuable; and she played in certain scenes with fine passion and power. Mr. Lewis Waller as Richard Murray had a part quite in his line, and he acted throughout in the firm, intense, and powerful style we know so well, his pleading to Judith in the last act being a masterpiece of fervid energy. Mr. Lyn Harding as the massive and overbearing Colonel John Pontifex played the part to perfection, the touches of brutal coarseness being very effective. Mr. Guy Standing gave a subtle, yet strong, study of Jack Borinski, the mixture of bitter revolt and tender sentimentality being quite convincingly shown, and the style and accent being excellent. A remarkable character creation was contributed by Mr. A. E. George as the old shoemaker. It was a work of genuine art, quietly realistic, delightfully natural, and admirably finished. A charmingly fresh and sweet impersonation of Conrad's daughter Meda was given by Miss Marjorie Day; Mr. S. J. Warmington and Mr. W. Cronin Wilson supplied a couple of clever cameos as the Lieutenants; and Mr. McCleery's scenery was entirely adequate and effective. A word of praise is deserved by the orchestra at the Lyric. The selections made by the musical director, Mr. Leonard Chalk, are very acceptable, and are appreciatively applauded.

MR. A. CLIFTON ALDERSON'S company is this week presenting The Coal King at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Mexborough. Mr. A. W. Norman plays with ability in the title-rôle; Walter Hartford is cleverly presented by Mr. Robert Faulkner; a manly and intelligent conception of Tom Roberts is given by Mr. Henry Deane; Mr. Frank Dalton dramatically interprets the part of Dick Shirley; and Mr. Sam Roberts displays a fund of humour as Jim Williams. Miss Winifred Love plays with grace and charm as the heroine, Grace Shirley; and Miss Dennis Duncan makes the most of Mad Ann.

In 1868, when Robert Louis Stevenson's story was thrilling all readers of fiction with its weird fascination, there were four versions made of it. Two were produced in London; one by Mr. Daniel Bandmann, at the Opera Comique, in the August of the year, and another by T. Russell Sullivan, in the same month, at the Lyceum, with Mr. Richard Mansfield, in the dual rôle. In this latter adaptation, there was a Sir Danvers Carew, but he was the prospective father-in-law of Dr. Jekyll, and was murdered by him in the character of Hyde. On this faint suggestion, and on the incidents of the novel, Mr. Comyns Carr has, with surpassing skill, based a very thrilling and enthralling play. He has used all that is dramatic in the Stevenson story, and has added to it a great deal of his own invention. We presume that the book is still firmly fixed in the memories of our readers, who will recognise the cleverness displayed by Mr. Carr in practically writing a new drama.

The supernatural atmosphere is cleverly created in the first act by a conversation at Dr. Jekyll's house, from which we understand that Jekyll, who is married to a young wife whom he has accidentally blinded in one of his experiments, has in the past engaged in an intrigue with Lady Carew, the wife of an elderly and dissipated diplomatist. Some letters from Jekyll to the lady have been stolen by a discharged butler who has begun to blackmail Lady Carew. In fear of exposure and ruin, she has tried to poison her husband; but the attempt has been discovered by Jekyll's friend, Dr. Lanyon, who has put Sir Danvers, vaguely, on his guard. Jekyll has already commenced the practice of dividing his nature into two persons, and occasionally inhabiting the body of the repulsive Hyde, and the worser nature is trying hard to gain the mastery over the higher, with the result that Jekyll resolves to "remove" both the men who imperil his reputation and that of Lady Carew.

The second act takes place in the drawing-room of her house, where there is a gathering of diplomatists and society people. With the key to the garden door, which he has often used in the course of his amour, Jekyll, in the form of Hyde, obtains admittance to the room after the guests have departed, and, after taunting Sir Danvers with his vicious habits, strangles him and stabs him till he dies.

And here, by a vastly ingenious invention, Mr. Carr makes the wanton who has fascinated Jekyll the means of his detection. Lady Carew caught a glimpse of the murderer as he fled, and recognised him as Hyde, and she sets the police on his track. And now—as in the book—the Hyde begins to overwhelm the Jekyll. In vain does the latter soul struggle against the tyranny, in vain does he send for fresh drugs with which to re-transform himself into Jekyll. In a touching scene, he induces his wife to hand him in, at the window of the room where he has fortified himself, a quick poison taken from his shelves. The police, led by Lady Carew, come hot on Hyde's track. They break open the door, and Hyde rushes out, takes the poison, falls dead, and again becomes the blameless Jekyll, his wife fondly kissing the forehead of the corpse.

The play is one which keeps an audience at the tensest pitch of horrified expectation, and leaves those who have witnessed it overpowered with agitation and awe. Mr. H. B. Irving is remarkably well fitted for the dual part of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The refinement of his style, his distinguished personality, and the something serene and scholarly about his expression, make him an ideal Dr. Jekyll, and his Dubosc in The Lyons Mail partially prepared us for his extraordinary creation of Hyde. Though the requirements of stage contrast demand a certain exaggeration in the make-up of the monster, Mr. Irving's evil genius is by no means a merely melodramatic representation. The expression of the features, the voice, and the attitudes all help to produce an impression of bestial malignancy and inhuman activity. Rising high above the bloodthirsty hate of Hyde in the second act, and his devilish delight at the memory of his evil delights in the third, is Mr. Irving's delivery of the half-exultant speech to Lanyon in the latter act—a speech which Mr. Carr has very finely elaborated from the hint in the book. Altogether, Mr. Irving's Jekyll-Hyde is a performance which it is impossible to forget. It lingers in the memory like a nightmare. Mr. Charles Sugden played the cynical diplomatist with his usual polished ease, dignity, and grace, and a strikingly clever representation of Lady Carew was given by Miss Tittell-Brune, who managed to suggest the voluptuousness of the siren mingled with the resolute spirit of the bold, bad wife. Miss Tittell-Brune is an actress of great promise and may be expected to "arrive"—indeed, she may be said to have done so already. Mr. Eille Norwood was a handsome, manly, and spirited Dr. Lanyon, and played the part with admirable force and judgment; and Miss Dorothea Baird, whose beauty was increased and assisted by her exquisite dresses, was touchingly simple and sincere as Laura Jekyll. The subordinate characters, which were numerous, were all ably sustained. Mr. Henry Vibart was unimpeachable as Mr. Utterson; Mr. Charles Allan was commendably crisp and clear as Mr. Enfield; Mr. H. Marsh Allen as James Wellaby told his little story in the first act capitally; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton gave a neat rendering of Mr. Ransmead; and Mr. Alex Scott-Gatty was sharp and decisive as the police inspector. Mr. Frank Tyars as Poole had a good opportunity for the depiction of deep and earnest emotion in the last act, and took advantage of it with remarkable success; Mr. Arthur Curtis was efficient as Mr. Guest; Mr. King Fordham did well as Dick Faversham; Mr. J. Patric Curwen gave a praiseworthy performance as Algée Bertram, Mr. Stuart Musgrove being all that was required as Reginald Prout, and Mr. W. Hemstock filling the rôle of Count Valesoff satisfactorily. Mr. A. Synge played Evans creditably; and Mr. W. Graham did good work as Monson. A bright and sparkling impersonation of Lady Hilda Holden was contributed by Miss Cynthia Brooke; and Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem as the frowsy, intemperate landlady gave a comic creation of real humour and quaint character. Miss May Holland deserved favourable mention as Walters. The scenery, by G. Sackmann, was excellent. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde created a tremendous effect on the audience, and the expression of their feelings was loud and enthusiastic. It was preceded by the sketch, by Harry Grattan, fully described by us after its performances at the Tivoli and the Palace, entitled

"THE PLUMBERS."

Mr. Saunders ..... MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS
Mrs. Drake ..... MISS EMILY SPILLER
Martha ..... MISS BLANCHE DORIS
"Erb" ..... MR. HARRY GRATTAN

As many of our readers will remember, the sketch depicts the troubles of a female householder at the mercy of a certain type of "British workman." Two plumbers come to mend a leak in a pipe, break it, set the water running copiously, and go off to dinner, on the principle of après nous le déluge. The central figure in the sketch is Mr. Arthur Williams, whose make-up and acting as the plausible, conceited, and audacious mechanic, Saunders, are irresistibly funny, and send the house into roars of laughter. He has good support from Miss Emily Spiller as Mrs. Drake, Miss Blanche Doris as a comic servant, and the author as the pale and eccentric assistant, "Erb." The scenic details are thoroughly well done.

MR. ALEXANDER'S ANNIVERSARY.

There was a scene of extraordinary enthusiasm at the St. James's Theatre on Wednesday evening, when Mr. George Alexander completed his twentieth year of theatrical management. Mr. Alexander, on his entrance as John Worthing, J.P., in The Importance of Being Earnest, was received with uproarious applause. At the conclusion of the performance he appeared before the curtain and said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, I am deeply sensible of the honour you have done me in being present here to-night on this my twentieth anniversary. I am bound to say that it seems almost impossible to me that it is the twentieth. It is, I dare say, in a measure owing to your enthusiasm to-night that I still feel the jeune première. On looking back on these twenty years my heart is full of gratitude for the many favours you have so continually and so courteously bestowed upon me and the sympathy you have offered me is surely the best reward to any artist, and must be a most delightful recollection. To-night, by your presence, and the messages of many friends who are absent, I have now for the first time in my life felt spoilt by kindness. Amongst the many compliments I have received I attach a great deal of importance to the telegram I now have in my hand, which, with your permission, I will read:—"We present at the meeting of the Dramatists' Club on Wednesday, Feb. 2, desire to congratulate you on the achievement of twenty years of management, during which you have rendered conspicuous service to the interests of modern dramatic literature." This was signed by Arthur Pinero, J. M. Barrie, Sydney Grundy, R. C. Carton, A. Hope Hawkins, H. V. Esmond, W. S. Maugham, J. B. Fagan, Cecil Raleigh, W. S. Gilbert, Alfred Sutro, and G. Bernard Shaw.

"A man who has passed the best years of his life as a manager of a theatre," continued Mr. Alexander, "must indeed be proud to have won the approbation of the greatest dramatist of his time. I hope you are pleased with the souvenir to-night and will have pleasure in reading it. I am delighted to be able to announce my intention to produce in the future still another play from the pen of Mr. Oscar Wilde, a play which will form a vivid contrast to the mirth-provoking comedy you have seen to-night. It has been acted in Germany, and is entitled The Duchess of Padua. I am sure you will forgive me if my words have been inadequate to express my gratitude to you one and all."

OXFORD UNIVERSITY DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

In selecting The Tempest for their twenty-fifth anniversary the Oxford University Dramatic Society set themselves a difficult task; but, judging by the measure of success attained and the very enthusiastic reception of their efforts, their choice was fully justified. The Tempest was played by the Society in 1894, when the cast included many whose names are now well known on the professional boards—Messrs. G. E. Souper, C. H. Croker-King (now playing at His Majesty's Theatre in The O'Flynn), N. Playfair, and Miss D. Baird. Special scenery has been painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley for the present production, and the scene representing The Lime Grove, in Act III., was a veritable triumph for artistic effect. The music for the overtures, incidentals, Ariel's song "While you here do snoring lie," and the duet for Juno and Ceres, was drawn from the music to The Tempest by Arthur Sullivan, in 1862. The orchestra was under the direction of A. C. Boult (Christ Church), who wielded the bâton with success. The play was produced by G. R. Foss, who deserves great credit for achieving such meritorious results.

Mr. W. Bridges-Adams on the whole sustained Prospero with considerable power and effect; whilst Mr. R. B Pemberton was distinctly good, and in Act III. he thoroughly reached his audience in his love scene with Miranda. As Antonio Mr. R. A. Powell was realistic; and M. de la P. Garsia was full of feeling as Gonzalo; Mr. C. Howard-Smith succeeded in giving a convincing interpretation of the unnatural Caliban; Mr. J. A. Stainton carried himself well as Stephano; and Mr. R. S. Hooper gave evidence of ability to amuse as Trinculo. Mr. J. E. S. Richter appeared a trifle stiff as Alonso; and Mr. G. W. A. Simpson seemed intent on imbuing Sebastian with unnecessary affectation. The spirits were admirably rendered by Mrs. Russell, Miss Dorothy Garratt, and Miss Olive Boult. As Miranda Miss Noël Mackern may be congratulated for a very pleasing and graceful performance; whilst the Ariel of Miss Evelyn Lomax was a charming creation, her rendering of the songs allotted her being excellent. All the minor characters were played with verve by various other members of the society.

A Beautiful Brogue.

A QUAINT story is told of the late John Billington's appearance in Dublin as Patrick Maguire in The Serious Family. Billington was a Yorkshireman, particularly when he was playing the Yorkshire squire, John Mellish, in "Aurora Floyd," but he prided himself upon being an excellent Irishman when occasion required, and was accepted as such by many a provincial critic who saw him play with Toole in The Serious Family. But a visit to Dublin took the stuffing out of him. In the course of the last act of the play he was informed that a prominent citizen of the Irish capital would like to be allowed to come round to his dressing-room and congratulate him upon his performance. Considerably flattered to think that his Irish had gone down so well with a native, John Billington received the visitor in the most cordial fashion. "I am indeed charmed," he said, "that such an authority as yourself should have been pleased at the way I got over the difficulty of Maguire's Irish brogue!" "Ahr, that's jist it," exclaimed the Dublin enthusiast; "that's where ye were so deloightful! Ye niver attimpted it!"

MR. JAMES KIDDIE and company are presenting the Forty Thieves pantomime at the Hippodrome, Stalybridge. Miss Rose Pareezer, a dashing Abdallah, sings prettily; and Messrs. Mark Merry, Arthur Burton, Reg Ambler, Percy Curry, Arthur Behan, Harry Walker, and the Misses Elsie Steadman, Lyle Jeffries, Cissie Behan, Kitty Behan, Ada Jenner, and Dorothy Wellington are amongst the principals of a charming production.

BERLIN, Thursday, Jan. 27.—This work of two young Danish dramatists may be at once recorded as a success; it is full of bright humour—if we except a brief scene or two where a little pathos is displayed—and the characters have just the right shade of caricature indispensable to a piece of the kind. The audience laughed heartily throughout, and called the authors repeatedly before the curtain. Marten Cederlund is a Danish writer and poet of no very great genius, and who has the utmost difficulty to keep the wolf from the door. His wife, far from being a helpmeet, consoles herself with her husband's friend, and when Cederlund goes on a journey to Africa, to study and explore at his country's expense, nobody is very sorry. Two years having elapsed without any news from the traveller, he is given up as dead, and then his greatness becomes known. So great becomes his fame—aided by those seeing what advantages may be derived from it—that gradually his works are sold at fabulous prices, everything he has handled becomes a priceless relic, and finally a Cederlund museum is opened by a real live prince. On the day of the opening the "great dead" turns up in the flesh, but so aged and changed by the ravages of fever that nobody recognises him at first, and he listens, with mingled feelings, to his own eulogies. When he is recognised, poor Cederlund soon finds he is anything but welcome. His wife is least of all pleased to see him, being about to enter into matrimony with her lover. His best friend advises him to conceal his identity, and pose as a friend of Marten Cederlund's. The pseudo-deceased goes through all sorts of unpleasant adventures, being taken into custody, tried, pronounced insane, and so on. Ultimately he decides upon flight, and returns to Africa, accompanied by his neglected young son Niels and a former sweetheart, who, we conclude, will console him for his wife's hard-heartedness. The interpretation was excellent, and the mounting also.

Siegfried Wagner's new opera—or musical drama—Banadietrich, was received with much enthusiasm on its first production at Karlsruhe on Sunday night. It will probably become the most popular of the composer's works. The music is a brilliant copy of his great father's style, and is at times very dramatic; in other parts light and vivacious as an operetta. The book is adapted from an old Bohemian legend, and is particularly whimsical. Dietrich von Bern, the hero—Banadietrich in Wendish—is followed by the Devil, who covets his soul. His Satanic Majesty, in the guise of one Raunerath, promises Dietrich success in battle if he will thrust away his beloved Schwanweiss, who is a species of undine. Dietrich agrees, having had considerable ill-fortune of late, but Wittich—his friend—hearing of the plot, acquaints Schwanweiss, who is deeply grieved. Wittich loves her, but she is faithful to Dietrich, who becomes jealous of the former and stabs him. Schwanweiss, after nursing the wounded man, returns to her home in the waters of the river, while the Devil still tries to gain possession of Dietrich's soul. By a grotesque dance he causes Dietrich to laugh during mass in the cathedral, which incenses the populace against him, and from that time he is the sport of fate—an unhappy wanderer through the spheres. The Devil and Death appear to claim him, but Dietrich slays the latter. A voice from heaven calls him to repent and all will be well, but he neither hears nor heeds, and the same voice condemns him to eternal misery. Then Schwanweiss's voice is heard from the depths, imploring her lover to repent. He listens and obeys. The powers of darkness, waiting to convey him to his doom, are dispersed, and Schwanweiss's white arm draws him down to the cool depths, to the watersprites' home. It will be readily acknowledged that a more fantastic theme could not well be found. We are looking forward to seeing the opera here in a short time.

"Der Naturliche Vater," Dr. Eulanberg's latest play, which was produced at the Deutsches Chamber Plays last week, was a complete frost. It was a comedy, whose wearisomeness and utter lack of wit and humour tried the patience of the audience to the verge of desperation, and the slight attempt at applause was drowned by hisses. It is superflous to detail the piece, as it has already been removed from the bill.

"DER PHILOSOPH VON SANS-SOUCI."

Play, in Four Acts, by F. Holm, Produced at the Neues Theatre, Jan. 28.

Markgrafin von Bayreuth ..... Fraulein Rose
Charlotte ..... Fraulein Jagger
Marquise von Pompadour ..... Fraulein Renier
Fuerst Kanitz ..... Herr Werckmeister
Voltaire ..... Herr Reuss
Signora Barbarina ..... Fraulein Ritter
Noailles ..... Herr Horling
Abbé Bernis ..... Herr Stoeckel
Marquis de Travennes ..... Herr Baskt
Count Algerotti ..... Herr Schwaiger
Baron Poellnitz ..... Herr Andresen
Marshal Schwerin ..... Herr Graeve

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 3.—The unostentatious pseudonym has been adopted by the Countess Leiningen, a lady well known in society, and in a position to collect information relating to the famous bygone days when Frederick the Great played the flute to his friend Voltaire and other admirers in the Sans-Souci Palace at Potsdam. It is not a dramatic play, but rather a series of scenes put together by a very skilful hand, and forming a clever and concentrated sketch of the period. We see all the familiar figures of the great King's Court, but they are not always accurately, and certainly not flatteringly, depicted. This is more especially the case with Voltaire and Madame Pompadour. The former is represented more in the light of a spy, while his characteristic wit is lacking; and the latter is more of a sentimental schoolgirl than the energetic intriguante of history. The other characters, however, are admirably drawn, the interest naturally concentrating itself upon that of the King, who was very finely impersonated by Herr Schmidthässler. After a series of intrigues, when the enemies of Prussia are rejoicing in what seems to them her certain downfall, everything comes right, and the philosopher-king is triumphant. It is a piece which, in the nature of things, interests a Prussian audience, and the reception was extremely cordial. Above all, the mounting was deserving of unstinted commendation. Prince and Princess Eitel were present at the performance.

A very fine performance of the second act of Rienzi was given at the Royal Opera on the Emperor's birthday. It was, of course, a gala night, and the house was crowded with a distinguished assembly, with some fifty Royal persons in the Imperial boxes. Herr Rudolf Berger (in the title-rôle) and Fräulein Frida Hempel excelled themselves, and the orchestra, under the capable conductorship of Kapellmeister Blech, played magnificently. Wagner's "Kaiser March" was played during the entrance of their Majesties and their guests.

The Volks-Oper produced August Enna's Cleopatra a few nights ago, achieving a complete success. This interesting work of the Danish composer was given for the first time in Germany a number of years ago at the Royal Opera, meeting with a very cordial reception. It was at that time fully described in your columns. The text has been adapted by the Danish author Christiansen from Rider Haggard's novel, and the music is dramatic in proportion. There is little doubt—the interpretation being satisfactory—but that the opera will be given for a long time to come.

A well-deserved success was accorded to a five-act play at the Schiller O. recently. It is entitled Der Pfarrer von St. Georgen, and the author's name is Heinrich Welcker, a solicitor in Leipsig. For a first work it is very good indeed, and affords promise for a successful career. The plot is well developed. It depicts a conflict between a broad-minded and somewhat free-thinking organist and the orthodox and very narrow church authorities. Everything is done to get the worthy old man out of his post, but he finds a friend in the young clergyman, whose views are not very different from his own. The two men now stand together and face the enemy, but the clergyman is protected by a liberal-minded minister of state, and his position is therefore unassailable. A love story is effectively woven in with the main theme; the clergyman loves the organist's daughter, and gains her for his wife. The acting was all that could be desired, and the reception was most cordial.

An attempt was made by the Academic Stage Association to revive Halbe's farce Der Amerikafahrer recently, the performance being given with a good company at the New Royal Opera. This unfortunate play, it may be remembered, was produced at one of our leading theatres some years ago, and was literally hissed and hooted off the stage. The reception being entirely justified, it was a matter of wonderment that any second attempt should be made. The result was precisely the same at the recent trial, and the sympathies of the audience were with the artists who had expended so much pains upon such a thankless task.

"Tantris der Narr," Herr Hardt's prize-crowned drama, has passed its fiftieth performance at the Lessing Theatre, and is still being given several times in the week.

"THE SIROCCO."

Playlet, Adapted by Arthur Scott Craven from the Swedish Simoon, Produced at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, Jan. 31.

Guimard ..... Mr. Edward O'Neill
Yussup ..... Mr. Charles Goodhart
Biskra ..... Lady Beerbohm Tree

(from our own correspondent.)

There is an immense amount of dramatic "grip" in this little sketch, although the theme is weird and slightly gruesome. It affords the three artists engaged in it opportunities for some fine acting, and the story is one of sustained interest. The scene is laid in Algeria at the present time. Here we find an Arab sheik, named Yussup, lamenting the loss of his first-born, who has been killed by order of Guimard, a French officer commanding troops in the locality. The father fears to revenge himself lest the soldiers should burn his village and slaughter his tribe. But an Arab woman, named Biskra, who is in love with Yussup, comes to his aid, and on condition that he marries her agrees to get rid of the French officer. She accordingly, by telepathic hypnotism, fascinates the man, who has a liking for her, and lures him away from his army through the burning Sirocco to her house. Almost dead from the effects of the scorching sun and hot sand, he falls an easy victim to the wiles of the woman, who persuades him that he is dishonoured through having deserted his men in the hour of danger, that his wife in France is false to him, and that his son is dead. His nerves become so highly strung that he shoots himself.

Lady Tree as Biskra held her audience spellbound by the intensity and naturalness of her acting. She conveyed the true spirit of a vengeful Arab woman, bent upon extorting a terrible penalty from her lover's enemy, and all who witnessed the closing part of the scene were struck by the accomplished actress's wonderfully convincing work. At the conclusion the audience greeted her with an outburst of applause. Her supporters are also entitled to much commendation for their efforts. Mr. Goodhart finely impersonated the grief-stricken chief, and Mr. O'Neill exhibited high histrionic gifts as the bewitched and terrified French officer. The playlet should find hearty favour wherever presented.

The fifth pantomime this season arrived at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, on Monday, this one being Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Dick Whittington, which has been scoring right along the line since Christmas. It met with a very hearty reception from three crowded houses (matinée and twice nightly), the unanimous opinion being that it was one of the best seen at this theatre. Messrs. Dottridge and Longden are to be congratulated on their enterprise in putting on the halls a pantomime in such lavish manner.

John Heminge, joint manager and lessee in old days of the celebrated Globe Theatre, is likewise spoken of as an eminent tragic performer, but as the only character in which he was particularly distinguished is "that king of good fellows" Falstaffe, we may safely infer that tragedy was by no means his forte. He was born in 1566, at the village of Shottery, near Stratford-upon-Avon, and it is highly probable that through his medium, and not by the means generally described, Shakespeare obtained his first introduction to the stage. We find the name of Heminge conjoined with that of Burbage, Shakespeare, &c., in the licence granted by James I. to the Globe company of comedians, authorising their undisturbed representations of dramatic performances, and likewise in the grant of scarlet and velvet, which was allowed every second year by his Majesty (for the purpose of making cloake) to the players; he is also mentioned as a principal performer in that company of comedians, who, on the invitation of the above-mentioned monarch, paid a visit to the Scottish court and capital during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Although he commenced performer only, Heminge soon became, by dint of perseverance and good fortune, a principal proprietor of the Globe, and had entirely relinquished acting some years before his death. Heminge published in conjunction with Condell, a fellow manager, the first complete edition of Shakespeare's plays. William Heminge, son to the subject of the memoir, after the death of his father commenced dramatic poet, and in the year 1640 produced a comedy called The Mad-cap. He likewise was author of two other plays, The Cataract and Jew's Tragedy, both of which was probably lost. Heminge made his "final exit" on Oct. 10, 1634, in the sixty-eighth year of his age, and was buried in the church of St. Mary's, Aldermanbury. It is supposed he died of the plague, which about that period raged in London so violently, and on which occasion all the theatres were ordered to be closed.

The Lewin-Martel Duo continue to meet with great success in Aladdin at the Lyceum Theatre, their exquisite xylophone playing providing a real musical treat to the many lovers of good music, who nightly applaud them to the echo. Such artistic merit should find a welcome in the West End variety theatres.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

TOURING MANAGERS.

MR. ERNEST CH. GITTINS.

One of the youngest theatrical managers "on the road," Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins, was originally intended for a commercial life, and served for over six years in the offices of a well-known Liverpool firm. Meeting a professional friend one day, they decided there and then to take out a concert and variety party in the Lancashire and Yorkshire fit-ups, which proved a fairly successful venture, Mr. Gittins acting as accompanist, and playing a part in the sketch which terminated each performance. He next joined Mr. John Lawson in the sketches Humanity, The Shield of David, &c., and was Mr. Lawson's aide-de-camp for three and a half years, during which time the People's Palace, Tottenham, was opened, Mr. Gittins also assisting in the management. Tired of being resident, he toured again with Mr. Walter Gibbons's animated pictures and phono. bio-tableaux from the Agricultural Hall, and after gaining experience of the business accepted an engagement with the Edison Picture Co. at the St. James's Hall, Manchester.

Mr. Gittins then turned his attention to comic opera, and joined the well-known Milton Rays' forces, appearing in the musical comedies A Hot Night, The Cruise of the Calabar, also in the pantomimes Beauty and the Beast, Aladdin, and Robinson Crusoe. From chorus and small parts he ultimately became Mr. Arthur Milton's manager. Drama also claimed him for tours with Siberia and Hardie and Von Leer's In London Town, in which latter piece he doubled the parts of Joe and Fleming. Mr. Gittins's first engagement in grand opera was with the second tour of the Moody Manners A Company, for which he was secretary (Mr. Gittins is an expert typist and shorthand writer). Since that time he has piloted F. S. Gilbert's Opera Co., the Elster-Grime Opera Co. (Irish fit-ups), and last of all the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Co., being with the latter combination nearly six years.

Since resigning with the Carl Rosa Co. Mr. Gittins has devoted nearly all his time to producing condensed operas on the music halls, and the following have been presented during the last two years: The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, Faust, Il Trovatore,

[Photo by Garraud.

MR. ERNEST CH. GITTINS.

The Daughter of the Regiment, and The Last Rose, the latter being adapted from the Kitchen scene of Flotow's charming opera Martha.

Prior to sailing for Australia Mr. Gittins acted as business-manager to Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, but is now performing in his own operatic sketches. Mr. Gittins attributes his good position to hard work, his ambition to get to the top of the tree, and the experience gained by commencing at the bottom rung of the ladder. Working in chorus, small parts, as pianist, amanuensis, "in advance," resident and touring management has proved a most valuable school for the arduous duties of an operatic proprietor and manager.

(Miss) Sydney Crowe—Friday, Feb. 11.
Arthur Webb—Friday, Feb. 11.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Henry of Wales visited Drury Lane Theatre on Thursday, and witnessed the performance of Aladdin.

Musical eccentricities were amusingly detailed by Dr. Walford Davies, who lectured at the Royal Institution on Saturday on "Music in Relation to other Arts." Dr. Davies remarked that the abuse of music in churches and drawing-rooms was not absolutely due to the performer, but largely to the lack of musical intelligence. The finest music would not always be subjected to indignities in the drawing-room. He had heard of a family who found a delight in laughing together on a common chord. Harmonious laughter of that unique kind might well be cultivated. The reconciliation of musical and poetic design was the great problem of that particular alliance. Any composer who could write a successful double fugue to the glad noisy words "Are we downhearted?" with the choral refrain "No," would richly deserve a university degree.

"The expenses of our large theatres," says a writer in 1823, "are well known to be enormous. Drury Lane and Covent Garden exceed £200 each per night. In 1765 Drury Lane was under £70 a night, and the company consisted of 160 performers, among whom were names of high celebrity. At the head of the company was Garrick, of a salary of per night £2 15s. 6d.; Mr. Yates (the famous Othello) and his wife, £3 6s. 8d.; Palmer and his wife, £2; King (the celebrated Sir Peter Teazle and Lord Ogleby), £1 6s. 8d.; Parsons, the famous comedian, 6s. 8d.; Mrs. Cibber, £2 10s.; Mrs. Pritchard, £2 6s. 8d.; Mrs. Clive, £1 15s.; Miss Pope, the first of chambermaids, 13s. 4d.; Signor Guestinelli (the chief singer), £1 3s. 4d.; Signor Grimaldi and his wife, chief dancers, £1."

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The committee of the cinematograph operators, held on Tuesday at 29, Wellington-street, Strand, Mr. A. Malcolm (president) in the chair, decided to issue 1,000 copies of the secretary's annual report. In his report Mr. Merritt deals with many important matters that have engaged the attention of the society during the past year, and at the present time relating to payment of services to artists, the licensing of operators, Home Office and County Council regulations, the Benevolent Fund, legal advice, radius agreements, the formation of district committees, examination of operators, &c. He concludes his report by reminding operators of the advice given by the Rev. Thomas Horne to the showmen and exhibitors, to unite and stand four square to all the troubles that confront them or may arise. The operators, he says, should take this advice to heart. They have seen their conditions of employment go from bad to worse. He urges them to organise, so that they can provide the means to protect and promote their interests, and get a share of the prosperity of the business which they, the operators, help to make prosperous.

A number of applications for membership were granted at this meeting, and a large number of letters applying for information considered. Among those present were Messrs. Wood, Hutchins, Mayo, Field, Wm. Johnson, Mason, Gilling, and the secretary, Mr. H. L. Merritt. An application for legal assistance to recover wages due was dealt with. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday week.

The Middlesbrough branch of the N.A.T.E. held its annual meeting in the Black Lion Hotel on Sunday evening. The secretary reported that he had had a most satisfactory interview with Mr. J. C. Imeson in regard to the rates of pay for week-day matinées. Mr. Imeson had agreed to pay the regular men 2s. 6d. and the extra men 2s. for these matinées. The result of the ballot for the election of officers and committee was reported as follows:—President, Mr. D. Abbott; vice-president, Mr. B. Swinbank; treasurer, Mr. W. Robinson; secretary, Mr. A. E. Wright; trustees, Mr. B. Tomes, T. Harding, and T. Hobbs. For the committee, Messrs. A. Hall, J. Peake, J. Plant, A. Dunn, A. Mundy, W. Coppinger, and J. F. Dodsworth. Mr. J. G. Hunter was elected the delegate. Mr. John Taylor was elected collecting steward for the Opera House, Mr. A. E. Wright for the Empire, and Mr. G. Coppinger for the Theatre Royal. The relations of the staff with the various managements in this town have now been restored to their former friendly footing.

The general staff branch, London, of the N.A.T.E. held its eighteenth annual general meeting in Terry's Theatre on Sunday evening. In the absence of the president of this branch (Mr. C. Thorogood). Mr. James Atterton, the vice-president, presided. He was supported by Messrs. Hunt, Wood, Bowmer, Farrell, Hall, Hodsell, Porter, and the secretary (Mr. Wm. Johnson).

The chairman expressed his regret at the inability of their president to be present at the meeting and that many other members were absent. In declaring the meeting open, he asked the secretary to submit his annual report. Mr. Johnson read his report, and stated that during the year the committee had held twenty-five meetings, and out of the fourteen members there had been an average attendance of nine at each meeting; the highest number had been thirteen, and the lowest—on one occasion only—six.

During the year 154 applications for membership had been granted, and 649 members had paid the whole or part of their contributions. During the month of January this year over thirty applications for membership had been granted.

The committee were glad to say that no serious dispute with any manager had arisen, and although there had been some difficulty in getting the payment of wages due to members at two theatres, all sums due except one small amount had been recovered, and in both cases the non-members working at these houses had benefited by the action of the branch. At another theatre notice was given to reduce the rate of pay from 2s. to 1s. 6d. per night, but the branch succeeded in securing the withdrawal of that notice. The most difficult case had been that of the Queen's Theatre, Poplar, and as it was admitted that the award was not being observed the matter was placed in the hands of the arbitrator; but so unsatisfactory were the negotiations to induce this management to conform to the award that the committee claimed their right to exercise their liberty of action and apply other methods. He had assumed he could pay what rates of pay he thought fit if he ceased to employ members of the society, and stage operators should note that they have no security for the continued enjoyment of the benefits of the award unless they became members of the society.

The secretary referred to the conferences convened by the General Federation of Trade Unions between the V.A.F., the A.M.U., and the N.A.T.E. on a proposal made by the V.A.F. to take over certain music halls and work them on a co-operative basis. The committee had not seen their way to accept the suggestions made.

The secretary stated that a large number of members of the branch had transferred to "the Dramatic and Variety Theatres Employees Provident Fund" for sick and funeral benefits while retaining their membership in the branch for purposes of trade protection. Many other matters were dealt with in the report, and the secretary concluded by urging every member to do his best to increase the number of members.

The financial statement and the auditor's report was then submitted to the meeting, and the chairman moved the adoption of the report and financial statement (a summary of which has appeared in this column). Mr. J. N. Hunt, of the Alhambra, seconded. The resolution was adopted nem con.

The following were elected to hold the office named and to act on the committee for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. Charles Thorogood; vice-president, Mr. James Atterton; treasurer, Mr. Edward Stow; secretary, Mr. Wm. Johnson; committee, Mr. H. Bowmer (Gaiety Theatre), Mr. W. G. Farrell (Criterion), Mr. J. N. Hunt (Alhambra), Mr. Wm. Hall (Alhambra), Mr. Fred Hodsell (Lyceum), Mr. George Hooper (Vaudeville), Mr. George Pickering (Duke of York's), Mr. John Phelps (Covent Garden), Mr. H. T. Wood (Drury Lane), and Mr. George Dyer (Drury Lane); trustees, Mr. A. George (M.C., Lyceum), Mr. F. Wilson (Alhambra), and H. Porter (Criterion Theatre); auditors, Mr. James Finnigan (Empire, Leicester-square) and Mr. H. J. Kemp (Strand).

The chairman moved that the meeting approve the following nominations recommended by the branch committee for election to the National Executive Committee. This was seconded by Mr. G. Mitchell (of the Empire, Leicester-square), and agreed to:—President, Mr. James Cullen; vice-president, Mr. G. H. Dyball; general treasurer, Mr. James Atterton; general secretary, Mr. Wm. Johnson; trustee, Mr. Charles Thorogood; committee, Messrs. C. T. Cory, H. J. Kemp, Ed. Stow, J. N. Hunt, H. Foster, and George Pickering.

The agenda having been disposed of, the secretary addressed the meeting on the Sunday entertainment question, and reported on the statement made to the Theatres Committee of the L.C.C. by the joint deputation. He also made an announcement that his name had been submitted with a view to his adoption as a Labour candidate at the next L.C.C. election, and in the event of an invitation being made to him, officially, he wished to know the feeling of the meeting as to his course of action. It was one entirely for the members. The meeting took a very favourable view of the matter; but in the absence of definite information on the question of finance it was resolved, on the proposal of W. C. Weaver and G. Hooper, that "this meeting has no objection to the secretary contesting a division at the L.C.C. election, subject to the committee incurring no financial responsibility without the consent of the members at a special meeting."

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Terry for lending the theatre was proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. W. G. Farrell, supported by the secretary, and unanimously adopted. The proceedings then terminated.

The following telegram was sent to Mr. George Alexander on Wednesday evening: "The National Association of Theatrical Employees send the best of good wishes for your continued success and many happy returns of the day.—William Johnson, secretary." Mr. Alexander replied by telegram: "Many thanks to you and the National Association of Theatrical Employees for kind congratulation."

The Edinburgh branch of the N.A.T.E. is making good progress. A meeting is being arranged for next Sunday, at which all employees, including "supers," dressers, and attendants will be invited to join. The newly-elected officers are: President, Mr. W. Richardson; vice-president, Mr. W. Lees; treasurer, Mr. D. Wilkinson; secretary, Mr. D. W. Torrance; assistant secretary, Mr. W. Heather; trustees, Messrs. J. Picker, Duncan McLean, and J. Cruikshanks; auditors, Messrs. Kenneth Shires and A. Torrance; committee, Messrs. J. Waterston, A. Royle, R. Bencer, Ed. Donnelly, J. Anderson, and W. Sutherland.

OLD CREMORNE.

Old Cremorne Gardens, which is so frequently referred to in early Victorian literature, was formerly known as Chelsea Farm. A villa was erected there in the early part of the eighteenth century, by Theophilus, Earl of Huntingdon, who died in 1746. The estate belonged successively to Richard, Viscount Powerscourt, who died in 1751; Hannah Sophia, Dowager Countess of Exeter; Sir Richard Lyttelton, who married the Duchess of Bridgewater; and to Viscount Cremorne, who took possession in 1803, after whom it has ever since been named. When the family of the Viscount resigned possession, Mr. Hope, the author of "Anastatius," purchased the property, and in 1830 the mansion, which had been erected upon the designs of Wyatt, became the residence of the Baron de Beranger. The Baron, who had been connected with the famous Stock Exchange Hoax of 1814, and for which Lord Cochrane so severely suffered, was well known to the sporting world by his prowess in all feats of strength and dexterity, and he here instituted "The Stadium," a gymnastic society intended to afford opportunities for learning fencing, shooting, and swimming. The public did not, however, give the design such encouragement as it merited, and Cremorne became recognised chiefly as a place of resort for visitors on Sunday evenings, when the admission was sixpence, for which a refreshment ticket was given. In July, 1843, Mr. Renton Nicholson, then styled "The Lord Chief Baron" and landlord of the Garrick's Head, Bow-street, organised a series of fêtes, which brought the place into some repute as a pleasure-garden. The Baron de Beranger died in 1845, and the lease was then purchased by Mr. T. B. Simpson, of the Albion Tavern, opposite Drury Lane Theatre, Mr. James Ellis becoming manager. In 1846, the Gardens were opened for a regular season, and balloon ascents formed the principal attractions. The grounds, twelve acres in extent, enclosed within a thickly-wooded plantation, interspersed with lawns and flower gardens, and intersected by ornamental walks, became more and more artistically embellished. In 1851, the daylight amusements comprised Franconi's circus, the Bosjesmans, Cantelo's egg-hatching apparatus, called "The Hydro-Incubator," &c.; whilst the "Monstre Platform" for dancing, a capacious theatre for the performance of ballets, supported by Mlle. Theodore, Herr Deulin, Seymour, and Gardiner, and a display of fireworks prolonged the amusements after dark. A series of "Naval Fêtes," in which the river steamboats took part, proved this year highly attractive. The most memorable events connected with the Gardens are associated with the balloon ascents. Mme. Poitevin ascended from Cremorne, and descended by a parachute on Clapham Common, Sept. 6, 1852, and on June 27, 1854, M. Latour was killed in descending with his parachute at Tottenham, after his balloon ascent from the Gardens. On Friday, July 9, 1858, an "Aristocratic Fête" was given at Cremorne by a select committee, who organised the arrangements to give the fashionable world an opportunity of enjoying a grand ball al fresco, and to bestow whatever profits might accrue on certain charities. The weather proved, however, most unpropitious, and the undertaking was a failure in consequence. In September, 1858, a foreigner calling himself "Cristofero Buono Core, the Italian Salamander," attracted some attention by exhibiting himself in the Ashburnham Grounds, in a dress impervious to fire. The "Female Blondin" crossed the Thames on the tight-rope from these Gardens in August and September, 1861. Mr. E. T. Smith became manager, and took possession on July 30, 1861. In May, 1862, the new ballroom, capable of accommodating 3,000 persons, and having an elegant theatre attached, was a prominent addition to the attractions. In June, 1863, the Cremorne "Tournament" was introduced as a novel feature. In the summer of 1864 took place the daring ascents of M. Godard, in his huge Montgolfier or heated-air balloon. In 1865 the building hitherto occupied by the Stereorama was converted into a spacious amphitheatre, and equestrian entertainments were given by Mr. Charles Hengler's troupe. In 1866, the child El Nino Farini, eight years old, went through his gymnastic performances. In 1867, the Belgian gala fêtes were given, and "Natator the man-fish" appeared. The gymnastic exploits of Mlle. Pereira, and an increased display of fireworks, gave importance to the season of 1868. In 1869, the Craddock "life-preserving" apparatus was exhibited on the river, and the Beckwith family went through their swimming performances. In 1870, the entire establishment came into the hands of Mr. John Baum, who effected extensive improvements. The new and capacious "Theatre Royal" was opened with the ballet of Giselle, admirably performed and expensively illustrated, whilst the general arrangements were characterised by a combination of taste, judgment, and liberality, which appeared to be thoroughly appreciated by the public.

The King and Queen and Princess Victoria went to see Mr. H. B. Irving's performance of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, at the Queen's Theatre, on Thursday.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

PHIL HARLINGTON.—The lady is in the early twenties, but we have no information on either point.

P. COLLINS.—Yes, at Daly's, after Miss Marie Tempest had resigned the part. See notice above.

J. ROBINS.—We have made inquiries, and cannot discover the names of the publishers. Address the artist, care of this office.

MUSICUS.—We could not insert your letter; but if you take action to recover your one night's salary we will report the case.

E. ST.—Your card is anonymous. In all communications the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. See notice above.

F. NEWMAN.—We have referred to a Peerage and Baronetage, and no particulars are given of the lady's career. Neither is anything to be discovered concerning her in any theatrical reference book.

OLIVER THORNTON.—There is a book on dancing by Reginald Crompton. Send to Denny's, bookseller, Strand, W.C. They can tell you of any standard work and obtain it for you. Teaching from a book seems a bit unpractical, doesn't it?

F. CUBE.—We hardly know how to advise you. You might address a letter to the head stage-carpenter of a leading West-End theatre, and he might be willing to give you the information or even to show you plans, but we doubt it.

W. BYRON PLACE.—Our records fail us. We have not heard of the piece for over twenty-seven years, and never saw it played. There was a burlesque of it by H. B. Farnie produced at the Adelphi on Boxing Day, 1870. See notice above.

H. WOODS (Kilburn).—Our lists of sketches for 1908 and 1909 do not include the production you mention. Address to this office a letter to either lady you mention, and you may be able by this means to glean the information you want. See notice above.

TRAVERS COOKE.—The piece is still in manuscript, and if you should desire to play it, apply to French's, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C. The men in the cast are as follow:—Prince Maurice of Pannonia, the Hon. Pete Godolphin, Matthew Jannaway, Pink Jannaway, Baron Hertzlein, Shottery, Ambrose Pinning, one of the earlier triumphs of Mr. James Welch.

REG IRVING.—According to custom you can claim nothing. The rule is: If engaged in a town—say London—and, after being engaged, are sent away to another town for same employer, fares paid by employer to and from the job away. If applying for a job advertised in another town and accepted, would be expected to convey himself to that town to commence duties and finishing in the same town as commencing. Employer's liability ceases by giving due notice or money in lieu. This is the custom where no stipulations are made. All other cases must be covered by agreement between the parties.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth, a Marriage, or a Death, or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

BIRTHS.

DONALDSON.—Jan. 9, 1910, at 56, Bloomsbury-street, Bedford-square, W.C., wife of Frederick Donaldson, of a son.

WESTWOOD.—Jan. 22, at "La Bohème," Poplar-road, Ashford, Middlesex, the wife of Walter Westwood, of a son, stillborn.

MARRIAGES.

CLARE—JACKSON.—Jan. 29, at Dunfermline, Fife, Amy Violet Jackson (Maidie Percival), youngest daughter of William Jackson, Esq., of Liscard, Cheshire, to Thomas Reginald Clare (Stanley Maude), youngest son of John T. Clare, Esq., of West Norwood, London.

CLINTON—WRIGHT.—At Newcastle, Jan. 29, Miss Victoria Wright, daughter of Harry Wright and Nellie Gannon, to Alf Clinton, son of Geo. Jenkinson.

DEATHS.

BARRASFORD.—Feb. 1, at his residence, Middle-street, Brighton, Thomas Barrasford, music-hall proprietor, aged 50.

BISHOP.—On Jan. 20, the beloved husband of Lottie Swinbourne, Alfred Bishop, aged 44 (Bishop and Vale). Interred at Streatham Park Cemetery. Rest in peace, my beloved.

HAMMONDE.—Dec. 31, Frank Hammonde, actor.

LLOYD.—On Jan. 29, 1910, aged 23, suddenly, Ramsay Percy Richard Lloyd, youngest son of the late Delarue Lloyd and brother of Amy Elvira. Rest in peace.

LONSDALE.—Jan. 28, of diabetes, after great suffering, T. W. S. Lonsdale, age 28, son of T. S. Lonsdale, the well-known song-writer, and many years at the Empire, Portsmouth.

RICHARDSON.—Jan. 26, at Edinburgh, in her sleep, Bella Richardson, actress, aged 56.

SMITH.—Jan. 27, at Merton, after two years' suffering, Mrs. Stafford Smith (professionally known as Mary Parker).

STAPLES.—Jan. 24, 1910, Frederick Arthur Burnard, infant son of Arthur and Kitty Staples, aged 5½ months. R.I.P.

IN MEMORIAM.

COLVERD.—In loving memory of my dear husband, J. J. Colverd, who passed away Feb. 7, 1903. Never forgotten by his loving wife and family.

PATEMAN.—In ever loving memory of my dear devoted wife, Bella Pateman, who died Jan. 30, 1908. Never forgotten by her sorrowing husband and daughter.—R. P.

REENS.—In affectionate remembrance of my dear wife (Miss Polly Cusick), who departed this life Jan. 31, 1903. May her soul rest in peace. CHARLIE.

SCOTT.—In tender memory of my dear husband, George Scott, who passed away Jan. 28, 1909. Never forgotten by his wife and only son HARRY.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS.
How the Affairs of a Theatre can be most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.
By CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, Chartered Accountant.
Price, 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" (The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business-managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (3s. 6d., The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.). The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts," by Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.), shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

WHEREAS by an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, made in the matter of the Trusts of an Indenture of Settlement, dated the 1st day of August, 1859, and made between CAROLINE BANKSIA HEATHER, spinster, of the first part, JOHN HEATHER of the second part, FRANCIS HARPER of the third part, and FRANCIS SCHWENCK GILBERT and THOMAS STEPHENS of the fourth part, and in an action Harper v. King-Stephens, 1909, H. 941, and dated the 10th day of May, 1909, an Enquiry has been directed as to what children the said Caroline Banksia Harper had by her marriage with the said Francis Harper, and when the said children were born respectively, and whether they are all living, and if any are dead when they died respectively, and who are the legal personal representatives of such of them as being sons may have died after attaining twenty-one years or under that age, leaving surviving issue, or being daughters may have attained that age or married respectively. And whereas VICTORIA ALICE MAUD HARPER (a daughter of the said Francis Harper and Caroline Banksia Harper), who died on the 22nd October, 1879, at the City of Dublin Hospital, Ireland, is believed to have gone through a form of marriage with one FRED SOLOMON at a private house in Hill-square, Edinburgh, Scotland, in or about the end of September or early in October, 1879. Now the said Fred Solomon is by his Solicitors on or before the 9th day of March, 1910, to come in and prove his claim at the Chambers of Mr. Justice JOYCE, Room 689, at the Royal Courts of Justice, Strand, in the County of London, or in default thereof he will be peremptorily excluded from the benefit of the said Order.

Wednesday, the 16th day of March, 1910, at 12.30 o'clock, in the afternoon, at the said Chambers, is appointed for hearing and adjudicating upon the claims.

Dated this 27th day of January, 1910.
W. O. HEWLETT, Master.

Helder, Roberts, Walton and Giles, 3 and 4, Clement's Inn, Strand, London, Agents for A. J. Puntan, Swansea, Glamorgan, Solicitors for the Plaintiff.

Note.—The said Fred Solomon is believed to have gone to New York some years ago, and to have been engaged at the Casino, New York. It is believed that previous to the marriage above mentioned the said Fred Solomon was married to an actress who was known by the name of Plimsoll.

1910—THE ERA ANNUAL—1910

PRESS OPINIONS.

DAILY TELEGRAPH, Feb. 2, 1910.
Once more "The Era" Annual justifies its claim to a place which is unique in the theatrical literature of the year. It contains a record of all the new plays and important revivals produced at the London theatres and in the provinces during the twelve months ending Nov. 30 last, arranged in two lists, one according to the theatres and the other alphabetically according to titles. Then another carefully compiled section gives the casts concerned in these productions. The principal sketches put on at the London and provincial variety houses are treated in the same thoroughgoing manner, and lists of the plays produced in Paris, Berlin, and New York complete a remarkably comprehensive survey of the doings of the theatrical year. It will be clearly seen, therefore, that to the "profession," the student, and the theatrical enthusiast "The Era" Annual is indispensable. But the casual reader is also skilfully catered for in the series of articles and stories contributed by many favourites of the stage, including Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley. No conscientious theatre-goer can do without his "Era" Annual.

MORNING ADVERTISER, Jan. 20, 1910.
"The Era" Annual (price 1s.) is always welcome in stageland and among the theatre-goers. This year's issue maintains the reputation of the publication for amusing reading and useful information. A number of lively contributions from well-known actors and actresses fill nearly half its pages, and the rest of the book is devoted to particulars as to the new plays and revivals of the year 1909, a list of theatres in the United Kingdom, and a full obituary list of artists who, having "frotted their hour upon the stage," are heard no more. "The Era" Annual is an invaluable reference book to all concerned with the stage.

REFEREE, Jan. 30 1910.
About this time of year players and playgoers alike begin to look for the works of theatrical reference to which they are accustomed. Again we welcome that old-established useful shillingsworth, "The Era" Annual, or "Almanac" as it was wont to be called. As of yore, "The Era" Annual contains articles, anecdotes, and pictures galore, Sir Herbert Tree (with portrait) leading off with that new Shakespearean conundrum, "Where was the Old Globe Playhouse?" Among other well-known people contributing are Messrs. Fred Terry, Willie Clarkson, Rutland Barrington, J. H. Barnes, John Le Hay, Harry Nicholls, John Lawson, Charles Collette, Arthur Williams, Alfred Lester, Dan Rolyat, and Henry Neville. The lady story-tellers include Louie Freear, Vesta Tilley, and Miss Edith Cole. The lists of new plays in London and the provinces, Paris, New York, and Berlin, and the catalogue of new sketches (with casts thereof) are admirably compiled.

THE FINANCIER, Jan. 20, 1910.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual (5, Tavistock-street, Strand, 1s.), is a full and accurate record of the past year's productions and a calendar of theatrical events. It also contains a feature of wide public interest—namely, "Stories Told by Well-Known People." The story-tellers are, for the most part, the bright, particular stars of the stage, whose recollections, sketches and poetic interludes—these last by Messrs. J. H. Barnes, Charles Collette, and Tom Craven—are likely to command wide attention. The Rev. T. Horne, chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, also contributes an in memoriam tribute entitled "Faithful Unto the End." The opening contribution is by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, and deals with the problem concerning the site of the old Globe playhouse of Shakespeare's day.

SPORTSMAN, Jan. 18, 1910.
We have received a copy of "The Era" Annual. All who take an interest, business or sentimental, should supply themselves with one. It is pretty full of information, and where that ends entertainment begins.

FINANCIAL TIMES, Jan. 24, 1910.
"The Era" Annual, 1910, 1s., 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. As usual, this well-known annual of the theatrical profession contains a complete record of the plays and sketches produced during the year, in this country and abroad, a record, with photographs, of stage celebrities whose deaths have taken place during the period, directories of theatres and music-halls in the United Kingdom and a well-arranged dramatic and musical calendar. The ever-popular series of good stories told by well-known people, and illustrated by the author's photographs and autographs, is led off this time by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, with "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and the reputation this symposium has gained for humour and wit is thoroughly maintained. The Annual will make a strong appeal, not only to members of the profession, but to all theatre lovers.

WESTMINSTER GAZETTE, Jan. 29, 1910.
Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree contributes to the new issue for 1910 of "The Era" Annual an article on the old Globe playhouse and its exact position. Sir Herbert seems to have convincingly proved that the old Globe did actually stand in Park-street, Southwark. Among many other well-known folk who have contributed to the pages of the Annual this time is the Rev. Donald Hole, who has something to say about the Actors' Church Union and the work which it is doing.

WEEKLY TIMES AND ECHO, Jan. 30, 1910.
"The Era" Annual has reached us. This valuable work of reference on matters theatrical and musical is compiled with great care and judgment. The photographic illustrations are all excellent. Great attention is now paid to music-hall sketches, and there are many short stories of merit by artists of note.

FINANCIAL NEWS, Jan. 31, 1910.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) consists mainly of a most entertaining series of long and short stories written by the "stars" of the theatres and the music halls. It contains also a mass of information concerning, and of interest to, "the profession."

SUNDAY TIMES, Jan. 23, 1910.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) continues to swell in bulk. In addition to the dramatic and musical calendar, are alphabetical lists and full casts of the new plays and important revivals produced in London, New York, Paris, and Berlin, and of new sketches in London and the provinces, there is a series of stories by well-known members of the profession with portraits and autographs of the authors. Sir Herbert Tree answers the question, "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and other contributors include Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. John Le Hay, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Willie Clarkson, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley.

PELICAN, Jan. 27, 1910.
"The Era" Annual is full of interesting matter from cover to cover to all who are in any way connected with the theatrical profession. To familiar "Era" Almanack features are added stories by well-known members of the Profession, and there is a very interesting series of portraits of the many well-known actors and actresses who have died within the past twelve months, starting off with an admirable and characteristic picture of dear old Lal Brough. Mr. Pedgrift is to be congratulated upon a shillingsworth of characteristic excellency.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1910.

"COCK-A-DOODLE-DO."

The fame of a fine writer is cumulative; and one ought not perhaps to be surprised that the excitement about the production of M. ROSTAND'S forthcoming "fowl play" Chantecler has been greater than that which has been aroused by the promise of any of his more serious works. In 1894 M. ROSTAND produced Les Romanesques; he presented La Princesse Lointaine to the Parisian public in 1896; La Samaritaine was seen in 1897; the celebrated Cyrano de Bergerac took Paris by storm in 1898; and the Napoleonic drama L'Aiglon roused dormant Bonapartist sympathies in 1900. Seven years ago M. ROSTAND was seized with the idea of a play of the poultry-yard; and the result of his notion was Chantecler, which will, if nothing happens, be produced at the Porte St. Martin Theatre on—but perhaps we had better not mention a date.

It is, of course, unfair to remark on a work of art which has not been produced, but it seems, from the very nature of the case, that the amount of preliminary puffery which Chantecler has had, and the attitude of the French mind on the subject, are both of them a little extravagant. However poetical and humorous M. ROSTAND'S play may be, it cannot possibly equal in interest and importance the great human dramas in which he has shown us the sorrows and joys of our fellow creatures. There is always something imperfect in the attempt to endow animals or birds with human characteristics. At the best the results are but playful travesties. We have no doubt that M. ROSTAND'S play will turn out to be a marvel of poetic fantasy and ingenious humour; but to make its production a matter of national importance seems to show a want of balance and proportion which is almost puerile. Since 1903 we have had Chantecler hanging over our heads; and it will at least be a satisfaction to have it produced—we will not add "and done with," for anything with the stamp of M. ROSTAND'S genius upon it is sure to be successful.

The French dramatist is said to have been inspired with the subject of his play by the sight of a farmyard and its occupants; but, as a classical scholar, he is doubtless familiar with The Birds of ARISTOPHANES. In that case, however, the avian is not the only interest. Peisthetairus, a typical Athenian citizen, disgusted with his own country, goes to seek his fortune in the imaginary Kingdom of the Birds, accompanied by a comical companion. They are graciously received by the King of the Birds, who readily adopts certain projects of aggrandisement which are suggested by the visitors. The Birds, however, suspicious of the human race, almost rise in revolt; and Peisthetairus has to conciliate them by his eloquence. The slight and absurd story ARISTOPHANES has embellished with some of his best poetry; and doubtless M. ROSTAND, in his Chantecler, will emulate the smoothness and grace of the Aristophanic Chorus which FRERE has so charmingly rendered into the following English:

Ye Children of Man! whose life is a span,
Protracted with sorrow from day to day,
Naked and featherless, feeble and querulous,
Sickly, calamitous, creatures of clay!
Attend to the words of the Sovereign Birds,
(Immortal, illustrious, lords of the air)
Who survey from on high, with a merciful eye,
Your struggles of misery, labour, and care.
Whence you may learn and clearly discern
Such truths as attract your inquisitive turn;
Which is busied of late, with a mighty debate,
A profound speculation about the creation,
And organical life, and chaotical strife,
With various notions of heavenly motions,
And rivers and oceans, and valleys and mountains,
And sources of fountains, and meteors on high,
And stars in the sky.

Trouble, accident, and postponement seem inseparable from Chantecler; and Mr. WILLIE CLARKSON, the famous perruquier, to whose supreme skill Madame SARAH BERNHARDT has so often borne witness, has suffered from the misunderstanding which dogs this production. The story which we told in an interview last week is an interesting one. M. COQUELIN having suggested that Mr. CLARKSON should make the costumes for Chantecler, that gentleman, with his usual thoroughness, resolved to study from nature. A cock was purchased, and made an inmate of the well-known establishment in Wardour-street, so that the living model for the "costume" was always before the designer of the dresses. Mr. CLARKSON warmed thoroughly to his work, and threw himself into it with the enthusiasm and earnestness that have made him what he is. The Channel passage has no terrors for him when his reputation is at stake. Time after time he went to Paris with the costumes; and his meeting with the author of Chantecler was intensely interesting. Mr. CLARKSON visited M. ROSTAND at Cambo, in the Pyrenees. There, in the garden of the house where ROSTAND resided, one of Mr. CLARKSON'S assistants put on the costume of Chantecler, and walked about on the grass in it. It must have been a subject for a picture—the immense rooster parading on the lawn, M. ROSTAND and his family exhibiting wild enthusiasm, and the sunshine bathing the scene with its golden radiance.

It was not surprising that Mr. CLARKSON returned to London with elation, and set his little army of costumiers at work on the Chantecler costumes. But slips between the cup and the lip are proverbially numerous. This idyllic interview took place in 1908. In January last there was a change. First of all, Mr. CLARKSON was informed that it was not certain that his costumes would be used. Then, apparently as a "softener," it was suggested that he should do part of the dresses. Mr. CLARKSON, as may be imagined, did not for a moment entertain such a proposal. He referred the changeable Frenchmen to his solicitor; and he has engaged M. JEAN RAPOPORT, a very eloquent French advocate, to plead his case. As the matter is sub judice, we are not free to express any opinion; but we trust that no patriotic prejudice will prevent the French jury from doing the great English perruquier justice, and that the Gallic cock will not in the end be able to crow over the British lion.

THE ENGLISH PLAY SOCIETY.

A members' smoking concert under the auspices of the English Play Society drew a large and fashionable audience on Sunday last, the 30th ult., to the concert hall of the Ritz Hotel. The lighter side of the drama and music—instrumental and vocal—filled out a programme of a most agreeable character, and the stage-manager, Mr. Arthur Hands, assisted by Mr. Gordon Edwards, saw that there were no waits. A very great success was scored by the little comedy, from the pen of Miss Ella Erskine, entitled

"THE TYPIST."

Mary Lister .....MISS ELLA ERSKINE
The Earl of Dreighton..MR. ALAN BELLINGHAM.
Johnson .....MR. DICKSON KENWIN

The amusing imbroglio of this droll trifle and its smart dialogue kept the house keenly interested during every minute of its progress. Miss Erskine's vivacity and charm were never more alluringly displayed; and had Mr. Alan Bellingham been better acquainted with his lines he would have been everything to be desired as the Earl. He has individuality and style, and promises well. Mr. Dickson Kenwin was an unimpeachable butler.

Though not announced as such on the programme, we may take it that the duologue From Sixes to Sevens, by Lyddell Sawyer, is new. It was played by—

Professor Septimus Harleigh..MR. LEVESON LANE
Miss Letitia Simms .....MISS BLANCH STANLEY

A bachelor professor of fifty and a spinster past her prime live next door to each other. The professor has made a decided impression on his neighbour, who has watched him over the garden wall, and for some time has sighed in vain for him. He, like the mere man that goes out dining, "wines" too freely. On his return he mistakes the door of Miss Letitia Simms for his own, and actually enters her bedroom. Mr. Pickwick, of immortal memory, did much the same sort of thing on a memorable occasion. The elderly maiden dresses the old gentleman up in her clothes, fearing to be discovered with a man in her room, and the rest may be guessed. The farcical situation was capably handled by Mr. Leveson Lane as the Professor, and Miss Blanch Stanley, who made as much as possible of the part of the old maid.

The Friends, a one-act comedy adapted from the German by Miss Ella Erskine, was to have been played, but owing to the indisposition of Georgiana Countess of Rosslyn, who had consented to play the part of Mme. Livardeau, the piece was not presented.

In the concert programme Mr. Robert Carr distinguished himself by fine renderings of "O Star of Eve" and "She is far from the land," by Frank Lambert; Miss Florence Shee sang with brilliancy Urbano's well-known solo "Nobil Signor" from Les Huguenots; Miss Gladys Moger also sang; Mr. Stanton Rees played violin solos; and Miss Edith Hanson the 'cello. Mme. Rozel Ayres was the accompanist. Mr. Lyddell Sawyer managed the affair with much tact and courtesy.

Her Own Idea.

OUR Paris correspondent informs us of an amusing incident at a performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream by pupils of the Conservatoire. The young lady who played the rôle of Titania refused to wear the costume allotted to her, on the pretence that it did not suit her complexion, and to the surprise of the audience, on the night of the performance, when Oberon advanced in dazzling robes of iridescent brightness, Titania appeared in a dress wherein she might have been paying an afternoon visit. There was nothing to be done; either the management had to accept the situation or cut out the part. But this is the last we shall have seen of this lady in the Shakespearean venture.

Economical Attire.

ANOTHER oddity of costume occurred in a revival of Ponsard's Mariage d'Angélique, at the Comédie-Française. The personages appeared in the costume worn in Marion de Lorme, which, as everybody knows, is dated under Louis XII.'s reign. The Comédie-Française management are, of course, aware that Molière lived under Louis XIV., so that we cannot very well accuse them of having committed the crime of anachronism It was only a question of money. Suitable costumes not being at hand, and not wanting to order new ones, the House of Molière settled the difficulty by taking those of a different period. This may have been economical, but it was not quite worthy of the first classical stage of Paris.

LAURENCE IRVING AND ALAN DALE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As a good deal of unanticipated publicity has been given to the remarks I made on Mr. Alan Dale, I would be obliged if you would find room to print exactly what it was that I said at the Comedy Theatre, New York, after the second act of The Affinity (The Incubus) on Thursday, Jan. 15, 1910. I also enclose a letter which I sent round to the papers here.—Yours faithfully,

LAURENCE IRVING.

THE SPEECH.

"Ladies and gentlemen,—

"If this literally-translated comedy of Brieux's errs in any way, it errs in brevity. Therefore, the alternative has been between a few words from me or a first piece to prolong the programme. And 'that great command which o'ersways the order'—my management—has opted for a few words from me. They do not know that my friends charge me with reckless indiscretion—I call it openness. Anyhow, they can but ring down on me.

"Till to-night I have tried to move my audiences to a keener curiosity than seems to exist here at present as to the dramatic works of the latest member of the Academy Française, Eugene Brieux. I have tried to measure his altitude. But to-night I have set myself an easier task, perhaps a more perilous one; I am going to try and sound a depth. I am going to handle a certain blob of scum—a clumsy and blatant parodist who masquerades, in his protective pince-nez, as a skilled critic. You can guess that I refer to a personage who goes under the name of Dale. There is no doubt that the dirt he flings at actors and actresses is the fare upon which he thrives. So, I dare say in flinging his mud back at him, I am providing him with a good square meal. Let him have it. I believe Dale comes from England . . . forgive us! and he comes from Birmingham. That is fitting, for when in England we say a thing is Birmingham, or Brummagem, we mean that it is spurious, counterfeit; and Dale is a kind of counterfeit Bernard Shaw. I ask Bernard Shaw to pardon me. Subtract from Bernard Shaw his wide culture, his innate kindliness of nature, his power of amusing you even whilst he stings; in fact, make of this great Irish wit a hybrid, a poor jester, and a cad, and you have Alan Dale. . . . Poor, cheap, highly-paid vituperator. Where Shaw brings a case of surgeon's instruments, Dale goes out with a twenty-cent meat chopper in one hand and a dish of salt in the other—of common salt—of kitchen salt. He hacks clumsily, and rubs in his virus. To men he is insolent, and what to men is insolence to women (even though they be mere actresses) is insult. He has levelled all sorts of sneers at me at all sorts of times. Ten years ago, when, in my father's company, I first appeared here, I was wearing tights, and he said that I should never be allowed again to show my legs. They are thin; they are inherited. Miss Ellen Terry's daughter had at that time recently set up as a costumier: he advised me to join her—a kind of fun that in England would not have found its way into Ally Sloper's Half Holiday—and so forth and so on. . . . This morning I had an immobile face: I was like a Red Indian or an Arab. He has nothing left to criticise in me but my torso, and that, I confess, is not statuesque. Of course, one should grin at this; but, when one considers the enormous circulation of the celebrated paper in which such remarks appear, it gives one business-qualms. But what I could not stand is that this morning, after a series of dirty finger-marks extending over many years, he at last laid his foul, clammy hand upon the work of my wife. She who, at the end of this act, has often nearly broken down with the strain of her exertions; she, who being a very delicate woman, always struggles bravely to her task; and she, whose performances of Charlotte have not from any critic in New York or London received an unfavourable notice; she who by my father was chosen to follow Miss Ellen Terry amongst you, in the parts of Portia, Margaret, and Rosamond. Now let us hear Dale:—'Miss Mabel Hackney's work was quite ludicrous. Her work was very much like that of an amateur. Only once in the second act did she even suggest the character. Her "moods" were icy. She had no intuition. She had as much whimsicality as an oyster. One could imagine her typewriting or perhaps selling ribbons in a department store—performing even those perfunctory duties with a lack of attractive animation.' And more of the same kind.

"Is this just? Does Dale himself know no better? Well, ladies and gentlemen, Dale has often amused himself at our expense; now I think we have amused ourselves a little at his. Yet I dare say the real spring of his venom lies in his own secret self-contempt. I am sure there is a charitable explanation even of Alan Dale. Let him take off his glasses, cease trying to teach one who spent twelve months as a pupil at the College Rollin in Paris what French professors are like, write better, and be a man."

Mr. Laurence Irving was three times recalled.

THE LETTER.

"Sir,—

"As Mr. Alan Dale and I have come to open logger-heads, I think it is only fair that my position in regard to him, and the nature of the remarks I made, without the sanction or knowledge of anyone but myself, at the Comedy Theatre on Thursday last, should be thoroughly understood. I have aroused a potent enmity. Mr. Alan Dale could hardly find it in his nature henceforward—he never has done so in the past—to view any performance of mine without a feeling of animus. For Mr. Dale and I have at least one thing in common—our human form. This I must expect to be heavily and constantly borne upon by the weight of Mr. Dale's opinions whenever my wife or I appear before a New York public. From Mr. Dale's reply to me in this morning's American, it would appear as though my acting, and his unfavourable comments thereupon, were the cause of my bitter remarks. That is not so. The main point of my remarks was this. I am quoting from my words on Thursday:—

"'But what I could not stand is that this morning, after a series of dirty finger-marks extending over many years, he at last laid his foul, clammy hand upon the work of my wife. She who, at the end of this act, has often nearly broken down with the strain of her exertions: she who, being a delicate woman, always struggles bravely through her tasks; and she whose performance as Charlotte has not from any critic in New York or London received an unfavourable notice; she who by my father was chosen to follow Miss Ellen Terry amongst you, in the parts of Portia, Margaret, and Rosamond. Now let us hear Dale:—

"'"Miss Mabel Hackney's work was quite ludicrous. Her work was very much like that of an amateur. Only once in the second act did she even suggest the character. Her moods were icy. She had no intuition. She had as much whimsicality as an oyster. One could imagine her typewriting or perhaps selling ribbons in a department store—performing even those perfunctory duties with a lack of attractive animation."'

"That is what I wish to pin Mr. Dale down to; and I assert that, when he wrote those lines, he was not trying to estimate the capacity of an artist, but he was seeking to render himself conspicuous by following anywhere but in the wake of the mass of enlightened London and New York critical opinion, which had preceded him.

"I also rebut Mr. Dale's insinuation—malicious and mischievous—that The Affinity is not Les Hannetons. It is a literal translation, with a few trifling excisions, but no kind of re-arrangement or watering-down whatsoever. Anyone who will go to Brentanos can convince himself of this. Furthermore, Mr. Dale makes very free with Hoboken, with Hornsey Rise and Upper Tooting. He seems to expect that a French professor should be something after the style of Victor Dubois, in Ici on parle Français. In my youth I spent twelve months as a pupil at the College Rollin, in Paris. I did not find the professors were more 'volatile' and 'butterfly' than most professors of other nationalities. Gaston and Alphonse, of the pleasant New York Journal comic supplement, are most amusing gentlemen, but we must not take them as being the counterpart of all Frenchmen. I would like to end this letter, as I ended my few remarks from the stage, on a note of possible concession: 'I daresay the real spring of Mr. Dale's venom lies in his own secret self-contempt. I am sure there is a charitable explanation even of Alan Dale.' I remain, Yours faithfully,

"LAURENCE IRVING.

INTERCEPTED ROYALTIES.

Before Mr. Justice Warrington, in the Chancery Division on Wednesday, extensive frauds amounting to some £28,000 were alleged to have been perpetrated by the late Mr. Arthur John Addison Bright, dramatic author's agent, upon Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. E. W. Hornung, and other popular playwrights. The revelations took place in connection with an action brought by the executors of Mr. Addison Bright against Mr. Arthur Frederick Hardy for an account of partnership profits in a dramatic authors' agency, carried on by Mr. Hardy and Mr. Addison Bright. Mr. Hardy counterclaimed for rescision of the partnership on the ground of alleged fraudulent misrepresentations by his late partner.

Mr. Henry Terrell, K.C., for Mr. Hardy, stated that for some years prior to 1903 Mr. Addison Bright, who had formerly been a dramatic critic, carried on business as a dramatic authors' agency. The dramatic author would write a play, and the agent would proceed to secure contracts from theatrical managers for the performance of the play, the terms generally being the payment of a royalty. The agent checked the theatrical manager's accounts, obtained payment of the royalties, deducted his commission of 10 per cent., and handed the balance to the author. Mr. Addison Bright, who had a very high reputation in the theatrical world, was agent for Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Louis Parker, Mr. Ernest William Hornung, Mr. F. Anstey Guthrie, Mr. Stephen Phillips, Miss Constance Fletcher, and other popular play writers, and the profits of his business were considerable. He was a member of the Authors' Club, and he there became on friendly terms with Mr. Hardy, who was also a member. Mr. Hardy had been connected with the theatrical profession, but had also, just before 1903, embarked on a newspaper venture which proved unsuccessful, and he lost a considerable amount of capital. Mr. Bright suggested that Mr. Hardy, who was seeking some occupation, should join him in partnership, stating that it was a thoroughly good business, and that if Mr. Hardy worked hard there were excellent prospects of increasing it.

Eventually an agreement was entered into for ten years, under which Mr. Bright reserved to himself the clients whose names had been mentioned, the partnership only extending to new business. But, in the event of Mr. Bright predeceasing Mr. Hardy before the expiration of the term, the latter was to have the reserved clients and pay a percentage of the profits to Mr. Bright's widow. Mr. Hardy was to pay Mr. Addison Bright £1000 as premium, and to allow another £1000 to accumulate as capital out of the surplus profits after the payment to him of £400 as maintenance.

The new business was not the success anticipated, and there was no accumulation of profits. What happened then was this. In 1906 Mr. Hornung saw in a newspaper that there had been 1000 representations of his play Raffles in America. He had received royalties from Mr. Addison Bright for nothing like that number of performances. Just after this Mr. Addison Bright, on May 29, 1906, died suddenly in Switzerland. Mr. Hornung proceeded to look into his accounts, and communicated with Sir A. Conan Doyle and other of the writers, who also investigated theirs. The result was, said counsel, that they discovered that for years past Mr. Addison Bright had been systematically defrauding them. They found that he had not given them credit for a considerable number of performances of their plays for which he had received the royalties. It had since been discovered that the sums fraudulently detained by Mr. Addison Bright amounted to about £28,000. This came out gradually, and the gentlemen who had been defrauded made claims against the estate. Those claims had all been paid by the executors, Mr. Addison Bright having fortunately left a considerable estate.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who appeared to be unwell, stated that on the death of Mr. Addison Bright he looked into his accounts and communicated with the executors, who paid him £2000. The fraud took three forms—the changing of figures, the suppression of figures, and in one case the suppression of a whole tour.

Mr. J. M. Barrie said he knew nothing of the irregularities until the executors communicated with him. He then found that there was £16,000 due to him. He was not a business man, and his solicitors investigated the matter, and made a claim for the amount which the executors paid.

Mr. Hornung stated that he discovered there was £650 due to him as royalties in respect of the run of Raffles in America. The executors settled his claim.

Mr. F. Anstey Guthrie, author of The Man from Blankney's, which ran in America, said his claim was also paid by the executors.

Mr. Justice Warrington, in giving judgment, said it was impossible to avoid the conclusion that Mr. Addison Bright had acted dishonestly, but Mr. Hardy and his witnesses had failed to prove any misrepresentation.

His lordship dismissed the counter-claim with costs, and ordered Mr. Hardy to pay the executors' costs, except in so far as they had been increased by the claim in respect of the reserved clients, Mr. Hardy's costs in resisting the latter claim to be paid by the executors.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—In your report of the Pavilion pantomime this week you state that Miss Edith Harmer sings and dances delightfully, and her rendering of "Hanover" proved very exhilarating. It is, however, my daughter, Vera Sanders (second girl, who has been singing the song at every show—Yours faithfully, LEVESON SANDERS, Station-road, Horley, Surrey.

OWING to the great popularity of the six o'clock promenade concerts given last year at the Crystal Palace, the musical-director of the Palace, Mr. W. W. Hedgcock, has arranged for another series which will be given at the close of the panto. They will commence on Monday next, and the artists for the first week include, on succeeding days, Miss Annie Bartle and Mr. Mostyn Scott, Miss Mildred Guthrie and Mr. A. H. Gee, Miss Agnes Christa and Mr. Ernest Pike, Miss Margaret Holloway (solo violin) and Mr. George Baker, and Miss Vera Moore and Mr. Phillip Ritto. The C. P. Military Band will assist under the conductorship of Mr. Herbert Godfrey, while Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will preside at the piano.

PLAY-ACTORS AT THE COURT.

A profitable evening was spent at the Court Theatre on Sunday, when the Play Actors produced four new one-act plays, all of which, and one in particular, were sufficiently meritorious to encourage the hope that they would be heard of again. The evening was begun by a piece from the pen of F. Willoughby, entitled

"THE DECENT THING."

Sir George Fladgate.....MR. LEWIS CASSON
Lady Fladgate .....MISS MARION LIND
Blanche .....MISS SYBIL NOBLE
Colonel Challender .....MR. ALFRED HARRIS
Mrs. Meggitt .....MISS DORIS DIGBY
Joe Meggitt .....MR. PHILIP KNOX
Spynk .....MR. POOLE KIRKWOOD

It proved to be an indictment, and a very effective one, of the motor peril, and contained a skilfully blended mixture of pathos and comedy For the second time in his motoring career, Sir George Fladgate, a rich brewer, has met with an accident on the road, by which a life has been lost. The baronet is of a highly sensitive nature, and although the occurrence was as much an accident as such things can be, he is so deeply distressed that he vows never to motor again. He would fain relieve his mind by giving a sum of money to the grandmother of the little boy who had been the victim of the accident, but the old woman scorns to accept money for the loss of her idolised grandchild. Fortunately for Sir George's peace of mind the boy's father, a scamp who had deserted him long ago, has no such compunction, and, indeed, calls with the express purpose of demanding compensation. The baronet pays him £250, and having thus done "the decent thing," goes out blithely to join his wife in a ride. Each part in the little piece was skilfully portrayed. Mr. Lewis Casson, admirably made-up, artistically portrayed the agony of mind undergone by the baronet. The flippant, cynical Lady Fladgate, who thinks that money can pay for anything—human life included—was cleverly depicted by Miss Marion Lind; and the gentle daughter, Blanche, was touchingly played by Miss Sybil Noble. A well-drawn character sketch of the brutal and unscrupulous Joe Meggitt was given by Mr. Philip Knox, who cleverly developed the grim humour of the rôle. Mr. Alfred Harris enacted the friendly Colonel Challender sympathetically; and Mr. Poole Kirkwood's butler was a neat performance.

Second on the programme came a play by Harold Chapin, entitled

"AUGUSTUS IN SEARCH OF A FATHER."

A Night Watchman .....MR. EDWARD RIGBY
Augustus .....MR. HAROLD CHAPIN
A Policeman .....MR. CECIL A. COLLINS

Genuine merriment accompanied the progress of this amusing piece throughout. It tells how a ne'er-do-well, who has returned from America, is given food and warmth by a "crabby" old night watchman at the corner of a London square, where the road is "up." The youth finds out that he is really the son of the old man, who imagines his boy is doing well in the States. A policeman, who has his suspicions, essays to arrest the boy, who, however, gives the constable the slip, and after learning that his mother is dead, bids his father "good-bye," and leaves him in ignorance of the identity of his visitor. The humour of the playlet lies in the various colloquys carried on between the constable and the watchman, and later on with his son. Mr. Edward Rigby was the watchman, and may be said actually to have made the piece. His dry, unctuous delivery was deliciously droll, and hearty laughter followed each line. Mr. Cecil A. Collins was "A1" as the stoical and persevering member of the force, and the author himself realised his hero with every satisfaction. There was a tremendous ovation at the close, when Mr. Chapin had to reappear again and again. The little piece would not be out of place in a theatre bill, but it has just the right material to appeal to a variety audience, and it is impossible to conceive that it could fail to succeed on the music-halls.

The third essay was a comedietta, by C. Duncan Jones and Dennis Cleugh, entitled

"PEG WOFFINGTON'S PEARLS."

Peg Woffington .....MISS FRANCES WETHERALL
Peg Gunning .....MISS PHYLLIS RELPH
Sally Gunning .....MISS MARY DEVERELL
Sal Fortescue .....MISS SYBIL THORNDIKE
Mrs. Maloney.....MISS DORIS DIGBY

An incident of the career of the celebrated actress Peg Woffington is here depicted. At her lodgings in Dublin she is visited by the "beautiful Miss Gunnings" who come to beg the loan of a gown each to enable them to shine at a ball at the Castle. The good-natured actress willingly places her entire wardrobe at their disposal. The young ladies, having obtained their costumes, go off in disdain, quite omitting to thank their benefactress, but their companion, the pretty and demure Sal Fortescue, with whom the actress has made friends, leaves her with a kiss, and Peg, touched by the innocence and purity of Sal, cancels the order for supper for two, which had been given in anticipation of the visit of the Lord Lieutenant. The warm-hearted Peg Woffington was played with suitable buoyancy and high spirits by Miss Frances Wetherall, who cleverly sounded the sentimental note at the close. Miss Phyllis Relph and Miss Mary Deverell well realised the Miss Gunnings, and danced a graceful minuet. Miss Sybil Thorndike made a typical Irish beauty of Sal Fortescue, acting and speaking prettily.

Finally, came a small piece by H. O. Hughes, entitled

"HIS LAST STAGE."

Ned Cotton .....MR. A. S. HOMEWOOD
Jim Jackson .....MR. CYRIL CATTLEY
Bouncer .....MR. BENEDICT BUTLER
Barbara .....MISS LORNA LAURENCE

Only moderate success attended this little piece, which can boast a number of witty lines, but has little in the way of novelty. A young stoker employed on the Underground Railway is the means of preserving from the "broker's man" the homestead of his sweetheart's father, an old coach-driver, who is bitterly antagonistic to anything connected with the railway. Mr. A. S. Homewood realistically suggested a superannuated old "whip," who plays at driving a coach with a rope attached to the kitchen table—a suggestion, we may assume, of the old man's second childhood. Mr. Cyril Cattley gave an amusing sketch of a young stoker, who applies the methods of locomotive-driving to his courtship, and Miss Lorna Laurence acted vivaciously as the object of his affections.

Two sacred concerts will be given at the Crystal Palace on Good Friday, March 25, when the "stars" of the musical world will meet, Mr. Hedgcock being fortunate in securing the services of Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Maria Yelland, Madame Clara Butt, Mr. Charles Saunders, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, and Sir Charles Santley. These artists will appear at the afternoon concert (3.30), when Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be heard, and a miscellaneous second part. The London Symphony Orchestra will also assist, Mr. Hedgcock conducting. The evening concert will commence at 7.45, Miss Ethel Wood and Mr. Herbert Heyner will sing, and the Coldstream Guards' full band will play (conductor Lieut. Dr. Mackenzie Rogan). The organist at both these concerts will be Mr. F. W. Holloway, and Mr. A. Fox will be at the piano. The Crystal Palace, it would certainly appear, in no way intends to forfeit its title of "The Home of Music."

THE Crystal Palace is famous for its musical celebrations, and arrangements have been made for "The John Farmer Festival" to be held there in March 26 next, when 4,000 performers, under the baton of Mr. Chas. Howes, will render "Christ and His Soldiers." The programme will also include "The Coming of Christ."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Harry Tate has been induced to accept the office of President of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund for the year. Mr. Tate's popularity is great, and he will exercise very broad-minded views in the cause of this excellent charity. His success in obtaining a large increment for the exchequer—largely drawn upon every week—should be pronounced.

The annual dinner of the Music-hall Artists' Railway Association is fixed for Sunday, Feb. 20, at the Criterion Restaurant, and will be in aid of the Music-hall Benevolent Institution. The chair will be taken by Mr. Eugene Stratton, a very popular choice. Mr. Douglas Stuart will forward tickets to anyone sending postal orders or cheques to 18, Charing-cross-road, W.C. The price is 10s. 6d.

Owing to Mr. Cyril Maude's imminent return to the Playhouse to create the part of James Cottenham in Tantalising Tommy, the new comedy by Paul Gavault and Michael Morton, his part of Jellicoe in Jellicoe and the Fairy will be presented by Mr. J. C. Buckstone at the Coliseum.

Miss Lil Hawthorne, on her return to the Tivoli after an absence of years, had a grand reception on her re-appearance. Her songs, "Can't you see I love you" and "Little maid of Monte Carlo," with a beautiful stage setting of the Casino at Monte Carlo, were greatly appreciated. On her début at the Strand house she was one of the three Sisters Hawthorne, who made a very marked sensation in that pretty production, The Willow Pattern Plate.

Lady Beerbohm Tree, whose appearance in vaudeville at the Liverpool Empire this week, is a pronounced success, has expressed her intention of handing to the Lord Mayor of the Mersey city the sum of £100 for the benefit of local medical charities. It will be remembered that on her first appearance in variety, at the Palace Theatre during the Boer War, this favourite actress gave her salary to the fund for the widows and orphans of the Tommies.

Mr. Bransby Williams opened in Chicago instead of New York, and made a great success there, changing his characters almost daily. He was hailed by the Press as something real good, and is naturally very proud of the pedestal on which they have put him. He repeated his triumphs at Indianapolis, where he has been invited to address the scholars of several schools. He is still having offers for the legitimate, but is not accepting them, as he intends to go into the theatres at home as a change from the actors going into the halls. He cannot yet give particulars as to when and where he will appear. He is delighted with his American experiences.

After an absence of eleven years Arthur Roberts made a welcome reappearance at the Empire Theatre on Monday night in his absurdity, The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife. He had a very hearty reception. Arthur is also a favourite on the other side of the Square, and one remembers his favous song skit on the McDougall campaign, "I'm a highly respectable singer."

"Lost, Stolen, or Strayed," adapted from the French farce L'Inconnue by MM. Paul Gavault and Georges Berr, will be played at the Tivoli, for the first time on Monday next at 9 o'clock. The principal part will be sustained by Mrs. Lewis Waller, supported by Mr. Leonard Robson and a strong company. The scene is laid in Whitehall Court, and deals with the sudden and unexpected entrance of an unknown lady into the flat of a young bachelor, who is on the eve of marriage.

The report of the London Pavilion, which recommended a dividend at the rate of six per cent. for the past half-year, in addition to the two per cent. paid for the previous half-year, was adopted at the meeting of shareholders on Thursday, when the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. Hugh Astley, and to Mr. Frank Glenister, the manager.

Among the artists who have volunteered their services for the matinée at the Hippodrome, on Monday, in aid of the Paris sufferers, are Mr. Seymour Hicks, Miss Ellaline Terriss, Mr. H. G. Pélissier and the Follies, Mr. James Welch, Mr. Cyril Maude in French as She is Spoke, Miss Evie Greene, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Miss Lottie Venne, Mr. C. H. Workman, Mr. Wilkie Bard, and Miss Elise Craven. The Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs and his Excellency M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, will be present.

When Alice Lloyd and her company opened in Spokane, Washington, out West recently, her success was so great that the house was sold out for every performance during the week twice a day, Sunday included. Applications from the townspeople for seats were so great that Miss Lloyd's managers, Joe Muller and Tom McNaughton, resolved to give an extra performance after the regular night show had finished, the third show commencing at eleven o'clock at night till one-thirty. The house was again crowded to excess. The popularity of Alice Lloyd never seems to wane, and as a vaudeville drawing power in the States she stands alone. She is breaking records all along the line.

Miss Claire Romaine sails for New York to-day, per s.s. Baltic, to fulfil an engagement with Mr. Percy Williams, making her fourth season in the States. Miss Marie Lloyd gave Miss Romaine a farewell luncheon at the Hotel Chatham on Sunday last. Amongst the invited guests were several prominent artists, who cordially joined in the good wishes showered on the parting guest. Miss Marie Lloyd presented Miss Romaine with an emblem of good luck in the shape of a solid silver full-sized slipper, of exquisite workmanship. During her voyage across the "pond," the departing guest will have happy remembrances of an evening distinguished by good feeling, the most amiable sentiment, and the tactful expression of both.

Mr. Alfred Moul, who is now on the high road to convalescence after his operation, is throwing himself with his customary energy into the organisation of a matinée of the Alhambra on the 22nd inst. on behalf of the victims of the Paris floods. He has secured the patronage of the French Ambassador, M. Cambon; also of the Ministers Comte de Lastours, Comte de Montholon, Commandant Baron Mercier de Lostende, Vicomte de Felcourt, Colonel Huguet, M. Jean Perier, M. Joseph Knecht, M. A. Fleurian, M. E. Daegelmer, M. de la Begassiere, M. F. Sabatier, and M. Berard.

New songs are always welcome, and the many writers who supply the variety stage continue to worthily maintain the high and important position of their craft. But there are some songs which refuse to grow old in the sense of becoming useless for further production. Amongst these stands out in bold relief "The man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo," that remarkable effusion which contributed greatly to enhance the popularity both of its author-composer, the late Fred Gilbert, and of its producer, Mr. Charles Coborn, who has revived it during the current week at the Euston and Met. with a degree of success which promises for it another long lease of life.

For the next seven weeks the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, will be run as a variety house, with programmes presented twice nightly.

Jack Smiles is returning to town after a most successful tour, and opens at Camberwell on Monday.

The death is announced at the early age of twenty-three of Ramsey Percy Richard Lloyd, son of the late Delarue Lloyd and nephew of Arthur Lloyd. The deceased gentleman was also the grandson of a Scottish theatrical manager as celebrated in his day as the Wardens of Belfast or the Wyndhams of Edinburgh and Glasgow.

The directors of Moss' Empires, Ltd., have resolved to recommend that the balance of profit for the year 1909 be applied as follows:—In carrying to reserve for redemption of the company's 6 per cent. debentures, £10,029; in paying a dividend for the second half of the year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income tax, absorbing £14,000; and in carrying forward the balance of £13,361.

Dr. Walford Bodie is having a most successful tour through his native land with his own company of Royal Magnets. Everywhere he is being received with great acclamation, playing to packed houses all along the line. This week he is storming the capital of the Highlands (Inverness), and although it is the Doctor's tenth visit, he is playing to full capacity nightly. He hopes to appear at an early date in London again.

Dr. Bodie's appeal against the decision of Mr. Justice Darling is expected to be heard next week some time. C. Arthur Pearson, Ltd., are publishing Dr. Bodie's "Hypnotic Stories"—which were such a big success in the "Novel Magazine" under the title of "Harley the Hypnotist"—in volume form. They will be published in a shilling edition, and should command a large sale.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the billiard handicap, in which Birmingham managers are competing, at the Woolpack Hotel. On Tuesday two ties were contested, Mr. Philip Rodway (Theatre Royal), owes 100, beating Mr. P. D. Elbourne (Hippodrome), receives 120, after an exciting game, and Mr. A. Bushell (Gaiety), owes 50, beating Mr. A. W. Matcham (Empire), receives 120, by a few points. Next Tuesday Mr. Collingwood meets Mr. Foster, and Mr. Graham will play Mr. Goodwin Woodward.

Monday evening witnessed the anniversary of Mr. Albany Ward's lesseeship of the Jubilee Hall, Weymouth, and the staff took the opportunity of practically showing their appreciation of him as a manager. After the fall of the curtain the entire staff assembled, and Mr. H. G. P. Wells, in a few words, conveyed the hearty congratulations of the employees to Mr. Ward on his success as lessee of the hall and rinks. The speaker warmly eulogised Mr. Ward as an employer, and expressed the hope that they (the staff) would long work under him.

Mr. Linsdell, as the oldest member of the Weymouth staff, presented Mr. Ward on their behalf with a handsome gold horse-shoe pin (for good luck), and alluded in the highest terms to the happy feeling existing between Mr. Ward and his employees. The health of Mr. and Mrs. Ward was drunk with musical honours, and Mr. Ward responded, thanking all present for their loyalty and the interest they had taken in his service.

The funeral took place at Kingston Cemetery on Tuesday morning of Mr. T. W. S. Lonsdale, aged twenty-eight years, the son of Mr. T. S. Lonsdale, the well-known song-writer and author of "Tommy make room for your uncle," sung by the late W. B. Fair. Mr. Lonsdale, sen., was also for many years stage-manager at the Empire Palace, Portsmouth. The deceased gentleman was well known in the town, and of late years assisted his father.

Several friends attended to pay their last respects at the graveside, and among the private mourners were the widow and the deceased's father, mother, and brother. There were a large number of handsome wreaths, one from the Empire Staff, another from Capt. and Mrs. Warren Wright, as well as many from the deceased's relatives and a large circle of friends.

Mr. Oswald Stoll presided at the annual meeting of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces on Wednesday. He briefly commented on the satisfactory nature of the report. Mr. George Gray, the "Fighting Parson," criticised the figures, and said the position did not appear to be entirely satisfactory. The profits in the last year or two had grown steadily less. The chairman said that there was a very small difference of a few hundreds out of many thousands of pounds, and that alone was easily accounted for by the temporary interest in skating rinks in different neighbourhoods.

Mr. Stoll formally moved:—"That a dividend be declared and paid upon the ordinary shares for the half-year to Dec. 31, 1909, at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, amounting to £5,000, and that the balance of £3,844 6s. 7d. be carried forward, subject to the managing-director's remuneration for 1909." The report was unanimously adopted.

By permission of Moss' Empires, Ltd., a special matinée, in aid of the West Ham and East London Hospital, was given at the Stratford Empire on Thursday, and, judging by the full house, "sweet charity" should benefit considerably. The Mayor and members of the West Ham Corporation were present, and Mr. E. J. Macdermott, the popular acting-manager, had a fine array of talent to submit.

Among those who gave their services were Miss Evie Greene, Monsieur Lamberti, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Faber, Miss Maud Neary, Bros. Durant, Mr J. Squire, Miss Gertie Gitana, Braatz's wonderful dogs, Miss Kathleen Kogan, Mr. Billy Hobbs, Miss Lilian Wearing, La Sylphe, Miss Jennie Hartley, Miss Ella Shields, Vanando, the Jewels, Miss Alice Raymond and company, Lester Bros., Miss Victoria Glen, Mr. Frank Cass, Miss Ethel Kemish, Mr. Barney Armstrong and Jimmie Steel, Miss Edith Eatherley, and Mr. Claude Allister. Mr. Albert Whipp, mus. bac., occupied the orchestral chair with marked success, and Mr. J. Pople ('Appy), stage-managed the big programme with his customary ability.

The directors of the Palace Theatre have decided to assist the Lord Mayor of London's Fund to alleviate the distress which has arisen among the poorer citizens through the floods in Paris. A special matinée, therefore, has been arranged for Thursday next under the direct patronage of his Excellency the French Ambassador, the Lord Mayor, and Sheriffs. To the theatrical side of the programme Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. James Welch, and Mr. Lyn Harding will contribute, and on the variety side Miss Vesta Tilley, the Peschkoff Troupe of Russian dancers, Mr. Arthur Prince, and Lady Constance Stewart Richardson. Sir Herbert Tree has very kindly consented to make a little speech announcing the total of the proceeds, as he did at the Emily Soldene matinée benefit held at the same house.

Mr. Harry Randall, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, is giving nine audiences a week a taste of the comedy that amused thousands of Londoners at Drury Lane, at the Grand, Islington, and at the Camden Theatre. As a dame Mr. Randall's confidences are distinctly precious, and his success really remarkable.

After paying a visit to Glasgow—the second within a few months—Mr. Fred Maitland, assisted by Miss Pauline Walker and Co., is appearing on Monday next at the Olympia, Shoreditch, in that laughing hit Roots, Rash Chemists, a sketch full of ludicrous incidents and nonsensical lines.

Mr. Tom Leamore, who has just concluded a most successful week at the Empire Palace, Birmingham, goes on Monday next to the Coliseum, Glasgow, with the Argyle, Birkenhead, and London to follow.

Miss Kate Carney's The Fun of the Fair has proved an enormous attraction at Shoreditch Olympia, at Rotherhithe Hippodrome, and Camberwell Palace. On Monday next it will be presented at the Willesden Hippodrome, and has been secured by every hall of note in the kingdom.

Mr. Charles Coborn at Wednesday's meeting of the Railway Rates Association, proposed a vote of condolence with the family of the late Mr. Thomas Barrasford, and Mr. J. H. Milburn seconded it. It was also resolved to send a wreath. The committee of the Music Hall Home also desire to convey their deepest regret to Mr. T. Barrasford and family upon the death of the late president of the Music Hall Home.

Mr. Ben Woodger, secretary of the Music Hall Home, conveys the thanks of his committee to Mr. Vivian Evans, Empire Palace, Wolverhampton, for a box collection amounting to £1 14s. 6d., and to Mr. Percy Ford, of the Empire, Camberwell, for a box collection amounting to 6s.

Mr. Edwin Barwick has forwarded 7s. in aid of the Music Hall Home Fund, which he sent to Mr. Harry Barnard. There are now ten old performers being well provided with home comforts. Artists and others interested are invited at any reasonable time to visit the Home at 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell.

Mr. Percy Ashdown has written the striking incidental music to that powerful sketch The Adder's Tooth, of which we gave a notice in our last issue.

A goodly gathering is expected this (Saturday) morning at Euston, at 9.20, to bid farewell to Mr. Edgar Romaine and his charming wife, who are off to America again.

Miss Lillie Langtry, the favoured of London, has reached Australia after a very rough passage from Capetown. She landed on Monday morning, Dec. 27, and went from the hotel to the Opera House, Melbourne, for rehearsal, followed by a matinée and then an evening performance. After four songs and a dance in the evening, the popular "electric spark" found the house so enthusiastic that she is able to record a most gratifying success—with the thermometer at 104deg. Fahrenheit, too!

Miss Florrie Robina will shortly produce two new numbers, written by J. P. Harrington and Orlando Powell and Foster and St. John. Both numbers are novel, the music is charming, and the popular comedienne is looking forward to two big successes.

Mr. Martin Adeson and Miss Clara Bernard are producing their duologue, Dr. Maud's First Patient, written by Herbert Darnley, at the Oxford, on Monday, for the first time in the West End. They were only able to accept the engagement for one week, as they are booked in the provinces. They return, however, to the Tivoli on March 14.

Mr. Frank Lister and Mr. Fred Kitchen are producing a new sketch at the Canterbury on Monday, entitled The White Feather. The partnership will be well remembered by their successful sketches No. 99 and The Sundowner. The latter is booked for the Stoll tour 1911 and 1912.

Mr. Ted E. Box is a prime favourite at the Holloway Empire this week. His two new songs "I'm a soldier" and "That's the time a fellow ought to stop," are indescribably funny. Following the tremendous encore he receives, he whistles a march, introducing startling imitations of different birds—a truly marvellous performance.

Miss Maudie Francis, who is making such a success in The House that Jack Built at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, is now in her seventh year with pantomime under Mr. Fred Karno's management, which is certainly a record for one so young. Little Gladys Nelson, Maudie's younger sister, is fulfilling her first pantomime engagement with Mr. Fred Karno, and has deputised three times for Miss Maidie Scott, imitating her "Teddy Bear" song, &c., with great success.

The meeting of the Terriers' Association on Sunday next will commence at 6.45 p.m., and the ladies' concert will start at 8.15 p.m. Tickets for the John Alexander benefit may be had of the secretary, Arthur Were.

Mr. Rolando Martin and Mr. Arthur Victor Raymond Dunne were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Ben Woodger, P.W.T., assisted by Terrier Ben Obo, V.T. Terrier Arthur Were officiated as organist. Mr. Lionel Beate has successfully passed the ballot.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Terriers' Association on Sunday, when Terriers Burnetti, A. De Brean, E. D'Almaine, Ted Karno, and H. P. Kato received a hearty welcome on their reappearance in the kennel. The officers for February are as follows:—W.T., Terrier Ben Obo; V.T., Terrier Jim Obo; W.D., Terrier Russell Brandow; Y.B., Terrier Ernest D'Almaine; W.I., Terrier C. C. Cornish; Organist, Terrier Arthur Were.

An important newcomer to the London Hippodrome will be Olga Petronowa, the famous Russian conductress, and her band of thirty picked British instrumentalists. Mlle. Petronowa, who is about to make her first appearance in London, is a pupil of the celebrated Wasilie Savonoff, and it was on the advice of Juan Clustine, head of the Russian Imperial Ballet, that she formed a British military orchestra.

This beautiful, stately woman of twenty-five is so gifted a wielder of the bâton that she is said to dominate her musicians and to control them so thoroughly that they play with perfect precision. The band's very varied répertoire embraces pieces ranging from "William Tell" and Tschaikowsky's "1812" to "The Coon Band Contest."

The preparations for the Johnny Alexander Benefit Matinée are well in hand. A large number of donations have already been received. The committee met on Tuesday, and discussed the general arrangements, and will meet again on Tuesday next, at two o'clock, at the M.H.A.R.A. offices. Tickets, now ready, may be had of members of the committee. Artists willing to appear at the benefit are invited to communicate with the honorary secretary, Mr. Arthur Were, 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Donations may be sent to the honorary treasurer, Mr. Joe Elvin, at the same address.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday afternoon next, at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road.

The friends of Mr. Fred Reeves will be pleased to hear that he is better. His doctor has ordered him to the seaside for a fortnight to complete his recovery.

Mr. W. F. Frame, "the man frae over the Border," will be seen next week at the Empire, Hackney. The folks in the north-east district will be having some "braw bonnie bricht nichts the noo." Hooch Aye!

Miss Maie Hoey made her appearance in the Palace of Morocco scene in the Dick Whittington pantomime at the Empire, Swindon, and brought down the house by her exquisite and graceful Eastern dance. Maie Hoey was a hit, and appears at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne on Monday.

The third annual meeting of the United Varieties Syndicate, Limited, was held on Tuesday, at No. 1, Durham House-street, Strand, W.C., Mr. Henry Tozer (chairman of the company) presiding. The net profit earned for the twelve months ended Dec. 31, 1909, amounts to the net sum of £4,628 1s. 10d. In July last an interim dividend of £5 per cent., less income-tax, was paid.

The directors recommend the payment of a further dividend of £5 per cent., less income-tax, for the period ended Dec. 31, 1909, and a bonus of £2 per cent., also free of tax, together equal to £12 per cent., and carrying forward the balance to the current year's accounts. The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

Mr. Horace Wheatley, the inimitable Irish comedian, was specially engaged by Mr. E. H. Bostock at the Hamilton Hippodrome in place of Yamomoto and Koyoshi, who were prevented from fulfilling their engagement through an accident sustained while roller-skating. Mr. Wheatley, who, by the way, was the original singer of "Harrigan," is a great favourite wherever he goes, and has attracted big crowds to the house named.

The Alhambra directors, in presenting the balance-sheet and accounts for the year ending Dec. 31, 1909, at the annual meeting, to be held at the theatre on Tuesday next, at 12 noon, recommend that an amount of £1,500 be appropriated to the alterations, additions, and improvements account, that a dividend of 8 per cent. (free of income tax) for the year ending Dec. 31, 1909, being £4,800, be now paid, and that the balance, £4,722 7s. 6d., be carried forward to the next account.

The net profit for the year 1909 amounts to £6,277 8s. 3d., which, added to £4,744 19s. 3d., the amount brought forward, makes the net balance £11,022. The dividend will be payable on Wednesday next. The director retiring by rotation is Mr. D. E. Winder, who, being eligible, offers himself for re-election. The auditors, Messrs. Chatteris, Nichols, and Co., retire, and also offer themselves for re-election.

Miss Melinda May (secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C.), on behalf of the committee, begs to thank the following:—Miss Lottie Albert, 2s. 6d., donation; Miss Indie Smythson, 6s., result of hoopla competition; Miss Maggie Bowman for kindly giving and collecting 10s. from the ladies and gentlemen at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway; Mrs. James Horne, collecting 2s. 6d.; J. Morris, Esq., jun., donation, 10s. 6d., per Mr. Alec Barish.

Also thanks to the committee of the concert for Hebrew Ladies' Society, organised by Mr. M. Cohen, at Hope Hall, Liverpool, on Thursday last; and Mr. Alec. Barish also obtained permission for the ladies of the Guild to collect as follows: Miss Louie Davis (Ward and Davis), 7s.; Miss Clare (Clare and Pastor), 6s.; Miss John Foy, 4s. 6d.; Miss Ernestine Foy, 4s.; Miss Longdon, 2s.; Miss Hollzhassen, 1s. 6d. Are there any willing workers who would kindly help to do the same at Liverpool, Feb. 23 and March 2? Kindly write to above. Mrs. James Horne, parcel of babies' new underclothing; Virginia Frances, clothing; Miss Lottie Albert, clothing. The Chirgwin doll sent by Miss Lillie Vento realised 12s. 6d., the winner being Miss Addie Adell.

The sweepstake for the Rex motor bicycle given by Mr. Joe Zarmo took place on Wednesday, the winning number being 158. The sum realised was £30 19s. The committee are very grateful to Mr. Zarmo for his generous gift.

Mr. Edward Cranston, in a letter to us, very properly points out that The Plumbers is not the first sketch to be transferred from hall to theatre as a curtain-raiser. "About twelve or fourteen years ago," he writes, "when running the racing sketch Terry; or, True to His Trust, written by Sutton Vane, I was engaged to produce it as a curtain-raiser at the Duke of York's Theatre, when Mlle. Nitouche was running there. In the halls I am still playing the same sketch, which has registered now some six thousand performances.

An action of importance to travellers was tried by Judge Parry in the Manchester County Court last week. Edith and Julio Eroll, music-hall artists, who appear in a comedy and leaping act under the name of The Two Erolls, claimed £10 10s. from the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company as damages due to the non-delivery and wrongful detention of a basket of apparatus. Mr. Frank Rowland was solicitor for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Daniel for the defendants.

The evidence showed that on Nov. 8 the plaintiffs deposited two skips and a basket containing their costumes and apparatus at the defendants' station in Nelson. They had been engaged to appear at the Grand Theatre in that town, but as the theatre was closed the goods were left in the station until Nov. 14, when the plaintiffs had to leave for Manchester, their services being required at an Eccles theatre. When they tendered the cloak-room ticket, however, only the two skips were found, the basket having been carried to London by mistake, and as it did not turn up again until the following Tuesday the plaintiffs lost their week's engagement at the Eccles Theatre.

The Judge refused leave to appeal, because he thought the plaintiffs had been put to quite enough trouble already "without being taken to the House of Lords," and because he could not conceive that the servants of the company would do such a thing again.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, in Scenes from Dickens, have this week been accorded a brilliant reception at the King's Theatre and Hippodrome, Dundee, where they adorn a bill which is a credit to the discriminating taste of Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, who are responsible for the bookings of this palatial and handsome house. Since the King's opened the excellent programmes presented have been the means of attracting people who never before were in the habit of visiting a music hall, while another undoubted attraction is the fine orchestra under the capable direction of Mr. George Mundell. Another big factor in the success of this house is Manager S. McIntosh, who attends in very able manner to the requirements of the establishment.

The "men of the North," it is pointed out in an evening contemporary, have had much to do with the development of the modern music hall. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, whose death is recorded in another column, was a Newcastle-on-Tyne man. Mr. Dick Thornton, of the Moss and Thornton combination, also came from the banks of the Tyne, while his partner, Sir Edward Moss, though born at Manchester, is the son of a Scottish impresario. Moreover, Mr Frank Allen, the chief organiser in these days of the Moss and Thornton business, is a Sunderland man. These men between them are responsible for a great part of the progress of the music hall, especially in the provinces.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, however, who is the strenuous guiding genius of the Moss Empires combination, is an Australian born, although he was educated in Liverpool. It was on the Tyne, too, that the Moss combination had a modest start, and Mr. Barrasford's first venture was at Jarrow, where he opened the Circus of Varieties on Nov. 6, 1893, with Miss Maud Distin, the lady baritone, as the star attraction. His first conspicuous success, however, was at the Tivoli, Leeds, which he opened some ten years since, and which was the forerunner of many other ventures. At the time of his taking it over the Leeds house was the property of the Leeds and Hanley Variety Company.

It has been stated that Mr. Barrasford was the founder of the two-houses-a-night system. The pioneer of that system in London was Robert Fort, who ran the Alhambra, Shoreditch, thirty-five years ago. Bob Fort, as he was called, at one time owned the Foresters and the Theatre Royal, Margate. In more modern days—in the eighties—Mr. George Belmont started two performances nightly at the Sebright Music Hall, Hackney (Aug. 3, 1885), and also ran the Olympic, the Surrey, and Sadler's Wells Theatres on what he euphoniously termed the bifurcated plan.

When Mr. Barrasford started at the Lyceum there was a good deal of Press comment on the lowering of the traditions of a famous house, which had seen so many vicissitudes before the genius of Henry Irving raised it to the pinnacle of fame as a temple devoted to the highest form of drama. At the time, 1904, the deceased gentleman controlled Hippodromes at Brighton, Birmingham, Liverpool, and Glasgow, and houses at Salford, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Manchester, Bristol, and Leeds. But he was ambitious of doing bigger things, and with the purchase of the old Château d'Eau Theatre, a house devoted to minor melodrama, he showed the Parisians the possibilities of a well-conducted English Theatre of Varieties, naming his new property the Alhambra.

This international policy was continued at Brussels, Barcelona, and other Continental towns. The revival of Excelsior at the Lyceum did not answer Mr. Barrasford's expectations, and though that famous ballet had won a European reputation in Paris, Brussels, and at Her Majesty's Theatre in the eighties, it was too long, and the experiment was unfortunate. The Lyceum, after a closure of some months, reverted to drama under the ægis of Messrs. Smith and Carpenter.

We regret to learn of the severe indisposition of Miss Marie Loftus, who will not be able to fulfil her engagement on Monday with Mr. Broadhead at Liverpool.

Miss Lois Du Cane is causing quite a sensation by her acting as the Princess Claudia in The Russian Princess, by Frederick Maxwell. The exciting sketch will be staged at the Empire, Croydon, next week, with all its elaborate setting and special effects.

A most successful return visit, resulting in record business, was made by Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls on Monday at the Empire Palace, South Shields. They are vocalists of a high order; and Willie Benn, an excellent accompanist, is to be congratulated on his successful training of these clever young people.

What sort of welcome awaits Miss Maidie Scott at the Marlborough on Monday night, when Mr. Fred Karno's House that Jack Built is transferred there from New Cross, can be better imagined than described. It looks like a big night at the fine house, for the popular lady is literally idolised in Holloway and the parts thereto adjacent.

Mr. David Hart, who shares with Alan Quartermain the reputation of never going to sleep, has in Miss Ruby Roya a client of exceptional ability, and one who is likely, it is said, to blossom into a star of the first magnitude. The young lady is being booked everywhere by Mr. Hart, and Edgar Bateman and Henry F. Greenfield have been requisitioned to write songs for her. She has been appearing during the week at Wigan.

Miss Burrows, during the performance of Dick Whittington at Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on Saturday last, and the dear pantomime girls presented Miss Adèle Levey on her entrance as his Imperial Majesty, with a dolly dressed like her attached to a lovely bouquet. Miss Levey naturally felt very proud of the pretty and graceful compliment paid her. Owing to her success, this divinely tall principal boy has had several offers to play Sinbad or Crusoe for next season's pantomimes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners write that owing to the present conditions under which grand opera has to be given in this country, and seeing no necessity for them to continue singing with their companies, they had arranged not to sing next season; but owing to the munificent offer Mr. Stoll has made them, the promise of easy work, and their voices being still in their prime, they thought it would be foolish not to accept an engagement to appear for thirty-two weeks, commencing on July 25 at the London Coliseum and Mr. Stoll's principal music halls throughout the provinces.

Financially speaking, they have nothing to complain of; on the contrary, giving grand opera has been most satisfactory, and, indeed, with the result that they need not work any more. However, they hope this engagement will at any rate cancel most of the thousands they have lost, principally in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Newcastle, Liverpool, &c., in trying to popularise grand opera. They inform us that at the completion of this engagement with Mr. Stoll they will again have something to say and do with running their companies in the cause of national grand opera in English.

Mr. Howard M. Hartman, who is the author of "The Sun Worshippers" and "A Prince of Babylon," has just finished a North American Indian tale, which is being published in a sixpenny edition form, profuse with descriptive illustrations, by a well-known artist, by Hammond and Stowe, of High Holborn, W.C. The title of the story is "The Queen of the Seminoles." It is an elaborated version of a miniature musical comedy, which Mr. Hartman intends to produce at an early date. A great surprise is promised in connection with this production. The piece is in two scenes, and will be cast with five principals and a chorus of ten musical comedy ladies and two gentlemen. The lyrics and music are by Mr. Hartman. Several real Indian instruments will be introduced.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

IN the spring the professional's fancy seriously turns to thoughts of new material, and involuntarily she, or he, makes straight for Messrs. Francis and Day's establishment, to see what is toward in the song line. The celebrated firm are now exploiting a huge batch of entirely new songs, suitable for all lines of business, written and composed by the first authors and composers of the day, and the wise ones are already thronging to the department presided over by Mr. Lester Barrett. Verb. sap., which interpreted into plain English means, a "word to the wise."

THAT splendid artist Miss Lil Hawthorne, is again revisiting the scene of many former triumphs, and at the Tivoli has won the highest encomiums for her delightful rendering of Messrs. Francis and Day's "Little Maid of Monte Carlo." A beautiful special scene representing the exterior of the Casino by night is greatly admired.

MISS KATE CARNEY has acquired a new song, by Paul Pelham and J. P. Long, entitled "I'll be waiting in the harbour." The same writers have also just fitted Mr. Phil Parsons with a couple of ditties, entitled respectively "Mixed Melodies" and "Robinson's Motor Car."

THAT fine Romany sketch, All the Fun of the Fair, looks like proving a veritable Golconda, and Miss Kate Carney, as Carmen, the gipsy, has at last a part in which she can display the histrionic talents that Paul Pelham, the writer of the scena, in common with other keen observers, knew the lady was possessed of, and Miss Carney's beautifully modulated voice has never been heard to greater advantage than in the song, "A Romany still I'll be," composed by Herbert Rule, who shares with Mr. Pelham the distinction of having supplied the popular lady with a worthy successor to their "Yiddisher Boy" and "Good-morning, Mr. Postman." Mr. George Marriott's splendid rendering of the difficult part of Hagar, the fortune-teller, is a feature of the sketch, as is likewise the lawyer of Mr. Phillips (of Phillips and Terry). The sketch is booked solid a long time ahead.

MISS MADGE OSMOND is going great guns this week at the South London and Chelsea Palaces, in a really funny character skit, entitled Captain Percy of the Royal Fusees, written and composed by Fred E. D'Albert.

MISS MAYNE CANNON is scoring a big success with her latest number, "Sam, send a telegram," written and composed by Fred Godfrey and Fred E. D'Albert.

MISS GLADYS HUXLEY is having tremendous success with her song, "Health, wealth, and the girl you love." Miss Huxley holds the exclusive London music-hall singing right of this song, but the publishers, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., are willing to grant a few provincial permissions.

MR. HARRY LUCK intends to produce his latest song, "The Funny Old Fellow," at Leicester next week. It is by Chas. Collins and himself.

THE HIPPODROME.

The melodramatic and zoological spectacle entitled The Arctic, by Sydney Blow and Douglas Hoare, has completely fulfilled its purpose as the leading attraction of the Yuletide and New Year programme at the Hippodrome; and now that the youngsters have gone back to school it is to be withdrawn. The thrilling episodes, in which seventy Polar bears take part, have gained much in effectiveness since the first performance; and it is a fascinating sight to see the mimic scene of the ice pack animated by the gambols of, what may be termed, an ursine herd. It gives also a realistic touch to the Polar pictures when harnessed Arctic dogs bring on the sledges conveying hero and heroine. The authors give us a conventional story of a villain's baseness, caused by an unrequited passion for the hero's fiancée, played by Miss Edyth Olive with charm and distinctness. Mr. Frank Atherley is a determined and picturesque adventurer, and Mr. Philip Cunningham, who as Ralph Kingston, the explorer, has to experience moving accidents by flood and field, makes a most interesting hero. Mr. Cecil Kinnaird, Mr. Stanley Lathbury, and Mr. Watty Brunton also lend good support. To Mr. Richard Winslow's stage-management the smoothness of the performance is due, and the acme of spectacular effect is reached when, from huge mountains of ice illuminated by the Aurora Borealis the bears slide down into the arena lake, and there gambol about, to the delight of the kiddies.

A welcome return is made by Lamberti in character impersonations of famous musicians. Previous impersonators have often presented lightning-like impressions of departed composers in a way that has been far from artistic; but this gifted musician not only appears—for instance—as the Abbé Liszt in his habit as he lived, but plays as the famous virtuoso might have done when he came over to this country about a quarter of a century since. As Hollman, the famous 'cellist, Lamberti gives a solo on that instrument, and as Joachim—a very fine and realistic make-up—he plays the fiddle with excellent tone and expression. He also conducts as Charles Gounod the band playing the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, and dressed as Paderewski, play a Humoreske by that famous pianist. There is a playful humour in these last two counterfeits that does not escape the audience.

Miss Ruth Vincent, with her rich voice and her delightful methods of vocalisation, has won an immediate success at this house. She has the audience at her feet in such numbers as "Little Princess, look up," from Amasis, and "The Old Folks at Home." Varando has an amusing ventriloquial interlude with a chawbacon figure, and the final song brings down enthusiastic applause. Mr. Selwyn Driver, a young entertainer at the piano, shows a coming-on disposition, and though we have heard something very much like his burlesque of a country choir before, he has a decided turn for humour. No juggler sustains his unique position in the entertainment world with greater consistency than Cinquevalli, whose exhibition of seemingly impossible feats prove the power of an indomitable will. No need to describe the doings of this incomparable artist, who, it is pleasant to observe, preserves his marvellous powers, and seems to be gifted with perennial youth. Loyal's trained dogs include a clever somersaulting poodle, who does a turn-over from an elevated spring-board, and literally throws himself into his work with marvellous energy and precision. The clown dog, too, is really funny. Other turns include Leonard Charburn's young stars in their pretty scena "A Picnic Up the River"; the Alaskas, in an amusing pantomime acrobatic act, very smartly and cleverly worked; and Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies, in a hurricane dancing act. "The Vampire Dance" is still a strong attraction of the bill, which is under the watchful superintendence of that master of languages, the popular Mr. Fred Trussell, courteously assisted in his managerial duties by Mr. Thomas Miller.

MR. HENRY HERNE and Miss Ida Millais conclude to-night their fourth visit within two years to the Empire, Portsmouth, with the water sensation sketch, Blackmail.

JESSIE TEMPLETON, the successful principal boy of the Princess's, Glasgow, takes a benefit on Feb. 14. Mr. Malcolm Scott, Miss Fanny Fields, and Mr. Harry Claff have kindly consented to appear.

"A MARRIAGE HAS BEEN ARRANGED."

A Play in little, by Alfred Sutro, Produced for the First Time on the Variety Stage, at the Palace Theatre, on Monday, Jan. 31.

Harrison Crockstead....MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER
Lady Aline de Vaux.....MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier have chosen as successor to that thrilling playlet, The Knife, a miniature comedy, the first successful piece, we believe, of Mr. Alfred Sutro, the author of the brilliant comedy, The Walls of Jericho. A Marriage Has Been Arranged is caustic in its satire, unconventional, up-to-date, and always smart. It gave considerable pleasure to a packed house on Monday.

The story of how the comedietta became the property of Mr. Bourchier has a touch of romance about it. The author, anxious for his work to be judged on its merits, sent it anonymously to the manager of the Garrick, who, after his usual fashion, handed it to his reader for criticism. By him it was returned, with a strong recommendation for perusal, together with the remark that the man who could write so clever a playlet ought not to be allowed to "waste his sweetness on the desert air." It was produced at the Haymarket on May 6, 1902.

Harrison Crockstead, to whom is assigned most of the cynicism of this diverting trifle, has strolled from the ballroom at 300, Grosvenor-square, with Lady Aline de Vaux. A multi-millionaire, Crockstead indulges in an almost brutal frankness of speech, and his barbed satire would be quite inexcusable in anyone else but a moneyed magnate. He is so disgustingly rich that he is ready apparently to marry any lady with some pretensions to refinement and position. Lady Aline has evidently interested him, and his attentions to her have been marked by her mother, a marchioness, and by her aunt, who regard the fortune of Crockstead as one at any rate that might with much advantage be acquired by the family. Besides, Lady Aline has been out for eight seasons, and, like the lady in the song, it is about time she was settled in life. Crockstead evidently has no use for tact, and makes it plain to his partner that he knows her friends expect him to propose. He is nothing loth. He bluntly asks her to be his wife; she as bluntly refuses.

Before his declaration, however, he gives her a brief outline of his career. In his early manhood he came to grips with poverty, and suffered hunger, disappointment, and misery. His luck turned when he found a nugget. In camp he had met a woman that he could love—not technically a good woman. She deserted him for another, whom he shot in Texas. Lady Aline sneers at the amour, but the downrightness of the man begins to soften her prejudice against him, and she confesses that she, too, has loved a cousin, but they were too poor to marry. Crockstead, with generous impulse, offers to give this former lover directorships in his companies that will bring in £4,000 a year, and asks for the cousin's address. But he has married a widow with money. Crockstead then begs her to find him a wife, and in speaking of an imaginary woman friend who might marry him, she is really talking of herself. The end is easily guessed. Lady Aline, "saying she would ne'er consent," at length consents to become Mrs. Crockstead. Mr. Bourchier revels in the part of Harrison Crockstead, and the satire of the part gains immensely by his admirable delivery, the actor suggesting quite cleverly, by accent and manner, that though the millionaire lacks the polish of society, he is a very smart man of the world. Miss Violet Vanbrugh, beautifully gowned, enters with rare spirit into the passage of arms between the would-be lovers, and shares the honours of a delightful performance.

Early in the evening Miss Beatrice Allen gives serio-comic selections with some charm; Miss Jennie Johns impersonates a middy in the King's Navee with considerable gusto; and the Palace Girls, with their Tiller training, are always good to watch. They are a most fascinating octet, beautifully dressed and beautifully finished in their every movement. No wonder that they are such immense favourites.

Miss Mary Grey shows culture and musicianly feeling in her selections. She is hard in the upper register, and when forcing her voice, which she is inclined to do, the tone is not agreeable. Her most successful and most artistic selection on the night of our visit was Reynaldo Hahn's pretty aria, "Mai." Mr. Ernest Mills is a humorist with crayon, and burlesques very cleverly the styles of some of our popular caricaturists, like John Hassall and Will Owen. He is modest withal.

Techin-Maa and his Chunchuses are an entertaining crowd, the plate-spinner being quite a

"EDMUND KEAN."

Sketch by Louis Cohn, Produced at the Standard, Pimlico, on Monday, Jan. 31.

Edmund Kean .....MR. NORMAN PARTRIEGE
Ben Lazarus .....MR. WALTER MAYNARD
Tom Spring .....MR. REGGIE BOLTON
Charles .....MISS DOROTHY LESLEIGH
Mary .....MISS IRMA FOLDI

A momentous episode in the career of Edmund Kean furnishes Mr. Bernard Partriege with an opportunity of introducing himself to a music hall audience in various extracts from Shakespeare, of his proficiency in which he has frequently given evidence on the regular stage. The sketch shows Kean in his humble abode, soon after his arrival in London, with his wife and his son, Charles, a delicate lad whose health is rapidly giving way under the privations he has to endure. Kean is to make his first appearance at Drury Lane, and on his success or failure depends his whole future. A Jewish collector comes to demand the rent long overdue, but is reduced to a state of subjection by the arrival of the friendly Tom Spring, the famous boxer, and his dog, who takes an ominous interest in the landlord's lower extremities. At Tom's request Kean gives various specimens of his elocutionary ability, rendering excerpts from the more tempestuous scenes of Richard III., Othello, and Hamlet, and using the Jew as the object of attack, much to that worthy's discomfort. Eventually Kean departs for Drury Lane, and, after a lowering of the lights, denoting the lapse of a few hours, returns in triumph, the hero of a cheering crowd. Kean's fortune is made, prosperity is before him, and his dearest wish that his son shall go to Eton is sure to be realised. Kean describes the scene at the theatre, how he was coldly received at first, but how the house "rose at him" when he reached the Rialto scene, and delivered Shylock's famous speech, "Hath not a Jew eyes?"

The sketch is skilfully constructed, and the various Shakespearean extracts are connected by effective dialogue. Mr. Partriege portrayed the proud, imperious actor to the life, delivering his lines with impressive effect. His Shylock was particularly striking, the fire and passion infused into the Jew's denunciation being quite thrilling. The chief actor had good support. Mr. Reggie Bolton—in whom we seemed to recognise a well-known and widely-experienced actor—was a bluff and breezy Tom Spring, making all the humour possible out of the part; and a comic Hebrew was the Ben Lazarus of Mr. Walter Maynard. Miss Dorothy Lesleigh well suggested the ailing boy, Charles, and Miss Irma Foldi played sympathetically as the wife.

Another novelty of Mr. T. S. Dickie's current bill is a romantic Irish episode, entitled

"THE CONFESSION."

Connor Fitzgerald .....MR. HERBERT LESTER
Dennis Fitzgerald .....MR. RAYMOND DUDLEY
Father Maguire .....MR. CHAS. CHAND
Nora O'Hanlon .....MISS HARRIETTA POLINI

A grim story of a quarrel between brothers, the death of one, and the remorse of the other, is provided in the above piece, the scene of which is laid in a cornfield in Ireland, with a peasant's cabin close by. Connor Fitzgerald and his brother, Dennis, are both in love with pretty Nora O'Hanlon. Connor is the favoured one and is accused by Dennis of trying to steal the girl's affections. High words ensue, Dennis strikes his brother, and the prongs of the pitchfork which the latter is holding penetrate the heart of Dennis. Terror-stricken, Conn hides the body under a haystack, and informs Nora that Dennis has suddenly gone off to America. His agitation, however, is so great that she advises Conn to go to confession, and sends Father Maguire to him for that purpose. Conn relates the terrible experience, and declares that he had no intention of killing his brother. Convinced of the man's innocence of evil intent, the priest gives him absolution, but equally convinced that judge and jury would not take so lenient a view of the case, he sets fire to the haystack, thus destroying all evidences of the terrible deed.

Mr. Herbert Lester played Conn with force and earnestness, vividly depicting the remorse of the man upon whom the brand of Cain seemed likely to be impressed. Mr. Raymond Dudley gave the proper gloomy and threatening air to the part of the hapless Dennis; Mr. Charles Chand was a typical priest; and Norah O'Hanlon was brightly played by Miss Harrietta Polini. The sketch was listened to attentively and applauded at the close.

CAMDEN HIPPODROME.

Mr. Albert H. Adams, the manager here, has a good programme to put forward before his patrons who are filling this handsome hall at each performance. The principal place on the programme is filled by Taylor Granville's thrilling sketch, The Hold Up, which is as interesting as ever, and further acquaintance with it only serves to convince one completely of the admirable material it contains, and of the capital way in which it is presented by the two actors who play it in such a forcible manner. It is a sketch which holds its audience in a firm grip right through, and its success is always assured.

La Belle Linda, a charming lady cyclist, performs many wonderful feats with grace and agility, and scores a decided success. Maxwell and Francis contribute a melodious turn, singing many delightful numbers, which are well received. Ruby Bijou is a dancer whose talents are well known, and on this occasion she contributes three very clever dances, which meet with much appreciation. Arthur Stacey, a droll comedian, causes laughter with his song, "You do look funny with your hair cut short," and Marion Armitage also adds to the humour of the evening with her Scotch song.

A very amusing interlude is that provided by Messrs. Colin Bryce and company in their sketch, Are You a Socialist? which causes roars of laughter, the comedian of the company being particularly funny in his impersonation of the tramp. Les Andres, three fine dancing specialists, give types of dancing of various nations. L. B. Athol scores a hit with his topical songs, which touch on many things now uppermost in the public mind. The Hiatts, instrumentalists of no mean order, give selections on a variety of instruments, which are much appreciated; Fred Evans has a cleverly conceived protean sketch, entitled Dressing, introducing a comedy skit of "Oliver Twist," in which he impersonates Fagin and Bill Sikes, making some very quick changes, and introducing some novel entrances and ideas. The Bioscope shows some fine films of the Burns v. Johnson fight. These films are naturally very popular.

LA SYLPHE, the flexible dancer, who achieved such a success at the Alhambra and London Coliseum, will give her famous creations "The Dance of Folly," "Diavola," and an Arab dance—the latter being a life study taken from the dancers in the Bey's harem, Tunis—at the Hackney Empire next week.

MISS ADAH PAYNE, the soprano vocalist, who is so well known through her long connection with the Moody-Manners A company, is delighting Southport audiences on her return visit to the Empire this week, with her lovely costumes and classical singing. Miss Payne re-opens on the Barrasford tour at the Leeds Hippodrome on Monday.

A TURN of much interest appeared at the Hippodrome, Sheerness, on Saturday, when Miss Tina Williams, a daughter of the popular manager, Mr. Ted Williams, made her stage début in the children's scene of The Fatal Wedding. The audience was deeply impressed, and recalled the clever little girl with much heartiness.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Two of the funniest songs of this or any other season are those which Mr. George Formby is at present exploiting at the Tivoli, Oxford, and his other London turns, to wit, "Playing the game in the West," by Alec Kendal and George Formby; and "I put on my coat and went home," by William and James Hargreaves. Both are published by Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., who also have in hand for early publication yet another of the same popular artist's songs, entitled "Since I had a go with my dumb-bells," by Barnes, Weston, and Scott. These numbers are published in Feldman's sixpenny edition form (only).

"Somewhere" seems to weekly increase the measure of its ubiquity. During the current week Miss Mabel Lait, the charming principal boy of the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, pantomime, has been reaping fresh laurels by her delightful rendering of this ear-haunting ballad.

Mesdames Phyllis Leslie and Eva Swinborne are achieving a pronounced success at the Theatre Royal, Merthyr Tydvil, with that tuneful Feldman song, "Come along over the garden wall," whilst Miss Phyllis Leslie, in the same pantomime, is cheered to the echo for her rendering of the same firm's striking number, "I can't keep my eyes off the girls."

Miss Violet Beatrice at the Hippodrome, Bolton, made one of the successes of her life with Feldman's great song, "Good-bye, Mr. Teddy Bear," and already the tuneful chorus-melody allied to the irresistibly "taking" words of this quaint little number have caused it to become the property of the "man in the street," from end to end of Bolton.

Miss Ailsa Douglas is singing two of Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.'s best chorus numbers at all her London and other engagements, to wit: "Somewhere" and "I'm trying so hard to forget you," and is predestined to success, armed as she is with two such irresistible vehicles for the display of her vocal talent.

Miss Primrose Harding, at the Opera House, Porth, continues to win the unqualified approval of all her audiences for her inimitable rendering of that great Feldman number, from the pens of Fred Godfrey and Will Letters, "Molly O'Morgan," and plaudits loud and long are the nightly meed of her artistic rendering of the tuneful song in question.

To hear Miss Ada Reeve's interpretation of the great Feldman song, "Somewhere," may truly be described as little short of a revelation. The audience at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, rise en masse to this dainty singer, and to hear the plaudits loud and long with which she is rewarded must, indeed, be a gratification even to an artist so accustomed as Miss Reeve is to receiving the praises of the multitude. At the Grand Theatre, Leeds, with the same intensely human number, Miss Jane Eyre is scoring one of the greatest pantomime triumphs ever known in this town.

Mr. Mark Sheridan, the original singer of "I do like to be beside the seaside," at the Prince of Wales, Birmingham, is making the hit of the pantomime with this great Feldman number, which has been so greatly exploited in pantomime this season, and throughout the length and breadth of Birmingham one cannot go anywhere without encountering the strains of this infectious song.

Miss Carrie Moore is one of the latest exponents of the Feldman songs, and at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, has just produced Godfrey and Letters' catchy chorus song, "Molly O'Morgan," to the accompaniment of a perfect tornado of applause. Miss Dorothy Ward also has the same song in rehearsal for production on Monday next at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, and the same thing applies to Miss Daisy Dormer with regard to Rogers and Neat's instantaneous hit, "Pretty little girl from nowhere."

Mr. Jack Pleasants, the Idle Jack of the Grand Theatre, Leeds, pantomime, has indubitably scored the absolute hit of the show with his delightfully droll rendering of Mark Lorne's funny song, "Fetch John Willie," and Mr. Bert Feldman may certainly be congratulated on his acumen in promptly securing for immediate publication so great a success as the song in question.

During Mr. Bert Feldman's recent visit to Leeds an interesting argument arose between the well-known publisher and one of the principal managers in the city, who shall be nameless, anent the possibilities of Miss Florrie Forde's success, were she to sing the great Feldman song, "Somewhere," in the Theatre Royal pantomime, the manager averring point blank that the song would not be a success, as it was totally unsuited (in his opinion) to Miss Forde's style. Miss Forde promptly dispelled all doubts on the subject, however, by introducing "Somewhere" in her part, and making one of the most colossal successes ever known in Leeds with it; in fact, it now forms a permanent part of the budget of songs she is singing at the Royal, which also includes another Feldman number, "I do like to be beside the seaside."

Miss Pauline Rivers' company at the Alexandra, Hull, still continues to make good with a repertoire of Feldman numbers, chief among which is that tuneful and ear-arresting number, "Come along over the garden wall," which also is a great favourite in many pantomimes of the present season, giving, as it does, such excellent scope for stage effects, dressing, &c.

"BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE."

A Protean Sketch, Produced at the Bedford on Monday, Jan. 31.

Prince Charles
John Lee .....
Jennie Lee ....
Flora McDonald ..... Miss Gertrude Bibby

Miss Gertrude Bibby, who is presenting this sketch at the Bedford this week, is a clever actress, and the rapidity with which she makes her several changes is undoubtedly smart, while her various characters are all well drawn and cleverly acted. The plot of the sketch, as its title betrays, is woven around Prince Charlie and his escape from Scotland after the Battle of Culloden. The story is told of how he takes refuge in the cottage of John Lee, who is tempted to betray the Prince and secure the reward offered for his capture. However, Lee's wife is faithful to the Prince, and calls in Flora McDonald, who aids the Prince in his escape and successfully wards off the soldiers who are on his track. The sketch is capitally mounted, and is very well received.

A pleasing little ceremony took place at the Empire Palace, Wolverhampton, on Monday, when Mr. Vivian Evans, resident-manager, was presented, on the occasion of his birthday, with a handsome diamond ring. In making the presentation Mr. Wilson, on behalf of the staff, spoke in high terms of Mr. Evans.

Councillor T. Jones, speaking for the few friends, complimented him on the fact that although he had not yet been with them twelve months he had made many improvements. Music halls were looked upon with doubt by some, but anyone having once visited the Empire Palace could leave with pleasurable feelings, and this state of things could only be attained by such a manager as Mr. Evans.

"THE ROMANYS."

Musical Comedy Scena, Written and Composed by Jack Brownson, Produced at the Brighton Alhambra on Monday, Jan. 31.

Gipsy Queen ..... Miss Beatrice Edwards
Lemnel ..... Mr. Arthur Edwards
Squire Mansfield ..... Mr. Ramsey Macbeth
Jack Mansfield ..... Mr. Tony Gordon
Leo ..... Mr. John Stafford, jun.
Gipsy King ..... Mr. Geo. Claremont

(from our own correspondent.)

A very hearty reception was accorded The Romanys at the Brighton Alhambra last Monday evening. The piece was admirably staged and dressed, and the music was bright and tuneful. When the curtain rises a party of gipsies and their caravan are seen on a portion of Squire Mansfield's estate. The Romanys are peaceable and industrious, and in obedience to the commands of their Queen they refrain from disturbing the Squire's game, though one, Lemnel, who suffers from chronic hunger, seems very desirous of snaring a rabbit or shooting a hare. Jack Mansfield, the Squire's nephew, is deeply enamoured of the gipsy Queen, and serenades her outside the caravan with a pretty ballad. A gun, carried by Leo, one of the tribe, accidentally goes off, the trigger being caught in a bush. The report is heard by the Squire, who is quickly on the scene, and orders the Romanys to leave in half an hour under the penalty of being handed over to the police. He also hints at disinheriting his nephew should he marry the gipsy Queen. Upon this the gipsy King steps forward, and, in a short story, tells his companions that the Squire had married their former Queen and discarded her and their child. The Squire explains that he had legally married their Queen, but in order that his future prospects should not be blighted, the couple had kept their marriage secret. Realising that the young Queen is his own daughter, he consents to her marriage with his nephew.

Miss Beatrice Edwards as the gipsy Queen sang sweetly and with artistic finish; Mr. Arthur Edwards made an amusing Lemnel, and was very effective with a comic ditty; Mr. Tony Gordon as Jack Mansfield showed the possession of a pleasing tenor voice and the gift of artistic expression; Mr. John Stafford, a capital baritone, enacted Leo, and sang admirably; Mr. Geo. Claremont as the gipsy King gave his lines with clearness, emphasis, and point; and Mr. Ramsey Macbeth was well suited as the Squire.

Miss Gladys Hooley, who finishes a successful five months' tour of the provinces at Grimsby this week, comes to the Coliseum on Monday with her scena Fiddle and I. Miss Hooley opens her next provincial tour on March 7, at Doncaster.

A FAMOUS BALLET MISTRESS.

MADAME JEANETTE PHILLIPINI.

Terpsichorean triumphs are recalled by the career of Madame Jeanette Phillipini. After visiting the principal Continental cities as a dancer, and appearing at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, under the management of Captain Wombwell, she was engaged by Mr. Geo. Musgrove for Australia as ballet mistress and teacher of dancing. She started the classes at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne, and on the stage of that theatre all the girls and tiny children were taught. The pupils got on admirably, for they simply loved the work, and in a short time many of them became excellent dancers. During Madame Phillipini's stay in the Colonies she arranged the ballets for six pantomimes, the first being for Red Riding Hood, at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne. Mr. Walter Raynham was the stage-manager, and it was with that gentleman that she did so much work, both in pantomime and other plays, Round the World, produced at the Lyceum, Sydney, being one of them. In that production, Madame Phillipini arranged the Japanese and an Indian ballet. Her second pantomime season was at Melbourne, with Beauty and the Beast, staged by Mr. Frank Emery, Miss Polly Emery being in the cast, with Marie Luella and the Sakers. Other pantomimes with which Madame Phillipini was associated were Cinderella and the famous Djin Djin, with the Snow and Golden ballets. She also played for a season in Sydney and Adelaide, where she was responsible for several ballets, including the Egyptian flower ballet. Her last pantomime season in Australia was at Her Majesty's Theatre, Sydney, with The Babes in the Wood, Miss Ada Reeve playing principal boy and Miss Carrie Moore one of the Babes. She arranged the ballet also for the operas and comedies.

Madame Phillipini had a delightful time in the Colonies, and made many friends there. The Australians are warm-hearted people, and she met with much kindness everywhere. Although engaged by Messrs. Williamson and Musgrove for twelve months, she stayed over five years. On her return to England she was engaged by Mr. J. M. Chute for the pantomime of Red Riding Hood, at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. After that she had two seasons at the Opera House, Leicester, being engaged the following season by Mr. John Hart for the Theatre Royal, Bradford. She then went to the Theatre Royal, Manchester, for three seasons, to arrange the ballets in Crusoe's Adventures, Babes in the Wood, and Sinbad. In 1908 she was at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, whither she returned for the present season, being engaged for the sixth year by Mr. John Hart.

After being on the sick list for three weeks, Jimmy Shields resumed business last Monday at the Hippodrome, Stockton.

A party of about a hundred from the Boys' Charity School, Sheffield, were present at the Thursday matinée at Barrasford's Hippodrome last week, on the kindly invitation of the popular manager, Mr. Frank Poole. The boys heartily enjoyed Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk, and on leaving were presented with oranges by Mr. Poole.

Miss Madge Brownie, who won the diamond ring at the Palace Theatre, Bordesley, as the most popular lady in the pantomime, is making rapid headway in the profession. This is the third year she has played principal girl with Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan, and next year she goes to the Princess's, Glasgow, her native city, in the same rôle. She played the title-rôle in Lucky Liza for nearly four years.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

BOB HUTT'S BENEFIT.

It was quite a gala night on Tuesday last at the Britannia Theatre. The occasion was the benefit of the popular Bob Hutt. Hoxtonians showed their appreciation of the beneficiare by turning up in thousands, and packing the huge Britannia Theatre from floor to ceiling. They seemed to have brought into the theatre an atmosphere of friendliness, which was emphasised whenever their favourite appeared on the stage. In his song of invitation, "Let's all go down the Strand," the audience appeared quite willing to join in the excursion, and heartily sang the chorus of that popular song. He extracted much fun from the part of the Alderman Fitzwarren, the father of the pretty Alice. There were interludes during the performance of Mr. Humphrey Brammall's successful pantomime Dick Whittington, one of the most amusing being a burlesque of the Corsican Brothers, played by the entire company, which kept the audience in hearty laughter throughout its performance. Another outstanding feature was the rendering of "Somewhere," by Master Leslie Perks, a lad in his teens. He received abundant and well-deserved applause for his singing of this popular ballad. Miss May Beatty as Dick, the handsome principal boy, continues to charm all hearers by her rendering of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," whilst Alice (Miss Ruby Verdi), in picturesque Alpine costumes, with a chorus sung by mountaineers, also brought down the house. Dick, Mr. Edward Lauri, is a host in himself, and keeps the fun at fever heat. Mr. George Rapley, as the lady hot potato merchant, philosophises in humorous fashion. The crew of the "Saucy Kipper," comprising Mr. Tom Birchmore, Mr. J. Willoughby, the Reed Troupe of pantomimists, and Master Leslie Perks, all worked hard and added to the amusement of the audience. An imposing Emperor of China found an able representative in Mr. Tom Melbourne, and was excellently supported by the Prime Minister, Mr. Percy Stanhope. The mates found able exponents in Mr. Will Harris and Mr. Alec Fraser. The parts of Princess Mi Young Man and the Cook were respectively well played by Miss Millicent Cooper and Miss Eileen Macarthy, and the Fairy Cat by Baby Elvie. No better illustration of puss could be found than Mr. Jack Hurst. Between the acts he prowled about the stage, and eventually mingled with the stalls, who regaled him with buns and chocolates. The veteran Mr. J. M. Jones, the producer of the pantomime, added to his arduous duties as stage-manager a wonderful performance of Shellack, the demon and slave of wealth, coming up through traps like a two-year-old.

During the evening many presentations were made to the principals by Mr. Bob Hutt. The gifts took the form of umbrellas and walking sticks, on each of which was fastened a beautiful bouquet of flowers. In response to demands for a speech, Mr. Hutt stepped forward, and in a few well-chosen sentences thanked the audience for its support and the company for the help given to him to make the benefit night such a great success. At the conclusion of the pantomime the curtain was raised on a side-splitting sketch, entitled

"A WELCOME HOME."

Mother-in-Law ..... Miss Lottie Swinburne
Wife ..... Miss Montague
Servant ..... Miss Ida Hetherington
Decorators ..... Messrs. Keith and Rigby
Husband ..... Mr. Bob Hutt

The scene is Rose Villa, and the wife is telling of the return of her husband. The mother-in-law is very irate, as she intends to have the house turned inside out for the necessary spring cleaning, and resolves to make it so unpleasant that the husband will soon take his departure. The husband returns, and insists on staying and writing letters. Then the fun commences. The poor husband suffers all sorts of indignities, which are heaped upon him as he continues his letter writing. Pots of paint are thrown at him, looking glasses fall upon him, and the finale comes when, in wrestling with the decorators, he falls through a ceiling. The strong-minded mother-in-law is admirably played by Miss Lottie Swinburne, the sympathetic wife by Miss Montague, and Miss Ida Hetherington makes one of the most comical slaveys ever seen. As the decorators Messrs. Keith and Rigby are very funny. Mr. Bob Hutt as the persecuted husband was simply excruciating, and proved himself to be one of our best farcical comedians.

"CHUMS TILL DEATH."

Revised Version of the Sketch adapted from Bartley Campbell's drama My Partner, and Produced at the Euston on Jan. 31.

Joe Saunders ..... Mr. Albert Marsh
Ned Singleton ..... Mr. C. Newton
Josiah Venables ..... Mr. W. Brandon
Billy ..... Mr. Maitland Stapley
Bob ..... Mr. A. Philips
Mary Brandon ..... Miss Grace Mortimer

The unfortunate Bartley Campbell, the American playwright, scored the great success of his chequered career when he produced in the States in 1879 his drama My Partner. It was hailed as the most representative American piece since Joaquin Miller's The Danites, and the critics of the day asserted that it breathed the fresh air of the sierras. It certainly possesses a thoroughly interesting and "human" story, the main points of which have been seized by the writer of Chums till Death, the tabloid version being presented this week at the Euston with conspicuous success by Mr. Albert Marsh and company. The affection of the "chums" Joe Saunders and Ned Singleton bids fair to cease when the latter overhears a conversation between Ned and pretty Mary Brandon, who has been the sunshine of Joe's life. He has told her of his devotion, but Ned has been before him, and from Mary's distress it is evident that an immediate marriage is necessary to save her honour. Ned promises that the knot shall be tied the next time the parson visits the mining camp. "Swear it," shouts Joe Saunders in a voice of thunder, producing at the same time a six-shooter. Ned does so.

As the relations between the chums have become so strained Joe thinks it best to part, and comes to the hut, shared for many years by the two, to say "good-bye," and to share the gold owned by the partnership. Having done so, he sorrowfully says farewell. He will not shake hands, however, until Ned has done the right thing by Mary, who has also excited affection of a kind in the sterile heart of the villain of the piece, Josiah Venables. Venables, in an altercation with Ned, stabs him with the knife of Joe Saunders, and leaves him for dead, taking away also the gold belonging to the dead man. Joe returns to take his partner's hand for the last time, and discovering him motionless, raises an alarm. Joe is, of course, accused of the murder, but the comic man, who has been in hiding, peaches on Venables, who is taken out to be lynched. Ned shows signs of life on the return of Mary, and the curtain falls on his partial recovery.

Mr. Albert Marsh has a breezy, man'y style that enables him to score in the fine and interesting rôle of the great-hearted Joe Saunders; and in distinct contrast to his impersonation is the Ned Singleton—a rather unsympathetic part that is carefully handled by Mr. C. Newton. Mr. W. Brandon is a truculent villain; and Mr. Maitland Stapley's Cockney digger is very amusing. The love and regret of Mary Brandon are sweetly suggested by Miss Grace Mortimer, and Mr. A. Philips is quaint as a curt specimen of the miner.

Mr. George Rosey has written a book, which, it is said, contains some startling material. It will be published at an early date.

"PRIVATE POTTS."

Military Comedy Sketch, in Three Scenes, by Herbert Darnley and Fred Kitchen, Produced at the Holborn Empire on Monday, Jan. 31.

Peter Potts .....MR. FRED KITCHEN
An Indian Princess ....MISS KATHLENE DENNIS
Mrs. Potts .....MISS JENNIE CRAMMOND
The Colonel .....MR. W. WILBEY
The Colonel's Daughter MRS. HERBERT DARNLEY
The Captain .....MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, JUN.
The Bugler .....MR. HARRY LAPPO

The enlistment of Mr. Fred Kitchen under another banner was signalised by success on Monday, when he appeared at the Holborn Empire in a new farcical sketch, produced under the auspices of Mr. Herbert Darnley. In the new production Mr. Kitchen is a military man, and rejoices in the name of Peter Potts, a private in a regiment of Lancers. His adventures are very much of the nature of those of his former assumptions, inasmuch as they keep the audience continuously on the laugh. The regiment is quartered in India, and trouble arises over the complaint of a native prince that a British officer has penetrated his Excellency's harem. It is the son of the Colonel of the regiment who is the culprit, but Private Potts, who was keeping guard for his superior officer, allows himself to be blamed for the occurrence, and has to undergo court-martial. The trial takes place on board ship, and in the result Potts is dismissed the regiment. The vessel, however, is attacked by a foreign man-of-war, and Potts covers himself with glory by picking up a "live" shell and carrying it off under his arm, thus saving the ship. Notwithstanding, the sentence imposed is to be carried out, and Potts takes an affecting, though not unremunerative, farewell of his comrades. Ere long, however, the Captain confesses who it was that committed the deed, and Potts is restored with honours to his former exalted position.

Mr. Fred Kitchen is as inimitable as ever as Potts, and is full of comic resource. He goes far to justify the claim made on the programme that "One touch of Kitchen makes the whole world grin," and certainly he keeps the whole house continuously on the laugh. Potts undergoing court-martial, Potts sitting disconsolate in the barrack yard until he is made the recipient of various donations, and Potts with honours thick upon him is equally diverting, and yells of laughter are the result. Potts has his "stand-by" in a bugler boy, cleverly portrayed by Mr. Harry Lappo, who plays well up to Mr. Kitchen. A name well known to playgoers is found in that of Mr. Arthur Williams, jun., who makes a veritable British officer, delivering his lines with distinction; and the Colonel is the personification of military smartness in the hands of Mr. W. Wilbey. His daughter has a handsome and refined exponent in Mrs. Herbert Darnley, and Potts's designing wife, who aspires to marry the Colonel, is played in fascinating style by Miss Jessie Crammond, while as an Indian Princess Miss Kathlene Dennis is effective. The piece is mounted without regard to expense, the first scene being an elaborate Oriental interior, brilliantly illuminated. The ship is a realistic set, and a brave array is made in the barracks, where a company of Lancers parade in full uniform. Mr. Kitchen received a warm ovation from a closely-packed house, which gave every evidence of delight.

PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

The fortunes of this favourite resort of South Londoners are progressing by leaps and bounds under the able leadership of Mr. Cecil Paget, whose name has so long been associated with the place. One of the merriest turns in the bill is that presented by Zarmo, a little artist full of quaint humour, and who is, moreover, a deft juggler. Zarmo first appears as a bald-headed Scotch Jew, in a kilt blazing with diamonds, and adorned with a nose of abnormal proportions, which he subsequently sets alight. He afterwards excites abundant laughter by a quick change into the costume of a short-skirted dancer. He has also among his properties a comical picture labelled "Mother-in-Law," at which he every now and then hurls various missiles, such as pots and pans, &c. He also balances a trio of dummy babies, who squall as they are thrown into the air. His turn is all executed in dumb show, and his various juggling feats are very neatly managed, exciting continuous applause and laughter.

Miss Annie Dykes is a soprano vocalist with a voice of much sweetness, and her two songs "Land of Hope and Glory" and "Dear Heart" are very well received. Mr. Henry A. Moore, a very clever mimic, is very successful in his imitations of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, and Messrs. Gus Elen, Wilkie Bard, and R. G. Knowles, singing various popular melodies. The well-known comedian Mr. Frank Danby and company appear in a sketch entitled The Morning after Last Night, in which Mr. Danby as the gouty and eccentric middle-aged Lord Exes amusingly lectures his valet and chambermaid, who have resolved to get wed, on the disadvantages of the marriage state. Mr. Danby presents us with an artistic and amusing portrait of the Gay Lord Exes, and Miss Edwardes as the chambermaid and Mr. E. Milroy as the precise valet, Bailey, play their respective rôles with much ability. The sketch is very well received, but a song or dance introduced into the turn would undoubtedly strengthen it. Miss Gertrude Gilbert, a tall and prepossessing young lady, appears in a triple rôle, telling humorous short stories, singing the popular "Yipiadyi-ayiay," and performing excellently upon the violin, earning much well-deserved applause.

A very welcome and interesting dramatic turn is the famous "Betrayal" scene from Hall Caine's Eternal City, in which Mr. Derwent Hall Caine acts with much realism and artistic force as the Labour Leader, David Rossi. Miss Phyllis Relph makes an attractive and emotional Donna Roma, while Mr. Edward Sorley is excellent as the sinister Prime Minister, Baron Bonelli. Mr. Alfred Harding is impressive as the Chief of Police. The turn is an unqualified success.

The Dinaro Brothers, two youngsters of apparently no more than twelve years of age, prove themselves most expert juvenile hand equilibrists, acrobats, and tumblers, obtaining abundant applause. Ray and Calden, as a lady artist and a dude, give us some amusing patter, winding up with a dance, which is very neatly executed. Mr. Bert Woodward appears as a coloured gentleman, and proves himself, to the great satisfaction of the audience, to be an expert trick cyclist. The first-class entertainment concludes with a dramatic series of films on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, entitled And a Little Child Shall Lead Them, which excite much interest. Altogether the two houses a night programme at the Hippodrame is excellent, and the courteous and energetic acting-manager, Mr. H. E. Sawyer, has his work cut out to provide sitting accommodation for his numerous patrons. The very efficient service rendered by the Peckham orchestra under the experienced Mr. Julian Goldsmid is no slight factor in the success of the house.

STERLING AND LOVE (of Musical Breeze fame) introduced their new act, The Masked Musician: or, The Musical Cracksman, at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, and, judging from its reception nightly, it bids fair to even outshine their always successful Musical Breeze.

THOMAS BARRASFORD DEAD.

FAMOUS MUSIC HALL MAGNATE DIES AT BRIGHTON.

With the deepest regret we record the death of Thomas Barrasford, which took place at his residence in Middle-street, Brighton, on Tuesday last, at 4.30 a.m. The funeral takes place to-day (Saturday) at Brighton.

For some time past Mr. Barrasford had been in indifferent health, and the end was more or less expected by his wife and relatives, as he had been suffering from a complication of diseases, including Bright's disease and pleurisy. Although unable to attend at his office since last August, Mr. Barrasford had kept in touch with business until last week.

To the general public Mr. Thomas Barrasford's name is best known in connection with his tenancy of the Lyceum. It was due to his enterprise that the house was turned into a music hall. The programme which he put on was in keeping with the magnificent decoration and proportions of the house, which was almost entirely reconstructed. The chief feature of the first programmes Mr. Barrasford submitted there was excerpts from grand opera, which brought some of the best-known and wealthiest people in town into the stalls. He brought the grand ballet Excelsior to the Lyceum, which served to introduce that inimitable première danseuse Maria Bordin and Signor Vincenti to the London public. The venture, however, did not prove a commercial success, and the fine hall was closed before the end of the second year, after the production of a gorgeous ballet had failed to attract the patronage which was anticipated by Mr. Barrasford. Another feature of its programme was that originally two performances a night were given, the two-house system then being an innovation in the West End.

Among the chief attractions of the opening bill at the Lyceum under Mr. Barrasford's management was the Lyceum operatic company, including the following artists of high reputation:—M. Ansaldi, tenor, from the Grand Opera, Paris; M.

THE LATE MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD.

Rey, baritone, from the Grand Opera, Nice; Mlle. Van Parys, soprano, from the Grand Opera, Paris; and Mlle. Dasty, contralto, from the Théâtre la Monnaie, Brussels. Selections from Rigoletto, which included the famous dramatic quatuor, "Un di ci ben," one of the finest pieces of concerted music ever written by Verdi, were given.

Another great attraction of the opening performance was Mr. J. P. Harrington's musical sketch dealing with the pathetic story of "Enoch Arden." The title-rôle was played by Mr. George Leyton, the well-known actor-vocalist. The production was in three scenes—the first a seascape, with Arden's cottage in the foreground.

Mr. Louis de Reeder had an orchestra of forty under his bâton, and high-class musical selections were a feature of the programmes. The manager of the Lyceum was Mr. Alfred Selwyn, from the Hippodrome, Glasgow, and the stage director Mr. H. Crocker, from the Hippodrome, Liverpool.

To the profession Mr. Barrasford was known as the managing-director of a chain of halls that could give the artist as many as twenty-one weeks' work every year, and there was keen competition to get on his tour, for it meant a comfortable time, and the money was good. At one period of his career Mr. Barrasford seemed not unlikely to become the most powerful variety manager in Great Britain, for having started in a small way with one theatre at Jarrow, he extended his business until he had variety theatres all over the North of England. The entertainment he provided, at Leeds for instance, was of a higher class than that prevailing at the time, and soon he found that he was creating a new music-hall public and attracting those who never previously sought their amusement in vaudeville. This induced him to extend his enterprise to other towns. Year by year his business grew, until the places in which he possessed music halls included London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Nottingham, Salford, Brighton, Manchester, St. Helens, Leeds, Bristol, and Hull.

In 1904 Mr. Barrasford was one of the leading music-hall magnates, and it was owing to the failure of the Lyceum that he had to take second place to the Moss-Stoll combine, the headquarters of which were in that year established in London. Mr. Barrasford was the first to popularise the "two-shows-per-night" system, though it was really started some thirty-five years ago at Chatham, where it was found that the soldiers could best attend a variety concert between seven and nine p.m. (when they were due back in barracks), and the civilians after that hour, when most of their shops and businesses were closed. Mr. Barrasford first tried the novel idea at Leeds, where it proved so successful that he adopted it throughout his then already extensive vaudeville circuit. Cheaper prices were introduced at the same time, becoming 2d. for the gallery, 4d. for the pit, 6d. for the dress circle, and 1s. for the stalls. He was the first to give a cinematograph display in the country. In no respect has public taste so much altered as in entertainment, and without a doubt this was largely due to Mr. Barrasford. He helped to replace the old, obscure music hall, with its ill-lit interior, jumbled accommodation, and inferior programme, by the present theatre of varieties, which is characterised by attractive architecture, handsome auditorium, and bright, clean, and versatile amusement. Throughout England, and latterly on the Continent, he provided many new lamps for old—new lamps of vastly pleasanter potentiality in securing proficient artists, unique effects, and wholesome laughter on the variety stage. With this object he travelled extensively in search of farceurs, acrobats, singers, and dancers, and introduced many Continental performers to English audiences and English entertainers to foreign vaudeville patrons. His Continental interests at one time included the Alhambra, Paris, the Teatro de Nevedados in Barcelona, the Marseilles Casino, and the Alhambra at Brussels. The only London hall now in the Barrasford circuit is the Britannia, Hoxton. The Hippodrome at Brighton is probably one of the most successful halls in the whole of England.

Last year Mr. Barrasford, who was managing-director of Barrasford, Ltd., formed an alliance with Mr. Walter Gibbons, managing-director of the London Theatre of Varieties, and shared the head offices at Randvoll House, Charing Cross-road.

"I try to leave out the ordinary music-hall features," Mr. Barrasford once said in explaining the methods by which he built up his great business. "I do not allow comedians to banter the conductor or any one in the audience. In all my houses I cater for the family. I must have a large hall, a large orchestra, and good music. With these catering for the public is not a speculation, but a certainty."

Mr. Barrasford was twice married, and leaves a widow and five children. He acknowledged that much of his success was due to the talent of his wife, who was formerly known on the music hall stage as Maud d'Almaine. Mrs. Barrasford made her appearance on the stage when she was eight, and at the age of seventeen took leading parts in Faust, Maritana, and The Bohemian Girl. Mr. Barrasford's eldest son is the proprietor of a music hall at Keighley, and Mrs. Barrasford is the owner of the famous Devil's Dyke Pleasure Grounds at Brighton.

Mr. Barrasford was almost as well known in racing as in theatrical circles. He owned a number of racehorses, and among those which won races for him were Fancy Man, Little Grafton, Mountain Chief, Quick Change, Her Ring, Peopleton, and Helium. "Little Grafton," he once remarked, "I purchased for a song," and this horse won him a number of races in the North some years ago.

It is not too much to say that artists preferred to take engagements from him in preference to Continental managers, for some of the Parisian music hall managers seem to be more concerned with procuring "concessions" in regard to the sale of the programmes, the advertisements on the curtains and elsewhere, and the bars of the establishments to entertaining the audience. "But," said Mr. Barrasford to an Era representative at the time he opened the Alhambra, Paris, "it is very difficult to make a profit in France as a music hall proprietor on account of the heavy fees one has to pay to the local officials. All our bills are printed in Leeds, and I have duty to pay on them in France. Each bill has to be sent to the Town Hall and stamped. Then 10 per cent. on the gross receipts has to be paid to the authorities for the supposed benefit of the local poor. We have also to pay excessively for the guards, soldiers, and police sent each night to the theatre. Curiously enough, the firemen, soldiers, and police are changed every night, and if a panic did occur they would be absolutely in the way, for the simple reason that they would not know the run of the theatre."

Mr. Barrasford was president of the Music Hall Home, and did everything in his power to help this charity. In every one of his halls he had collecting boxes placed, and on two occasions, when damages were awarded to him in actions at law, he arranged for the amounts to be paid to the Fund.

Last year Mr. Barrasford celebrated his fiftieth birthday at his Brighton home. The note of sympathy in the congratulations from hundreds of members of the profession were particularly manifest on account of the trying illness that kept him a prisoner in "the Queen of English holiday resorts."

Though an unwilling patient in his doctor's hands, Mr. Barrasford managed to keep in touch with his important responsibilities during the entire time of his long illness. Indeed, the telephone by his bedside constituted the chief distraction of a period of enforced prostration unspeakably galling to a man of his active temperament and formerly strenuous habits.

As a well-known comedian once said, "Tom Barrasford's a man in a thousand. Would there were a few more like him!" The variety world is the poorer by his exit, and his genial figure will be sadly missed.

LOSS OF "PROPS."

An action was heard before his Honour Judge Parry, at the Manchester County Court on Thursday, the 27th ult., which was brought by the Two Erolls against the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Co., claiming the sum of ten guineas for negligence and wrongful conversion.

Mr. Frank Rowland, instructed by Messrs. Amery-Parkes, Macklin, and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs, and stated that they were engaged for the week (Nov. 7) in a "leaping and comedy turn at the Grand Theatre, Nelson, Lancs. They were, however, unable to work the week in consequence of the theatre being closed, and accordingly three articles—a basket, a skip, and a spring-board—were deposited at the left-luggage office at Nelson Station for the week. The artists were engaged for the following week at Eccles.

On going to Nelson Station to take up their properties only two of the three articles deposited could be found; the basket which contained the principal articles for the turn was missing, and was subsequently traced to Euston Station. This was returned on Nov. 16, but too late for the plaintiffs to appear at the Eccles Theatre, in consequence of which they lost their salary which they would otherwise have earned.

For the defence it was first submitted that there was no case to answer, but the Judge decided there was, and it was then explained that the basket in question was accidentally forwarded to London together with the properties of a professional skater. It was admitted that it had been taken out of the left-luggage office by a porter who thought it had been put there by an hotel porter, and that he did not receive any ticket for it.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said that the contract was not to give up luggage without a ticket, and this the defendants had clearly broken. The plaintiffs had suffered damage and had had an unpleasant experience, and directed that there must be judgment for the plaintiffs for the amount claimed, with costs.

"UNCLE JACK," the editor of the Bristol Times and Mirror Children's Corner, wishes us to thank, in our columns, the artists appearing at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, and at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, for their extreme generosity in presenting dolls in costume for sale on behalf of the poor children of Bristol.

AN exhibition of all the dolls sent in was held at the Colston Hall, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and it was densely crowded. Her Grace the Duchess of Beaufort declared the exhibition open, and the crush was so great that the hall was full and a thousand people were unable to gain admission for some time. There were over 4,000 dolls on view, besides heaps of other attractions. The theatre dolls were greatly admired.

IN addition to dolls from the artists, Mr. G. H. Elliott gave 5,000 packets of Fry's chocolates for the poor nippers so well looked after by Uncle Jack and the members of the Children's Corner. During the exhibition all the artists visited the hall, and were delighted. A little later on the Prince's Theatre and the Theatre Royal dolls will be sold by auction in order to endow a cot at Weston-super-Mare. Mention should also be made of Mr. Edwin Garth, who is selling autographed post-cards and doing quite a big trade on behalf of the poor kiddies.

A £250,000 VARIETY THEATRE.

MR. WALTER GIBBONS' LATEST AND GREATEST VENTURE.

It is all broken bricks and dust just now, but in September next the beauty and wealth of London will be meeting there—the Palladium, London.

We all knew Hengler's Circus with, first of all, memory recalls, its wonderful spectacles and clowns, then its real ice skating rink, then Volpi's animal circus, and lastly, that magnificent attempt under the Beketow management, to revive the glories of the bareback rider and the trained animal. To-day there is a yawning gap of 3,000 square yards or so, a huge derrick, a thousand unromantic labourers, carting out the bricks and the mortar that went to make up the old house, the blue sky (the weather clerk kindly permitting) above, Mr. Walter Gibbons and Frank Matcham surveying the progress of demolition—and that is all.

In that great gap will rise the Palladium of to-morrow—London's latest and greatest playhouse. Leslie Conroy, the present broad-shouldered and beaming manager of the Holborn Empire, is to be in charge, and, in these days of keen competition, his personality will assuredly serve the great house in good stead. Together with The Era representative Mr. Conroy stood upon a plank at the east side of the chasm and gazed westward upon a million displaced and distorted bricks, which formerly represented the support of the old building. By September, according to contract, that plank will have given place to a 100ft. by 50ft. stage, and those who stand upon it will gaze westward upon 5,000 faces, representing the audience.

"I come down every day," said Mr. Conroy, "to watch the old building disappear and the biggest variety theatre in the world arise."

Most people in the profession know of Mr. Conroy's yeoman service with Mr. Richard Thornton at the Empire, Newcastle, and his six years' magnificent work there. That Mr. Walter Gibbons was well aware of his sterling value is evident from the fact that he enticed him to take the reins at his premier theatre in Holborn, and that after two years' service Mr. Conroy gets the reward that only knowledge of the business and untiring devotion to duty brings.

Mr. Walter Gibbons is the youngest of the great music-hall magnates of the present time. But if he is youthful he has romped past some of the older hands at the game, for to-day he has the greatest London circuit of halls owned by any one individual or combination. In the current calls there are no fewer than eighteen theatres in the Metropolitan area to his credit, and we are threatened with more.

The Palladium is to be erected on an area which in the "good old days" was a labyrinth of wine vaults, and the Waring White Company, the contractors, are now engaged in clearing these out. Where the vaults stood there will be the stage cellar and the stalls. It will be a two-tier house, for Mr. Walter Gibbons believes that the audience gets a better view of the stage, and is better pleased with itself and with the program as a consequence of this arrangement.

The auditorium will be 100ft. wide. The grand circle will be on the street level, with one floor above, and the stalls below it. The classic frontage in Argyle-street, which is believed to be the work of Sir John Soane, will remain, but the rest of the old Circus has been torn right out to make way for a palace of steel and concrete.

Mr. Conroy says that the Palladium is Mr. Walter Gibbons' pet scheme. "To show that this is so I will mention just a few of the bookings for the opening weeks. The captures include more than a score of the big "stars." Harry Lauder is among them, Clark and Hamilton, Joe Elvin, Will Evans, Fred Kitchen, George Robey, T. E. Dunville, George Mozart, the Poluskis, Sam Mayo, Phil Ray, Billy Williams, Gertie Gitana, Maud Duprez, G. H. Elliott, Harry Tate, Whit Cunliffe, J. W. Rickaby, and Maudie Scott. In addition to this array of stars, the Continent is being ransacked for specialities, including big spectacles, and troupes of dancers and great ballets."

Years ago we learnt that "all roads lead to Earl's Court." The same might be said of Oxford Circus, where the Palladium is situated. It is absolutely in the heart of the West End, and will undoubtedly attract many pleasure seekers coming "into town" from both the West and the North, not to mention the East and the South. There are two tube stations at its front doors, and its motto might well be: "Why go further?" The only puzzle to us is that no provision for the great and growing public of the artistic variety hall has hitherto been attempted in a centre of the metropolis to which converge tubes, motor omnibus lines, and streams of street traffic from every point of the compass. But Mr. Gibbons is going to supply that want, or we are greatly mistaken. Some idea may be gained of the proportions and promise of the Palladium from the fact that the auditorium will exceed 100ft. in width, and will accommodate about 5,000 persons; that the stage will extend to 100ft. by 50, that the proscenium opening alone will be 50ft., that one of the various refreshment saloons will be 60ft. by 40ft., and that the abundant exits have been so designed as to render it possible to empty the house in a couple of minutes. These are in Argyle-place, Marlborough-street, and Hill's-place, leading directly into Oxford-street.

Mr. Conroy tells us that fifty performers will be in the band. The scheme of decoration is to be white, gold, and rose-pink, and each performance will be one of four hours' duration.

The architect, Mr. Frank Matcham, has given very special attention to the design of the two cantilever tiers, which will be the largest in any theatre in the world. Mr. Matcham has also provided in his plans a large amount of space for dining- and tea-rooms. Architecturally the structure will be in the classic style. On the two lower floors will be disposed eight boxes.

Whether any limit can be assigned to the enterprise of Mr. Walter Gibbons at the Palladium remains to be seen. He provides luncheon, dinner, and tea-rooms, with accommodation for 1,000 persons. There will be a reading-room, a free library, with tape machines for latest news, and a hairdresser's establishment for either sex. Prices of admission will range from 6d. upwards. One great idea of the place is that ladies shopping in Oxford-street will make the Palladium a rendezvous, a sort of social club, while awaiting the evening's performance.

People will never yawn, we are assured, at the new Palladium. Nothing gruesome, or savouring of it, will be booked. The keynote is merriment and brightness. Scenic grandeur, life, lightness, gaiety, and movement are to be the features of the entertainments to be given every afternoon and evening. Although a constant change of programme is to be the settled policy, a little army of auxiliaries—pretty girls who can sing and dance—will be employed.

One of the happiest features of the building of the new Palladium is that it will employ about 600 workmen nearly every day from next week to within a day or two of the opening.

With two tubes next door, with all the big traffic of Oxford-street and Regent-street rolling by its doors, the Palladium looks like doing big business next winter.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Mr. Pierre Cohen has certainly no reason to be dissatisfied with the amount of patronage that has been bestowed upon this popular place of amusement since he took up the reins of management, and the public has still less cause to complain of either the quality or the quantity of the good things weekly placed before them. Business has steadily increased during these few months, and houses good at all times, and often crowded to the doors, have come to be regarded as the normal state of affairs. The Palace "taps" an extensive and densely-populated area, and the people are fully alive to the fact that with such a good thing in their midst there is no need for going further afield in their search for wholesome amusement.

The substantial item of this week's programme is The Drums of Oude, a dramatic episode of the Indian Mutiny, written by Austin Strong, and presented by Mr. A. L. Levering, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman. With an interesting story, cleverly evolved, told in language pointed and forcible, The Drums of Oude deals with the danger threatening one of the British outposts from the sepoys in the early days of the Mutiny, and gives a vivid picture of the troubles surrounding our soldiers at that critical time. The piece is capitally acted. Mr. Cecil A. Collins, as Captain Hector Macgregor, plays with repressed force, and is convincing and artistic. His declamation is singularly clear and incisive, and every syllable he utters has its due weight and proportion. Mr. Harry Gerrick is delightfully boyish and impulsive as the young Lieut. Alan Hartley, who proves himself full of British pluck when put to the test. Mr. Lawrence Kitchener is alert and soldierly as Sergeant MacDougal, and Miss Beatrice Whitney is graceful and touching as Mrs. Jack Clayton. Smaller parts are well played by Mr. P. McLean as Private Stewart, and Messrs. Alec Weatherley and Frank Francis as two subtle native servants. The little piece is handsomely staged, and the Highland uniforms are quite "correct." Among the variety turns of the programme, George Formby, the Lancashire comedian, comes in an easy winner, his songs, "John Willie, come on!" and "My night out," provoking roars of laughter. The Rhoderick Duo are a couple of Scottish lassies, whose singing is much appreciated. Charles Banks indulges in some clever patter, and is admirably supported by a well-trained and highly intelligent little dog. A comedian with a peculiarly quaint style is Harry Herbert, whose rendering of "Yes, yes; oh, yes!" is very funny, and his "I've got the best of it, so I don't care," is loudly applauded. Miss Phœbe Mercer and company appear in an original comedy sketch, The Interviewer, brightly written by Harry Grattan. Miss Mercer appears as a lady journalist desiring to interview a bashful doctor, which she finally succeeds in accomplishing, in his bath. The little piece is full of fun. Les Paulastos give a sensational comedy act, in which, attired as waiters, they perform a series of the most amazing acrobatic feats; Miss Florence Yayman, "the coon caricaturist," is full of boundless energy, both in singing and dancing; King and Benson appear in a comedy duo, "Around the Town," in which they sing a medley of well-known songs. The gentleman has a delightfully-toned tenor voice, which he uses with great effect, while the lady recites, rather than sings, a piece about "How to be popular girls," with great effect. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures are as good as ever. The orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. H. Petersen, gives an artistic account of the overture to The Girls of Gottenberg. The stage-management is carefully and smartly attended to by Mr. Joseph Grant.

THE concert programme presented to the members of the Birmingham Jewish Working Men's Club on a recent Sunday evening had been arranged by Mr. George Robey, the popular comedian, and it proved thoroughly enjoyable. Mr. Lester Collingwood occupied the chair, and he was supported by Mr. Harry Isaacs, Mr. Moss Harris, Mr. F. M. Callisher, and Mr. Ben Peters. Mr. Robey was the "star" of the evening, and his humorous songs created roars of laughter.

MISS ETHEL HAYDON (Mrs. Robey) rendered pleasing songs, and Mr. Austin Rudd proved a popular entertainer; Mr. Tom Shale's songs were greatly appreciated; Miss Gratz, a charming young lady, showed that she is an accomplished vocalist; John B. Woods was warmly applauded for pleasing coon songs; and others who contributed to the programme were Mr. Deutch, 'cellist; Mark Daly, a promising Scotch comedian; Mr. Storey-Gofton, elocutionist; Mr. H. Ford, and Mr. Braime. A "scratch" quartette from the Royal sang splendidly. The usual votes of thanks were accorded, and there was loud cheering when Mr. Robey promised to give a second concert later in the season.

MISS PHYLLIS BEDELLS, by permission of the management of the Empire Theatre, London, gave a flying matinée at the Victoria Rooms, Bristol, on Saturday last. Miss Bedells' programme included a "Skipping Dance" (arranged by Mr. Fred Farren), "Eccentric Dance" (the shoeblack), "Danse Russe," "Flag Dance" (arranged by Mons. Alexander Genée), and "La Danse des Apaches," supported by Mr. Fred Biven

ALL these dances were rendered with charming expressiveness and in most artistic style, and as a final encore Miss Bedells presented a very difficult and attractive ballet dance. All Miss Bedells' efforts were most enthusiastically appreciated by a large audience. Mr. H. Harvey Pinches, Mus.B., Oxon., accompanied at the piano. She was presented with several bouquets, &c. Miss Nell Carter (from the Garrick Theatre, London) very ably recited "Lasca," by Mr. Frank Desprez, and, with Mr. Charles Thomas, amused with a duologue, "The Impertinence of the Creature." Mr. Charles Thomas and others appeared successfully in a costume scena, Fra Giacome. The vocalists were Miss Constance Perrin and Mr. Sydney A. Barnett; and solo pianoforte, Miss Eileen Valentine, L.R.A.M. The business arrangements were under the personal direction of Mr. Ernest Crichton, of Clifton.

VARIETY ARTISTS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund was held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Thursday last.

There was a very meagre attendance, at no time during the meeting more than fourteen members being present. This was to be regretted the more from the fact that the committee had such excellent results of the past year's working to show. The Benevolent Fund has maintained the success of the previous year and is in a good financial position. The total receipts are about £200 less than in 1908, partly owing to no Christmas appeal being issued, and to smaller amounts being received from the M.H.A.R.A. dinner and from the V.A.F. Against the latter, however, must be put the £140 received as part share of the Coliseum matinée, while the extra 1s. on the M.H.A.R.A. membership cards brought in £342 17s., and the sports £77 14s. 10d. The balance carried over for the present year's working is £740. The committee hope to raise enough funds this year to continue to expend £20 in charity weekly. The Fund has either given away or lent to artists in distress the large sum of £2,011 5s. 9d., and during the past twelve months no fewer than 2,470 separate payments for relief were made. The weekly pension list now amounts to over £12. The expenses of administration are only about 15 per cent. In future, loans will only be granted in exceptional circumstances and in smaller sums. The committee is justly aggrieved by the failure of many who have been helped by loans to recognise their obligation to repay when in regular work again. Of the £300 odd granted by loan the first year less than £50 was paid back. Last year over £250 was lent and only a little over £80 was returned. Altogether £445 18s. 5d. remains unpaid, and the committee intend to use legal means to enforce repayment.

Mr. Fred Herbert, in opening, the meeting, said he regretted to see such a small attendance. It showed the amount of apathy in the profession where their own interests were concerned. Events since the last general meeting had gone along in a very satisfactory manner. He was sure that members would thank Mr. Stoll for his very generous action in connection with the Coliseum matinée. It was equivalent to Mr. Stoll giving them £100 out of his own pocket. Mr. Stoll has promised a matinée at Manchester and Liverpool on behalf of the V.A.B.F. Whatever money was derived from these matinées, their very best thanks were due to Mr. Stoll for his kindness. He only hoped it would bring other proprietors into line. Whilst he thanked everyone who had given money, he thought there were more of their own members who might give a regular small annual contribution. There were many old "pro's" who were worthy of their support, and there were many among the applicants who were not. Many cases were refused. He instanced one very impudent application, and wished he could name this and also other individuals. There were a goodly number of old pensioners on the Fund. He asked them not to encourage stage-door cadging. It was hard to turn people away who came with a tale of destitution. In nine cases out of ten these people had themselves to blame for their misfortunes, or they had played the Fund up to such an extent that no more money could be granted them. People who cadged at the stage-door were, in the main, unknown to the committee. The money given in this way was invariably wasted in drink. If they felt disposed to give away a couple of shillings in charity, the money should be sent to the V.A.B.F., and those charitably disposed should take on themselves the responsibility of recommending the applicant. Mr. T. C. Callaghan was their "relieving officer," and he went about his business in an astute way, and he had saved the Fund many a pound that might otherwise have gone to undesirable persons, and the best thanks of the members should be given to Mr. Callaghan for his untiring efforts. He thanked the committee for the way they worked and their courtesy to him as their chairman. He thought they had every reason to be proud of their year's work.

Mr. Herbert then called upon Mr. Douglas Stuart to read the annual report and balance-sheet.

SECOND ANNUAL REPORT.

Mr. Douglas Stuart said:—The Executive Committee, in presenting this the second annual report, is pleased to be able to state to friends and subscribers that the Benevolent Fund has maintained the success of the previous year, and, as will be seen from the accompanying statement of receipts and payments, is in a healthy financial position.

The committee desires to briefly draw attention to certain items in the statement that are worthy of more than passing notice. The total receipts of the year are, it will be noticed, about £200 less than in 1908, but that is accounted for partly by the fact that no Christmas appeal was issued. It brought in £131 the year before, and the amount received at the last M.H.A.R.A. dinner was less than previously, and, again, the amount obtained from the Variety Artists' Federation is £103 less, but against that must be put the £140 received as part share of the Coliseum matinée. The profit on the dinner was only £2 9s. 2d., as against £26 1s. 11d. On the other hand, the extra shilling on the membership cards of the M.H.A.R.A. brought in the splendid sum of £342 17s., and the net profits on the sports realised £77 14s. 10d.

Turning to the other side, while less money has been granted in loans, a larger amount has been given away in weekly sums, and more has had to be expended on funerals of artists who have died during the year. The expenses of administration have been rigidly kept down to the lowest possible amount, and, as last year, the total amount expended in salaries, printing, postage, and sundries does not come to more than 15 per cent.: in other words, it costs 3s. to give away 20s., an amount that will favourably compare with any similar society in the world.

The amount of balance carried over for the present year's working is £740, but the reason why this amount has been held in hand is because the committee of the M.H.A.R.A. has decided to hold the 1910 dinner jointly in aid of the newly-founded Music Hall Benevolent Institution, and therefore the Benevolent Fund will not receive the entire amount of donations from this source. But with the £350 estimated to be again received from the M.H.A.R.A. cards of membership, the profits on the sports, the half profits of the two matinées (one at Liverpool and one at Manchester) as promised by Mr. Oswald Stoll, a handsome donation of £25 received from Mr. W. H. Broadhead in January, and sundry other donations and collections, the committee hopes to receive, with the continued generosity of the profession, enough funds through the year to continue to expend the same amount in charity weekly—over £20—that has been given during the past two years.

It is interesting to note that during the period of its existence the Benevolent Fund has either given away in grants or loaned to artists in distress the large sum of £2,011 5s. 9d., and that during the past twelve months no fewer than 2,470 separate payments for relief were made.

The weekly pension list has been increased, and now reaches over £12 a week, and the committee, from past experience, feels confident that the greatest good in the way of helping the poor and starving is effected in this way in preference to the loaning of large sums.

Mention of loans leads up to this important question. The committee, after two years' careful experience of the subject, is convinced that it is useless to continue grants of loans on the same scale as in the past, on account of the large number of artists who borrow promising most faithfully to pay when they are in work, and who then forget all about it, and when reminded make excuses or are indignant at being asked to repay. In proof of this are the figures:—The sum granted in loans the first year was £314 9s. 2d., and the amount returned was only £49 15s. 8d. This year £264 6s. 6d. was loaned, and only £83 1s. 7d. returned, which leaves the large sum of £445 18s. 5d. still unpaid. Of course the committee has not the slightest wish to press those artists who are not in a position to pay through having no work, but it does intend to use every possible legal means to enforce repayment of the amounts by those who are constantly in work and who pay up their other debts and disregard their obligations to the Benevolent Fund. The committee also intend to grant loans in the future in lesser amounts and only in exceptional circumstances.

Leaving this unpleasant question of ingratitude, the committee would express its deepest and sincerest thanks to a number of generous charitable friends who during the year have worked so energetically, so enthusiastically in the good cause.

To George H. Chirgwin, the president for the year, sufficient thanks cannot be given for his noble efforts to make his year of office a record one. When the amount received at the dinner was not so gratifying as was expected, owing to so many artists not being present, he sent out, at no little trouble and expense, personal letters to his many friends in the profession and thereby gathered in nearly £150. With his own Benevolent box he has asked and has received all sorts of money, from gold down to farthings, and by the sale of his autographs and permissions to be "mimicked" he has collected considerable amounts. On behalf of every friend of the Fund the committee sincerely thank him. Another splendid worker, who, in spite of his own special institution, has by no means forgotten the Benevolent Fund, is generous Joe—Elvin is his other name—and his grand donation of fifty guineas at the dinner showed how much he is with the Fund, and his frequent attendance at the committee meetings is another sign.

The committee desires also to thank the V.A.F. for £100, received through the 2½ per cent. on benefits and matinées, also for its kindly negotiation which obtained the donation of £25 from Mr. Broadhead. By an arrangement come to between the Federation and Mr. Oswald Stoll, the latter promised, in settlement of the matinée trouble, to consent to three benefit performances at his halls—one in London, one at Liverpool, and one at Manchester. The first of these took place in December at the Coliseum, and resulted in a profit of £281, half of which sum was granted to the Music Hall Benevolent Institution and the other half to the Benevolent Fund. On this occasion Mr. Stoll came forward and, in a most generous manner, granted not only the use of the theatre free, but also the company engaged, orchestra, lighting, staff, and every expense—a gift that may be estimated at £100. The committee feels, indeed, specially grateful to the music hall magnate for his kindness and courtesy.

The annual athletic sports were held at the end of August, and the entire arrangements were placed in the hands of Mr. Albert Le Fre, who with his committee worked very arduously, and his labours were crowned with success, as is proved by the fact that the net profit resulted in over £77.

The only other item of special interest during the year was the inauguration of a little festival—a Christmas dinner to the old pensioners of the Benevolent Fund. This took place at the Dover Castle Hotel on Dec. 28, when Mr. Fred Herbert presided, supported by Mr. Elvin, Mr. Coborn, and others, and when nearly forty old music hall stars of a past generation were entertained to dinner and a concert, and spent, as they all agreed, a most happy time. It is hoped to make this an annual function.

THE FUND'S GOOD WORK.

The committee desires again to let the subscribers know in what different ways their money is disposed of to the benefit and aid of those poor brother and sister artists on whom Dame Fortune has placed her heavy hand, and who have no other resource except this charity or the workhouse.

Through the delegate of the committee, Mr. Fred Herbert, several letters have been obtained from the Hospital Saturday Fund for hospitals and convalescent homes, and those artists in need of the best medical aid or nursing care have obtained what they most required, and have recovered health and strength. Two very popular artists of the eighties are at this present time receiving the benefit of homes on the South Coast, and, it is hoped, will return at the end of their sojourn there greatly benefited by their change of air. Then the Fund often pays the railway fares to enable artists to fulfil their engagements after a long enforced spell of idleness. Fancy the prospect of work to go to, with the blessed salary on the Saturday, and no means of getting to that work! That's when the Fund steps in and helps. Then rent, with the stern, unbending landlord, or the kindly landlady as poor as themselves; the one will not and the other cannot wait. The artist, sometimes with a new-born baby, must pay or go. Where can the money be got from; everything possible, even the winter overcoat, has been pawned? The Fund steps in and pays the rent! A star lady artist, the talk of London not so many years ago, is now eking out a living by making blouses for a sweater. She cannot even pay the hire of the all-necessary sewing machine. The Fund steps in and pays the hire until the machine becomes her own property. In the earliest days of the V.A.B.F. it assisted a certain lady artist for some time, ultimately paying the railway fare, a heavy one, to her friends, who afterwards had to send her to an asylum. Happily, she is now well again, and wrote the other day to congratulate the Fund on the success of the Coliseum matinée. The Fund is contributing £1 a week to the Music Hall Home towards the maintenance of four inmates whom the committee recommended for admission. Unhappily, seven deaths of music hall artists, destitute and without means, have occurred during the year. They would have had to be buried by the parish—an awful thing this, when it is known how they are interred—unless the Fund had stepped in and seen to a decent, respectable funeral. No fewer than from forty to forty-five artists, aged or infirm, receive weekly from the Fund a small grant.

The committee is glad to be able to report that no applicant has ever applied for assistance who is or has been a bonâ-fide, legitimate music hall artist and been refused help in some form; the only cases the committee could not consider were those who had been—to use a colloquialism—"five minutes in the business," or those who had had relief again and again, and still wanted more, and who when in work never repaid anything they owed the Fund. Every case is also strictly investigated, either by Mr. T. C. Callaghan, the officially appointed investigator in London—in whom the committee has the greatest faith, and who no doubt has been instrumental in saving much money for the Fund which might have been given to unworthy persons had it not been for the pains taken by him in investigating—or by one of the committee, unless the artist is well and favourably known to the committee, who sit each Wednesday to adjudicate and administer relief.

The past year has seen the birth of a new charitable variety fund, founded by Mr. Joe Elvin, and called the Music Hall Benevolent Institution, which has been started to obtain sufficient money to erect a home for music-hall artists. The Benevolent Fund committee is working hand in hand with this sister society, for it is of opinion that when this Institution is built it will be a blessing for the poor, poverty-stricken "pro," and instead of granting the few shillings a week they can be maintained at a trifling more expense in comfort and happiness.

THE AMALGAMATION SCHEME.

One other important subject has been seriously considered during the past year, and that was Mr. Joe Elvin's grand scheme for the amalgamation of all the existing music hall charities under one control. Negotiations were opened with the Music Hall Home and Music Hall Ladies' Guild by the committees of the Fund and Institution, but they much regret to state that they have been inoperative, and it would appear that, for the time being, things will have to go on as before.

The committee desires to thank all the honorary officers of the Fund for their generous assistance: Mr. Harry Blake, who, as the treasurer, has proved himself the right man in the right place by his careful attention to all the duties appertaining to that position; Mr. Fred Herbert, the chairman, who has taken the greatest interest in the Fund, when in London by attending all meetings, and in the provinces by investigation of cases; Dr. H. M. Walker, of Camberwell-road, who has been most kind in attending various cases free of any remuneration and Messrs. Tom McKay and F. Slingsby, of Liverpool and Manchester, who have undertaken the investigation of local applications.

The committee desires once again to place on record the good work done by the secretary of the Fund, Mr. Douglas Stuart, who in spite of his other duties has performed all that was required of him with discretion, tact, and ability.

The committee implored the profession in the annual report last year not to relieve those "cadgers" who cry for a shilling at stage doors. Many artists have complied with this request, but some still continue the bad practice. Artists should send such people to the Fund—the large majority of them are undeserving, or else have received large sums from the Society and know they cannot get more.

As it has been decided, for various reasons, to issue no special appeal for funds this year, the committee would here and now ask those who have shown their interest in its welfare to come forward and give of their goods what they can afford, "not grudgingly nor of necessity," but with a good heart, ever remembering that in this life of change and uncertainty the most prosperous may by illness or adversity be forced one day to ask for charity from their comrades in their own profession, and if they have done their share to support the Fund they will then be able to come without shame for that aid and assistance they are certain to receive. The committee would specially plead with much earnestness for annual subscriptions. If artists cannot afford ten guineas a year, surely they can give one guinea or half a guinea. This is not much to donate in twelve months to help their own poor and starving, and if the Fund were certain of 250 annual subscribers at a guinea each, it would mean a weekly £5 5s., which would be of the greatest assistance towards maintaining the pensioners' list. Who will come forward and start and ask their professional friends to follow suit? Oh, for a magic wand to touch the hearts of one and all, and persuade them to continue the good work so nobly started, so magnificently continued up to now. The cases that come weekly before the committee are heartrending. No one except those who regularly attend can believe or realise the acute distress there is to relieve, while the gratitude of those who are helped is more than an ample reward for any trouble expended.

Other professions support their own poor, and the variety world must do the same. Let not the disgrace fall on performers of appealing for outside help when many earn large salaries and can well afford to contribute liberally to support the forgotten favourites of the past, who have nothing to live on but the memories of the days of their popularity—meagre sustenance surely.

In conclusion, the committee thanks all supporters of the Fund, thanks them in its own name and in the name of the distressed, the aged, the out-of work artists, for their generosity, and pleads with them to help them carry on with renewed enthusiasm the greatest work that is given to man to undertake—the sacred cause of charity.

By order of the committee,
C. Douglas Stuart,
Secretary.

Harry Blake, Hon. Treasurer.
W. H. McCarthy, Accountant.
C. Douglas Stuart, Secretary.

We have compared the above statement of receipts and payments with the books and vouchers relating to the Fund, and certify same to be correct. With reference to the dinner account there has been produced to us a certificate as to the receipts and payments given by Messrs. C. C. Bartram and T. C. Callaghan (the honorary auditors appointed by the M.H.A.R.A. committee). With regard to the sports account we have seen a minute of the committee agreeing the figure. As to the Coliseum matinée a statement for submission to the committee, audited by Mr. Harry Blake, the honorary treasurer of the Benevolent Fund, has been produced to us.

Jackson, Pixley, Browning, Hurry & Co.,
Chartered Accountants, Auditors.
58, Coleman-street, E.C.
Feb. 1, 1910.

Mrs. Geo. H. Smythson, vice-president of the Ladies' Guild, in moving the adoption of the report, said she and the members of the Ladies' Guild were there to take a lesson from the way the V.A.B.F. was worked.

Miss Melinda May seconded the adoption of the report.

Mr. Fred Herbert invited questions concerning the report. They had nothing to conceal or hide, and they courted the fullest publicity.

Mr. W. H. Atlas asked why the sports account amounted to only £77 14s. 10d.

The Secretary explained that the sum really received amounted to nearly £100, and the amount deducted had been paid away to people in connection with the sports for services rendered.

MR. ELVIN'S "BRICK EFFORT."

Mr. Joe Elvin expressed his pleasure at being present, although he regretted the smallness of the meeting. He concluded that to be a great compliment to the committee, as the absent ones evidently thought they could not do better than leave matters in the hands of the present officers and committee. The balance-sheet was splendid. Their best thanks were due to Mr. G. H. Chirgwin whose indefatigable efforts every member of the profession should recognise. He was happy to announce that another good man, Mr. Harry Tate, would be president for the ensuing year. Sir William Treloar had promised to do all he could to help Mr. Tate during his year of office, and that in itself was a good thing. Mr. Eugene Stratton, it was his privilege to announce, would take the chair at a dinner and dance to be held at the Criterion on Sunday, Feb. 20, and he (Mr. Elvin) hoped that all the boys and girls in the profession who were in town that day would rally round his dear old pal "'Gene." But for the efforts of Mr. Herbert and Mr. Young the Fund would not be in the prosperous condition it was. He anticipated the way the "brick effort" was going that they would be able to start building their institution in less than two years. He thanked the members of the Ladies' Guild present for their attendance and the good work they were doing.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT.

Mr. Fred Herbert said that the Fund had been very fortunate indeed in its selection of presidents. They could never get a better president than their first one—Mr. Joe Elvin—but Mr. Geo. Chirgwin had made a most unique collection during his year of office which was a credit to his enterprise and indefatigable efforts. The collection comprised every coin of the realm, from sovereigns down to farthings, and from canaries down to huge tins of coffee. The canaries would be sold, for the benefit of the Fund, by auction, and when those who bought them heard the birds singing it would remind them of the V.A.B.F. and the good work they had assisted in. Mr. Chirgwin was not too proud to receive anything that could be disposed of for the benefit of the Fund. They should all remember that. Mr. Herbert read a telegram from Mr. Chirgwin wishing his successor every good luck during his year of office. Mr. Herbert moved that a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Chirgwin be given for the admirable work he had done during his year of office. This was seconded by Mr. Joe Elvin.

Mr. J. W. Cragg moved the election of Mr. Harry Tate for the presidency of the V.A.B.F. for the ensuing year, and said he was sure his friend would endeavour to do quite as much as Mr. Chirgwin and Mr. Elvin had done.

Mr. Johnny Alexander seconded the proposition, which was carried.

Mr. J. H. Milburn moved that Messrs. Wal Pink, Edwin Adeler, and Geo. H. Chirgwin serve as vice-presidents of the V.A.B.F. for the ensuing year, and said these gentlemen would fulfil every obligation that was expected of them.

Mr. Alf. Herald seconded.

Mr. Harry Wenburn moved that Mr. Harry Blake be elected to the office of treasurer. This was seconded by Mr. Chas. Russell.

Miss Lottie Albert proposed a vote of thanks to the Press, and Mrs. C. C. Bartram seconded the resolution.

Mr. Joe Elvin proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. Fred Herbert, and in doing so remarked that when the Benevolent Fund started Mr. Joe O'Gorman was a very hard worker, and their best thanks were due to him. They all knew what a hard worker Mr. Herbert was, too, and the thanks of all were due to him likewise. He had much pleasure in proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Herbert.

SOMETHING GOOD IN STORE.

Mr. Atlas, in seconding, said that they had in Mr. Herbert the right man in the right place. He intimated that in the near future some unexpected honour would be accorded Mr. Herbert.

Mr. Herbert thanked the speakers for their kind remarks. He regretted that more of the members did not spare a little time to attend the meetings. But for the regular and consistent attendances of a stalwart band of six he did not know what would become of the Fund, and also the M.H.A.R.A. It was taxing the good nature of those who attended regularly too much. Any man who was elected to office should make it his bounden duty to attend as regularly as possible.

Mrs. Smythson moved a vote of thanks to the V.A.B.F. for the great help it had given the Ladies' Guild, and the proposition having been seconded by Mr. James Horne, was carried by the ladies present.

"OH, GEORGE!"

Duologue, by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas. Produced at the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre on Monday, Jan. 31.

The Husband ..... Mr. Allen Leslie
The Wife ..... Miss Cecile Anson

Some amusement was caused by the above trifle, the plot of which has a familiar appearance. It deals with the jealous wife of a certain doctor, who discovers in a bag marked with his name feminine apparel and the photograph of an actress. Her worst fears are confirmed by the arrival of a telegram asking the husband to meet "Kitty" by a certain train. In her despair she drinks from a bottle marked "poison," only to learn when too late that the bag belongs to her husband's uncle, and that the telegram concerning "Kitty" refers to a poodle bearing that name. Fortunately, the poison turns out to be nothing more harmful than a cough mixture which the doctor had labelled in that way in order to preserve it from the servants. Connubial felicity is thus restored, all that the wife can say in answer to her husband's explanations being "Oh, George!"

The little piece was brightly rattled through, as much drollery as possible being made out of the situations. Miss Cecile Anson made an attractive appearance as the irresponsible young wife, and never spared herself in her portrayal of the agonies brought on by the supposedly poisoned draught, from which much laughter resulted. Mr. Allen Leslie played the part of the husband with the necessary buoyancy and good humour, and helped materially towards the favourable reception the sketch obtained.

Little Kinky, a comedian of exceptional ability, heads the bill at the Town Hall, Spennymoor. The pictures are most enjoyable, and includes subjects such as Senorita, Love's Artifice, Good for Evil, and The Convict's Revenge.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your last issue (Jan. 29) you report us as having appeared at the Hippodrome, Margate. This is not so. We were appearing at the Theatre Royal, Bury, for Mr. Fred Karno.—Faithfully yours, The Wollbats.

THE V.A.F. EXECUTIVE.

ELECTED FOR THREE YEARS.

The scrutineers appointed at the fourth annual general meeting of the V.A.F. on Jan. 16 last—Messrs. George Fredericks, Eddie Comet, Fred Dunstan and Wally Scott—announce that the following members have been duly returned to fill the fifty-nine vacancies on the Executive Committee, and are accordingly elected to serve for the next three years, the name being given in the order of votes received. EX-OFFICIO MEMBERS.

Messrs. Edmund Edmunds, Paul Martinetti, and Joe Elvin as the trustees of the Federation are ex-officio members of the Executive Committee.

A LIBELLOUS LETTER.

An action for damages for libel brought by John Porter, proprietor of the Hippodrome and Opera House, Lancaster, against J. W. Hall, music hall artist, was tried before Mr. Commissioner Avory, K.C., and a common jury on Saturday last in the Nisi Prius Court, Lancaster, the nature of the libel being an allegation in a letter the defendant sent to a theatrical agent, Mr. McAskell, that the plaintiff did not pay his artists. It was written on Jan. 29, from the Hippodrome, Oldham, and stated:—"Dear McAskell,—I have refused Mr Porter many times £20, and told him myself last year £25, so you are taking a liberty to tell him you could get me for £15. Another thing, you have no right to offer anybody, especially if the money is not safe, especially the V.A.F.—Yours truly, J. W. Hall." Mr. Porter telegraphed to Hall at Oldham, "Wire who informed you money is not safe, important, Porter. Reply paid." The reply was "Reported in this week's 'Chairman's Notes,' Hall, Hippodrome, Oldham." On March 9, 1909, Messrs. Clark and Hodgson, Mr. Porter's solicitors, wrote to Mr. Hall as follows:—"We have been consulted by Mr. Porter, of the Hippodrome, Lancaster, with reference to a libel concerning him you wrote to Mr. McAskell with reference to booking you here—'Another thing you have no right to offer anybody especially when the money is not safe,'—therefore implying it was not safe for the artists engaged by our client. We understand in a telegram you say you were informed by the 'Chairman's Notes.' Whether such be the case or not, you are legally responsible. Our client instructs us to issue a writ against you, claiming damages for slander. Unless we hear this week we shall issue the writ without further notice." An answer came from Mr. Priestley, solicitor to the Variety Artists' Federation, to say that service of the writ would be accepted.

The Judge said there was proof that Mr. Porter's business had suffered, and it was for the jury to assess the amount. The jury found for the plaintiff, with £120 damages. Verdict accordingly, with costs.

An excellent variety bill is the attraction at the Royalty Theatre, Chester, this week. The Davis and Gledhill Trio present their wonderful cycle and motor racing exhibition on their own patent track, which thrills and delights the audience. The Lindos are engaging duettists and dancers; Chiko is a smart equilibrist; John E. Conan a good comedian of the quaint style; Gosman Couple are praiseworthy comedy entertainers; and Sam Redfern, the old original black patterer, is a very welcome turn. Zona Joy, a clever comedienne and dancer, and the Bounding Pattersons, in their exceedingly smart trampolin and aerial feats, complete the bill.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

2054½ SHILLINGS.

We are again making an appeal on behalf of the Music Hall Home Era Shilling Fund, and with that appeal we have very great pleasure in associating the name of Miss Vesta Tilley, who will for the next few months act as a sort of fairy godmother to the fund. "I think," said Miss Tilley, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "that the Music Hall Home is a very deserving charity and a very excellent thing. Something of the sort was certainly wanted for the poorer professionals. Every week of my life I give pounds away at the stage-door to numbers of the profession who call upon me for assistance. Now this year I want to create a record in the matter of collections for the fund, and I personally shall work my very hardest for it. In everything I wanted before the profession has always come forward very generously, and I hope that they will help me all they can now. I have a number of private friends who are going to work for me, too. I think, however, that most of the support should come from the professionals themselves. Outside people have their own charities to look after. I have asked my husband if he can arrange special matinées at each of his halls for the benefit of this fund, and he thinks that he will be able to do this. A great deal in that case will rest upon the artists, and if they would turn up we should be enabled to augment the funds of the Home very considerably. Wherever I am now appearing I am fixing up cards so that members of the same company for the week may put their names down for a subscription. I also hope by the sale of autograph postcards in the front of the house to collect a still further sum for the same purpose."

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

All sums contributed to The Era Shilling Fund will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged in the columns of The Era. They should be sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer, at The Era Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand, W.C.

At the Hippodrome and Picture Palace, Ellesmere Port, the Tymes recently presented, with much success, a descriptive song scena, entitled The Enchanted Clock.

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

AUSTIN AND COWAN.

The popular artists above-named, who are now touring Great Britain, are Australians by birth. They have been very successful in all the principal halls of London and the provinces, and hold contracts until 1912. Miss Cowan (Mrs. Sam Austin) was born in Prahran, Victoria. She is the daughter of the well-known Australian performer, Johnny Cowan, and sister of Joe Cowan, comedian, also well known in Australia. After her first appearance at the Alhambra Theatre, Sydney, then under the management of the late Frank Smith, she made rapid strides in her line of business, "motto and chorus songs," and soon won her way to the front rank. For several years she was the favourite chorus singer of Mr. Harry Rickards' theatres, and at one time she had a continuous run of two and a half years at the Tivoli, Sydney. Miss Cowan is fond of any outdoor sports.

Sam Austin was born in Adelaide, South Australia. He was always fond of singing, and as a boy at the "Model" schools in Adelaide the teachers used to take him from one class to another to lead the singing. He studied with Mr. James Brierley, Miss Isabella Webster, and Mr. W. J. Turner (of the Melbourne Exhibition concert fame), and was well known in Melbourne and Adelaide on the concert platform. He was engaged from the Melbourne Exhibition by Mr. Harry Rickards, and made his first appearance in variety at the Opera House, Melbourne, where he had a continous run of eighteen months. Miss Cowan and Mr. Austin have been working their double turn, which consists of refined vocal comedy, for twelve years. They have played all the principal halls in Great Britain, Australia, and Africa.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

Excellent business is being done at this house, which is now run on the two-houses-a-night principle. Puss in Boots is playing to its full capacity at each performance. Genuine enthusiasm greeted the representation on the occasion of our visit. Mr. F. Bertram's comic talents as the Dame, Donna Dolores, are certain to be a sure draw. It is a funny creation, and the mirth with which he convulses his audience is spontaneous and irresistible. His song, "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" goes particularly well, and the chorus is taken up by the house with gusto. Miss Eva Ellis, a neat and most effective Princess Carito, plays her part daintily, and with much ability. She shows vocal ability in her song, "Pretty little girl from nowhere," and in her duet with Miss Lucia Collins, "Kalamazoo." Her dancing is also of a high order.

Miss Lucia Collins as Juan, the hero of the pantomime, scores a great success. She delivers her lines with much effect, and sings, dances, and acts with grace and refinement, and brings down the house with "Let's all go down the Strand," which is rendered with skill and piquancy, and is also heard to advantage in the above-mentioned duet, "Kalamazoo." Miss Elsie Don is well placed as Lola, and contributes to the success with her rendering of "If I loved you." Mr. Wyn Weaver is quaint and diverting as King Komillo, and soon becomes a favourite; Messrs. Billy Young and C. Jackson as Sancho and Pancho interpret their parts in a humorous fashion; and Mr. Algernon Lee makes the most of Bilbatio. Miss Jose Hammersley as Perdita, the fairy, sings in good style and pure tone, "Somewhere," the chorus of which is taken up vociferously. The Bull is cleverly enacted by Messrs. Sam Lee and Pat Patterson; and last, but by no means least, the faithful Cat, as depicted by Mr. Haydon Curry, is a source of delight. The chorus numbers some good vocalists; and the Eight Gems and Six Monte Carlo Girls also contribute excellent interludes. The entire production is under the personal direction of Mr. Joe Collins. Mr. George Rhoden Parry, the courteous resident-manager, directs operations in front with his customary tact and discretion.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The London County Council resumed its sittings on Tuesday afternoon after the Christmas vacation, Sir Melvill Beachcroft (Chairman) presiding.

EXPLOSIVES.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that during the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1909, explosives and dangerous substances were found to be in use in licensed premises on fifty-five occasions. The arrangements were not in any case found to be unsatisfactory.

INSPECTION.

The expenditure incurred during the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1909, in connection with visits to unlicensed premises to ascertain whether public music or dancing was given thereat, and in connection with reports upon the character of the performances at licensed premises, amounted to £10 13s. 5d.

THEATRE DE LUXE, BRIXTON.

The Committee had considered drawings, submitted by Mr. M. S. Ward, showing the proposed method of complying with certain of the requirements made by the Council for the structural improvement of the Theatre de Luxe, Acre-lane, Brixton. The alterations contemplated include the improvement of the main exit, the formation of a new exit from the northern end of the premises, the construction of an additional exit staircase from the gallery, and numerous minor works. The Committee recommended that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the three drawings submitted with regard to the works proposed to be executed, provided that certain requirements be carried out. Agreed to.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Council approved of drawings, submitted by Mr. F. H. Payne, showing the proposed arrangements in connection with the International Aero and Motor-Boat Exhibition to be held at Olympia, Hammersmith, in March next; also of drawings, submitted by Messrs. Hayward and Maynard, showing the proposed arrangements of the fire-resisting curtain to be installed at the new concert hall, John-street, Adelphi; also of drawings, submitted by Messrs. Moscrop-Young and Glanfield and Mr. P. J. Waldram, of the Eltham Parish Hall proposed to be erected in Wellington-road, Eltham. It is intended to apply for a music hall dancing licence for the hall, which will have accommodation for about 600 persons, and subject to certain conditions being complied with the premises appeared to be satisfactory for the purpose for which the licence is required.

The report, it will be seen, did not contain any recommendation, and it was received without comment.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

Produced at the Olympia, Liverpool, on Oct. 18, 1909, and played for the first time in London at the Grand, Clapham, on Nov. 22, 1909, the dramatic playlet, in three scenes, by George R. Sims, entitled Buonaparte's Boy: or Two New Year's Days, was presented at the Holloway Empire on Monday last to large and appreciative audiences. The cordial reception bestowed on Monday has obtained at each succeeding performance, and this powerful little melodrama should have a long run. Although we believe Mr. Geo. R. Sims makes no pretence to historical accuracy, he has worked up a plot in his playlet that holds the audience in its grip from start to finish. Madame Bernard, the widow of a loyal Buonapartist soldier, Serjeant Lambert, is wooed and won by Pierre Bernard before the action of the piece. In the opening scene, the home of the Bernards, we find the family reduced to abject poverty, owing to the drinking habits of Pierre.

He enters and demands money from his wife, and upon her declaration of not having sufficient to even buy food, in his passion he confesses to being a spy of La Vendee, and his detestation of Napoleon. Jacques, a poor little weakling, writes to the Emperor informing him of the condition they are in and the brutality his mother is subjected to by his step-father, and, in the temporary absence of Pierre and Madame Bernard, who has gone out begging for the sake of her ill-nourished son, Napoleon calls in person at their house. After hearing the boy's story the Emperor shares his lunch with him, and upon hearing of Jacques' desire to follow in his father's footsteps as a soldier, consents to make him a drummer-boy.

In the meantime the mother returns and pleads with the Emperor not to part her boy from her, and he gives her a position in the same corps as Vivandiere. After their departure, Pierre returns in a drunken state and makes an attempt on Buonaparte's life. This is frustrated by one of the Guard, and Pierre is imprisoned, but later, escaping, he joins the Russian army. He plans to take a despatch to the Emperor, on the presentation of which Pierre intends to shoot him; but the plot having been discovered by Jacques, Pierre is prevented from carrying out his nefarious design. He is ordered to be shot on the spot, but by the intervention of Jacques he is pardoned, sent with a dummy despatch through the enemy's lines, and shot by them.

Mr. Juan Buonaparte, a lineal descendant of the great Napoleon, to whom he bears a most striking resemblance, has a most interesting personality and is entirely successful in his clever impersonation of the Emperor, and Mr. E. H. Brooke's character acting as Pierre Bernard is quite convincing. Miss Molly Paget as Mme. Bernard gives a performance full of human feeling and delicate emotion. Jacques Lambert is played with skilful point and emphasis by Miss Ecca Van Leer, and the other characters are capably represented. The scenery is good, and every detail receives the attention necessary to give the finishing touch to an artistic interpretation. The piece is produced by Mr. Chris Walker.

La Sylphe, from the London Coliseum, is among the many excellent artists whose names are on the programme, and her "flexible" dancing, including her creations "The Dance of Folly," "Diavolo," and an Arab dance are most gracefully performed. Sylvia du Barry presents her well-known scena "In Andalusia" very successfully; and the Olympian Troupe of trick cyclists do an enjoyable turn. Ted E. Box is a funny little man who makes you laugh; and another altogether enjoyable turn is contributed by Haines and Borthwick, assisted by the Misses Margaret Damer and Ida Vynall, in a funny sketch entitled Half a Dollar. The Sisters Storm take high rank as original duettists and dancers; and Cissie Thompson sings a couple of well-written songs in fine style. The Three Meers are making a welcome reappearance here; their droll antics are provocative of continuous laughter, and their clever performance on the wire is much appreciated. Some capital films are shown on the American Bioscope.

At the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Wednesday, Miss Maie Dillon, who is playing the part of Pekoe, undertook the important rôle of Gretchen, owing to the indisposition of Happy Fanny Fields, owing to the indisposition of Happy Fanny Fields at a moment's notice. It must be added that she acquitted herself with remarkable ability.

Mr. Fred Melville's pantomime, Mother Goose, concludes its run at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, to-night, and Miss Maude May Murray, whose beautiful dancing has proved such an immense attraction, has been secured by Mr. Walter Gibbons to open at the Hippodrome, Richmond, on Feb. 28. On Monday next she will make her first appearance at the Hippodrome, Bristol.

ADA REEVE AND HER AGENT.

The action brought against Miss Ada Reeve by Mr. Harry Day, the well-known variety agent, trading as Day's Variety Agency, of Arundel-street, Strand, for £76 15s. commission, which he alleged to be due on engagements procured for the defendant by him at her request at various places, was re-tried before Mr. Justice Channell and a Common Jury, in the King's Bench Division, on Tuesday and Wednesday. The defence was a plea that it was an implied term in the contract between the parties that plaintiff should secure for her the best possible terms, and that he had failed to do so. The defendant counter-claimed for damages in respect of this.

Mr. W. J. Waugh, K.C., Mr. E. F. Lever, and Mr. S. P. Kerr (instructed by Messrs. Roberts Seyd, and Co.) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. R. J. Atkin, K.C., and Mr. J. Crawford (instructed by Messrs. Cohen and Cohen) were for defendant.

Mr. Waugh, in opening, said the defendant was the wife of Mr. A. W. Cotton, who was her manager in theatrical matters. In October, 1907, Mr. Cotton asked Mr. Day to obtain engagements for defendant. This he did, some of them being on commission and some on a profit-sharing basis. The defendant had cancelled engagements at Warrington and Cardiff, without reference to plaintiff, and Mr. Day also claimed his commission on those.

Mr. Harry Day stated that he obtained engagements for Miss Reeve at various places, which she fulfilled, but he had not received his commission. He understood that some trouble arose with regard to the engagement at Eastbourne, which was on a share basis. With regard to this, Mr. Cotton wrote to plaintiff on Dec. 30, 1907, as follows:

"My wife asks me to send you enclosed cheque for £21 5s., settling your commission account, and to say that she will not pay another commission falling due from that day until you have thoroughly investigated the various breaches of agreement on the part of the resident-manager at your Eastbourne house. . . . Who was responsible for the dishonesty that was rampant in the matter of receipts for payments? . . . At the first house, on the 26th inst., the gallery-door returns were 100 short of the actual number of people who went in by the door. The excuse made for this was the idle one that a window had been wrongly 'tapped.'"

Witness wrote, replying that he had handed this letter to Mr. Winter, the manager at Eastbourne, who would take the matter up, as he (witness) had explained to them that his connection did not carry him far enough to interfere with him. When the Eastbourne engagement was entered into he had nothing to do with the management of the theatre, except the engaging of the artists. It was not until a long time afterwards that he heard that his name was on the bills as manager, and then he had it removed. He knew that in 1906 Miss Reeve obtained an engagement at Glasgow at £300 a week, but there was no comparison with regard to salaries between Glasgow and Edinburgh.

Mr. Sidney Walker Winter, managing-director of the New Eastbourne Hippodrome (Limited), stated that the company bought the assets of an older company in 1906 from the Court of Chancery, and at that time Mr. Day was acting as manager. Afterwards he had nothing to do with the management, nor any share in the profits. Mr. Day, however, engaged artists for them, and he asked witness to book Miss Reeve. Witness did not want to, as he thought she would not suit the Eastbourne people. Mr. Day pressed him to engage her, and he agreed.

Mr. Charles Howard, who was acting-manager at the Eastbourne Hippodrome, denied that there was any pillage or robbery there. Everything was accounted for to the defendant.

Mr. Harry Goodson stated that he was present at the interview between plaintiff and Mr. Ballantyne. Plaintiff did not state that he could secure Miss Reeve's services at a lower sum than that which Mr. Ballantyne was paying her.

For the defence, Mr. Atkin explained that Miss Reeve had paid considerable sums of money as commission to plaintiff, and this case was not a question of money. The real point was that if an agent engaged to do work, he had to do the best he could in the interests of his client. If, as a matter of fact, he betrayed her interests for his own purposes, in order to get a contract out of an influential manager, he was not entitled to any commission at all. The jury would agree with him, added counsel, that if that happened the best service that anyone could render to the public would be to repudiate the claim to commission that such a gentleman made, and to let the facts be made known. It was for that reason that this case was being fought. The dominant point the jury would have to try, though there were others, was this—Miss Reeve said that Mr. Day, in his anxiety to get in touch with Mr. Ballantyne, at Glasgow and Edinburgh, went to him and asked why he did not book her through him, as he could get her at £150 to £200 a week, instead of £300, which they were paying her through another agency. If that was so, it was a most improper thing, and amounted to a betrayal of Miss Reeve's interests. Alluding to the Eastbourne matter, counsel said that when defendant complained to Mr. Day, he never stirred a finger to put the matter right.

The hearing was adjourned till Wednesday, when Mr. Cotton, in evidence, said, when the engagement at the Eastbourne Hippodrome was discussed the plaintiff referred to it as his hall. It was Christmas-time, and the plaintiff said it was a comfortable place, and although they could not pay the salary required, a percentage of the takings could be arranged. It was always understood that no commission was to be paid on engagements that were not fulfilled. The plaintiff agreed to the cancellation of engagements at Cardiff and Warrington. The witness admitted writing with regard to Mi

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

A Shrine of Euterpe.
Our modern rinker must have music all the time, so, to pamper him, the powers that be at Earl's Court have reinforced their band with a tireless musical mastodon "the Gavioliphone." Energised by an electric motor and fed with yards of perforated music-sheets, this self-contained orchestra will waltz you or gavotte you, or play you the merry march or the tuneful two-step, without flagging or complaint. The sackbut, the psaltery, the cymbal, and the dulcimer, the oboe, bassoon, and the pipes of Pan, drums and fifes and a regimental brass band all seem to be embodied in the capacious and highly-ornate "Gavioliphone." 'Tis a veritable shrine of Euterpe.

Next Wednesday at Earl's Court.
At the hockey match which will be held at the great Earl's Court Skatery on Wednesday next we hear that an immense following from the many London rinks sending representatives will be present.

The Season at Earl's Court.
We are authorised to announce that the Empress Hall, Earl's Court, will be kept open for skating until March 31. Two more carnivals will be held, the first to take place on Wednesday, Feb. 16.

Caprara and the Society Dames.
Signor Guidi, as most fahionable rinkers know, is director-general of music for Mr. P. W. Willard, the managing-director of the Empress group of rinks. The signor is himself installed at the huge Zoo Rink, Glasgow, and this season he placed a fellow-countryman, Signor C. Caprara, in charge of the orchestra at Earl's Court. Mr. Caprara wields the bâton to such effect at Earl's Court that he is frequently asked by the Society dames using the rink to play their favourite melodies, and he always obliges with that easy grace and ardour for which the Italian musical enthusiast is noted.

Olympia on Sunday.
At the sitting of the Kensington Licensing Justices on Tuesday last a police inspector said he had been instructed by the Commissioner of Police to bring to the notice of the Justices the fact that Olympia, which was licensed for six days, and was used as a skating rink, was being opened on Sundays. In reply to the chairman, the inspector said that the premises were registered as a club. The chairman thought that the justices had not sufficient grounds to interfere, but the subject might be brought up when application was made to the London County Council for a music and dancing licence.

The Olympia Carnival.
Sir William and Lady Bull, Mr. Louis Napoleon Parker, Miss Kate Cutler, Miss Phyllis Dare, Miss Olive May, and Mr. George Graves are among those who have promised to act as a judging committee at the masquerade carnival to be held at Olympia on Friday, Feb. 18. £57 10s. will be awarded in cash prizes for the prettiest ladies' costumes, £42 10s. for the most original or most effective gentlemen's costumes, and a special prize of £5 for any costume of merit. The judging will take place at midnight.

London Hippodrome Claims Rexos.
The Rexos come to town and the London Hippodrome on Monday next. Curiously enough, London has only had the opportunity once of witnessing at the variety halls what a really good skater can accomplish since Reynolds and Donegan were at the Palace. That was when Jessie Darling put in a week's show at the Holborn Empire. With the advent of the Rexos a really remarkable act will be seen.

Before the L.C.C.
At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday the Theatres and Music-halls Committee brought up a report stating that they had considered a drawing submitted by Mr. A. W. Hudson, showing how it is proposed to widen and improve the gallery exits at the Chelsea Skating Rink, King's-road, and Church-street, Chelsea. The Committee recommended that no objection be offered to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted, provided that the usual regulations be complied with. The recommendation was approved.

The Committee had also considered a drawing, submitted by Mr. W. A. Cornell, showing a skating rink proposed to be erected on the northern side of Upper Market-street, Woolwich. It is intended to apply for a music licence for the rink, which will accommodate about 730 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being complied with, the premises appeared to be satisfactory for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The Committee recommended that, provided that the works shown on the drawing submitted be commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawing referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that certain stated conditions have been complied with.

The Committee recommended that no objection be offered to a drawing and specification submitted by Tamplin and Makovski, Ltd., with regard to the proposed electric lighting installation at the Roller Skating Palace and Club, Delaware-road, Maida Vale, provided that the Council's regulations are complied with in all details. The recommendations were agreed to.

N.S.A. Inter-City Team Race.
The N.S.A. has arranged an inter-city team race between London and Birmingham. This will be the first inter-district race arranged under the control of the N.S.A. The race will take place at the Brixton Rink on Feb. 16. The Londoners are a very strong quartette, and among the Birmingham four are men who have shown exceptional form; but the star most distinctly is J. T. Cooper, the Midland Counties champion, who has an undefeated record in scratch races. The selected sides are as follow:—London: J. Price, amateur champion; S. F. Casey, winner of N.S.A. scratch race at Brixton; F. G. Carlisle, winner of Aldwych handicap from five yards' mark; D. M. Swain, third in Aldwych handicap from scratch. Birmingham: J. T. Cooper, Midland Counties champion; A. H. Potter, second in Warwick and Stafford championship; B. Brooks, winner of Erdington handicap; E. C. Mackay.

A Trophy Wanted.
The National Skating Association has at length succeeded in making satisfactory arrangements for the national speed and figure championships. All three events will take place at the Maida Vale Rink. On March 2 the one-mile race will be held, while the figure championship in the international style is fixed for March 16, and the five miles event recently included takes place a fortnight later on March 30. The winner of the mile will hold the Benetfink Challenge Cup, while the magnificent "Richardson" Cup is given in connection with the figure event, but at present the association are without a trophy for the distance championship.

Wedding in Skating Attire.
It was a happy thought of Miss Edith Rawdon, daughter of Canon Rawdon (who was married last Tuesday afternoon, at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, to Sir Frederick Fowke, Bart., of Lowesby Hall, Leicester), to attire her bridesmaids in skating costume. True, they were not equipped with roller skates, but in every other detail they were real skating ladies. Their short white cloth skirts were edged with brown fur, and they wore smart little fur-trimmed Russian coats, while their hands were thrust into comfortable white cloth and fur muffs. They were four in number—Miss Dorothea Rawdon, the bride's sister, the Misses Eva and Isabel Fowke, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Dorothy Rundall. Canon Rawdon performed the marriage ceremony, and Mr. C. R. Rawdon, of the K.O.Y.L.I., gave away his sister. The guests afterwards met at the Buckingham Palace Hotel, and later on Sir Frederick and Lady Fowke left for a Continental honeymoon tour.

Skating Football at C.P.
The attraction at the Crystal Palace Rink last Saturday night was a football match on skates between the Crystal Palace and the Casuals, which resulted in a draw of two goals all. An ordinary football was in use, into which some water had been injected to prevent it from being too lively. During the first half the only points accrued to the Crystal Palace, through the agency of R. P. Steytler. After change of ends the Casuals, by means of combined efforts, put on a couple of goals by Greene and Heald, while Richards managed a point for their opponents.

C.P. Skating Carnival.
Owing to the great success of the fancy dress skating carnival held a little while back on the huge skating rink of the Crystal Palace, the rink manager has decided to give the second on Feb. 16 (Wednesday). The prizes are numerous and handsome, and include an eight-day china clock and gong, large square mirror and candlesticks, silver rose bowl, carriage clock in leather case, silver-mounted umbrella, electro-plated table lamp, silver inkstand, &c. Competitors wishing to take part should send in their names and addresses as soon as possible, either to the general-manager or G. F. Stumcke, rink manager, Crystal Palace.

Some Excellent Skates.
The enormous popularity which has lately been achieved by roller skating is in great measure due to the "Bab" skates, made by the British Roller Skate and England Company, Ltd., of Birmingham. They are made in five models; all ball bearings are carefully tested; and nothing but the finest material is used in their manufacture. These are some of the points which have made "Bab" skates popular in England, on the Continent, and in the Colonies.

He Understood.
"A young lady wearing a pained expression, entered a crowded tramcar," says "Cassell's Saturday Journal." "'Will you take my seat?' exclaimed the polite young man in the corner. 'Thanks, no,' replied the lady; 'I prefer standing. Have been sitting a good deal lately.' And the polite young man, glancing at the roller skates in her hand, understood."

The Milton Brothers.
The Miltons, well-known skating comedians, have decided to alter their name to Milton Bros., in consequence of others assuming the name. They are at present playing in Harry Roxbury's Mother Goose pantomime.

Blackheath's Challenge to Skaters.
The skaters at Blackheath are a go-ahead lot of people. Following a very pretty and graceful set of lancers which was danced there recently, they have issued a challenge to skaters in and around London to dance a set of lancers against them. Instructors and professionals are barred. The offer is open for a month, and the event is to come off at the Blackheath Rink, and the local team will consist of Mr. McKinnell and Miss Rene Bowron, Mr. Newell and Miss Smyth, Mr. Rainer and Miss Slocombe, and Mr. Myhre and Miss Greta Bowron. The manager, Mr. Reiss, is offering valuable prizes for ladies and gentlemen every Saturday evening for novel competitions.

Kogan and St Valentine.
For St. Valentine's Night, Feb. 14, Mr. Kogan, of the Stratford Rink, has a fancy dress carnival on the tapis. The incidental features to be introduced on that occasion are as follows: A half-mile partners' race for a lady and gentleman; a waltzing competition; a backwards graceful skating competition; a two-step partners' competition; and the most original and the prettiest fancy costumes' competition. £20 is the sum set apart for prizes. Serpentine shooting and a confetti battle will bring what should prove a joyous night to a close.

Kingston Gymkhana.
The second gymkhana will be held at the Rink (Central Hall), Richmond-road, Kingston-on-Thames, on Wednesday, Feb. 9. The following is the programme of events:—7.30, all skate; 8.0—(a) one mile handicap (patrons only), two prizes; (b) musical chairs (ladies and gentlemen), one prize for lady and one prize for gentleman; (c) ladies' half-mile scratch race (patrons only), two prizes; (d) one-mile open amateur handicap, three prizes; (e) graceful skating (lady and gentleman partners), one prize for lady and one prize for gentleman; (f) skate boys' half-mile handicap, one prize; (g) hoop race (ladies), one prize; (h) potato race (gentlemen), one prize; (k) balloon race (ladies), one prize. All events will be run under N.S.A. laws. Entries for all events (with the exception of the one-mile open amateur handicap, for which the latest time of entry is Feb. 2) must be received, with remittance, not later than mid-day Tuesday, Feb. 8.

About Maida Vale.
A magnificently appointed rink, to be opened in a week's time, is being erected in Delaware-road, between Sutherland-avenue and Elgin-avenue, Maida Vale. It will have a skating surface of 375ft. long by 106ft. wide. The structure is even larger still, for it measures 495ft. by 120ft., and will comprise, in addition to the rink, cloak-rooms, dressing-rooms, offices and a splendid restaurant, decorated in oak, which will seat 750 persons. The floor is made primarily of 6in. concrete with joists embedded therein. The entire surface is then covered with vulcanite damp-proof about ¼in. thick, and over this a deal floor is put down at an angle of 45 deg., leaving a ¼in. space between each board. Over the deal flooring a vulcanite damp-proofing is next laid, upon the top of which there will be an American rock maple floor, with a 2in. surface. There will be a private box for royalty, and a most comfortable gallery for spectators. The building will be absolutely fire proof.

Rinking-on-Thames.
A piece of ground permitting of a skating rink 100ft. square, with an extensive river promenade, has been acquired on Eel Pie Island. A lava floor is to be laid down, the centre covered over, and the sides left open with garden surroundings and dotted about with tea tables in time for the coming summer season.

Amateur Waltzing at Wandsworth.
On Wednesday next, Feb. 9, an amateur waltzing competition for couples (lady and gentleman) will be held at the Central Hall Skating Rink, Wandsworth. This is the first amateur waltzing competition to be held in London. Prizes will be given.

Two Carnivals at Auckland Rink.
Last Saturday afternoon a large number of children assembled on the rink for the initial children's carnival. On Tuesday evening a pierrot carnival was held, and a very pleasing programme ensued. At ten o'clock the rinkers made a presentation to Mr. Butler for his splendid services as general manager. Dancing and a confetti battle followed.

John Davidson.
Mr. John Davidson is winning golden opinions from Bedford people this week. His performance is an exceptionally good one, the pace at which he travels round the rink and his easy manner being freely commented on.

Hockey at Bedford.
Two excellent hockey matches were played at the Bedford Rink on Saturday. In the afternoon a team of Northampton ladies were beaten by a Bedford team by two goals to nil. In the evening the Northampton boys took up the cudgels, and after a hard and fast game gained a victory over the Bedford hockeyites by two goals to one.

Coming Carnival at Bournemouth.
On Thursday, Feb. 10, a skating gymkhana will be held at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, including a football match on skates, tug-of-war, racing, and other competitions for which prizes will be offered.

Bristol's Latest.
Bristol has a new rink, opened last Saturday, at Carey's-lane, opposite the Empire, Old Market-street. It occupies a commanding position, with a frontage of nearly 150ft. The building has been solidly constructed of brickwork, with a roof of galvanised sheeting, supported on steel principals. The external elevations are relieved with rough-cast panels, and have a plinth of red brick, the panels between piers of the upper part being buff-coloured rough-cast. Internally the walls are coloured in two shades of green, the ceiling being ivory white. A gallery for onlookers is provided, in addition to a promenade on the ground-floor. The controlling interest in the Bristol Olympia Rink, Ltd., is held by the Victoria Pier Syndicate, Ltd., Folkestone, Mr. Robert Forsyth being the managing-director of both companies. This gentleman has had considerable experience in rink management, and promises to run carnivals, gymkhana, and sports from time to time. The secretary is Mr. F. Ryder. The floor manager is Mr. Jack Forsyth, late manager of the Pier Rink, Folkestone.

New Manager at Dewsbury.
The Dewsbury and Batley Empire Roller Rink is now under new management, Mr. W. A. Campbell, late of Liverpool, having succeeded Mr. St. Clair as manager.

In Marmalade City.
At the West End Rink, Dundee, crowded floors are the rule. An outstanding feature here is the tuneful music supplied by the band. Le Grand Bal Poudré is announced for Wednesday, Feb. 9. At the Olympia Skating Palace, Manager J. Adams nightly beams on a brilliant assemblage, not the least enthusiastic of whom is the large contingent of naval officers, who are frequenters of Olympia. At the American roller rink, in Melrose-terrace, Manager Hunnequin continues exceedingly busy.

A Rinking Presentation.
On Wednesday, Jan. 26, Mr. Harry Wamba, musical director at John Henry Cooke's Royal Circus, Edinburgh, was presented with an ebony silver-mounted conductor's bâton, with suitable inscription, as a birthday gift from the members of the orchestra.

The Rexos in Glasgow.
This week the Rexos have been appearing with remarkable success on the Moss tour, at the Glasgow Coliseum. Probably no one in the rinking world to-day has the physical advantage of Mr. E. W. Rexo. Tall—he is 5ft. 11in. in height—of athletic build, hard and muscular, a trained contortionist, a practised hand balancer, of perfect poise, a long applied knowledge of the science of equilibrium, and a roller skater from boyhood, he has the ideal qualifications of a champion rinker. His great spread-eagle and railroad tunnel feats are examples of his powers of contortion, while his corkscrew spin, globe, and hand skating exhibit his wonderful powers of balancing. In his work he is ably assisted by his wife, Miss Winnie Rexo. A clever feat of the lady is gliding on the unicycle, and all her efforts bear that stamp of excellence that only twelve years' constant rinking can give. At the close of the present tour the Continent, chiefly Paris and Berlin, will claim them.

Bessie Butt goes Skating.
Glasgow was the third city of the British Isles to have a roller skating rink when the present boom started two years ago. The most popular is the West-End Rink, particularly so with the profession. Here any day one is almost sure to run across a brother (or sister) artist, and a reference to the autograph-book in the manager's room reveals many well-known names of both the legitimate and variety stage. The proprietor is Mr. Norman M'Leod Allan, and his manager is Mr. Scott Cameron. A jolly and pleasant innovation in "matters rinking" which has been introduced by the pantomime folk at present playing in the city is little informal tea parties or gatherings—"come-one-come-all" sort of idea. Of the many artists who patronise this rink perhaps the most popular is Bessie Butt, who is playing Aladdin at the Royal, and of whom everyone is talking as "one of the most 'pleasing' principal boys Glasgow has had for some time past."

Waltz Competition at Glasgow.
Great interest was displayed in the two-step and waltz competition, which took place at the Zoo Rink, Glasgow, on Thursday evening of last week. There was a large crowd of spectators, and the rival competitors were so nearly equal that the judges had a difficult task in selecting the most deserving. The following are the awards:—Waltzing: 1, Miss G. Hislop and Mr. H. Telfer; 2, Miss Madge Durward and Mr. J. Anderson. Two-step competition: 1, Miss McPhail and Mr. J. Anderson; 2, Miss Frances Bostock and Mr. E. Johnston. Owing to Miss Bostock being connected with the rink it was deemed advisable to award the prizes in this case to the couple coming next in order of merit, viz., Miss Madge Durward and Mr. Paterson. The prizes were presented by Mr. Gus. Bostock.

Zena Dare Skates at Hull.
Miss Zena Dare was a regular visitor last week at the Beverley-road Rink, Hull.

Racing and Hockey at Ipswich.
An interesting programme was in store on Saturday evening for the large number of visitors to the Empress Skating Rink, Ipswich. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested in the two mile race, which provided some excellent skating, the successful competitors being—1 Peake, 2 Duggan. These two contestants were well ahead at the tenth lap. On the last lap Duggan led for a time, but Peake made a special effort, shot by his opponent, and won by about a yard. The mile race for novices was another exciting event, and resulted as follows:—1 Garrick, 2 Ramsey, 3 Ward. The return hockey match between the Ilford and Empress teams was also played on Saturday evening, and resulted in an easy victory for the Essex club by six goals to nil, three goals being scored in each half. A feature of the game was the excellent shooting of Ilford's right forward.

Leicester Items.
The Empress Rink, where Mr. A. E. Court, the manager, has done wonders, beat its own record for attendance on Saturday afternoon and evening last. This rink has been selected for the semi-finals of the International Professional Roller skating races for the Midlands, which will take place in March. Mr. Court will also put in in the summer-time an installation of the game "The American Bowling Alley." At the Boulevard Mr. Ernest Holdsworth has attractions daily, this week a tug-of-war, a hockey match, the final race for the Jesson cup and medals, a basket ball match between the Boulevard Rink and Derby, a football match, and a mile race between T. A. Dunn and G. Keighley for £5 and medal being put forward. At the Belgrave Rink the directors, owing to being handicapped by the magistrates again refusing a further application for a music licence, have decided to offer substantial prizes for competition weekly. This week the events include a club team race, a gentlemen's amateur half-mile three-legged race, a hockey match between Belgrave Rink and Alexandra Rink, Derby, and a tug-of-war on skates.

"Brewster's Millions" on Wheels.
A large company, including many of the Middlesbrough footballers, gathered last Saturday afternoon at the Olympia Skating Rink at Linthorpe, where a team from the Brewster's Millions company tried strength against a Middlesbrough seven. This was Brewster's first match, and as a result the game was marked by lustiness rather than science. Exciting tussles were frequent, scrimmages common, and bruises many. Finally Brewsters had to retire beaten by six to two. A tower of strength to the professionals was Mr. Chas. Esdale (Monty Brewster), who was by far the smartest player on their side. Goals were scored for Middlesbrough by G. Dick and P. Harrison (three each). The former got his in the first half, and the latter coming from back to centre forward after the interval gained his in the second. For Brewster's Madgwick scored from a fine effort by Esdale in the first half, and Ash added a second following a corner in the second. The teams were as follows:—Brewster's Millions.—Goal, W. Patrick; back, A. Mather; half-backs, H. Swordy, P. Madgwick; forwards, H. D. Greet, C. Esdale, W. Roche. Middlesbrough.—Goal, H. H. Robinson; back, G. Craig; half-backs, W. Walker, H. M. Robinson; forwards, G. Dick, P. Harrison, F. R. Allison.

Bertha Doud Mack at Sheffield.
Billed as the "world's premier lady skate-dancer," Bertha Doud Mack, who is this week giving exhibitions each night at the Olympia Rink, has proved a big attraction. For a year she has been retained by the management of the Broadway Theatre, New York, during which time she has made an enviable reputation as a specialist for dancing in the two-step. Her performance of clog-dancing on skates is well worth witnessing.

Sheffield Rink Sold.
An auction sale of an unusual character took place at Hillsbro' on Wednesday, when, under a sheriff's writ, the contents of the Sheffield Roller Skating Rink, Dodd-street—which, it will be remembered, was wrecked by the snowstorm of Dec. 18 last—were brought under the hammer. Flags, banners, shields, and bunting, heating apparatus, fire appliances, fairy lights, arc lamps, and all the glitter of "the shining floor" were included in the catalogue, and found ready purchasers, though at not very remunerative prices.

RICHARDSON SKATES are the BEST in the WORLD.

They have held ALL WORLD'S RECORDS for twenty-four years, and every event of importance during the past few years, either fast or fancy has been won on RICHARDSON SKATES, including Harley Davidson's victory at Olympia Rink, London, February 26th, 1909.

STATEMENTS WHICH CANNOT BE DISPUTED:

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co. positively equipped 80 per cent. of the Rinks operating in America. Sixty per cent. of the Rinks in this country operated by independent rink proprietors are equipped with Richardson Ball Bearing Skates.
Richardson Skates are the universal choice of, and used by, practically all the leading instructors, unless employed in rinks operated by other skate manufacturers. The Richardson is the most perfectly constructed Skate on the market. The front truck is under the ball of the foot, and the rear truck practically under the heel, which allows the skater to be over his work. This principle is acknowledged to be the best by the leading skaters of the world. Rear trucks extending back of heel only act as a leverage when skaters lose their balance.
The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Factory have equipped more independent Rinks than all other manufacturers combined.
The repairs of Richardson Skates are 50 per cent. less than those of any other make, and the simplicity of construction makes it an easy matter to effect repairs.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

LEGAL DECISIONS ABOUT SHOWS.

A HOOP-LA TENT EXEMPTED FROM THE BYE-LAWS.

On Jan. 15, in this column, we recorded the important decision of the Lord Chief Justice (Justices Bucknill and Bray concurring) with regard to show booths and tents. It was an appeal case brought by the District Council of Whitley, in Northumberland, against the decision of the local magistrates, that a hoop-la tent was not a temporary building within the scope of the building bye-laws of the District Council.

Briefly Stated.

The history of the dispute between the proprietor of the hoop-la circle and the District Council is, that the local authorities wanted to bring the hoop-la tent within the powers of their buildings bye-laws, in order to prevent its erection. That is the clear fact that our readers must bear in mind in order to grasp the full importance of the decision of the Higher Court.

The local magistrates refused to convict the showman with the hoop-la frame for breaking the bye-laws, and held that a hoop-la tent, or circle, was not a temporary building within the meaning of the bye-laws. The District Council appealed against the verdict of the magistrates, and carried the case to the King's Bench Division, the Council maintaining their contention that the magistrates should have convicted the showman, and that the hoop-la was a temporary building within the bye-laws.

Reasons for Dismissing the Appeal.

In giving the decision of the Court, the Lord Chief Justice observed that if a hoop-la circle, like the one in the sketch plan before him, was a temporary building within the meaning of the statute, then it would follow that tents erected for garden parties were similarly under obligation to obtain sanction from local authorities before erection. He asked the learned counsel for the District Council if that was the claim set up by the local authority? The counsel did not answer. The appeal was dismissed, and the decision of the magistrates upheld.

The Great Importance of the Decision.

No law case of recent years is of so great value and importance as this Whitley Bay case. It touches the liberty of the amusement caterer at its centre. It is at last a charter of liberty to pursue his business without vexatious and illegal interference by local authorities. The nature of the erection is such that common sense ought to have kept the officers of the Whitley District Council from committing the illegality of attempting to prevent the amusement caterer following his business by endeavouring to bring portable tents under building bye-laws, obviously intended for sheds and buildings of a more fixed and substantial kind—such temporary warehouse sheds or houses erected for public works, or the rapid extension of trade and commerce quite properly, for sanitary and other reasons, come under temporary building bye-laws.

The Persecution of Poor Showmen.

We have had to interfere many times during the past few years to help showmen in similar difficulties with local authorities as the one we are now dealing with not always with success, and serious loss has been suffered in several instances, rather than face the enormous cost of an appeal case. The patience of the showman has been at last rewarded; here we have a decision of the utmost importance, yet it has been obtained, not at the cost of the showmen, but at the cost of the poor, suffering ratepayers. It is with the ratepayers that the Councillors and their advisers at Whitley will have to reckon. We have no doubt that the people of Whitley Bay had no objection whatever to the perfectly innocent game of skill known as hoop-la. It was the District Council, that in its superior wisdom tried and failed to stop the people's amusements in Whitley Bay.

Yet Another Case.

Closely linked with the Whitley Bay case is the still more recent one of Mr. Thomas Harrison, travelling auctioneer, at East Ham. Here, as at Whitley Bay, the Corporation claimed that the auction van and the tent attached to it were under the temporary buildings bye-law. Their full claim was that Mr. Harrison ought to have submitted plans, and obtained permission from the Corporation before commencing business.

Mr. Harrison quite rightly resisted this claim, and at his own expense (after consultation with his brother auctioneers in various parts of the country, and with the executive officials of the Showmen's Guild), determined to fight the case.

In our issue of Jan. 22 we fully reported the hearing of the case before the Stipendiary magistrate at the East Ham Police Court. The position taken by the Town Clerk was a most extraordinary one. Had the Court upheld his reading of the law, no show-booth or tent could have opened in East Ham without the permission of the Corporation. East Ham would have become a closed area to the show business.

The magistrate saw the serious nature of this claim, and took time to consider his decision. We quote again as relevant to our argument at this point, the evidence of the Borough Surveyor and the observations of the magistrate and the learned counsel (for Mr. Harrison), Mr. Elliott, K.C.:—

"The Borough Engineer gave formal evidence to the effect that no plans of the building had been deposited with the Council. In reply to his Worship, Mr. Campbell said that he should call an ordinary tent with poles resting on the ground a structure.

"Mr. J. Birch, Assistant Surveyor, said the building consisted of a caravan on wheels, used as a sale van, with a tent in front of it. There was a wooden flooring, but he did not think it had any foundation.

"His Worship: It seems to me that the whole question is whether or not a tent is a building. His Worship added that he had issued the summons, but at the time he did not know it was a tent. He would like to know if the Town Clerk had any legal decision as to what was a building.

"The Town Clerk: None, beyond what is described as new buildings. If it remains for more than seven days it becomes a building, and not a tent.

"In defence, Mr. Elliott said the defendant was what was known as a sort of "cheap Jack," and he travelled round the country with a caravan and tent, in which he sold Birmingham hardware and articles of that kind. He had not been to East Ham for six years, his circuit being so large that he did not get round to this favoured district very often. (Laughter.) The defendant had been summoned for setting up a temporary building, but under no circumstances could it be held that this tent was a building. The caravan was on wheels; it was removed from place to place, and was used as a storeroom for the goods to be sold, and nobody ever slept in it.

"His Worship: It was a warehouse or ware tent?

"Mr. Elliott: Yes. Counsel went on to say that the only object of the canvas was that people might come to the defendant's sale without personal discomfort in the winter time. The intention of the Act was not to deal with temporary buildings or tents of that kind, but buildings which might be inhabited, and in which they would have to consider sanitary and other aspects of the case."

The Decision of the Magistrate.

Taking a week to consider his decision, the magistrate, on Thursday, Jan. 27, said that he had thoroughly gone into the questions at issue. His conclusion was that the wording of Section 38 of the East Ham Improvement Act, 1898, was ambiguous. He held the opinion that something was omitted from the Act when drafted, and that now it could not possibly apply to a tent, which was the subject-matter before him. He, therefore, dismissed the summons. Mr. Harrison is to be heartily congratulated on the result, and we trust that his brother auctioneers throughout the country will share the burden of the legal charges, doubtless very heavy, that he has incurred in his plucky fight for liberty to pursue his lawful business without vexatious and unreasonable interference from local authorities.

How Local Authorities Abuse their Powers.

This claim of corporations to control (or prohibit) show business, or similar traders, like travelling auctioneers and itinerant entertainers, is not a new one. Scores of instances could be adduced of persecution of showmen and travelling traders by the threat of bringing actions against them under the local building bye-laws. Faced with the loss of time and money involved in defying such tyranny, showmen—being a long-suffering race—have moved on to another town. Now that Parliamentary defence work is becoming less necessary and less expensive, the Showmen's Guild will be able to give more attention to these cases of local tyranny—for that is what they amount to. With the decision of the Lord Chief Justice in the Higher Court, and the decision of the learned stipendiary in the Lower Court, in the cases under review, to encourage them, the organised showmen will do well to contest all such claims as those of East Ham and Whitley Bay. The preposterous claim that show booths and tents are temporary buildings within the scope of building bye-laws is manifestly unjust, especially when we consider the obvious differences between booths and tents and temporary sheds, warehouses, granaries, and houses for work people on public works. For these latter kind of erections, with necessary drainage and sanitary arrangements, the Borough Surveyor must exercise his office; but for a show booth, an auctioneer's tent, a hoopla circle, or, as the Lord Chief Justice shrewdly put it, for a tent at a garden party, such local control is manifestly an invasion of the liberty of the subject, and in no sense beneficial to the community. Corporations must learn to moderate their ambition; local government is excellent, but only so when it is not abused. Too long have corporations presumed to decide points of law, and, secure in their authority, have thrown the burden of opposition to their misreading of their real legal powers upon the suffering people.

Justice will be Done.

During the extremely important negotiations and interviews at the Home Office with regard to the Cinematograph Act, it became evident that the Home Secretary was not aware that certain corporations did attempt to abuse and overstrain their local bye-laws to injure the show business. In Mr. Horne's evidence before the Select Committee of the House of Lords on the Movable Dwellings Bill the same point was raised, and the committee were incredulous until Mr. Horne adduced instances—he had several at his command—of oppression and tyranny by local authorities. Instances where the statute law was defied because it protected the showman, and the local power to override the law of the realm was asserted, and the Home Secretary himself set at defiance. Local bodies presume to overstrain their powers and throw upon the showman the expense and burden of legal proceedings. The local authorities have the rates to fight with; the poor showman must risk the hard-earned savings of a lifetime in contesting these outrageous claims. Can we wonder that the average man refuses such a risk, and, however galling to his sense of right and wrong, strikes his tent, and moves on to another town more tolerant of his enterprise.

The Dawn of Better Days.

The Showmen's Guild having successfully stopped in Parliament the increase of oppressive local powers, will, we confidently anticipate, soon be financially strong enough to contest these claims of local bodies in excess of the common law. Showmen know that the courts are open to all citizens, and that justice can be obtained, even against mighty corporations, but showmen, like other traders, have their limitations. For over twenty years they have been engaged in stopping the increase of class legislation, whether by public or private Bills. This work was paramount—nothing could be done until this vital work was a visible success. We see the end of this supreme endeavour in the near future. We are not at all alarmed over Handsworth and Middleton. In fact, we rejoice to say that the Middleton Bill is settled; the corporation consents to strike out the objectionable clause. Handsworth must withdraw or fight a losing game. After Oldham last year, it is madness on their part to persevere. When, therefore, the Guild turns its attention, and can give time and money to these cases of petty persecution and intolerable presumption on the part of corporations and their officials, the organised showmen will receive that courtesy—not to say justice—that they are entitled to receive. Such are some of the considerations arising out of the recent legal decisions affecting show booths and tents.

The Annual Meeting at King's Lynn.

THE Guild meeting will take place at the Town Hall, Lynn, on Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 11 a.m. His Worship the Mayor will preside. Alderman Dunn and other gentlemen will be present. The deputation from the Guild will include the president, the chaplain, the hon. secretary, and the Parliamentary solicitor. Important committee meetings will take place the same day, both of the Guild and the British Showmen and Roundabout Proprietors' Union. See advertisements for particulars.

World's Fair.

THE World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, terminates its thirty-first consecutive year to-day (Saturday), Feb. 5, after a most successful run of close on seven weeks. So successful has the season been, that it has beaten all previous records, and there have been some good ones to beat. The introduction of the great Parisian Circus, coming over in its entirety direct from Paris, was an entire innovation from all points of view, and Mme. De Roy has proved herself a most capable directress, under whose direction excellent programmes have been arranged. The numerous artists were all new to London audiences, making their first appearance Dec. 23, 1909. The programmes have been varied so there was always something new to bring before the public each week. The various turns included the leading jockey riders of the world—male and female, liberty and haute-ecole acts, daring bareback riders, jugglers, spiral globe ascensionist, grotesque clowns, ring acts, and novelties. The great aerial shows, always a big leading feature here, are again a popular feature in the programme, the Seven Flying Jordans showing to great advantage, the high, well-illuminated roof showing their thrilling acts off to perfection, as also of the marvellous Polar, in his sensational and novel act "Up the Pole." While the mammoth and well-appointed Skating Rink has proved a popular and much-appreciated attraction in the Gilbey Hall, E. H. Bostock and Wombwell's superb menagerie, with dens of performing animals, has been a popular attraction; also the monster monkey house. The various magnificent side-shows, riding machines, and numerous other attractions, also a well-appointed free ball-room, are amongst the numerous other amusements the energetic lessee, Mr. T. E. Read, has popularised this great London annual show at a sixpenny admission.

FAREWELL GUILD SERVICE AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Following on the successful establishment of the guilds' chapel at the World's Fair during the winter of 1909, the second session of the guild services in the present year has been a most gratifying success. With his usual kindness Mr. T. E. Reed, the lessee of the World's Fair, placed a large room at the chaplain's disposal. Mr. Frank Turner, Miss Turner, and Mr. William Wilson gave great assistance to the chaplain in the necessary arrangements and the visitation of the vans during the Fair. Starting on the first Sunday in the New Year Mr. Horne attended the chapel at 7 o'clock, and was available for private advice and direction to the members of his flock from that hour until the commencement of the service at 8. This quiet time should be seized upon by those needing advice, when the chaplain would be ready to give any assistance within his power. Showmen in difficulties with regard to their business, and with their own life, took advantage of the opportunity and consulted the chaplain. At 8 o'clock every Sunday evening the guild service, with its severely simple and Congregational form, took place. The attendance was increasingly large, Sunday by Sunday, until, upon the occasion that we are now about to chronicle, the chapel was filled with an attentive and devout congregation. It is quite true to say that the greater number of the heads of families at the World's Fair took advantage of this quiet time for devotion and spiritual instruction. The chaplain took for his subject the Gospel story week by week as given in the Holy Gospels appointed by the Church of England. He carefully applied the lessons of the Gospels, Sunday by Sunday, to the special difficulties and temptations of the showman's life, and his ministry of the Word was most obviously acceptable. It is a matter of the greatest possible satisfaction to the guild chaplain to have this opportunity year by year of definitely instructing his people.

The Social Gatherings.

Immediately following the service were social gatherings. These reunions of show people are probably the most effective means of bringing all sorts and conditions of itinerant entertainers together. Probably, too, it is Mr. Horne's best opportunity of inculcating right and practical principles of religion touching the daily life of showland. A special word of praise must be awarded to Miss Turner, whose devotional accompaniment of the hymns and the singing during the services has been most helpful. Miss Turner was also the chief contributor of sacred songs and melodies during the social part of the evening. A very special feature marked the last of these gatherings. Two of the neighbouring clergy, the Rev. N. J. Watters, vicar, and the Rev. C. E. Sills, curate, of St. James', Islington, were present during the latter part of the service and spoke to the assembled show people at the social gathering. Mr. Watters, in returning thanks for his election as hon. local chaplain for Islington, expressed the great sense of honour he felt at being thus appointed. He was already, he said, the hon. local chaplain to the Actors' Church Union, and he felt that the showmen would realise how deep his sympathies were with those who have to entertain the people. He also averred his readiness at all times to minister to the showmen. He wished them to regard him as a friend, and to make use of him and of his church upon all possible occasions. Mr. Sills (who also was elected as hon. local chaplain) followed in the same strain, and evoked considerable merriment by detailing some of his experiences in the theatres and music-halls of both Paris and London. With regard to London he was proud to state that he had seen nothing that the most fastidious could object to, and he was confident that the upward tendency both in the taste of the people, and in the efforts of the amusement providers, was one of the most encouraging signs of the times in which we live. Mr. George Orton, a member of the St. James' congregation, was called upon to speak, and created considerable interest by stating that he was a life-long friend of Mr. Horne (their chaplain), and that more than thirty years ago, when he himself was a travelling show lad, he was a fellow worker with Mr. Horne, first in a marionette show, and then with a ghost illusion. He could claim to be a showman in more senses than one, for until quite recently he had been a nigger minstrel on the variety stage—in fact, for over twenty-five years he had earned his living on the music-hall boards. He assured them that their chaplain (his life-long friend) was a man of the most devoted character and sterling worth. On the motion of the Rev. T. Horne, votes of thanks were passed to Miss Turner, Mr. Frank Turner, Mr. W. Wilson, and Mr. T. E. Reed. The chaplain, in a brief address, referred to the great satisfaction he had had in being able year by year to meet his people at the World's Fair. Their life was bound to be all the sweeter for this opportunity of gathering together in holy worship, praise, and fellowship. The Church of God was the true home of all God's people, be they wanderers or settled residents in great cities. He looked forward to meeting them again next year.

MR. JOHN F. PRESTON and company is at the Hoyland Hippodrome with The Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Dan F. Roe is a manly Arthur Somerton, and Mr. W. Howard Barlow is an excellent Capt. Dudley Clifton. The representation of Joe Flaxman by Mr. John F. Preston meets with approval; Mr. Arthur Hartley as Moses Solomons creates much laughter, and the comedy scenes between Mr. Horace Custens (Sammy Flaxman) and Miss Mabel Fare (Phyllis Wurzel) are very entertaining. A sweet and vivacious Nellie Flaxman is found in Miss Ethel Rainforth, and as Marion Heathcote Miss Mabelle F. Barlow is all that can be desired. Mr. Arthur Wade, Mr. Arthur Lenville, and Mr. Tom Phillips act capably. During the acts latest pictures are given on the Bioscope.

FOR the first three nights of the week Mr. W. Graham Arthurs and company appeared at the Gaiety, Musselburgh, in The Mockery of Marriage. Mr. Arthurs was supported by Messrs. Fred Bentley, Harold Heath, David Phillips, and John Riley; Misses C. Middleton, Kate Hughes, and Mabel Liston.

MR. SAVILE'S pantomime Robinson Crusoe entered on its last week at the Perth Theatre to a large house overflowing with enthusiasm. The pantomime is one of the best of the many Mr. Savile has brought here. On Friday Mr. Savile took his annual benefit.

MR. FRED CONNOR and his circus company finished up a most successful season at the Crystal Palace on Saturday. During their stay the company made quite a host of friends, and the regrets of departure were only equalled by the hopes of a speedy return.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Pageant of the Farmyard.

THE eagerly anticipated Rustic Roller-skating Carnival, to be held on Thursday, Feb. 17, at the American Rink, Selborne-road, Hove, and of which prominent features will be a barn and a big haystack, bids fair to be one of the most picturesque and successful events of the season. Six very handsome prizes—four for costumes having a special bearing on the central idea of the Carnival, and two for other varieties—are being given.

Liverpool Rinking.

THE excellent facilities for roller skating at the Albert Hall, Pudsey-street, continue to be appreciated by large numbers of enthusiastic followers. The Tournament Hall Rink claims to be the fashionable skating rendezvous, and the public flock to this favourite resort in hundreds. The Premier Rink, in Renshaw-street, is also exceedingly popular with "board skimmers." The floor is kept in a capital condition.

Clarke and Morley at Luton.

PROFESSOR CLARKE and Miss Eva Morley were billed at Luton last Thursday, and gave their exhibitions of fancy skating every afternoon and evening. This young couple are very graceful, and delighted everybody. They have been rebooked for another engagement later. Frank R. Sargisson, late manager of the Premier Rink, Grantham, has been appointed manager of the Premier Rink, Luton. A carnival will take place next week.

Gymkhana at Motherwell.

A HIGHLY successful gymkhana was held at the Motherwell Rink on Tuesday evening, an extremely large attendance being recorded. The various events were as follows:—Wheelbarrow race, half-mile race, blind boxing contest, egg and spoon race, musical chairs (ladies), and a half-mile handicap race. Mr. G. Graham Kelly, the courteous rink manager, was clerk of the course, and had the valued assistance of Messrs. W. Dick, R. Cameron (judges), C. Eason (timekeeper), H. Collins (starter), and R. Burns, G. McMillan, T. Robb, R. Stevenson (track stewards). A carnival will be held here a fortnight hence.

Aristocracy at Skating Carnival.

THE Duchess of Portland, Lady Henry Bentinck, Lady Victoria Cavendish Bentinck (the Duchess's daughter), Colonel and Lady Maud Rolleston, and Lady Boot were amongst those present at the skating carnival held last Friday at the Empress Rink, Nottingham. Lady Victoria was one of the merriest, if not the most expert, of the throng of skaters. She is still in the early stages of the art of rinking, but, nevertheless, she succeeded, as few novices in skating can, in preserving grace and dignity, and in her plain evening gown of blue-grey cashmere and silk she was one of the most charming-looking girls on the rink. The Duchess wore a long white fur cloak over her black gown.

Geo. Holt Responsible.

So delighted was the Duchess of Portland with many of the competitors that she added several trophies on her own account. Very interesting to watch was the fancy dancing. The first prize in the two-step competition went to Miss Vera Robinson and Mr. Chapman; that for graceful skating was divided between Miss Green and Mr. Snook, and Miss S. Clayton and Mr. Wallis. The waltzing competition was won by Miss Joyce Edwards and Mr. N. Wallis. From beginning to end the carnival went off splendidly, a result largely due to the efficient arrangements made by Mr. George Holt, the rink manager.

Paisley Gymkhana.

THE Paisley Rink had a most successful gymkhana night on Tuesday, when prizes were awarded to winners in the following events:—Quarter-mile race (ladies), half-mile race (gentlemen), half-mile bicycle v. skates race, balloon race (ladies), quarter-mile race backwards (gentlemen), and a football match on skates between the Glasgow Zoo Rink and the Paisley Rink teams.

Stockton and Sunderland Hockey.

ON Monday last Stockton Royal Rink hockey team journeyed to Sunderland (Cleadon). The first half opened out in favour of the home team, with two goals to none lead at the interval. The visitors were not to be denied, for hardly had they resumed play when they scored, the equalising goal coming a minute later. Play got very exciting, but the visitors held the advantage and scored two more goals. Result: Stockton, 4; Sunderland, 2.

Grand Duke Compliments Skater.

ON an afternoon recently The Skateries, Stoke, was honoured by a visit from the Grand Duke Michael of Russia and the Countess Torby and family. The Grand Ducal party expressed themselves as highly pleased with the rink in every way, and at the special request of the Grand Duke an exhibition of trick and fancy skating was given by Professor Seaton. This gentleman was complimented on his exhibition by the Grand Duke personally.

C.P. Continental Dividends.

THE Crawford Roller Rink at Antwerp has just declared a further dividend of 50 per cent., making in all 83½ per cent. since the opening in October. The Paris Hippodrome has declared a dividend of 30 per cent.

More Rinks, Less Crime.

"THE more skating rinks there are, the less work for police courts." Such, it seems, is the very latest lesson for the social reformer. This great discovery has been made by the Durham magistrate, who, finding that there were no cases for him to try, attributed this happy state of things to the fact that a roller skating rink and a new music hall had been opened in Durham. The Rev. L. B. Currie, chief secretary of the London Diocesan Police Court Mission, says that "nine-tenths of the drinking comes from a desire for social intercourse. People have nothing to occupy their minds. It is the old question of Satan finding work for idle hands; and, if people are not interested in something wholesome, such as roller-skating, they will turn their hands to wrong ends. Every sensible person agrees with the Durham magistrate. Folk who spend their spare time in rinks are far less likely to drift into questionable ways than people who indulge in less desirable recreations. There could be no surer proof of the truth of the Durham magistrate's belief in such counter-attractions than the fact that at the White City, though there were licensed bars, there was not one case of intemperance. There was too much to be interested in for people to commit the 'minor' crime of drunkenness, and from that to drift into major crimes."

MR. ROY COCHRANE has decided to devote the surplus funds from his recent matinée to children and old people at the Surrey to the provision of boots for the poor children of the locality. Of some £100 collected for the occasion there is a balance of about £15, and this Mr. Cochrane intends to offer to the district committee of the various schools in the neighbourhood, so that the money may be properly administered. About 150 packets of tobacco and 100 pipes, which remained after the old people had been provided for, Mr. Cochrane purposes allotting to the Music Hall Home and the Benevolent Fund, while a number of packets of tea will be divided among the Music Hall Ladies' Guild and the Theatrical Ladies' Guild. If such an estimable example were generally followed, it would go far towards keeping our philanthropic institutions supplied with acceptable commodities.

THE COLISEUM.

The second annual general meeting of the Coliseum Syndicate (Limited) was held on Monday at the Coliseum, St. Martin's-lane, W.C. Mr. Oswald Stoll, the chairman and managing-director of the company, presided, and in moving the adoption of the report, said that the accounts showed the earning powers of the company to be large, and that the credit side of the profit and loss account exceeded the total cash capital by £75. A substantial reduction of the debenture stock, which they were able to provide for, greatly enhanced the capital value of the shareholders' security. The extinction of the outstanding preliminary expenses involved a sum exceeding a 6 per cent. dividend, while their investments and cash in hand indicated a strong financial position.

It was obvious that they had had a good year, but as it was unwise either to be too elated in prosperity or too depressed in adversity, they must subdue any excessive gratification they might feel at such results. They had been fortunate in their attractions and in other circumstances that tended to make the year exceptional. Still, there were two grounds on which they might hope to maintain the standard which they had reached. The first was that the Coliseum unquestionably stood higher than ever before in public favour, and had acquired a reputation, almost European, as a first-class place of entertainment. The second was a more tangible fact, namely, that the business up to now for the present year was considerably better than it was for the same period last year.

Mr. F. W. Wyndham seconded the adoption of the report, which was unanimously adopted, and a dividend at the rate of 25 per cent. for the second half of the year was declared.

The retiring directors (Messrs. H. J. Thomas and Frank Allen) were re-elected, as were the auditors.

Upon the proposition of Mr. I. Vachell, seconded by Mr. McAra, and subject to the approval of the shareholders at a meeting to be called, a sum of 300 guineas was voted to the surviving members of the committee of inspection of the old company, and 50 guineas to Messrs. Gillespie Bros. and Co., the auditors, who had assisted in the reconstruction.

A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

SHAKESPEARE AND SPORT.

"There can be no doubt," says Mr. Walter Raleigh in "Shakespeare," "that Shakespeare was minutely acquainted with all the lore of field-sports—the hunt of the hare and the stag, and the capture of smaller game by the falcon. His knowledge of these things, as Mr. Vice-Chancellor Madden has shown, would have done credit to an old huntsman. It is true that here also he uses his knowledge by way of illustration, and so seems to appeal to an audience well versed in the terms of sport. Even Juliet is perfectly accomplished in the tongue:

Hist, Romeo, hist! O for a Falconer's voice
To lure this tassel-gentle back again!

In her beautiful invocation to Night, the quick flushing of her cheeks, as she waits for the sun to set, suggests a whole parable of hawking, and of taming or 'manning' wild hawks as they 'bate' or flutter on the perch, by the use of a velvet hood:

Hood my unmann'd blood, bating in my cheeks,
With thy black mantle; till strange love, grown bold,
Think true love acted simple modesty.

There is no play of Shakespeare's without some of these allusions, and he is as familiar with the points of a horse and the kinds and qualities of hounds and deer as with the forgotten science of falconry. But it would seem that some part, at least, of his knowledge is the knowledge of an onlooker rather than a huntsman. He is true here to his own wide sympathy, and cannot forget the quarry in the chase—true also, perhaps, to his earliest memories. Two of his most wonderful pictures are, first, the description, in As You Like It, of the anguish of the sequestered stag, wounded by the hunters; and, yet more vivid, the picture drawn in Venus and Adonis of poor Wat, the hare, standing erect, in a passion of apprehension, listening for the distant cry of the hounds:

Then shalt thou see the dew-bedabbled wretch
Turn, and return, indenting with the way;
Each envious briar his weary legs doth scratch,
Each shadow makes him stop, each murmur stay:
For misery is trodden on by many,
And being low, never reliev'd by any.

Is not this a description of the hunt as it might be seen by a boy playing truant from school, and choosing a brake near a hill-top as a vantage-ground for observation and concealment?

"As for Natural History in the modern sense, Shakespeare knew little about it, and cared even less. The social life of the humbler creatures did not engage his attention. It has been truly said that he was 'curiously unobservant of animated Nature.' The habits of birds and beasts and fishes seem to come immediately under his eye only when they touch the daily interests of average humanity. When he wants an illustration from animal life for the figurative exposition of his thought, he is content, as often as not, to make use of the commodious lies of picturesque tradition. The toad that wears a precious jewel in his head, the unicorn that is betrayed with trees, the basilisk that kills at sight, the bear-whelp that is licked into shape by its mother, the pelican that feeds her young with her own blood, the phœnix of Arabia, the serpent of Egypt, and the Hyrcan tiger—all these he accepts without question for the decoration of his style. When he deals with creatures nearer home he follows the same plan, and adopts all those popular prejudices which have imbedded themselves in the phrases of daily speech. 'Dog'—except when the dog helps in the chase—he commonly uses as a term of vituperation. Cats are 'creatures we count not worth the hanging.' In these usages he is merely taking words as he finds them, and refusing to impoverish the language of abuse by a forlorn protest on behalf of the goose, the ass, the ape, the dog, or the cat. Even Launce's dog, Crab, makes his bodily appearance on the stage, in The Two Gentlemen of Verona, these ancient prejudices are discarded, and the dog is admitted to fellowship with man. But the wild creatures of the fields and the woods, because they have never run the risk of familiarity with slanderous man, are for the most part outside this argument of rhetorical usage; and are oustide the circle of Shakespeare's sympathetic observation. The encyclopædic and naturalist critics have made plentiful assertions to the contrary; Dr. Brandes, accepting the myth, has praised Shakespeare for his 'astonishing store of natural knowledge,' and his inexhaustible familiarity with the habits of animals. The following are the examples invoked for proof: Shakespeare knew that the greyhound's mouth catches; that pigeons feed their young; that herrings are bigger than pilchards; that trout are caught with tickling; that the lapwing runs close to the ground; that the cuckoo lays its eggs in the nests of other birds; that the lark resembles the bunting. Many a city-bred boy knows all this and more. And these statements are cited because, in the main, they are true. Shakespeare's errors would make a longer tale. His nightingale and his cuckoo are creatures falsified out of all knowledge by the accumulated fables of tradition. The famous passage on the bees, in Henry V., is glittering poetry; but 'as a description of a hive,' says a critic of knowledge and parts, 'it is utter nonsense, with an error of fact in every other line, and instinct throughout with a total misconception of the great bee parable.' Virgil knew something of the bee; Shakespeare little or nothing.

"Shakespeare was a master of language, and a profound student of the human mind. His comparative ignorance of Natural History does him no discredit. There is a story of Canning, which John Hookham Frere told one day to his nephew. 'I remember,' he said, 'going to consult Canning on a matter of great importance to me, when he was staying down near Enfield. We walked into the woods to have a quiet talk, and as we passed some ponds I was surprised to find it was a new light to him that tadpoles turned into frogs. Now,' said the teller of the tale, 'don't you go and repeat that story of Canning to the next fool you meet. Canning could rule, and did rule, a great and civilised nation; but in these days people are apt to fancy that any one who does not know the natural history of frogs must be an imbecile in the treatment of men.'

"If Shakespeare made no minute study of the cat, the nightingale, and the bee, he had the quickest eye for the habits of the vagrant, the watchman of a town, and the schoolmster. He has left us a very realistic picture of an Elizabethan Latin-lesson in the scene of The Merry Wives where Sir Hugh Evans examines little William on his knowledge of Lilly's grammar. The three headmasters who reigned at Stratford from 1570 to 1580 were Walter Roche, Thomas Hunt, and Thomas Jenkins; and Sir Hugh Evans may perhaps bear some resemblance to the last of these. The more elaborately drawn and pedantic Holofernes, in Love's Labour's Lost, and Pinch, schoolmaster and conjurer, in The Comedy of Errors, occurring, as they do, in very early plays, probably owe some hints to the schoolmaster whom Shakespeare knew best, and may thus preserve for us a savour of the ideas and apprehensions 'begot in the ventricle of memory, and delivered upon the mellowing of occasion' by Master Thomas Hunt. Holofernes is the complete academic grammarian. But the extreme gauntness of his visage, so boisterously ridiculed by the courtiers, is only one of many indications that Shakespeare had a lean actor in his early company."

NOTICE.—OPTION CLAUSE.

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having, in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option,

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intentionto exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them.

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists working in the North of England who have odd weeks vacant are invited to communicate with the Local Manager at above Theatre, with a view to arranging a trial week.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

Mr. J. Bowden's (Glasgow) opinion of Selig Films:—

I should like to express myself with regard to the invaluable Selig "Topliners" I have had lately, viz., "Boer War," "Witches' Cavern," "Ben's Kid," &c., and I think, without fear of contradiction, this week's "Up San Juan Hill" is one of the most beautiful and brilliant films I have ever shown.

Released Thursday, Feb. 10.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Edward Compton's annual visit is one of the most eagerly-anticipated events of the theatrical season, and on Monday he celebrated the twenty-ninth anniversary of his company by the production of Davy Garrick.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, by Harold Nuttall's clever company, tops the bill this week, worthily upheld by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas in their fine sketches from Dickens. The other turns are contributed by Linn and Darina, and the Lyric Mummers, with fine operatic selections; the sprightly Juvenile Follies; Hampton and Bauman, coloured artists; Harry Merrylees, Scotch comedian; and the Three Pirmans, clever comedians and gymnasts.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. George Dance's excellent company is playing to crowded houses here in Our Miss Gibbs. The scenery and dresses have been much admired, and the well-balanced chorus deserves every commendation. Miss Elfie Vincent as Mary Gibbs has a charming presence and a fresh and pleasing voice; Miss Florence Hylton is a satisfactory Mrs. Farquhar; Miss Ellaline Thorne a fascinating Mme. Jeanne; and Miss Amy Singleton wins praise for her cultured portrayal as the Duchess of Minster. Miss Lillian Birtles appears with success as Lady Elizabeth; Mr. Vincent Erne causes laughter as Timothy Gibbs; Mr. Eustace Burnaby brings out the humour of the Hon. Hughie Pierpoint; Mr. J. S. Durant is a capable exponent of the professional crook Slithers; Mr. Arthur S. Radcliffe sings and acts well as Lord Eynsford; Mr. Frank Sealey is all that can be desired as Mr. Toplady; and Mr. A. Gordon Begg wins high praise as the Earl of St. Ives.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr Walter Mould.—The great Faludy Troupe of Hungarian acrobats top the bill here; Starr and Leslie are entertaining in their novelty turn; the Cromwells are capital jugglers; and Arthur Gill is a vocalist of much merit. The Four Garricks are received with acclamation in their refined scena; the Brothers Ford, simultaneous dancers, are vociferously encored; the Aiskarno Trio of Risley performers submit a smart turn; and Harris Croome displays his dancing powers to advantage. The Bioscope, with new pictures, completes.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The evergreen East Lynne is being presented by Tom Watt's company, and is as popular as ever. Miss Laura Hansen gives a fine conception of Lady Isobel; Miss Ida Heron as Barbara is well placed; and Miss Isabelle Singleton's Cornelia is an excellent impersonation. Mr. Rayson-Cousens is a clever exponent of Archibald; Mr. W. P. Mansfield as Francis Levison meets all requirements in the heavy lead; and Messrs. Tom Watt, Walter Turnbull, Eric Lugg, Clifford Clifford, Misses Beryl Forbes, Alice Nunn, and Laura A. Pardy are efficient. The humorous element is well sustained by an old favourite, Mr. Joe Rowland as P.C. Bullock. The play is excellently staged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Two Little Vagabonds is presented by Mr. Henry R. Smith's company. As Marion Thornton Miss Dorothy Milne ably portrays the part; good work is also done by Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins; Mr. Frank Beresford as George Thornton displays power; Mr. Renand Lockwood is sufficiently saturnine as Capt. Darville; Mr. Edward Beecher is good as John Scarth; Bill Mullins, "the Gaffer," is in the safe keeping of Mr. Chas. L. Ludlow; and Messrs. Philip Beaufoy and F. Archer are capable as Dido Bounce and the "Cough Drop." Miss Mabel Cooke is a satisfactory Barbara Scarth; and Miss Katherine Maude is well cast as Sister Randall. Dick and Wally, the two little vagabonds, are impressively played by Miss Helen Grenville and Miss Ivy Millais.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—Mr. Wm. Holland's gorgeous version of Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp is here. Miss Helen Charles as Aladdin is full of vigour, and sings and dances well; Miss Poppie Holland as Badroulbadour is clever in all her business, and a lovable Princess; Miss Beatrice Vere as Yum-Yum is very neat and sweet; while Miss Frances Haskoll as Peko makes an ardent lover and a good singer. Miss Queenie Filbury shines as Electra; Bob Selvidge is a crafty Abanazar, and is responsible for a good deal of fun; Kennedy Allen as Wishee-Washee is also a prime maker of fun. The Comedy Chanters are respectively cast as the Emperor and his attendants, Bo-bi and Bo-ko, and keep the audience in a state of merriment; Robb Wilton as the Widow Twankey is absurdly ludicrous without being vulgar.

AYR.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—The Village Blacksmith is being presented here by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company. Mr. Sam Livesey in the title-rôle gives an admirable portrayal; Miss Maggie Edward as Kate Strong plays with much feeling; Mr. Joseph Carter as Captain Leo, the villain, shows ability; Lucas Marler is well treated by Mr. Edwin Maydew; Mr. Fred Haming as a yokel provides much humour; and a feature of the piece is the realistic wrestling match in the last act, between Captain Leo and John Strong.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. George Dance's company is presenting Miss Hook of Holland. The cast is a very good one, and includes Mr. Edmond Russell as Mr. Hook, Mr. Arthur Ballance as Bandmaster Van Vat, Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Ludwick Schnapps, Miss Gertrude Melville as Miss Hook, and Miss Cissie Sephton as Mina Minor. The scenery is exceedingly good.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Smithson.—Albertus and Miller present a scene at the fair ground; the Olympian team of trick cyclists do skilful feats; Briff, Braff, and Broff are exceptionally clever gymnasts; the Bros Curran give a funny boxing act; the Raymond Trio have a refined musical show; Dene and Dixon appear in a drawing-room act, The New Page Boy; Alf. Holt is a fine mimic; Ida Katrena is a typical Dolly Girl; and the Palacescope displays fine pictures.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, in A Girl's Temptation, is here. Miss Gertrude Gilbert gives a pathetic portrayal of Kate Stirling; and Mr. Frank V. Fenn is an earnest Guy Warren; Mr. Clifton Earle is a sufficiently villainous Mark Klaw; and Mr. C. E. Lambert is a good Basile Warren. Mr. Gerald Nolan makes much of Geoffrey Stirling; and Miss Winnie Donovan is a dignified Lady Constance Heathfield. Mr. Dan Hardie is an amusing Sammy Sniggles; and Miss Amy Carlisle a spirited Jemima Josssp.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Wilmot Edson's pantomime, Aladdin, is here. Miss May Fayre is an ideal Aladdin; and Miss Margaret Geddes is a pleasing Princess Badroulbadour. Miss Amy Cooper is a graceful Electra; and Mr. Matt Kilduff is a humorous Widow Twankey. Mr. Bunny Neildon as Wishee-Washee and Mr. Reg. Bolton as Abanazar also contribute to the gaiety of the production. Mr. Charles Clarke as the Emperor of China; and Mr. Cyril Jarvis as the Grand Vizier are both well suited; and specialities are introduced successfully by the Abadorfs and the Three Jewels.

Tivoli.—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Mr. J. Wright Aitken and company top the bill here with a dramatic sketch, The Devil's Hand, all the characters in which are excellently portrayed; Ingram and Irving are very funny in The New Office Boy; Carla and Mirtiana give a clever acrobatic performance; Adelaide Waldorf possesses a charming voice and manner; the Three Coopers contribute a musical humorous medley which is very entertaining; Ugo Nap is a quaint comedian; and George Cardle is a good comedian and capital dancer.

New Hippodrome.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Countess Bekoffska is an accomplished artist, her lightning paintings being much appreciated; Maurice Eyre is a really smart conjurer; Vic is good in a ventriloquial entertainment; Vincent Ellesmere is a very capable baritone vocalist; and Kennedy and Barry are amusing comedians.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Red Riding Hood, with the imprint of the Dalston Theatre to recommend it, is here for a short run. Mr. J. Templar Ellis (the Baron) and Mr. E. W. Avery (Dame Trott) co-operate in some funny scenes; Mr. Dan Seymour works hard as Simple Simon, and Johnny Green and Jimmy Stout have amusing representatives in Mr. Frank Strathan and Mr. Joe Clark; Miss Madge Campbell puts plenty of vim in to her part of Boy Blue; Miss Gertrude Branscombe is a painstaking Miss Muffet; and Miss Beatrice Varley and Miss Marie Dowling are well to the fore as Prince Charming and Marjorie Daw; the Bros. McCluskey cause endless laughter as the donkey and the poodle; the title-rôle is adequately impersonated by Miss Mabel Lamont, and Mr. Steve Asher enacts the Wolf and makes an admirable clown afterwards; Miss Emily London's troupe of children are appreciated for their vocal efforts and dances.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Bromley and Fontein, in their capital and laughter-creating trifle, The Man Behind the Music Stand, and Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, the Stein-Esthor Trio in daring hand-jumping, Victor and Louis, the Golfer and the Caddie, with good vocalism and fun, Josephine Crooke, in illustrated songs, the Carneys, character duettists, and Amy Bathurst, Scotch comedienne and dancer, are the chief attractions here.

Assembly Rooms.—Manager, Mr. W. Lawson Howes.—On Tuesday Miss Kitty Loftus gave two of her recitals, "Songs of Yesterday and To-day" (under the direction of Messrs. Baring Bros.). She was supported by Miss Violet Runciman (soprano), Miss Gwladys Cotterell (violin soloist), Mr. Oldbury Brough (society entertainer), and Mr. George F. Boyle (pianist).

BELFAST.—Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—For this week only, vaudeville here is superseded by grand opera, and to the delight of many admirers the Moody-Manners company opened on Monday a six-nights' engagement with their famous répertoire. Aida was the attraction on Monday. In the title-rôle Mme. De Vere-Sapio achieved a triumph, her numbers being exquisitely rendered; Mr. Joseph O'Mara as Radames invested the rôle with fine dramatic fervour; as Amneris Miss Marie Louise Rogers did full justice to the rôle; and a dignified impersonation of Ramfis was furnished by Mr. Charles Manners, whose reception was especially noteworthy. Mr. Charles Magrath as the King of Egypt furnished a really excellent performance; and nothing but praise must be accorded Mr. Lewys James, who appeared to the utmost advantage as Amonasaro. The chorus (as is usual in this opera company) was perfect, and the augmented orchestra was skilfully conducted by Herr Richard Eckhold. On Tuesday evening Madam Butterfly was staged, with Miss Fanny Moody in the title-rôle; and during the week Samson and Delilah, The Meistersingers, La Tosca, and Carmen have also been presented.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—On Monday a play, entitled Drawing a Girl to Destruction, by Mrs. Morton Powell, was produced here for the first time on any stage. Full report will be found in another column.

Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—For this week only, by arrangement with the Belfast Hippodrome, Ltd., a variety programme has been provided here, headed by John Lawson and company in their well-known sketch Humanity, which was accorded a big reception; the Brothers Horne present their comedy boxing sketch, which takes as well as ever; and, fresh from local pantomime triumphs, Mr. Julian Mack keeps the audience highly amused. The Eight College Girls appear in their vocal and dancing scena School-girls at Play, which is quite a feature of the bill; and the second-sight entertainment of the Days is decidedly interesting. Also on the programme are Ted Cowan, comedian; Baby Myrtle Grove, comedienne; Charles Cardow, comedian; Mr. Tom Lee, comedian; and Bert Davis, male soprano.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The leading attraction here is provided by the Miles Stavordale Quintette, with a first-class musical entertainment; Mr. Tom E. Finglass (assisted by Miss Grace Persee) appears to advantage in his coon melodies, and a hit has been made by Mr. Harry Frisky, a capital comedy juggler. Miss Ethelia Stapley exhibits much ability in her unique entertainment at the piano; and Mr. Ambrose Thorne is a comedian of infinite resource, whom it is a pleasure to listen to. Percival, at the piano, gains deserved approval for his excellent entertainment; and also appearing are Henry Heline, vocalist, from the French Alps; Falco and Elda, in their original act; and the Bioscope under the direction of Mr. J. McGibney.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of the popular manager a fine series of pictures have been presented here, including Laddie, Saved by His Sweetheart, Entombed Alive, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by Mr. Charlie Bignell, one of the best of comedians, and Mr. J. H. Carney, a first-class character comedian with good songs.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Some capital films have been presented here, including Macbeth, His Masterpiece, From Kidnapper to Rescuer, The Widow, Hot Pickles, &c. Mr. Harry Kingswell, comedian, appears at each performance, and his songs have been highly appreciated.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Licensee, Mr. A. L. Owen; Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Tunstall.—The Drama of Life is being reproduced here by Messrs. Lingford Carson and J. R. Barns' company. Mr. Lingford Carson wins unstinted admiration for his clever portrayal of Harry Beech; Walter Beech is admirably sustained by Mr. Archie Helsby; Miss Pattie Hastings is successful as Sylvia Beech; the manager of the company, Mr. Sidney C. Cranston, is highly diverting as Sir Dobson Wilde, being ably seconded by Miss Alice Oliver as Lady Jane.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company, in Lucky Durham, are repeating previous successes. Mr. Edmund Kennedy repeats a faultless performance of the title-rôle, and is greatly appreciated by large audiences; the Hon. Reginald Steighton is admirably impersonated by Mr. Arthur Leigh, whose clever exposition denotes a long familiarity with the part; and the rather up-hill character of Lord Mountfallon is artistically rendered by Mr. William Calvert. The important rôle of Mrs. Durham is finely played by Miss Nellie Bonsor, whose performance is worthy of the highest commendation; Miss Florence Tressillian is a charming Helen Valleron, Miss Dorrie Turner an interesting Hon. Margaret Steighton, and Miss Frances Wolviston an excellent Lady Mountfallon. Mr. Valleron is played with commendable incisiveness by Mr. Charles Wemyss; and the remaining parts are, without exception, in able hands.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Keating.—Mr. Charles R. Whittle is fulfilling one of many return engagements here; an attractive combination also includes Mr. Dave Carter, Irish tenor vocalist; Miss Kitty Colver, vocalist and dancer; Maxwell and Frances, in their vaudeville act; the Eleven Romps, in a musical scena; Phil Parsons, light comedian; Miss Ida Kessanly's highly trained troupe of fox terriers; Mr. Fred Keeton, comedian; Pop Dearly, the dandy coon; and Mr. Walter George's Smart Set (including Miss Georgie Martin, comedienne), in their vocal entertainment. Brown's Royal Bioscope is also an interesting feature.

Hippodrome.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Siey; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company, in a condensed version of Daudet's novel "Sapho," provide a most enjoyable entertainment. Miss Ada Abbott gives a fine rendering of Fanny Legrand, and is excellently supported by Mr. Edward Oriston as Jean Gaussin, Mr. Stephen Crossley as Flament, Mr. John Lester as Caoudal, and the members of the company generally. The Hippodrome pictures diversify the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—This exceptionally large theatre is crowded by an enthusiastic audience at each performance of Jack and the Beanstalk, and a record run for pantomime is anticipated.

Prince of Wales.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. P. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—The Babes in the Wood continues to run smoothly, and business has never been better than at the present time.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—As predicted in these columns a fortnight ago, the record-breaking Aladdin pantomime will run fourteen weeks, the last night having been fixed for April 2. The bookings continue to be heavy. Cull Pitt, now completely recovered from his throat trouble, has considerably strengthened the comedy business in the rôle of Abanazar, and the Brothers Brookes have introduced new business, which illustrates their versatility and cleverness.

Palace Theatre, Bordesley.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—A strong and capable company is presenting the popular drama, Her Road to Ruin, before crowded houses. Miss Ada Champion gives a striking impersonation of Jess Willoughby and Mr. Alex Bradley takes full advantage of his opportunities for fine acting as Philip Hardy. Mr. Charles Dicken as Frank Temple and Miss Maud Gill as May Willoughby also merit high commendation; Mr. Kendrew Wilson is entertaining as Tom Wells; and Miss Mabel Coleman gives an effective representation of a fallen woman; Miss Grace Emery and Mr. Harry Talbot also do good work.

Metropole.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. H. Taylor.—Mr. Frederick Melville's clever drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, is delighting good audiences here. Mr. Louis Hector takes the character of George Maddison, the inventor and his acting is characterised by great skill. He has a clever partner in Miss Alice Bowes, who takes the part of Lucy. Mr. W. H. Porter as Charles Devereux gives an excellent representation of the typical villain; and Miss Grace Lester also achieves distinction as Lady Lucretia Lancaster. Other prominent characters are presented by Miss Gladys Newcombe, Miss Sybil Hare, Mr. Fred De Vere, and Mr. T. Macdonald.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. R. Hewitson; Manager, Mr. F. Martin Morris.—A welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in Hall Caine's play, The Prodigal Son. The production is well mounted, and the company is a capable one. Mr. S. Herbert Humber is well suited to the part of Oscar Stephenson; and Mr. Hugh Montgomery does admirable justice to the character of Magnus. Mr. Ernest Rivers is clever as Stephen Magnussum; and Miss Barbara Gott affords a good study as Anna, his wife. Miss Valerie Crespin undertakes the double rôle of Thora and Elin with great credit; and Miss Hetty Castle is effective as Helga. The remaining characters are well sustained.

Carlton Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. J. W. Cordiner's company, in the musical novelty, Dare-Devil Dorothy, is proving a good attraction. The company is a capable one, and includes Miss Gertrude de Lacy in the title-rôle; Mr. George A. Fox makes a capital hero; and Mr. Robert Gilbert cleverly sustains the heavy rôle; Miss Kathleen Stewart is successful as Ruth Montrose; and Miss Nellie Harcourt and Mr. James Salter introduce plenty of refreshing humour. A feature of the piece consists of several clever speciality turns, which comprise singing, dancing, and comedy.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—The Great Raymond heads a strong bill, and loud applause follows each of his mystifying and magical acts; Bellonini, who deputises for the Belleiair Brothers, acrobats, performs some clever and novel juggling feats; Mr. Alfred H. West finds favour with a performance of his famous "Patrol"; a pleasing entertainment is provided by Richard Corbin's dogs; Ernie Garner, a Black Country dialect comedian, is a big favourite; Woods Wells, and Wilkins score in their comedy sketch, The Piano-tuner; and a clever and graceful lady dancer appears under the name of Dancit.

THE GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—The principal feature of a capital programme is Buonaparte's Boy, a dramatic playlet, the chief character in which is represented by Juan Buonaparte, a direct descendant of the great Napoleon. A pretty Oriental scena, entitled A Vision of Japan, staged by O Hana San and company, is a brilliant success; Dutch Daly is accorded warm receptions; Bruin performs sensational juggling and balancing feats; quaint and versatile comedians are George Carney and Frank Armstrong. Others on the bill are Siems, a smart card and coin manipulator, the Cavalotti Brothers, Harry M. Helmsley, Giovanni Wals, and Mina Denvil.

GAIETY.—General-Manager Mr. Albert Bushell.—Alice Hollander is responding nightly to enthusiastic encores for her delightful rendering of pleasing songs; the Bouncing Dillons are comedy gymnasts, who are responsible for an exceptionally clever performance; a dramatic sketch, entitled The Fatal Rehearsal, is ably performed by Helmsley and Ambrose; the Four Black Diamonds contribute largely to the success of the programme; Tennyson and Wallis have some exceedingly funny business; Alf. Chester has an amusing football song; Pim and Benson perform adequately in their comedy act, Lady Jane; the Great Cynthia is an interesting turn; and a charming comedienne is Queenie May.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Baldry.—Mlle. de Vernenil and a company of pretty and graceful ladies appear in a series of artistic poses, and greatly delight crowded audiences; roars of laughter and applause pay tribute to the excellent entertainment provided by Velanche's dogs, their football match being exceptionally funny; James and Jenny Jee perform daring cycling and slack-wire feats; Godfrey James, described as the "singing collier," is an accomplished vocalist; the Paolias are responsible for a clever athletic act; Buddha's Blackboard is a mystery; Bill and Bailey have some clever and up-to-date comedy business; eccentric acrobatic tricks are performed by the Ted Moxom Trio; Osborne and Brooks are humorous entertainers; and C. Colbert gives a smart exhibition of juggling and hoop-manipulation.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—One of the most successful pantomimes seen here this season is being produced by Cullen and Carthy's company entitled The Babes in the Wood. These two well-known comedians appear as the Robbers, and introduce plenty of good gags and original humour. Miss B. Cohen is popular as Robin Hood; and Miss M. Ford makes a charming Maid Marian. The comedians also include Mr. A. Stratton, Little Cluley, and Mr. T. Drew, who earn much applause. The Babes are the Misses D. Cullen and E. Jordison. Clever specialities are introduced by Miss Cohen, the Granada Quartette, and others in the cast.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—The boards are occupied here by Mr. Harry Tilbury and Co. in His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. A. George Fry is a capital exponent of Frank Lindon; Mr. Fred Owen plays Neil Locksley cleverly; and a good Tom Redman is that of Mr. Edwin Brown. Mr. Tilbury is an amusing Micky Doolan, and Miss Belle Tilbury a fascinating Florence Lindon. On Thursday and Friday nights My Native Land was to be presented.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—The Five Whiteleys give a fine exhibition as acrobats and wire walkers; the two Sovereigns will undoubtedly have a long reign as one-legged equilibrists; J. C. Scatter in his Tyne-side dialect and singing turn is very successful indeed; Steve Bartle is a good concertina soloist; and Harry Simms does well as a comedian. The Northern Troupe provide a most interesting turn, their dancing being excellent; Miss May Newall possesses great vocal powers; and the Hipposcope terminates a capital bill.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Royal and Hippodrome Co., Blackburn; Governing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Miss Hook of Holland, presented by an excellent company, supported by a tuneful chorus, is a deservedly-popular attraction. As Sally Miss Marie Studholme excels. She is very dainty, and comes in for a good reception. Mr. Alfred Wellesley as Mr. Hook is greatly successful, and his humour delightful; Miss Maud Deney as Mina sings very prettily; Mr. Lacey Mills as Van Vuyt and Mr. Frederick Hobbs both act and sing powerfully; and Mr. J. Lyne's interpretation of Simon Slinks, the loafer, is clever.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The Five X Rays give a very amusing athletic turn; Amy Anderson and company are mirth-provoking in their comedy act, The Banana Queen; Rauschle presents a clever series of impersonations of great men, past and present; Nora Desmond sings prettily, her songs being illustrated by fine pictures; Mona Vivian is one of the best juvenile artists, and quickly gains favour; Ruby Dahl, in Merry Mannikins; Margit and Lener, comedy acrobats; and Chas. Vincent comedian, are successful.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—An excellent and well-varied programme is supplied here by Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company. Moths was the attraction on Monday, when Mr. Raynor gave a capital study of Lord Jura, and Miss Cecilia Dare appeared with considerable success as the Duchess de Sonnaz. Prince Zouroff was creditably enacted by Mr. Clinton Baddeley, whilst Correze found a capital exponent in Mr. Conrad Heywood. Miss Frances Waring as Lady Dolly, Miss Millicent Granville as Vere, and Miss Hilda Blanche as Fuchsia Leach also gave the utmost satisfaction. The Idler was played on Tuesday with Mr. Raynor as Mark Cross, a character to which he is well suited. The part of General Merryweather found a skilful exponent in Mr. Joseph B. Montague, whose sterling ability is well known in Blackpool. Another character that stood out for special mention was the Mrs. Glynn Stanmore of Miss Georgie de Lara, who came through a difficult part triumphantly. Miss Cecilia Dare was very good as Lady Harding, and Mr. Milton C. Curtis creditably depicted Sir John Harding. The other parts were in able hands. Young Mrs. Winthrop was played during the latter part of the week.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The juggling McBans give a wonderful performance here; Cassie Walmer's eccentric vocal efforts are provocative of admiration; clever turns are also supplied by Austin Temple, magician, Helen Martin, vocalist, Jack Lorimer, Scotch comedian, the Zanfrellas, balancers, the Belmonts, dancing stars, and Stella Stahl, comedienne and dancer.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur. — Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here in The Luck of Roaring Camp, in which all the characters are well portrayed, special mention being due to Mr. Douglas Murray as Will Gordon and Miss Elizabeth Dundas as Nell Curtis.

GRAND THEATRE (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime of Dick Whittington is being presented here to two crowded houses nightly. Miss Ethel Campbell admirably plays the part of Dick; Miss Tina Franks is well placed as Alice; Miss Ivy Proudfoot, who acts well as Viscount Piccadilly, is well supported by Miss Phyllis Seymour as Molly; Mme. C. Boardman is a good Fairy Sunshine; Miss Ethel Haidee deserves mention for her part of Princess Amaranth; and the humorous element is in the capable hands of Mr. Albert Williams as Sarah the Cook, Mr. Deane Tribune as Jack Idle, and Jack Hodgson as Alderman Fitzwarren. Mr. Tom Gilmore gives a good representation of the Cat. The Pauline Rivers Troupe and the Merry Mill Girls supply specialities in dances.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bolton), Ltd.; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris, American Comedy Duo, are here in The Adventures of a Happy Tramp. Other turns include Dainty Dolly Clyffe, child comedienne; Jimmy Shields, one-legged dancer; Walter Barrett, Lancashire baritone; Comical Walker in a knockabout act; the Bros. Lawrence in their vocal and dancing act, All Scotch; Globella, on the rolling globe; Les Delomes, troupe of juvenile vocalists and dancers; and Charles M. Daly and company in the miniature comedy, Men Are Deceivers Ever.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROMES, LTD.—Joint-Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. A. Burdett.—Harry Champion receives hearty applause for his humorous songs; the Seven Perezoffs are very interesting in their unique comedy juggling act, An Animated Supper at Maxim's; the Falcons are a clever pair of comedy acrobats; Minnie Leslie and Edgar Stevens are successful in their comedietta, Love Levels All; Lilian Rose is a popular comedienne; Westbrook Trio in a novelty dancing scena, Two Little Maids from School, and Dick Kendall, comedian and eccentric dancer, together with the up-to-date Hippo. pictures, complete.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Large and appreciative audiences continue to patronise Mr. Hart's delightful pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, which grows in popularity at each representation.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. M. Hamilton.—The pantomime, The Forty Thieves, is having a merry run here, good houses being still the rule.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Chanti, a protean artist and dancer of exceptional ability, presents a delightful entertainment, introducing many novel and clever mechanical features; Cruikshank is here again with his mirth and music, funny and entertaining as ever; Violet Stockelle, comedienne, contributes in dainty style; the Casey Army (with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey) provide a lot of rough-and-tumble fun with the street urchins' battle in a backyard; the Four Coloured Meisters combine humour with harmony; Hinton and Wooton, in a clever football match on bicycles, win hearty applause; in an eccentric style Larry Lewis sings funny songs, which elicit much laughter; with her "Miniature Vaudeville Theatre" and cleverly manipulated marionettes Mlle. Haydee proves highly entertaining; a clever triple horizontal bar performance, introducing daring and novel tricks, is presented by the Brothers O'Brien; Edie Reynolds elicits hearty applause for her cleverly executed violin solos; and there are some fine pictures shown by the Bioscope.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Wyze and Adma contribute to an excellent programme a capital little operetta; acceptable comic vocalism is submitted by Willie Long and Tom Yorke, comedians; Enzer, the soldier juggler, and Miss Clarice give a fine exhibition in juggling and ju-jitsu wrestling; Webb and Branston contribute vocal duets with success; the harmony of the Columbia Trio is of excellent quality, and their humour very laughter-provoking; Morny Cash is a diverting comedian; Bonetti and Corri elicit roars of laughter with their comic juggling; and the Palace Perfection pictures prove a most acceptable item of the evening's entertainment.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The event of the winter season here has been the four performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, The Gondoliers, given by the Bridlington Operatic Society. The artists have been trained by Mr. Tunbridge, and each one gave a creditable representation. The chorus was especially fine, and Mr. Bernard Johnson acted as conductor. The company were rewarded each night with crowded audiences.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Robinson Crusoe is still attracting crowded houses here. Miss May Mars, who, by ballot, has been voted a handsome box of chocolates awarded to the most popular artist in the local pantomimes, gives an artistic impersonation of Robinson Crusoe; Miss Violet K. Orme makes a graceful and pleasing Polly Perkins; and the humorous element is delightfully sustained by Mr. Dave O'Toole (Mrs. Crusoe), Messrs. Saunders and Lyons (Corkscrew Bill and Captain Kuttle), and Mr. George Campbell (Billy Crusoe). The performance on Thursday evening was set apart as a complimentary benefit to Messrs. Saunders and Lyons.

ALHAMBRA. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Prominent among the attractions here is Graham's Masterpiece, or the Music Hall of 1875 and 1910, a very effective turn, which, with its vaudeville entertainments, is warmly appreciated; Russell Carr, ventriloquist, also merits warm praise; Les Arabellias are smart performers on the wire; Fannie Humbert contributes a refined musical act; the Two Les Terres are well received in song and dance; Charles Sloman is a good character comedian; Reginald Jecks sings in capital style; George Lennard is popular in song and dance; Morris and Mills, comedians, win hearty applause; Nellie Dallwood is a pleasing comedienne; and the Great Mars is a smart comedy gymnast.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—Harry P. Selwyn's company win enthusiastic applause for their artistic treatment of the condensed version of the Drury Lane drama, The Flood Tide; Jack G. McLallan and May Carson are a pair of very smart skaters; Davis and Gledhill submit an exciting cycle race, in which they are paced by a motor cycle; the Tennessee Coloured Guards display remarkable precision in their drill; Elroy, the armless wonder, gives an interesting turn; Bessie Mackenzie, Scotch fisher girl vocalist, is warmly applauded; Brent Hayes is a clever banjoist; the Gascoignes are capital comedy jugglers and equilibrists; Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, is well received; and Scott and Whaley, coloured comedians and dancers, merit praise. Under distinguished patronage a matinée entertainment was given on Tuesday in aid of the Brighton Police-aided scheme for clothing destitute children, and attracted a crowded audience. By the kind permission of the managements of the Brighton Grand Theatre, Alhambra, and Hipodrome, artists from those houses appeared, and sustained a programme which lasted nearly four hours. The duties of musical-director were shared by Mr. J. Melville Gillies, Signor G. D. La Camera, and Mr. A. Baker. Mr. Harry Clark acted as stage-manager, and the general arrangements were carried out under the direction of Mr. Bertram J. Brown, the resident-manager of the Brighton Hippodrome.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company are here this week, with A Cigarette-maker's Romance. Mr. Ernest E. Norris achieves complete success with his masterly impersonation of Count Skariatine, the cigarette-maker; Miss Muriel Dole gives a charming and refined enactment of Viera; the villainous Anton Skariatine is ably represented by Mr. J. Benson North; Mr. Edward S. Petley merits high praise for his embodiment of Dumnoff; Mr. Herbert Lancely makes an admirable Schmidt; Miss Clara Nicholls is well placed as the "grey mare," Akulina, whose hen-pecked husband, Christian, is admirably portrayed by Mr. Edward Boddy.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Tuesday last was an "extra special" night here, the performance of Mother Hubbard being honoured with the presence of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Bristol, the High Sheriff, and a number of Aldermen and members of the Corporation and civic officials. The Lady Mayoress was presented by Mr. Chute with a handsome bouquet, and programmes printed on satin were handed to the principal visitors. The house was full in all parts, and the performance went remarkably well.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Carpenter's Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Full houses continue the rule at each performance, thus evincing the great popularity of this season's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe. The programme is carried through with remarkable smoothness, and much credit is due to the admirable and hard-working company for the high pitch of excellence attained.

PALACE.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Tan-Kwai Troupe of Chinese head the programme with their very clever acrobatic speciality act. George C. Doughty and Molly Laney are highly successful with their comedy duologue A Woman's Way; Joan Deering is an accomplished violinist and a charming vocalist, and her character impersonations are really clever; Tom Drum and Kate Major amuse with their comedy skit The Broker's Man; Hattie Petro and Pete Leon, comedy gymnasts, perform several sensational feats; Harold Heath, comedian and dancer, is successful; Dolly Golden scores as a speciality dancer; the Two Errols are successful with their novel comedy leaping act; and Walter Wade, mimetic comedian, obtains much approbation. Animated pictures conclude.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Whit Cunliffe, light comedian, is highly successful; Gertrude Bibby admirably presents her protean dramatic sketch Bonnie Prince Charlie, impersonating five distinct characters with marked ability; the Malcolm Cumming Trio amuse with their comedy sketch A Tooth for a Bride; Della Ray, burlesque artiste is successful; Unita and Paul do well with their comedy gymnastic speciality; Nellie Denver is a clever speciality dancer; the Gillings are smart comedy acrobats; Lena Pinaud is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Ike and Will Scott entertain with song, patter, and simultaneous dancing. The performance closes with animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. James Cramer; Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Leah Kleschna is here again, presented to a good house on Monday by H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. Miss Bessie Rignold is excellent in the title-rôle; Mr. William Clayton skilfully presents Kleschna; Mr. Chas. Barrett succeeds in making Paul Sylvaine a good study; Raoul Berton is well impersonated by Mr. Algernon J. Hicks; Schram is a clever piece of work by Mr. Graham Pockett; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne does well as the General and also as Valentine Favers; Mr. Bert Gunther (Anton), Mr. Bernard Rale (Johann), and Miss Madge Beresford (Sophie) are entrusted with much comedy business. Miss Ethel Russell as Madame Berton and Miss Emmie Wallace as Clare Berton are charming. The elaborate staging is excellently carried out.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Beauty and the Beast is doing excellent business here. Mr. Fred Granville's company is a good one, and well selected. Mr. Frank Daleno provokes the greatest mirth with his facial expressions; and Mr. Sammy Foster and Mr. Albert Juan give excellent specialities, interspersed with good fun. Miss Hilda de Grey is a pleasing comedienne; and the Keebles are applauded for song and dance; Mr. Edward Stream also contributes to the general hilarity; and Baby Boden is young and clever.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The outstanding turn here is Maria Racko and partner in a wonderful performance of balancing acrobatics. Miss Mabel Mavis wins much favour for musical glasses and piano solos; and Maud Lordys demonstrates the ability of a clever troupe of dogs. Blanche and Zeyna present a smart trick cycle act; and George S. Melvin is a clever dancer. A pretty scena, full of smart dancing and good songs, is presented as "Haley's Garden of Girls"; and Tom E. Hughes, comedian, is as popular as ever. The Empire Theatrescope concludes.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The turn provided here by the Lafaille acrobats introduces some new and difficult business; the Milsted-Bell Trio provoke roars of laughter with Three Sharps and a Flat; and Harry Weldon makes a welcome reappearance with his "Dick Turpentine." Geoffreys and Benson introduce a laughable sporting sketch; and Dolly, Agnes, and Maud sing some sweet trios. Lightning songs are given by Herbert Rule; and Steel and Laing are smart dancers and vocalists.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague-Body.—Cinderella, by Mr. Chas. Kiddie's company, is drawing good houses. In the title-rôle Miss Kitty Avery is dainty and pleasing; Miss Edie May is a capital Prince Perfect; Miss Lily Evans a great favourite as Dandini; and Miss Ada Tyrroll, Miss Annie Casey, and Miss Pollie Kiddie render valuable assistance, the latter being responsible for some clever dancing. Miss Fannie Douglas is a capable Fairy Godmother; and a quartette of comedians (whose every appearance is the signal for roars of laughter) is composed of Mr. Leslie Hawkins (Baron), Mr. Harry Bliss, and Mr. W. G. Wesley (the Sisters), and Mr. Harry Hutlin (Pimples).

BURY (Lancs).—ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's company opened here on Monday with Mother Goose to a large and enthusiastic audience. As Colin Miss Ethel Hall is an ideal principal boy, and Miss Vena Valma is a charming Jill; Mr. Harry Rich, a clever and resourceful comedian, is responsible for considerable merriment as Mother Goose, and his efforts are ably seconded by Charles Rich as Jack; Mr. Fred Barnes as Lord Pudsey renders several light numbers in excellent style, and Mr. Henry Dare is to be complimented upon his effective burlesque as Wibsey Slack; Charles Lee as Mayor of Tapham and Charles Homer as the Demon do good work. Miss Violet Romaine possesses a capital voice, which she uses to full advantage in her solos as Fairy Queen; Miss Lola Patey's clever performance as Gretchen is one of the outstanding features of the pantomime. The mounting leaves nothing to be desired. An augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Sydney Shaw.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—A complete change of pictures continues to be well patronised, and in addition excellent turns are given by Elsie Claire, vocalist, and Henri Bekker, conjurer, assisted by La Bele Maie.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Sydney Girls are top turn in a scena entitled A Garden Party, in which songs, concerted numbers, and dancing are introduced with complete success; as a light comedian Tony Freedman is well received; Jordan's Simian actors, in an act played by monkeys and dogs, supplies a novel turn; Lena Brunton presents clever impersonations of well-known music hall stars, that of Vesta Tilley being particularly good; Miss Ada Oxley as a factory lass appears to distinct advantage in a sketch entitled Making a Lady of Her, in which she is ably assisted by Mr. Philip Orr and Miss Agnes Kingsley; W. B. Raby is a comedian with a distinctive style; Fallows and Beaumont are successful in a vocal comedy act; one of the best and most enjoyable turns is that of the O-K-dians, in a miniature musical comedy under the direction of Kenneth Lyle and Percy Tarling; Misses Hilda Cross and Gertie Howarth, Messrs. Arthur Bravo and G. Speed are all accomplished vocalists, and Percy Tarling supplies the comedy as the Bus-man.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's company in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch has drawn large and delighted audiences. Mr. Frederick Forrest plays Mr. Stubbins with considerable skill; Mr. Norman Clifton is quite satisfactory as Mr. Bob; Mr. Walter Hicks and Mr. Sydney Carlyle are well placed as Billy Wiggs and Chris Hazy; Mr. Harry Wright (H. H. Jones), Mr. Robin Shiels (Sheriff), and Mr. Ernest Ruston (Mr. Wiggs) all give good performances. As Mrs. Wiggs Miss Sophie Lingwood could scarcely be improved on; the quaint conceits and lovable traits of the character are done full justice to. Miss Rita Carlyle gives an undeniably clever sketch of Miss Hazy; the same remark applying to Miss Beatrice Bell and Miss Violet Vivian as Mrs. Eichorn and Mrs. Schultz. Lovey Mary is daintily played by Miss Ruhamah Catton; Miss Rhoda Beresford is pleasing as Miss Lucy; and Asia, Europena, and Australia are an agreeable little trio in the hands of the Misses Marie Stella, Mollie Shiels, and Dutchie Forsyth.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A good reception was accorded The Flag Lieutenant on Monday, when Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company began a welcome return visit. Mr. Edgar Kent is the Richard Lascelles, and a particularly bright and breezy portrayal this talented artist succeeds in presenting; Mr. Montagu Love gives the necessary emphasis to the part of Major Thesiger; Mr. George Mallett makes the rôle of Admiral Sir Berkeley Wynne fit him like a glove; and the Irish telegraphist Michael Pallister is enacted very naturally by Mr. John Wheatman. Miss Florence Jackson as Mrs. Cameron is as charming and graceful as ever; Miss Dorothy Ripley is a fascinating Lady Hermoine; Miss Winifred Vallant (Viola Hood), Miss Stella Leigh (Mrs. Gough-Bogle), and Miss Ada Clarke (Lady Dugdale) have characters which they very successfully impersonate. Horatio Hood and Dormer Lee are cleverly undertaken by Messrs. Hugh Wakefield and Olaf Hytten; while praise is due to Mr. Geo. Percy for his Walter Crutchley, and to Mr. Lionel Isted for his General Gough-Bogle.

THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Graham Morrison; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay.—The management here started the season with the ever-welcome drama Alone in London, for which Mr. Chas. Gibbon's company is responsible. Miss Nellie Clyde gives a dramatic delineation of Nan, the flower girl, and a more plausible, prepossessing, and enticing villain than Mr. Gerald Jordan's Dick Redcliffe it would be difficult to find; Miss Lena Vernon is a graceful and captivating Ruth Clifton; Tom Chickweed is pathetically played by Miss Laura O'Neill; Mr. J. Vernon Shaw is dignified as Mr. Burnaby; and capital portrayals are given by Mr. J. Wilkinson, Mr. Chas. Gibbon, Mr. Cecil Renton, and Mr. Russell Norrie. Mr. Frank Caffrey as Charlie Johnson and Miss Carrie Young as Liz Jenkinson are very humorous.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Heading a strong programme is the Jewels' latest spectacular production The Haunted Castle, which is a marvel of stage-craft and full of interest. Mr. James Jewel as the Miser and Mr. Herbert Jewel as the sailor Joe Dunn display considerable histrionic ability, being supported by a company of clever artists. A novel turn is submitted by Morgan and Wiser, whose boomerang hat-throwing is marvellous; Miss Margaret Parker presents with considerable success a humorous and sentimental sketch entitled Lucky Jim, in which Miss Parker herself impersonates the title-rôle in a very effective manner, capably aided by a strong company; Les Romanis, talented instrumental artists, are to be congratulated upon their unique entertainment; while Annie Fielding and Bert Hall have diverting musical comedy sketches. The Althornes obtain considerable applause for a fine athletic performance; and Gitto, Welsh phenomenon vocalist, gives a good exhibition of his powers. Billy Hobbs, exceedingly smart coon singer; Jennie Hartley, with pleasing songs and difficult dances; and a Bioscope film, are also on the bill.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—Mr. Adderley Howard is presenting his successful nautical spectacle Black-ey'd Susan. Mr. Howard gives a forcible rendering of William, and is supported by a strong company. Seener and Fridkin's troupe of Russian singers and dancers prove to be experts in their particular line; Leoni de Lusanne, lady champion rifle shot, once more gives her marvellously clever performance; while the Wedburns are talented comedians, vocalists, and instrumentalists; Alice Gill, vocalist; Johnny Dwyer, character comedian; Alice Lingard, comedienne; and the usual Bioscopic pictures complete.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—A return visit of Mr. Charles Harrington's company, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, is the attraction here, and is evidently as popular as ever. Company, scenery, and effects are excellent, and the variety turns introduced in the Plantation scene are clever and entertaining.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is appearing here in The Girl who Lost Her Character. Miss Doris Brookes gives an able portrayal of the title-rôle; as the unscrupulous Capt. Caversham Mr. Richard Ferris is excellent; Miss Lydia Mannington plays with ability as the adventuress Marion Franklyn; Mr. Cecil Mannering makes a manly Jack England; Mr. George Daiper, an effective John Sutton; Mr. Joseph Millane imparts much dignity to the character of the Rev. Robt. Everton; and Mr. Raymond Chester is a typical Detective Weathersby. Miss Maggie Hobart makes a sweet and charming Rose Seymour. Most of the fun centres round the personality of Dick Purvis, well played by Mr. George H. Asquin, whose efforts are ably seconded by Miss Mamie Thorpe as Isabella Jones. Red Cabbage is satisfactorily played by Mr. John Dixon.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—Heading the bill here is Valvero, who cleverly draws in colours battleships in action; Jack Truman has a tenor voice of excellent tone; Bert Welda and Dorothy Wynne, comedy jugglers and sand dancers, score an unqualified success; as an extra turn Mysticus myetifies the audience with his amusing skit on spiritualism; Jas. Brady raises many a hearty laugh with his funny songs; an agreeable turn is provided by the Lynches with illustrated songs; the Carlo and Male trio, as eccentric knockabouts and tight-rope walkers, are the recipients of loud applause; Edmund Caselli gives some clever selections on the banjo; and the Hamiltons sing duets in a pleasing manner.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—George Leyton tops the bill here, and arouses the utmost enthusiasm by his spirited interpretation of The Roll Call, in which scena he is supported by a number of Crimean veterans; Ted Karno and company give a rough-and-tumble sketch, entitled A Week-end at the Hotel de Quick; Jim Cheetham's whistling is much admired; Lacey's Erascope has an interesting film in The Veteran's Story. Other turns announced are Siegel and Fields, variety entertainers; Frank Early, comedian; Rastus and Amber, in comedy act; and Alice Dora, comedienne.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. George Humphries.—Cliff Ryland patters in his old way, to everyone's delight; May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, makes a bigger hit than ever; Viviana and company, in their dancing scena, The Toy Shop, thoroughly please all; the Loretties contribute an act on the double trapeze; and others appearing are Leoville, lady wire walker; Ernest Clifford, comedian and dancer; and Lilian Durand, ballad vocalist.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—We have a welcome change here this week in The Gay Gordons, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour. Mr. William Greene displays considerable talent as Angus. Mr. Edward Carlton plays Nervy Nat in capital style. Miss Clarice Lockstone gives a charmingly vivacious rendering of Peggy, and Miss Mabel Dent is really capital as Victoria Siddons. Miss Florrie Groves as Charlotte Siddons, and Miss Tessa D'Alberti as Mary M'Leod, are also good in their respective rôles.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Stuart Lomath's company in Whom God Hath Joined opened a six nights' engagement here on Monday to a bumper house. Mr. Lomath himself played the exacting part of Captain Merritt, and acquitted himself in good style; Mr. Lancelot Usher made a very popular character of the "stonebroke" Digby Trant, notwithstanding his lack of moral sense; Mr. Jack Miller did well as Richard Manley; and as the villain, Major Stevens, Mr. Arthur E. Pringle was acceptable. Miss Helena Walbran did good work as Marian; Miss Amy McNeil creditably depicted Beatrice Trant; and the juvenile parts of Teddy and Frankie were well taken by Miss Ethel F. Greene and Miss Dorothy Booth.

HIPPODROME.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is doing good business here, the company, under the auspices of Mr. Gaston Mayer being a capital one. Miss Sophie Lingwood as the cheery, optimistic Mrs. Wiggs gave a real good rendering; Miss Rita Carlyle as Miss Hazy was the drollest of characters; Mr. Frederick Forrest gave an exceptionally good portrayal of Mr. Stubbins; Miss Beatrix A. Bell and Miss Violet Vivian were capital as Miss Eichorn and Mrs. Schultz respectively; Miss Ruhamah Catton made a pretty figure of Lovey Mary. The last half of the week is being given over to that charming play The Little Damozel.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. Curdwell's pantomime company is here this week. As Robin Hood Miss Marie Lumberg is a great success; Miss Winifred Norman as Maid Marion is well received; Little Peggy McDonnell and Miss Cissy Wise as the Babes call for the highest praise; and Mr. J. Watson as Nurse Lovejoy and Messrs. Graham and Barron as the Ruffians cause a continual roar of laughter. Interesting specialities are introduced by Mr. Jimmy Watson, Winifred Norman, Harry Fullett, and Neil Hardy.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here in The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Bert Beswick as Jim Cheese provokes much laughter; Mr. Herbert St. John as the lover fills the part successfully, his singing gaining great approval; Mr. Arthur Hyde as the Hon. Crew Boodle gives an acceptable rendering; Miss Blanche Kenross as Daisy Fallowfield and Miss Lily Gullick as Elphin Haye, the lovelorn maidens, sing and act well; as Liza Shoddam Miss Ada Waugh is capital. The orchestra, under M. Pierre de Reeder, does its work well.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—Premier place is given to Les Piccolinos, midget performers, who go through a number of difficult feats of wire-walking, sharp-shooting, and trick-cycling; Daisy Stratton, comedienne and dancer, is very pleasing; Margaret Ashton, comedienne, also proves a success; Shang Hai, Chinese magician, is original and clever; the Three Brothers Huxter provide a clever acrobatic performance; Cardo's shadowgraphic turn is well received; Victoria Dagmar does a smart gymnastic act; James McBain, Scotch comedian, contributes capital songs; and the Palascope pictures are up to date.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Walter Howard's Lyceum success The Midnight Wedding is being presented at this house by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company with great success. Mr. Alfred Paumier as Paul Valmar, the sword-master, is most capable; Miss Margaret Brodie wins golden opinions for her graceful Princess Astrea; Mr. A. E. W. Barnes is distinctly successful as Captain Rudolf; and other well-rendered characters are Mr. C. Whitlock as Lieut. Eugene, Mr. John Nesbitt as the Crown Prince, Mr. James E. Page as Sergeant Mac, Mr. St. George Frere as Corporal Otto, Mr. Algie Spalding as Private Bobbo, and Miss Jessica Black as Kathie.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—A most enjoyable programme is provided clever knockabout comedians; and Harry Taylor, the disappointed comedian, is exceedingly droll. The Bioscope concludes.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Pantomime again holds sway at the Metropole, The Babes in the Wood being the attraction for a fortnight. The piece is produced by the author, Mr. Andrew Caine, and, in addition to being splendidly mounted, is rendered by a fine array of talent. Miss Alice Digby impersonates Robin Hood with grace and vivacity; Miss Dorothy Elliott and Miss Mabel Lacina make an excellent pair of Babes; and Messrs. Bert Albert and Andie Caine were responsible for plenty of merriment as Friar Tuck and Dame Anne Chovy respectively. Some finished dancing is performed by the Frivols.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Wilson Hallett gives some wonderful imitations of children, humorous and pathetic; Chas. Prelles' Bijou Circus makes an interesting entertainment, the canine members of the company performing various tricks with almost human sagacity; Merrie Marjorie Lawrence is a dainty little comedienne; Tom Joy's parodies on "Somewhere" and "Kelly" respectively catch on immensely; Ted Curtis and company are again popular; Leslie, Lyn, and Willie are musicians and comedians of pronounced ability; and Zasma performs daring evolutions on the horizontal bar. The Hipposcope has a very interesting film depicting the Paris floods.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company (North), under the management of Mr. W. H. Savery, is here, in a répertoire of plays, which includes The Taming of the Shrew, The Tempest, King Lear, Richard II., The Merry Wives of Windsor, Twelfth Night, and Macbeth. On Tuesday evening The Tempest was played. Mr. Henry Herbert gave a masterly representation of Caliban; Miss Gladys Vanderzu as Miranda submitted a winsome portrayal; Mr. Robert Atkins is to be congratulated on his clever reading of Prospero; the King of Naples had a worthy representative in Mr. Charles Sparrow; and Mr. H. S. Cohen was a praiseworthy Gonzalo, the honest counsellor. The Ariel of Miss Dorothy Radford was very commendable; Mr. Cyril Sworder ably played the part of Ferdinand; the rôles of Stephano and Trinculo, the jester, are in the capable hands of Messrs. John Cairns and Andrew Leigh; and Messrs. Pat Lewis and John ably sustain the parts of Sebastian and Antonio.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. E. G. Summerfield.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's pantomime, Sleeping Beauty, is the attraction here. Mr. Tubby Edlin as the Great Unknown is responsible for the bulk of the fun; Miss Lillian Elliott is a dashing Prince Fearless; Miss Ivy Moore a bright Princess; and Mr. Tom Shenton a most amusing King Half-Crown, being well assisted by Mr. Willie Black as Queen Half-Crown; Mr. Frank H. Morton as the Demon uses his fine voice to advantage; and Miss Winnie Acton does good work as the Fairy. Mr. John Leick and Miss Mabel Keith contribute cornet-playing which brings down the house. Specialities are also introduced by Tom Shenton and Chicks, the Eight Oowana Girls, and the Three Martinettes.

HIPPODROME. — General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. Jack Harris; Musical-Director, Mr. R. H. Riley.—The Krags Trio, gymnasts, occupy the principal position here this week; Collin and Irene amaze the audience with their skill as thought-readers; Bu-val is bright and interesting as the Happy Dutchman; Ciss and Will are a couple of smart duettists and dancers; Theo. Leo, and Eadie submit a clever juggling act; Connie Isea is an accomplished vocalist; Syd Herman, Hebrew comedian, meets with approval; and animated pictures conclude.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Prince and the Beggar Maid is winning appreciation. Dignified and well set-up, Mr. Mayor Cook does full justice to the rôle of Prince Hildred of Sylvania, and Prince Michael and Prince Olaf are acted with thrilling effect by Messrs. Lionel Gadsden and C. W. Standing respectively; Mr. Francis Hawley makes a great success of the Bishop of Illyria; Capt. Hector and Lieut. Karl Stromberg are artistically embodied by Messrs. Noble and Richard Lane; with charming grace Miss Mona Hungerford fills the rôle of Viola; and in the titular rôle Miss Stella Campbell proves a fine exponent of many attainments and personal charm.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The pantomime of Aladdin is being liberally patronised here, and all the artists are working well. The new attraction this week is Wee Georgie, who made such a successful hit at the Gaiety pantomime of Dick Whittington. He does a lot of new business, which was heartily enjoyed.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland. —Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their Shakespearean company entered on their third and last week here on Monday, when they again, by special request, presented King John before a large and fashionable audience. Mr. Benson gave a very fine performance of the King; and Mrs. Benson displayed her abilities in an impressive manner in the rôle of Constance. Miss Molly Terraine repeated her success of last week as Arthur. The répertoire for the balance of the week is The Winter's Tale, Richard III., Coriolanus, and Macbeth, Miss Genevieve Ward being specially engaged to appear as Queen Margaret and Volumnia.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—The management here are running a short season of vaudeville performances on the two-houses-a-night system. La Vie, poseuse enchantreuse, in a series of living art panel poses, is warmly applauded; Chas. Bradford receives appreciation as a comedian; Will and Rose, comedy acrobatic conjurers, Le Cafe Magique, are also very good. The remainder of the programme consists of a series of animated pictures, the principal ones being The Paris Floods, The Diver's Remorse, An Escaped Lunatic, and an Indian romance, Onawanda.

EMPIRE PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. G. H. Marsh.—The principal item is a realistic and dramatic sketch entitled Hold Up, which is capitally staged, with Mr. Paul Lovett as Joe Brandt. Mr. F. Gatenby as Calvert, and Mr. E. Williams as the driver. The Louberts performed an entertaining and amusing acrobatic act; Walker and May receive applause for their songs and dances; a number of clever cycling feats are done by the Westwoods; Leonie Dixon is a pleasing and effective comedienne; Clarke and Hayden are extra good in their musical and comedy performance; Daisy Hurdle, burlesque artist; Gertie Grace, comedienne; George Antill, comedian; and the Empire pictures complete the programme.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Murphy.—Callahan and St. George, in their sketch The Old Neighbourhood, are excellent, Miss St. George's playing of the Harp being especially enjoyed. Bowden and Stol are a very clever and quaint pair of eccentrics; the Zaid Trio, Spanish Moors, do some really smart business in their Oriental speciality act; Leigh and Laurie are capital comedians; the Dancing Paceys, harmony singers and expert dancers, work hard and receive deserved applause; Rosie Dawn, comedienne, appears with success, as do also Tom Reed, comedian; Charles Cardle, coon vocalist; and Amie Jumel, dancer. The Tivoli Bioscope is always up to date.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles A. James. —The Two Zingaras are a good pair of comedy duettists; Miss Vera Winston sings her songs very well; Jack Danby excels as a society conjurer; and Lieut. Uniquem give a most amusing entertainment as a ventriloquist. Miss Clarice Mignon receives appreciation for her musical turn; and up-to-date pictures are shown.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is here in Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Wilson Coleman's intensity and fervour as Felix Beverley are very marked; Mr. John S. Millard is particularly good as Jack Stirling; Colonel Miles, by Mr. Cyril Grier, is a good honest representation; Thomas and Charles, by Messrs. Percy Brown and Will Glaze respectively, are very droll and amusing; Mr. W. Annesley as Arthur Bellairs is highly diverting; Miss Kathleen Magee acts with abandon and vigour as the Honorable Mrs. Sands; and Miss Minnie Goepel is a captivating Sweet Nancy. Miss Amy Ellan's impersonation of the much-wronged Mary is marked by great ability.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The many patrons of this house have had an exceptional treat provided for them this week in the form of The Faust Operatic Company in the Prison Scene from Faust, most ably rendered by Miss Addison, Mr. Claude Anderson, and Mr. Arthur Sedgley, all being excellent. The fun is fast and furious during Geo. Antill's stay on the boards; Capt. Ellis and Son, expert musicians, are strong favourites; Akbar submits a clever performance on the silver rings; Ray Beatie is good in song and dance, as also is Iris Yohe, comedienne; Bella Leaburn, comedienne, is successful with good songs; and the Empire Pictures complete.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—This beautiful house presented a brilliant appearance on Monday evening, when Mr. Robert Arthur, with his customary enterprise, gave his Dundee patrons an early opportunity of witnessing The Dollar Princess, to which full justice was done by the thoroughly capable company sent out by Mr. George Edwardes. The play is staged with perfect completeness in every detail. Miss Deborah Volar gives a bewitching portrait of Alice, and whether as actress or singer her success is unequivocal and complete; Miss Mabel Russell as Daisy gives a delightful impersonation of the character, singing and dancing with much sweetness and cleverness; Miss Marjorie Maxwell as Olga looks remarkably handsome, and submits an excellent rendering of her various numbers; Mr. W. Louis Bradfield furnishes a good character-sketch of the multi-millionaire Harry A. Conder; Mr. Leonard Mackay secures much favour as Freddy Fairfax, his magnificent voice being heard to great advantage in his several songs; Mr. Eric Thorne keeps the audience in hearty laughter with the humour he imparts to the character of Mr. Bulger; Mr. Howard Cridland as Dick ably aids in the fun-making; John, Earl of Quorn, is very dashingly played by Mr. Paul Plunket; Mr. Percy Davison is quaintly funny as Sir James McGregor, and also dances very nimbly. The chorus sing and dance admirably, and the augmented orchestra is under the capable direction of Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge, Mus. Bac. Oxon. Mr. Herbert Ralland is the general-manager for Mr. George Edwardes.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Topping an excellent bill is a thrilling dramaette, entitled A Society Woman, presented in good style by Allan Holt and company; Les Narbas evoke hearty applause in a novel acrobatic dancing act; to Stiggles, a farcical absurdity full of rollicking fun, full justice is done by Willie Atom and company; Agnes Tina achieves a success as a mimic; the xylophone selections by the Five Vernons are greatly appreciated; Florence and Rose Showell, duettists, have cultivated voices; Kendrick and Laura contribute a turn consisting of harmony and eccentric dancing; and the Kingscope pictures are as usual excellent.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Miss Winifred Maude's company, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane in The Sins of a City, has drawn good houses this week. Miss Winifred Maude brings much histrionic ability to bear upon the character of Norah Gillmore; Lesbia L'Estrange is depicted with tact and expression by Mrs. Wingold Lawrence; Mr. Arthur L. Read, who plays with considerable force, shows to much advantage as Sandy McDonald; Mr. Arthur Lester makes the most of his opportunities as Donald McIvor; Mr. Victor Du Cane cleverly doubles the rôles of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh, to which he infuses much dramatic effect; Mr. Morris Maud embodies the villainous Ralph Blackwater, K.C., with a realistic touch; Isaac Levi is humorously enacted by Mr. Fred Chester; and enjoyable comedy is introduced by Mr. Mark Fenton (Jonathan Blyme) and Miss Minnie Millwarde (Midge); while admirable assistance is lent by Misses Mona Leslie and Gipsy Alexander.

DURHAM.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes.—The Five Olracs, in acrobatical funniosities, head the bill here this week; the Five Bombays win favour in a singing and expert dancing act; and Ellis Barrieton renders good songs with ability. The athletic act of Ariel and Astarte is warmly applauded; the Swift Duo are clever trick cyclists; Bert and Dora score in patter and singing; Pauline Faro is a smart comedienne; and the Cathedoscope concludes.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. T. Rushworth.—Louis Calvert's company in Sunday, with Janet Lind in the leading rôle, is here from Thursday.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Dick Whittington, the lessees' pantomime, which attained such a gigantic success on its production here, is paying a return visit. Mr. King maintains his reputation, and as Idle Jack works cleverly, being the life and soul of the pantomime; Mr. Ardene Linden is a happy and funny cook; Mr. Jamie Dallas dances extremely well, and acts with effect as Peter Pann; he is ably assisted by Mr. Herbert Walton, who is a praiseworthy Captain Pott; and Mr. T. Turner is a good cat. Miss Norah Dwyer, pretty, bright, and charming, and gifted with a sweet voice, is one of the best principal girls seen here for a very long time; Miss May Hart is a smart and smiling Dick; Miss Adele Levey as the Emperor of Morocco is perfect; Mr. H. A. Mather does good work as Fitzwarren; and other parts are well filled. Miss Maie Hoey delights the audience with a couple of classical dances.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. G. Ridley.—Mr. Joe Collins' pantomime company is appearing here in The Babes in the Wood. Mr. Fred Terry, a genuinely funny comedian, keeps the fun going merrily as the wicked Baron; Mr. Freddy Webb is a happy laughing Mrs. Pankake; Mr. E. Lyle and Mr. J. Graydon are a decided success as the naughty robbers; and Mr. C. Paton is a satisfactory Georgie. Miss M. Bryon, tall and shapely, sings and acts with much spirit and cleverness; Miss Mabel Mignon is a dainty and pleasing Maid Marion; Miss Ethel Lyle a good Helen; and the Babes are played excellently by Miss Lulu Clayton and Miss Connie Hasledon. A very smart troupe of six clever lady dancers deserve praise. Mr. George de Lara is the courteous general-manager for Mr. Collins.

EDINBURGH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie. —Sir H. Beerbohm Tree's company began a fortnight's engagement here on Monday with Pinkie and the Fairies. The theatre was crowded, and the audience was manifestly delighted with the charming entertainment. The piece is acted in the true spirit by the actors, whether children or adults. No more admirable representatives of Tommy and Pinkie could be found than these talented little players, Master Philip Tonge and Miss Iris Hawkins. Their freshness and spontaneity of manner must have been welcome to many a jaded playgoer. Miss Hilda Antony, beautiful alike in face, figure, and voice, acted Molly with the charm and abandon for which she is remarkable; Miss Florrie Lewis, a petite Fairy Queen, was amusingly dignified in her bearing, acted with point and danced with neatness; Master Burford Hampden as the Herald was a droll little figure; and three pretty children, Miss Patty Jacobs, Miss Mimi Crawford, and Miss Olga Hope, were vivacious fairies. Mr. Ambrose Manning as Uncle Gregory gave a performance full of true humour, depicting with artistic touches a character which appealed to everyone. Mr. W. R. Creighton did good work as the beast; and all the other members of the cast contributed cleverly to the general effect. The piece was splendidly staged; the music by Mr. Frederic Norton was pleasant and harmonious; and the appreciation of the large audience was shown by frequent and enthusiastic applause.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The successful Humpty Dumpty pantomime in its closing weeks is proving more attractive than ever. Among the comedians, Mr. Joe Nightingale, Mr. Shaun Glenville, and Mr. Jack Lane are unflagging in their diversions; and the last-named performer's piano turn continues to be an outstanding feature in the piece; while Queen and Le Brun, in their animal impersonations, provide much amusement for juveniles as well as grown-ups. Miss Radie Furman and Miss Clare Hartland, also Miss Iris Banfield, with Miss Iris Colley, Miss Maggie Fraser, and Miss Zoe Gordon, add brightness and variety to the many effective scenes; and Mr. Ivan Berlyn, Mr. Ian Lloyd Mackenzie, and Mr. Arthur Burgoyne, work well in their respective rôles. The colours and movements of beautifully costumed crowds and dancers equals anything hitherto presented at this house always noted for its pantomimes.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager Mr. Amand Mascard.—Mr. Mascard has made a distinct hit with the pantomime Dick Whittington, the house being so full on several occasions that many persons had to be turned away. The great feature of the piece is the briskness which marks the action from first to last. Mr. Michael Kemble's fine voice is of much service in the vocal numbers; and Mr. Sam Thompson is the source of great amusement by his droll impersonation of a Scottish Idle Jack; the Sisters Cora act and sing with charm; Miss Connie Irwin is a graceful Fairy Bow Bell; and others of the actors who distinguish themselves are Miss Helen Garland, Mr. W. Glanmore Jones, Mr. George Westland, Mr. J. Randle Wilson, and Miss Topsy Johnstone. The pantomime is well mounted, and there is plenty of good and popular music. It is worthy of mention that the libretto is from the pen of the late Mr. Fred Lock, always a pleasant writer.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—MANAGING-DIRECTOR, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—A long programme is headed by Mr. Arthur Roberts, who, assisted by a company some half-dozen strong, appears in The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife. The Brennans show much expertness in a display of sand and clog-dancing; O'Gust the original clown mimic, gives his ever-amusing imitations of birds, animals, express trains, and shavings; Mr. Leslie Harris, as a piano entertainer, provides an exceedingly enjoyable turn; and Miss Juliette's school of sea lions proves a class of particularly apt pupils. The Smythsons present a peasant sketch; Francis and Alfred exhibit their skill as jugglers and equilibrists; Dion Wade and Dot Hardy contribute single-handed comedy turn; and bioscope pictures round off the bill.

ELLESMERE PORT. — HIPPODROME AND PICTURE PALACE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—Louie Fuller has a good reception as a comedienne and dancer; Sid and Sadie are favourably received as comedy sketch artists; Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer, keeps the audience heartily amused; Miss Sadie Austyn is a charming comedienne and graceful dancer; Laurie and Leslie create continuous fun as duettists and patterers; and a series of well-chosen animated pictures make up an enjoyable entertainment.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. A. Austin Leigh's stock company is appearing here for a short season in a series of high-class plays. The run was inaugurated on Monday with The Idler. Mr. Ernest Bodkin skilfully delineated the title-part; Mr. A. Austin-Leigh proved fully equal to the rôle of Simeon Strong; and Mr. Wallis Clarke displayed much ability as Sir John Harding. Miss Kathryn Collier as Lady Harding evinced a deep earnestness, mingled with a degree of pathos that proved very convincing; Miss Belle Travers was a bright and amusing Kate Merryweather. Mr. Gerard Wynne being distinctly successful as General Merryweather. Miss Emmie O'Reilly, Miss Vere Hodson, and Mr. Walter Bannister did well as Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Glyn Stanmore, and Bennett respectively.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—A treat has been afforded Exonians this week by the apnearance of Eugene Stratton, whose coon songs and dances quickly caught on. Another popular member of the programme is Arthur Astill, mimetic and whistling artist; Norman Holt, "a musical lad from Lancashire," wins success; Mamie Morris is a graceful comedienne and dancer; Gladys Revell scores with an excellent vocal contribution; and Fred Hutchings, who appears as a dame comedian, speedily gets on good terms with his audience.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. —Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Harry Benet's No. 1 company in the famous musical comedy The Lady Slavey has drawn good houses. Mr. Charles F. Clark makes a rollicking Major O'Neill; Mr. Lister Morrah gives a good representation of the Yankee Millionaire, Vincent A. Evelyn; and Mr. T. G. Warren's Lord Lavender is highly amusing. On Mr. Harry Quiningborough as Roberts and Miss Nora Morrah as Phyliis falls the bulk of the work of keeping the merriment going, and they discharge the responsibility to the satisfaction of all. Other leading parts well filled are Maud by Miss Kitty Hyde, Beatrice by Miss Blanche Hounsell, and Flo Honeydew by Miss Reydon Dallas. The staging and costumes are rich and elaborate, and there is a fine chorus.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—This week Mr. Charles Windermere's company, in the farcical comedy, Where is William? forms an undeniable attraction. The rôle of Sir William Gregory is amusingly impersonated by Mr. Charles Windermere, who does full justice to the part; he is ably seconded by Mr. Rule Pyott as William Jolley, and the combined efforts of the pair keep the audience in a continuous roar of laughter; Lady Gregory is ably played by Miss Belle Donaldson; Phyllis is cleverly portrayed by Miss Clare Manfield; and Mr. Wylie A. Thompson is well suited as Harry. General Rubbub is creditably represented by Mr. Leslie Norman.

TOWN HALL.—The Joseph Poole's Myrioramas are attracting crowded houses here this week. A good bill includes Rochez' Circus as the leading feature; and other excellent turns are furnished by Miss Ethel Lorch, contralto; Phil Gerrard, comedian; Wun Hi Lung, illusionist; Frank Allen, quick-change artist; Elsie Verona, comedienne; and Lang and Sheffer, coon vocalists.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Leivers and Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Lole Esmond's company is presenting Nana, Sorrows of Satan, Sapho, and Ticket-of-Leave Man. In the first-named piece Miss Rosie Neville gave an excellent rendering of the title-rôle, and was well supported by Mr. Geo. Derricke as Philipe and Mr. Frank Wheatley, who played M. Fontaine powerfully. Mr. Edward Neville infused a good deal of humour into the part of Hector, and the other characters were capably filled by Messrs. H. Sisto, J. Le Fleming Banderson, and Percy Forman, and Misses Lole Esmond (Rose Mignon) and Dorothy Dewhurst (Blanche).

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE, LTD.—Chairman, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Councillor Harold Arnold.—Pantomime gives way to variety this week, Tarro Miyake, the champion jiu-jitsu wrestler of the world, "starring" on a capital bill. Gus Barra is an accomplished and original musician; the ever-welcome Ray and Calden return in some new comedy business, and make a decided hit; the Three Dixons, lady bâton swingers, banjoists, singers, and dancers are clever and up to date; the Credons score in a boxing, club-swinging, and ball-punching act; Syd Crossley is a comedian who compels laughter; and Lon Hale, skater and dancer, and the Kingscope also provide enjoyable turns.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Messrs. Bolam and Tiller are presenting the pantomime Little Bo-Peep here for two weeks. Since Christmas the production has run with considerable success at the Grand Theatre, Byker, and audiences at the "Met." have been large and enthusiastic. Miss Nancy Hearne as Boy Blue is the chief figure, and she has won much praise by her dashing impersonation; Miss Zena Hay is a dainty Boy Blue; Messrs. Harrigan and Holt as Hoppit and Poppit look after the knockabout business with great success; Mr. Harry Kirk as the Baron is very funny; Mother Hubbard is well looked after by Mr. Edgar Driver; the speciality of Hooc and Pauly is one of the strong features; and the dancing and ballets leave nothing to be desired.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphreys.—Mr. Robert Arthur's luxurious pantomime, Aladdin, continues to attract large and appreciative audiences at every performance. In this production the leading merrymakers are Mr. Harry Tate, Mr. Malcolm Scott, and Messrs. Regan and Ryan, and right heartily they fulfil their mission. Unfortunately, Happy Fanny Fields was indisposed at the beginning of the week, but a very capable understudy was found in Miss Maie Dillon. The principal boy and girl, Miss Bessie Butt (Aladdin) and Miss Dorothy Firman (Princess), have won a deal of popularity, as also has that charming dancer Miss Doris Dean. Mr. Harry Claff, the Emperor, sings several pleasing numbers; and the Scotch Vizier of Mr. George Hirste is an amusing character.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The month's run of The Arcadians here finishes this week, and the success of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production has been very marked. Mr. Walter Passmore as Simplicitas naturally claims first mention, and this strong Glasgow favourite has gained many new admirers by his excellent performance. Equally good in another way is Mr. Oliver J. Round as the doleful jockey, Doody, and his lugubrious ditty in the third act is awarded half a dozen encores. The sweet singing and charming acting of Miss Ethel Erskine as Sombra are also strong attractions; and the genuinely humorous portrayal of Mrs. Smith by Miss Veronica Brady is received with hearty laughter and applause. Mr. Harold E. Pearce as Jack Meadows, Mr. Louis Victor as Bobby, Mr. Ivan Cleveland as Sir George Paddock, and dainty Miss Billie Sinclair as the attractive Irish girl Eileen Cavanagh are the most noteworthy members of a strong cast.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Sub-Lessees, The Scottish Playgoers, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Wareing; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—The latest revival here is Oscar Wilde's play Lady Windermere's Fan, and this wonderfully constructed work receives excellent treatment at the hands of the repertory company. Miss Muriel Pope acts with fine effect as Lady Windermere, and portrayed the varying moods of the character with infinite skill; while the Mrs. Erlynne of Miss Irene Rooke was another triumph for this excellent artist. Both ladies were repeatedly recalled during the evening. Mr. P. Perceval Clark as Lord Windermere was slightly handicapped by his youthful appearance, but acted the part with much skill and resource; the Lord Darlington of Mr. D. Lewin Mannering was a performance of undoubted merit; Miss Alice Mansfield gave a broadly humorous rendering of the gossiping Duchess of Berwick; and her demure daughter was amusingly played by Miss Irene Clarke. Mr. Laurence Hanray as Mr. Dumby, Mr. Campbell Gullan as Tuppy, Mr. Cecil Brooking as Graham, and Mr. A. B. Howard as Lord Plimdale effectively differentiated the various types of society men about town. Mr. Milton Rosmer acted well the comparatively minor part of Mr. Hopper; and the various society ladies were cleverly played by Misses Lola Duncan, Dora Harker, and Norah Delaney. The play was produced by Mr. H. Ralph Kimpton, and reflects much credit on that gentleman and the members of the repertory company.

GRAND, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant. —Mr. Fred Karno's pantomime, Mother Goose, has achieevd success here. Mr. Neil Kenyon keeps the fun going merrily in the title-part. Another diverting performance must be placed to the credit of Mr. Jack O'Connor, who is responsible for some genuinely funny business as Jack Goose; Miss May Moore Duprez renders with delightful archness the part of Gretchen; and Miss Lily Morris continues her vivacious performance of Colin. Mr. Fred Allandale causes hilarity in the part of the Laird, as also does Mr. Charles A. East as the Mayor. Miss Rhoda Gordon as Gill Goose and Miss Lily Edwards as Eric are much in favour.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Though Willie Winkie is drawing excellent houses still, the last weeks of this pantomime are announced. On Monday Mr. Harry Levaine took his benefit, and Mr. Neil Kenyon (from the Grand) once more trod the boards where his earliest successes were made. From the Royal came Messrs. Harry Tate and Malcolm Scott, while the variety houses also lent their star turns. Friday was set apart for the benefit of Miss Edith Haley, and the local popularity of this lady ensured a bumper house.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are here with For Love and the King. The author, Mr. C. Watson Mill, gives a strong rendering of the hero, General Meredith; Miss Rosalind Tate is a pleasing representative of the hero's sister; Miss Joan Ellis makes a charming Natila; Mr. Alfred Maurice gives a vivid picture of a miserly outcast; and Mr. Stanley Weston is suitably dignified as the King.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Robinson Crusoe, presented by Mr. J. H. Savile's company, is this week responsible for large and appreciative houses. The quaint mannerisms of Mr. Tatten Hall as Will Atkins never fail to create laughter; the burlesque business of Mr. Dan Maxford as Captain Kettle and Mr. Tom O'Neil as the Mate is also very amusing; Mr. Harry Arnold as Willie Crusoe plays an important part, his pawky Scotch manner and frequent local allusions being much enjoyed; as Mrs. Crusoe Mr. Harry Farrow gives a robust impersonation of the "merry widow"; and Mr. Fred Eugene and Mr. John E. West as King Wamba and Friday respectively are very successful. Among the ladies Miss Daisie Morell as Robinson Crusoe is a lively and attractive hero, her catchy songs and choruses being frequently encored; as Polly Perkins Miss Maud Terry plays with charm; as Tom Tug and Bella Brighton the Sisters Sable show considerable ability; and Miss Primrose Harding and Miss Dorothy May score in their parts of Peter Piper and Dolly Dimple. Miss Lottie Stone's clever troupe of dancers contribute several interludes.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—The star turn this week is Miss Amelia Bingham, the American actress, who stirs the audience to a great height of enthusiasm in scenes from La Tosca, Sans Gêne, and The School for Husbands; Barton and Ashley once more receive the hearty welcome and equally hearty recall that is reserved exclusively for old and tried favourites, and in Canal-Boat Sal they deserve it every time; Keen and Waller are smart and clever in their acrobatic work, and are specially well received; Annie Purcell, despite a severe cold, sings with much of her accustomed skill; Frank Maura's balancing turn is as neat and artistic as of old; Jennie Alexander, a wonderfully clever young mimic, makes a hit in all her various impersonations; Harry Allister portrays the great men of past and present times in realistic style; Henry Carlton, a clever elocutionist, and the Duo Jarl, Swiss dancers, complete a good bill.

PAVILION, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Fred Karno's company, in Skating, are drawing great crowds to this house, and the laughter is loud and constant during the half-hour the sketch lasts; Emerson and Baldwin are a smart and clever couple of comedy jugglers, with a lot of original business; Tom Clare, at the piano, once again makes a big success with his clever songs, stories, &c.; Terry and Bentley are a clever pair, and their varied business is much enjoyed; Miss Teddy Edmonds' company, in The Lady Jockey, provide a lively and enjoyable turn; Lozelle, the wonderful gymnast, with his clever feats and his elaborate apparatus, shows great skill and daring; Les Montaldas give an ingenious turn, combining slack wire business with trained cockatoos, &c., and are well received; and Frank F. Street cleverly imitates R. G. Knowles.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Rose Elliott ("a sensible singer of sensible songs") is the principal of a host of entertaining turns here; Dare Austin, supported by Chas. F. Howard, supplies an interesting comedy duologue, "His Wedding Morning"; and Frank Elliston, supported by Geoffrey Chate and Nellie Stevens, presents the romantic episode My Lady Betty. The other artists of note include Will E. Stopit, eccentric acrobat; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde, entertainers; Leipzig, a conjurer of parts; and Vardon, Perry, and Wilber, clever vocalists and dancers.

COLISEUM. — District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Tom Leamore, that popular eccentric, is singing here in his best style, and his funniosities are really mirth-provoking; Lowenwirth and Cohan, Hebrew comedians, are with difficulty allowed to go; the Kramers are ever welcome; Miss Lottie Bellman, assisted by Mr. Bay Russell, in "bits of vaudeville," is extremely popular; Les Bollingers are responsible for a quick artistic exhibition of rag painting; Sydney James' Strolling Players, under the direction of and including Mr. Albert Fernie, deserve all credit for their thoroughly enjoyable entertainment; the original Four Regals, in the strong act entitled "The Armourers," give a sensational show; a good acrobatic turn is provided by the Bros. Gaudsmidt, assisted by two well-trained poodles; J. H. Scotland, basso, renders pleasing numbers; and as an imitator of sounds Clown Argo upholds his reputation.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Miss Ella Dean is at the head here; another turn of merit is provided by Syd Myra and his talented dog "Nell"; Miss May Rhoda comes in for a hearty reception; Will E. Nutt provides amusement with his eccentricities; and a smart dancing turn is submitted by Horace Sade. An interesting film is The Martyrdom of the Late Adolf Beck.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr J. A. Campbell presented The Old Folks at Home to a good house on Monday. Mr. Geo. Steel gave a forcible representation of Andrew Rose; Mr. Frank Liston was a typical dissolute young nobleman in the character of Lord Howarth Kenilworth; Mr. George Scully and Mr. Donald Gilbert were very droll and amusing as Ben Jolly and Joe Chaff; Mr. Vincent Wardle ably portrayed the character of Jock, the dumb hunchback; Miss Maud Warburton gave a fine rendering of Dorothy Robin; Miss Clara Santley and Miss Ada Frank did very well as Martha and Susan Giles.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole. —Arthur Lennard heads the bill and justifies his position with capital songs; the Stein-Eretto Troupe of acrobats are exceedingly clever; and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have a good comedy sketch, Coming Home. The Fontellas are applauded for their novlety act; and the Three Delaries are exceptionally well received in The Demon Grotto. Ruby Norton, comedienne, sings well; and Nat Knoun, comedian and gag-teller, causes much laughter. Ellene and Rose, musicians and vocalists, are versatile performers; and the Palacescope has a good film of the Paris Floods.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—The premier attraction here is Fred Storey and his Rip Van Winkle company, who pay a welcome return visit, and draw big crowds; Ben Jackson, a trick soloist and banjo humorist, is decidedly clever; Flo Banks is an attractive comedienne; a refined act, entitled the "Tramp and the Girl," is given by Clarke and Clare, who have good voices; the Three Bonheurs, in their speciality dancing and musical act, do well; a good comedian is Harry Bland, who creates much laughter; and the Edisonograph, with some good films, proves very diverting.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Miss Hilda Beverley's company in A Destroyer of Men is here this week.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr

their performance is of exceptional merit; the Royal Selbonians, comedy jugglers, are also much appreciated, whilst Barney, vocalist and mimic, Hodgson and Lowther, in an amusing sketch, Swan and Latimer, comedians and dancers, Cade Burnett, actor vocalist, and Jack Clevoner, in a musical act, are well received.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The vivid pictures of American life presented in A White Man are causing much interest here. Mr. Guy Hastings gives a fine and forceful representation of the strong part of Jim Carston; Miss Kathleen Maude gives a charming air of distinction to the character of the Countess of Kerhill; Mr. Frank Mayo acts with intense vigour as the lawless Cash Hawkins; Mr. A. A. Brandon is a popular figure as Big Bill, and makes the part highly interesting; Mr. Eric Hudson is impressive as Taby-y-wana, the Indian chief, and his make-up is wonderfully realistic; Miss Hilda Barita shows a nice appreciation of the pathetic requirements of the Indian girl, Natu-ritch; and other prominent parts are taken by Mr. Gerald Valentine as Shorty, Mr. Ernest H. Clark as Andy; Mr. Jay Ellis as Crouchy, Mr. Cecil Bevan as the Earl of Kerhill, Mr. Ray Raymond as Bud Hardy, and Miss Ormonde Wynne as the Dowager Lady Kerhill.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—Mr. Leonard Mortimer's company remain here this week, and are now presenting another dramatic sketch, The Little Captain. It is stirringly adventurous, and is well acted. Abel and Welsh are a clever pair of contortionists, and give a turn of quite new features; the Francolli Trio exhibit some smart tumbling and introduce amusing burlesque; Miss Nora Emerald is a comedienne who is establishing herself a prime favourite here; whilst Miss Maud Vera also scores a success as a comedienne. The Six Manchester Lads are a troupe of expert clog dancers, and the Hargreaves Trio provide an entertaining musical and dancing act.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Love of the Princess is at the Royal this week. Mr. Frank Harvey gives a fine, vigorous rendering of Prince Conrad; Mr. R. Vane makes a typical villain as Count Dacillo; Mr. J. Burton's King of Illarnia is a good performance; Mr. B. Bould is a success as Lieut. Orlando; Mr. J. Worth (Lieut. Zaroff), Mr. D. L. Doyle (Prince Regent), and Mr. T. Searle (Duke Scarfe) are good. Mr. E. Morgan makes the small part of Boris a success; Lady Irene is nicely played by Miss M. Steeple; Miss J. Lee is an effective Constantia; and Miss Dorothy Haigh is a forceful Princess Idalia.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The Four Janowskys are clever gymnasts; the Juggling Geraldos introduce a smart and humorous turn; Mabel La Blanche is a comedienne with good songs; Ryder Slone introduces a good new number, "Boozy Billy"; the Donnas Trio give some marvellous feats of balancing on the trapeze; and Archie Pitt, comedian; the Four Burnells, in On the Links; and the Palace Pictures complete.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mrs. John Lawson and company are providing the star turn here with The Devil's Sunday and Supremacy. Mrs. Lawson is supported by six sterling artists, Arthur Royston, R. Owen, J. S. Boon, Miss Cissie Williams, Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh, and Miss Day. The Salamon Trio, in The Changeling; Sam Shipley, comedian; and Martin Coyne, vocalist; and Leah Arden, vocalist, also appear.

HANLEY.—Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. G. Elphinstone.—Dear Little Denmark is put on in a most elaborate style, the dresses being charming and the effects elaborate. Miss Joan Penrose as Ophelia is responsible for a humorous character impersonation; as Conrad Mr. Conway Dixon sings and acts with great skill; Miss Netta Lynde as Christine has a fine voice and manner; Mr. Henry Kitts as the Duke is a decided success; Miss Claire Lynch is a sweet Xanara; and Mr. Arthur Stoples as Hans Hansen causes continuous merriment.

Grand.—Proprietor and Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Gardiner and Stoddard, American vaudeville artists, head the bill in clever frivolities; Jordan and Harvey are successful in patter and song; Harvey's American boys and girls introduce a remarkable turn; Field and Mansell, lightning picture painters, are loudly applauded; the Sisters Urma are three clever trapeze artists; Jerks, the Butler, as played by Vasey and Ramsey, is most entertaining; Otto and Olga have a funny travesty on grand opera; George Prince, comedian, makes a hit; and the Grand pictures show The Floods of Paris.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—Pantomime is again to the fore, Mr. Sydney Cooper and the Tally Ho Trio presenting Cinderella. Miss Doris Langdon is the sweetest and most dainty of Cinderellas ever seen in the town—she is possessed of a pleasing voice, and dances well; Miss Gwladys Soman is a handsome principal boy; Mr. Fred Anderson as Cordelia, one of the ugly sisters, is a very able comedian; Miss Fay Desmond is a pretty and tuneful Fairy Godmother; and the Tally Ho Trio appeared with great success as the Baron and the two broker's men, their vocal efforts being a feature of the pantomime.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—A welcome return visit is paid by Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and H. Browning's company is The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards realised well the strong part of Jack Frobisher; Mr. Rutland Barrington was capitally cast as the Marquis of Steventon, and was successful throughout; Mr. Russell Barry's robust acting as Hanky Bannister added materially to the general success; Harry Dallas was effectively delineated by Mr. H. Browning; Miss Gwendoline Hay as Lady Alethea Frobisher contributed an excellent portraiture, which was deservedly admired; Miss Hilda Sims acted brightly as Lady Lucy Devenham, and Miss Ethel Trevor-Lloyd was very effective as Lady Westerby; other characters were ably played respectively by Miss Muriel Locking, Miss Florence Westrop, Miss Doris Digby, and Miss Sylvia Jones. Mr. Russell Barry stage-managed. The comedy was preceded by a sketch by Mr. Rutland Barrington, at the piano, afterwards assisted in a vocal duet by Miss Ethel Trevor-Lloyd.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—The Little Widow, with Miss Grace Warner in the title-rôle, is here. This delightful actress is most charming as Mrs. Rattlebrain; Mr. George Gordon as Wilkins Potter keeps the house in one continual roar; as Mrs. Potter Miss Lallah Davies gives a particularly good reading; Miss Florence Daly scores by her highly amusing acting as Sophonisba; Mr. Frank Hertie capably acts the part of Morton; Miss L. Palmer is a pleasing Emily Randel; Mr. Nanton as Bousier evokes much merriment; and Mr. Roy Rhind is quite successful as Arthur Potter.

HORWICH.—Prince's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Durie.—Messrs. Auguste Van Biene and Son's company is presenting Man and Wife, a drama of intense interest which was followed closely on Monday night b yan enthusiastic audience. Mr. Jarrold Ord's Paul Revere was a telling and exciting performance; Mr. Geo. H. Child cleverly depicted Captain D'Esparre as a thorough-paced unprincipled scoundrel; Mr. George Overs as the cripple boy Jean commanded the sympathy of the house; Col. Latour was ably depicted by Mr. H. Compton; Mr. Ambrose Horton gave an excellent impersonation of the manly Sergeant Jacques; Messrs. E. Hall Eldon and Edwin Helm as the twin brothers Bimbo and Bambo created roars of laughter; Mr. Edward Leslie played Father Coupe, the village priest, to the life; Miss Marguerite Thorne gave a pathetic rendering of the aged blind mother, Ruth Revere, which greatly moved the audience; Miss Lucy Fitzroy was a bewitching Rosette; Miss Kate Hallam gave an artistic representation of Marcelle.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.—Gaiety.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. Ainsley and Hall.—This week Mr. John H. Tomkinson's No. 1 company is here with much success. It includes the Rizarelis (gymnasts), Elsie Rubina, Wee Winnie (vocalist and dancer), Miss Trixie Howard (soprano), Miss Nellie Hampton (soubrette), Three Recars (acrobats), Arthur Walker (comedian), J. Carr (baritone), George Russell (laughing comedian), Miss Reita (piccolo soloist), Miss Cissie Madcap (acrobat), Miss Mabel Lewis (vocalist), Miss Maud Trainer (solo violinist), Roy Potter, Sisters Hylton (duettists), Tom E. Roma (comedian), and Wilmot Hastings (musical eccentric).

HOYLAND.—Hippodrome.—Owner, Mr. Scott Alexander; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Terry.—One of the chief attractions here is Miss Alice Maude and company in The Bank Robbery; Morritt, illusionist, is all that can be desired; Mme. Beulah, in second-sight, is extremely smart; and the Blind Man in feats of memory is a distinct success. Guthrie, Julia Spencer, Nellie Duval, and the Smalleys are also here. Pictures on the Bioscope are very popular.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The London Grand Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. John Halpin, is cordially welcomed. The artists in the combination are such well-known singers as Miss Toni Seiter, Miss Una Bruckshaw, Miss Anna Hope, Mr. Wilson Pembroke, Mr. J. F. O'Sullivan, Mr. Leonard Russell, and Mr. Charles Tilbury. Signor Sapio conducts with skill. Also in the bill are Miss Emmie Ames, comedienne; Harry Bancroft, character comedian; Tee and Tee, musical duettists; Miss Diana Hope, assisted by Monte Bayly and Charles Levey, in a clever one-act play, The Altar of Duty; Tamamoto, a Japanese equilibrist; Slippere, the blind entertainer; and Carl and Mary Ohm's wonderful animal circus. The pictures are good.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—Harry Roxbury's pantomime, Mother Goose, is the fare here. The piece is brightly constructed, and played with unflagging spirit from start to finish by a well-chosen company. Miss Kitty Russell is a fetching Jill; and Miss Maud Prenton looks smart as Colin. Walter Dale as Mother Goose, J. W. Gallagher as Jack, and the Miltons as the Village Constables keep the fun going hot and strong. There is some nimble dancing by the Eight Sydney Girls; the Society Quartette of singers and speciality dancers put in excellent work; and the Miltons do some clever roller-skating.

HULL.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—That ever-verdant production Charley's Aunt is the attraction for the current week, and Mr. Stanley Cooke is very welcome in his old part of Lord Fancourt Babberley, and makes the most of the rôle of the old lady from Brazil; as the ward and niece Miss Ruth Henton and Miss Phyllis Beck fill excellent places, while Mr. T. MacCausland Stewart is an acceptable Colonel; as the Dona Miss Enid Ross has a part for which she is admirably suited; Stephen Spettigue is made acceptable at the hands of Mr. Robert Byford, the famed trio being completed by Messrs. Chas. King and Robert Burnett. The Colour Sergeant is likewise in the bill.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Dottridge and Longden pantomime of Robinson Crusoe is establishing another record for this house. Songs are well selected, the children well drilled by Mme. Pauline Rivers, the costumes are artistic and the scenic side well furnished. The title-rôle is nicely realised by Miss Maud Mortimer, whose refined work has established her as first favourite; Mr. C. Young Fixott is an admirable Dame, and his song "Kelly" is one of the draws; Miss Yolande Noble is a very commendable Peggy; her "Cuckoo" song is beloved of the gods, who take up its chorus in fine fashion.

Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Barnett.—First and foremost of an excellent company are Alec Hurley and his comedians, in their bright musical comedy Cockneys in Japan, which is well received, the catchy airs captivating the audience. L'Incognita is a soprano of extraordinary power and ability; Dusty Rhodes's quaint humour and the comedy act presented by O'Malley and Brown are acceptable items; and the protean drama Dan the Outlaw is admirably performed, and involves some remarkably quick changes on the part of Mr. Herbert Shelley. Jewel St. Leger, dramatic soubrette, Jessie Albini, comedienne, and the Eight Lancashire Lads, singers and dancers, have good receptions, and Arthur Kenny's cycle act is greatly daring.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—A strong programme is headed by Eda Blair, described as the "New York Clipper," and her American Bowery Boys, whose dancing and singing are admirable. There are also the Rowntrees (Edna and Bert), in patter and song; the Vanderbilts, a smart comedy couple; the Orchids; the Haverleys, song illustrators; and Dan Filmer, comedian.

INV[illegible]SS.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Mr. George Munro and company are here, and on Monday an enthusiastic audience welcomed Hamlet. Mr. Munro ably sustained the part of Hamlet as Ophelia; Miss Doris Horrocks was a great success; and as Gertrude Miss G. Littlewood gained hearty appreciation. As Claudius Mr. Howard Rose was good; Mr. T. Fields as the Ghost and Mr. Lawrence as Horatio both acted well.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Mr. Moncton Hoffe's charming play, The Little Damozel, was here the first three nights of the week. The company is an admirable one. Miss Rosy Burton in the part of Julie deserves high praise. She possesses great dramatic power, and the contrasts in the emotional parts are cleverly drawn. Miss Marian Ripley is good as Sybil Craven; Mr. Frank Lacy gives a fine interpretation of Recklow Poole; Mr. Mark Blow as the Hon. Fitzroy Lock proves himself a skilful actor; and Mr. George A. Brandram is successful as Captain Neil Partington. Mr. Townsend Whitling plays Walter Angel; and Messrs. Julian Cross, William J. Slack, and E. L. Hocking are the three members of the orchestra of the Café Angelique. The play is admirably staged. Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch occupies the boards for the remainder of the week.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Staleys are very smart in their transformation scene, and the various musical items introduced are novel and well performed; Miss Mabelle May sings and dances daintily; the New Maes are clever and amusing; the Avolos are a clever troupe of artists, their double somersaults from perpendicular poles being very daring; the whistling of Max Laube, who made his first appearance in England, is a revelation; Stuart and Evans are two amusing comedy artists; Rob Rossie, the Manx tenor, is a welcome addition to the bill. The Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—This week we have a visit from Mr. Wm. Pardoe's pantomime company in Dick Whittington. Miss Lottie Holland as Dick makes an ideal principal boy; Alice Fitzwarren is carefully played by Miss Nellie Rose; Miss Rose Finettie is well placed as Lord Dedbroke; and Miss Elsie Kedward is a neat Princess Preciosa. Miss Cissy Loveday's singing makes her a favourite; Mr. G. Hyam gives a good account of Idle Jack; and Mr. Joe Venora is quite at home in the part of the Emperor of Morocca. Tom Hulme is a droll Alderman Fitzwarren, and Sarah Cook is in the safe hands of Mr. Jimmy Wood.

KEIGHLEY.—The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Barrasford.—Mr. Harry Burne's pantomime has achieved a success. In the title-rôle Miss Minnie Daubyn is seen to advantage; Miss Fanny Harriss is a charming Polly, and her songs are well rendered. The funny element is chiefly in the hands of Mr. Arthur Aiston. Mr. Mark Stuart, and Messrs. Tray and Rich. Evolutions and dances are gracefully executed by Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The first half of the week the boards were occupied by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, who presented The Dairymaids. The entertainment is bright, amusing, and well staged, the singing throughout being above the average. Joe Mivens is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Edwin Dodds; Mr. William Spray is a good Lieut. Brudenell; Dr. O'Byrne is admirably treated by Mr. Bernard Vaughan; and Lieut. Frank Meredith by Mr. Herbert Lugg. Miss Edie Martin is an eminent success as Eliza; and Miss Mabel Medrow is a charming exponent of Lady Brudenell.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—During the earlier part of the week Mr. Chas. Frohman's company appeared here with much success in Are You a Mason? Mr. William Lockhart did well as Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Guy Leigh-Pemberton assumed the rôle of Frank Perry (his son-in-law) with naturalness; Mr. Archie Selwyn made an ideal George Fisher; Hamilton Travers had a capable impersonator in Mr. Arthur Stanley, and as the old farmer, John Halton, Mr. Edward J. Hinge made the most of his opportunities. Mr. Stewart Quartermayne played Ernest Morrison with considerable effect, and the Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood of Miss Agnes Maude was a clever study. For the latter part of the week The Dairymaids is announced.

LEEDS.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Manager, Mr. Nathaniel Hepworth.—Mr. Hepworth's first pantomime here is beating all records. A second edition was produced on Monday.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Miss Margaret Cooper is packing the house nightly and sings no less than five songs at each performance; John L. Shine and company show wonderful dramatic ability in his popular sketch Hogmany; Miss Odeyne Spark is a very attractive and talented comedienne; the Saschoff troupe of singers and dancers are another excellent turn; and Paul Barnes and the Barowskys also appear with success.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Jack Haddon's comic pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk causes plenty of fun, the chief contributors being the Tintos, Gordon Brookes, and Miss Alma Obrey.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Miss Edith St. Clare brings her own pantomime here and takes the title-rôle of Aladdin with every success; Miss Nan Farren is good as the Princess; and plenty of fun is provided by Messrs. Bob King, Rob Gilmore, Frank A. Wood, Harry Shaw, and French and French. Miss Adah Payne, a charming soprano vocalist, and Fred Russell, the clever ventriloquist, are also here.

The Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—George Sheldon and company present a dramatic sketch which meets with great applause; Arthur Croxon is an exceedingly smart entertainer; Wilson and West, the stage-struck costers, present a good sketch; Frank E. Ford is a capital dancer; and the Birkenhead family of juveniles are excellent. The Rosses and Grace Merton also gain much applause.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—The dramatic season opened here on Monday evening with the first appearance locally of Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in The Woman in the Case. Miss Maud Hildyard is most successful in the part of Claire Forster, and Miss Kathleen Russell as Margaret Rolfe also creates a most favourable impression. Mr. William Kershaw as Julian Rolfe and Mr. James Lindsey as Thompson are both excellent, and others whose efforts call for special eulogism are Mr. Paul Wynter as Jimmy O'Neil, Mr. Sydney Palfrey as Louis Klauffsky, Miss Mary Griffiths as Mrs. Hughes, and Mr. W. F. Fletcher as Walters. The play is preceded by The Deputy Sheriff.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—After a long absence we are having a welcome return visit of the favourite Renad Bros. in The Swiss Express, which seems to have lost none of its mirthful attributes. As usual, Charles and Frederick Renad are the life and soul of the entertainment, being well seconded by Mr. Wilford Bailey as Dr. Gull and Miss Dorothy Deakin as Virginia.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—A first-class programme is headed by that smart couple, Bella and Bijou, who are great favourites here. They are presenting their comedy creation, "The Suffragette," in their own inimitable style, and they are receiving quite an ovation. At the other end are the Albert and Edmunds Troupe, in their side-splitting pantomimical sketch, The Tower of London; Gwennie Llewellyn scores a success with her songs; J. A. Wilson, with his remarkable cleverly trained dog "Private Towser," is a great favourite with "Troubles of a Recruiting Sergeant"; the Cumberlands, acrobatic cyclists, accomplish difficult feats; J. W. Hall is accorded a hearty reception; La Berat, the mystic grotto dancer, is seen in dance creations; the Glenroy Troupe present a number of characteristic dances in excellent style; Tom Bryce is funny in a musical comedy sketch, entitled A Dude's Wooing; and the Bioscope is retained.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Wilton Heriot and company are topping this week's entertaining "show" with the sporting comedy, entitled Denbigh's Divorce, an admirably played and enjoyable sketch. At the other end is H. C. Lovell and company in the musical comedietta, Mam'selle Pom-Pom, which also proves a great favourite; Wallace Whitney, character comedian; Beatrice Foster, burlesque actress; J. H. Greener, the singing pit lad; Harry Luck, eccentric comedian; Bessie Neilson, in illustrated songs; and the Pavilion Perfection pictures are other attractions.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is appearing here in The Coal King. Mr. Henry Deane gives a fine performance of Tom Roberts; Mr. A. W. Norman is excellent as Sir Reginald; Mr. Robert Faulkner as Walter Hartford submits a finished portrayal of a villain; Miss Winifred Love is a sympathetic and prepossessing heroine as Grace Shirley; Dick Shirley is well played by Mr. Frank Dalton; and Miss Dennis Duncan is highly effective as Mad Ann. The comedy rôles are successfully sustained by Mr. Sam Roberts as Jim Williams and Miss Effie D. Crawford as Araminta Green.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Top of an excellent bill is the Child Trio of actor-musicians, who are deserving of great praise; Charles Ulric is loudly applauded for his clever manipulation of barrel and cylinder; Stanley and Vandyke, comedy duo, are successful; Harry Bickley, comedian, is deservedly popular; the Three Hodginis are exceedingly clever in their gymnastic and revolving ladder act; Bessie Lind, comedienne, meets with a cordial reception; Hayes and Merritt, bounding trampolinists, perform wonderful feats; Harry Drew, bass vocalist, renders his songs effectively; and the Hippodrome pictures complete.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Durlison.—Large audiences have welcomed a return visit of The Merry Widow, of which Mr. George Edwardes' company gives a very enjoyable and successful rendering. The title-rôle is charmingly filled by Miss Phyllys Le Grand, and Mr. Robert Needham is remarkably happy in his impersonation of Prince Danilo. Other notable characterisations are the Popoff and Nisch of Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter and Mr. Harry Emeric, both of whom are specially entertaining; and the Novakovitch and Jolidan of Mr. Cecil Warwick and Mr. Walter Heal, Olga, Frou-Frou, and Natalia being well interpreted by Miss Eileen Clanford, Miss Neste Laurel, and Miss Mabel Hope; while Cascada, St. Brioche, Khadja, and the Waiter are capably represented by Messrs. Tom H. David, Spencer Lloyd, C. L. Steward, and Clinton Reynald; and Misses Alice Humphrys and Enid Forde as Sylvanie and Prascovia complete an efficient cast.

LIVERPOOL.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Good business is the order of the day here, the attraction being Paumier and Howard's stirring drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox gains general approval for his admirable handling of Prince Olaf; Mr. Victor Rae also earns much credit as Prince Michael; Miss Bracewell is deservedly popular by reason of her really admirable picture of Monica; Miss Verity Page presents a telling Camiola which brings out rounds of applause; Mr. Alfred Goddard impersonates Prince Hildred with tact; and Mr. Sidney Bayliss makes the most of Nathan. The costumes and accessories are, as usual, of a high order.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—With Edged Tools is paying a welcome return visit here, and public patronage is great, Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's productions being at all times popular in this city. The company includes several artists who have already earned renown in other works toured by the same proprietors, among these being Mr. Hamilton Deane, who again holds the part of Jack Meredith; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid, who repeats his moving assumption of the unfortunate Victor; Mr. Henry Nunn (Guy Oscard), Miss Marie Leonnard (Jocelyn), Miss Marguerite Cellier (Millicent), Miss Marion Fawcett (Lady Cantourne), and Miss Violet Thoroid (Lady Herries). Mr. J. D. Geddes makes an admirable Sir John Meredith, and Mr. Albert Campbell does the most with Maurice Gordon.

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Pantomime is again here, the attraction this time being Mr. R. C. Buchanan's Aladdin from the able pen of Mr. Stanley Rogers. The aim of the author is certainly to make his audiences rock with laughter, and in this he is entirely successful, some of the incidents being excruciatingly funny. In addition the scenery, dresses, and singing are particularly good. Miss Mabel Hind as Aladdin proves a prime favourite; Miss Lily Lonsdale is a pretty Princess, and sings tastefully; and endless fun is caused by Mr. Tom Carrick (Widow Twankey), Mr. Ernie Myers (Abanazar), Mr E. R. Beaumont (Emperor), Mr. Kevan Bernard (Wishee Washee), Mr. J. G. Aitken (Grand Vizier), and the Bros. Fiman (Bo-Bi and Bo-Ko). Mr. J. G. Lowther is the Slave of the Ring, and Miss Margaret Vincent the Genie of the Lamp. Specialities are contributed by the Whirlwind dancers and the Three Warners.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The principal line here this week is the romantic sketch, The Little Father of the Wilderness, delightfully presented by Mr. Huntley Wright and company, among his supporters being Messrs. H. A. Saintsbury, Alfred Beaumont, J. R. Cranford, W. R. Staveley and Miss May Taverner; the efforts of the company meet with well-merited applause. Lily Burnand brings her latest, and finds general favour; Harry Leybourne as a comedian and mimic pleases immensely; Maggie and Jack Rawson have a neat and artistic drawing-room entertainment of music, songs, and whistling, the youthful performers earning loud applause; Beauty and the Burglar, presented in capital style by Millie Engler and company, including Miss Louie Tinsley, proves very amusing; the Leslie Bros. keep their audience in shouts of laughter with their funny ways; Fred Elton in his scena at the piano, On Board an Ocean Liner, introduces with much acceptation "The Butterfly and the Rose"; La Freya has some charming studies, which are appreciated very much; and the Daunton-Shaw troupe of trick cyclists perform several astounding feats.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Here are Dale and O'Malley, a lively pair of comedians, who cause great laughter; another merry couple are Palles and Cussick, with The Funny Side of Life; Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast have a neat poetic fantasy, The Sea Nymph; Menotti executes remarkable tricks on the wire; Kioto and Esa have a smart equilibristic performance, introducing a sensational five ladder act; Cissie Curlette has some popular songs; and also in the list are the Sisters Henderson, speciality artists; and Monty Walker, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Karno's Dandy Thieves, with George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning, is the big attraction; Paulton and Doley give a fine show as bicycle comedians, for which they earn loud applause; Francini Olloms and Page go through a smart entertainment as jugglers, acrobats, and tumblers; Ritter and Foster are eccentric comedians and dancers; Billy Haines has some good coon songs; Edie Veno proves very diverting; the Hyde and Cody trio create endless laughter with their funny tricks; and Miss Alma, at the piano, pleases generally.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The old English comedy, A Bird in the Hand is Worth Two in the Bush, is being given here by the stock dramatic company, among the principals being Messrs. Harry Tresham (Roderick), Sydney Grant (Reginald), Cecil Ravenswood (the Major), Tom H. Solly (Sharke), Miss Lilian Radbourne (Madam Prodigal), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Ellen). Mr. Anthony Brown's bioscope shows Under the Mistletoe.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Miss Ada Colley is here delighting everybody with her charming singing; Roland, with Miss Marjorie Morgan, gives his capital illusions, including the new one, "The Bachelor's Dream," which certainly causes surprise; the Empire Comedy Four present an artistic and funny part-song turn; Rhoda Paul pleases with her male impersonations; Ross and Lewis are a couple of exceedingly amusing comedians; Harry Bedford brings his latest ditties, including the Salome skit, "The Sheep's Head and the Tin-tack"; the Lukushimas find great favour by reason of their clever Japanese act; Little Pam is a neat comedian and dancer; the Musical Jees are as delightful as ever; and also in the bill is a dramatic episode by H. M. Vernon, entitled, The Three Thieves.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—The big line here is George I., the performing chimpanzee, introduced by Dandy George; the Five Bohemians are gifted vocalists, who provide a capital turn; Mabel Thorne earns great popularity with her latest songs; Luis Hardt has a pretty scena, In Days of Old; the Sages are a couple of entertaining comedy burlesque artists; Tod Lowen amuses with his funny songs; Goodall and Knox are diverting acrobatic and patter comedians; a neat combination act of juggling, &c., is given by Redlop and Tilman; and Layton and Douglas go through some smart quick changes while playing instrumental solos.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The Fatal Wedding is drawing large and appreciative houses on its return visit, a capital rendering being presented by Mr. Percy Williams' company. The specialities and choruses by the children are a strong feature, and deservedly applauded.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—The bill includes Walter Foster and company, in a dramatic sketch The Honour of the Family; Geo. Norton, a clever vocal comedian, in funny songs and patter; Chas. Cole, light comedian; Chas. Jerome, coon comedian; and St. Ruth and Conyers, duettists. The Paris Floods form a striking series of pictures.

MAESTEG.—Town Hall Theatre.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Pete was presented here for the first three nights of the week by Miss Inez Howard's company. The acting of Mr. G. R. J. Austin in the title-rôle was very fine and fully merited the loud applause received; Mr. G. P. Ellis' portrayal of Phillip Christian was exceedingly good; Mr. C. Horlock as Cæsar Cregan was very effective; the rôle of Kate Cregan was cleverly filled by Miss Margaret Savill; Miss Katie Flood was praiseworthy as Nancy. For the last three nights Home, Sweet Home is billed.

MANCHESTER.—Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company are here this week in The Bad Girl of the Family, which made so marked a success at the Grand Junction Theatre a week ago.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—This week a pleasing change is provided by J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime of The Babes in the Wood, which is attracting good houses twice nightly. Excellent scenery and dresses distinguish the piece, and the cast leaves nothing to be desired. The story proper is capitally supported by Miss Marion Scott as Robin Hood, a dashing figure, and Miss Mary Dene as the winsome Maid Marion; while excellent fun is provided by Messrs. Brinsley Smith as Baron Kelly, Harry Rousby as Araminta, and Harry Conroy as Soft Sammy. Among the immortals, praise is due to Mr. Edwin Webb as Infernalito, and Miss Emmie Mappin as Sylvania for their excellent singing.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Little Phil's Mother, last week's attraction at the Osborne Theatre, is drawing good houses here. The play is under the direction of Mr. Frank M. Thorne.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Mr. William Watson's pantomime Robinson Crusoe is the attraction here, and is repeating the success it achieved at the King's Theatre. A strong feature is the inclusion of the Waldrons in the cast.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A welcome change here is the presentment of Mr. Ernest Stevens's comic and spectacular pantomime Cinderella. Elaborate staging and dressing distinguishes the production, and the cast is on a similar level of excellence. The prime honours are carried off by Mr. E. Statham Staples as the Baron, Hercules, whose diminutive figure and accomplished drolleries are employed to the very best advantage; and also by Mr. Alfred Clark as Tiny, his huge wife, who is a capital comic contrast. Mr. W. Leopold, jun., adds some clever work as Capers, the page; Misses Ethel Ramsay and Marianne Carozzi figure ably as the Elder Sisters; and smart impersonations are given by Mr. Harry Carlisle as the wrestling flunkey and Miss Dolly Hook as the Duke of Whistbridge. In the central rôles of the Prince and Cinderella Miss Agnes Tandy as the former and Miss Felicia Firmin as the latter are in every way adequate and pleasing; while Mr. Harry Ongar plays well as Dandini and Miss Dorothy Moulton sings nicely as the Fairy Godmother. Incidentally, some neat dancing is done by the Lottie Stone Troupe.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Signor Rosi's Italian ballet Uncle Isadore, including those wonderful dancers Signorina Luisa Patti, Signorina C. Mossetti, and Signor Marcella, is greatly to the front here this week. Sammy Shields, the popular Scotch comedian, scores a big success, as usual; Wallace Selkirk's scena Our Empire's Defenders, performed by one hundred Manchester children, is capital; Haines and Borthwick still delight with their capital sketch Half-a-Dollar; Frank Hartley does some smart juggling feats; the Georgia Coons give a good Dark Town entertainment; Stewart and Morgan please with their singing; Maizie Hibbs dances prettily; the Three Van Dammes are clever comedy acrobats and tumblers; and the Prince Milner Trio give a surprising performance in juggling, hoop-manipulating, comedy tumbling, and wire-walking.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—An excellent programme here this week is headed by Jan Rudenyi and his London company in The Power of Music, a very pleasing item; the Vampire dance, presented by Mildred Deverez and Tom Terriss, is also a striking contribution; Fred Karno's Football Match adds to the amusement; Lawrence Barclay, the popular comedian, is well received, as usual; and Leo Dryden gives acceptable selections from his répertoire. Other good turns are Owen McGiveney, in Dickens impersonations; Chas. D'Aix and his dog, in a clever speciality; Lee and Kingston, the comedy duo; and Evelyn Taylor, a popular chorus comedienne.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—A capital programme here this week includes an amusing sketch, Spooner's Baby, full of humorous situations, well played by a first-rate company, including A able work as Wanda and Miss Nettie Mitchell was sweetly sympathetic as Nadine. Miss Madge Palmer was excellent in the comedy part of Patty Woodlands.

NEATH.—GWYN HALL.—Lessee, Mr. J. W. Robinson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. George.—Boswell's Circus provides a good all-round entertainment. Ponies and dogs go through a remarkable performance, and the merry clowns create roars of laughter.

NELSON.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson.—Tom Grave, the local lad, in his sensational feats of "Shooting the Bar" and "Whizzing the Wheel" in a motor-car, is the principal attraction here, and crowded houses nightly have witnessed his daring performances. The company throughout is of a high-class order, and includes Ernest Charles Gittins' company, who give in condensed form The Daughter of the Regiment and The Bohemian Girl; the Musical Marvels, vocalists and eccentric instrumentalists, are hard to beat; Elmo and Rego do some clever acrobatic work; and Hector and Lauraine are a smart pair of acrobatic comedians. In addition, there is Mahatma, the queen of second sight, assisted by Prof. Steen, and Amy Allnutt, a capital chorus singer.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company occupies the boards here in A Royal Divorce. As Napoleon Mr. Keith Fraser acts with much force and dignity; and Miss Violet Ellicott gives a graceful and touching representation of the Empress Josephine. Mr. Charles Stirling makes a good Marquis de Beaumont; and Miss Winifred Tempest's depiction of Marie Louise is all that could be desired. In the character of Talleyrand Mr. J. H. Roberts shows ability; and the rôle of General Augereau is in the capable hands of Mr. E. J. Collins. The staging and dresses are very attractive.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—The programmes submitted here are always excellent and in good taste. The Crisps in a dancing scena have made a big success; and Little Sophie, a clever youngster, has also scored well. The Harrison Bros. cause roars of laughter; and Mr. Mal Vern, in laughing songs; Mr. Colin Carlisle, light comedian; Miss Freda Hardene at piano; Miss and Mr. Zanoni in a juggling scena; and Mr. Edgar Forrest and company in sketch one and all delight the audience and receive enthusiastic applause. The animated pictures are first class.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—After a most successful season, Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime, Cinderella, is to be withdrawn this week.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—A brilliant audience assembled here on Monday to welcome Mr. William Mollison and Miss Annie Hughes, in The Chorus Lady. Miss Hughes gives a fine rendering of the part of Patricia O'Brien. Whether as the glib-tongued chorus leader or in the more serious scenes in which she is called upon to play, Miss Hughes is equally convincing. Mr. William Mollison has not a big part as Dick Crawford, but he plays it with his usual artistic polish; Mr. Henry Deas as Dan Mallory, the racing man, furnishes an ideal representation; and the rôle of Nora is pleasingly filled by Miss Elsie Vron Neville. Mr. Harold Neville is a very good Patrick O'Brien; Miss Josephine Woodward an admirable Mrs. O'Brien; and Miss Mabel Durrant a clever Sylvia. A Breezy Morning precedes.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—This week Mr. J. A. Campbell's company presents the romantic play, From Convent to Throne. The part of Lieut. Ernerto von Hapsburg is well interpreted by Mr. C. Wood; Miss Mary Fulton as Princess Maritrya imparts to her performance much intensity; and to Mr. W. Passmore great credit is due for his able representation of General von Hapsburg. The Maurice of Mr. A. F. Stuart is a clever piece of work; Mr. William G. Miller as Baron Streisau does full justice to a disagreeable character; and Mr. T. G. Vane as Lieut. Otto Telson is good.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—A huge success was scored here on Monday, when Messrs. F. W. Bolam and John Tiller's pantomime, Jack and Jill, commenced a fortnight's run. Miss Marguerite Broadfoote is a dashing principal boy, whose singing is one of the features of the production; and Miss Moyna Hill is a sweet principal girl. Mr. Will Lytton as the page Ginger proves himself to be a comedian of rare ability; Mr. Fred Walmsley is an excellent Baron; Mr. Ernest Rees a typical Dame; and Miss Cissie Iris and Glady Satchwell are delightful as the Babes.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Chas. T. Aldrich, an American versatile artist, is this week at the head of a fine bill here. Mr. Aldrich's performance is marked throughout by exceptional cleverness. A warm local favourite is Witty Watty Walton, fresh from his pantomime success; and another smart turn is provided by Will H. Fox, the well-known comedy pianist. Other capital items are presented by Florence Esdaile, vocalist; A Ba Bes, picture postcard novelty; Gipsy Woolf and her Six Sunbeams; Farr and Farland, comedians and patterers; Talbot and Pearce, in Japanese musical duologue; and Alice Maydue, comedienne.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Walter Melville's company has presented here this week the sensational drama, Her Second Time on Earth. The part of Dora Grey is well portrayed by Miss Marie McAulay; Captain Jasper Norman is capitally played by Mr. Lonnen Meadows; and Jack Carlton, as played by Mr. Wingold Lawrence, is all that could be desired.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Wilde.—Ching Ling Soo heads the bill here with a mystifying performance that draws big houses; Olive Lenton, in a vocal scena, "Harvest Time," is appreciated; the Brothers Werde are a pair of amusing eccentrics; and Lester Carey, in illustrated songs is acceptable. Tom Stuart, character actor mimic, is deservedly popular; Musical Silvo, with his many musical novelties, is interesting; and Nina Wood, for songs at the piano, wins applause. The American Bioscope, showing a new series of interesting pictures complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H. Gould.—An entertaining "olla podrida" of vocalism, juggling, and conjuring is given by M. Escourt; Barron's Burlesque Menagerie is very amusing, and is highly appreciated, as is the gymnastic display of Cara Magdo; T. W. Lenner gives some good comic songs in a quaint style. Other good things are presented by Danton and Morris, Susie Dole, Florrie Wright, Ruby Celeste, and May Hallett, in a sketch, Enery Brown, and Sinclair's Mannikins.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company opened here on Monday with the Lyceum version of The Christian, which was greatly enjoyed by an appreciative audience. As John Storm Mr. R. Scrope Quentin was responsible for an excellent impersonation; Mr. Arthur D. Layland proved an able representative of Horatio Drake; Mr. John Blake presented a careful study of Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Edwin Ling gave a good rendering of Father Lamplugh; and Mr. Burton Yaldwyn a faithful embodiment of Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Muriel Marsden in the character of Glory Quayle held the attention of the audience throughout; Miss Sissie Murdoch made an admirable Polly Love; and the remaining parts were all ably sustained.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—An enjoyable programme here is headed by the Kahn and Kahn Trio, in their magical illusionary and second-sight act, which has been heartily greeted; Jack Barie, Scotch comedian and dancer, is a very entertaining turn; the Sisters Lillian, duettists and ballad vocalists, delight all with their vocal efforts; K. Dunning, in a clever ventriloquial act, is warmly welcomed; Martinett and Wallace, coloured musical comedians, are loudly applauded; Wilford Gregory, the flexible marvel, is smart; Katie Ashton, comedienne and dancer, is well received; and the Palace Pictures are, as usual, up to date.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's charming and amusing pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, is here this week, and is being well patronised. Mr. Martin Haley as the Baron is highly amusing; Mr. Gus Walker as Nurse Prettypet creates much fun; Messrs. Harley and Melton as Weary Willie and Tired Tim evoke great laughter in their knockabout business; Mr. Bert Lloyd, a droll Pickles, has taking songs; the Sisters Lang as the Babes deserve much praise; Miss Gertrude Douglas as Robin Hood is a great favourite; Miss Verona Phillis as Maid Marian is charming; and Mr. Angus Strong as Will-o'-th'-Wisp and as King Richard was very successful, his songs being received with approbation. Miss Ethel Dancy is a graceful Fairy; and Miss Effie White is very good in the Fire Queen's dance.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Edward Crossland's Melody Makers, in a musical scena, The Burglar's Dream, are much appreciated; Coram is well received for his exceptionally fine ventriloquial performance; Harry Russon, the actor-comedian, is greeted with much applause; the Austral Trio are a smart musical and variety turn; Bert Woodward, the bluffless biker, displays wonderful skill; Gicardo is a juggler of great ability; Harry E. Baker and Florence De Sales are amusing in their vocal and comedy turn; and Alice Winsome is a pleasing comedienne. The Hippodrome Bioscope pictures are very good.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The company of Mr. Wentworth Croke is here with The Bondman. A strong portraiture of Jason is given by Mr. Philip Darien, and Mr. Stanley Harrison well portrays the irresolute Michael; Miss Violet Macaree makes a thoroughly human Grecba, arousing hearty sympathy; Mr. F. J. Waller plays Dr. Boni in breezy style; Mr. H. Rotheram doubles the parts of Father Ferrati and Grandfather, and minor rôles are played with excellent effect by Misses Beatrice Hughes, Emelie Mayhew, Hilda Grey, Ethel Hartman, and Messrs. Sydney Stephens, C. A. Olgar, and Wilfred Beckwith.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Pantomime again holds sway, The Fair One with the Golden Locks being presented. Mr. James Chippendale leads the fun as Vinaigrette, and, assisted by Mr. W. Letters (Prince Pippin), Mr. Johnny Leoni (Taradiddle), Mr. Charles Calvert (General Slopoff), and Mr. Geo. Hudson (Admiral Bunker), contrives to keep the pace warm from start to finish. Miss Madge Brownie makes the Princess Affair, a charming creature, and is surrounded by an excellent number of court officials in Miss Irene Vere (Lord Chamberlain), Miss Mai Eve (Alicia), Miss St. Clair (Victorine), and Miss Lily Allchurch (a Good Fairy). Mr. Victor Crawford is comical as the Squire, and the May-fair Girls dance capitally.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Gentlemen, the King is a capital military episode, well portrayed by Henry Bedford, Evelyn Vernon, and an excellent company. A charming vocal entertainment by the Will o' the Wisps obtains the most generous applause; Marie Kendall's vivacious style finds many admirers; Matthews and Cowper are seen in a new sketch, and G. W. Hunter supplies some smart anecdotes and patter; Great and Good are an amusing pair of acrobats; the mysterious musician, To-To, is accorded a warm reception; Dacey and Lewis sing and dance acceptably, as also does Steve McCarthy, and Ruth Davenport is heard to great advantage in a song from Dorothy.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—Chief interest centres in the elaborately staged Concordia, in which Percy Honri shows his marvellous ability for quick change, his numerous gorgeous costumes gaining great admiration. Alice Pierce gives impressions of celebrities in artistic and pleasing manner; The ventriloquial entertainment of Lieut. Travis is always acceptable; Metz and Metz dance themselves into favour; Arthur Reece contributes a new song in pleasant style; and an aquatic item by Kirk and Saraski gains applause. Lillie Belle and Fred Erick are also among the attractions.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainment Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—The Angel of His Dreams is being presented by Messrs. George A. De Gray and Harry Masterman's company. Mr. De Gray capably depicts the Rev. Christian Esdaile; Mr. Wallace C. Campbell is good as Major Dudley Ferrars; Mr. Charles Arnold effectively portrays Sir Francis Tregarthen; Mr. Robert Hall does well as Roy Ferrars; Mr. May Stanley as Sam Tippett and Miss Etta Turner as Bessie Sparkles provide the humorous interludes of the play; Miss Edna Earl fills the rôle of Milly St. Austell with charming grace; Miss Effie Bartlett in the exacting character of Hilda Revelle is a success; and Miss Ida Thompson makes a winsome Lulu.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company presented for the first time here on Monday the fantastic musical play, The Arcadians. Miss Marion Edwards in the part of Sombra is greatly appreciated; Miss Katie Yates as Chrysea acts capitally; Mr. Gus Oxley as Simplicitas utilises to the full his opportunities for mirth-producing; Mr. Frank Collins as Peter Doody is very amusing; Miss Madge Haines as Mrs. Smith causes hearty laughter; Miss Mysie Devine as Eileen Cavanagh is excellent; and as Jack Meadows Mr. Roy Sidney acts well. Mr. Roy Lorraine is capital as Bobby, Mr. C. Herbert Hewetson is a masterful Sir George Paddock, and Mr. Frank Henry as Astrophel, and Mr. W. Dawson as Strephon are capital, Mr. Berkeley Davies as Father Time being worthy of notice.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, played by Mr. Walter Melville's company, is paying a return visit here. Miss Jessie Belmore as Sophie Coventry is interesting; Miss Florence Halton as Lucy is a capable actress; Mr. Chas. Ashwell is satisfactory as Jack Fenton; and James Harcourt is forcibly acted by Mr. William T. Riley; Mr. F. Ronald Adair as Willie Mason is a breezy jack tar; Miss Nannie Meade as Vesta Le Clere also acts very well; and Miss Nellie James as Poppy, and Mr. Bert Agate as Johnny Walker infuse some excellent comedy into their acting; Mr. Edwin Lever as Richard Fenton is capital; and Mr. John Brooks is very good as Bill Slater.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company in répertoire occupies the stage here on Monday evening. Almost His Bride was staged. Mr. A. F. Dudley as Philip Rowland acts in manly fashion; Jasper Thorne is ably delineated by Mr. R. F. Stacey; Miss Louie Peebles makes a sympathetic Mona Gilchrist; Miss Lily Prescott as Myra Thorne does well in a heavy part; and Miss Adele Liddon is good as Ruth; Miss Nellie Hook as Emma Baxter, and Mr. Stephen Pritt as Simon Simson are responsible for some capital comedy. The répertoire also includes A Woman's Passion and His Wife No Longer, both written by Mr. Pritt.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—The Four Royal Scots top the bill in a capital vocal and instrumental comedy act, which is well received; Emil Solbrig's Automatus are very amusing in their act, A Day Out; the Paul Kramer Troupe perform some daring feats of equilibrism on the trapeze; Guest and Newlyn are a smart couple as Hebrew and Soubrette; Chas. Pastor is a capable comedian; and Harry Maynard sings well. Nelly Martell is smart in her chorus songs, and the New York Nippers sing and dance in their usual clever style; the Palace Pictures are a capital feature.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham.—A great attraction is provided in Miss Violet Osmund's company, with The New Barmaid. Mr. Alexander Loftus is the life and soul of the piece as Bertie White; he works most assiduously, and there is not a dull moment while he is on the stage. Equally successful is Mr. Chas. Adeson as William White; and Mr. Chas. Sequin does remarkably well as Bonsor. Mr. Leslie Austen makes a robust Captain Loveday; and Mr. E. Sykes is natural as Colonel Claymore. In the title-rôle Miss Madge Prior is sprightly and attractive; Miss Marian Vyner is a capital Mary; Miss Murielo Mascot is good as Mabel; and Miss Vera Grafton portrays Brenda Louth with effect. The songs, which are rendered with great spirit, are well up to date, and there are frequent encores.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Haldane Crichton is presenting The Cingalee, the company being under the managership of Mr. Alfred Munro. Mr. F. Barclay distinguishes himself by an excellent embodiment of the Hon. Harry Vereker, his singing being particularly well appreciated; a humorous and entertaining portraiture of Chambuddy Ram is furnished by Mr. Hylton Wards; Mr. Frank Lennard gives a capital characteristic sketch of Boohamba; an admirable study of Sir Peter Loftus comes from Mr. Grafton Williams; Mr. Herbert Franklin essays with considerable success the part of Bobby Warren; and Mr. Frank Crichton is good as Myamgah. Miss Isa Bowman submits a delightful impersonation of Nanoya, singing effectively; Miss Florrie Greensmith is vivacious and enchanting in the rôle of Peggy Sabine; and Miss Ray Anderson is to be complimented on a clever and dignified presentment of Lady Patricia Vane. Others in the large cast all render sufficient and valuable aid, and the chorus is effective.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—Premier position on the bill this week is occupied by Flo Stanley and her company in the tabloid musical comedy The Prince of the Dandies, in which Miss Stanley as Daisy Highclass and Mr. Arthur Watson as Sprouts give prominent displays; a sketch of a rather amusing nature entitled The Concealed Bed is capitally performed by Graham Moffat and company; Rosie Lloyd is a popular comedienne; George Pinder submits a wonderfully clever exhibition with his performing elephant and ponies; Captain Kettle, styled "the mysterious sailor," is entertaining; Tiny Arnold, "the diminutive comedienne," receives a capital ovation; William McNally is applauded for his dulcimer playing; and the Bioscope is both elevating and entertaining.

PENZANCE.—ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Miss Kitty Loftus and party were welcomed here in the 4th inst. by an appreciative audience. Miss Loftus is a bright and clever comedienne, and her songs secured much applause. Miss Gwladys Cotterell's violin solos roused the enthusiasm of her audience; Mr. Oldbury Brough kept the house in a merry mood with a couple of musical sketches; songs by Miss Violet Runciman were pleasingly rendered; excellent pianoforte solos were played by Mr. Geo. F. Boyle, who also ably accompanied throughout. The tour is under the direction of Messrs. Baring Bros.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—During the building of the new City Hall Hamilton's Excursion and Variety company are making their annual visit to Perth at the theatre. Under the guidance of Mr. Claude Howell, a most interesting trip round the world is taken. The variety company is quite up to the usual standard at these entertainments. Mlle. Rosini gives a delightful show with her wonderful dogs; and Cambo, the man monkey, is entertaining in his clever musical act; Spiridion is a clever juggler; Lilian Savardo gives a neat performance on the trapeze; and the Dunlops give a cycling act at once daring and amusing.

PETERBOROUGH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—The Cheers, in an original scene from Dick Whittington, introducing their troupe of performing cats, are the chief attraction here, and have provided a most amusing entertainment; Ruby Roya is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; McKie and McKay give an acceptable turn; Maude Wilton has some good songs; the humorous patter of W. P. Sheen, "the Merry Widow Wimple," causes roars of laughter; Maude May Murray, in her electrical aerial dances, gains applause; Carl Lynn is accorded an enthusiastic welcome for his clever animal mimicry; and the Karnoscope shows some new pictures.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Robinson Crusoe's closing performances are as popular as the opening ones. Miss Topsy, the popular coloured artist, is precluded from appearing owing to indisposition, but Miss Alice King very ably deputises.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Charles Austin and company in Parker, P.C. are starred, and furnish a very amusing turn; Taree, the Australian musical bushman, extracts melody from a sixpenny mouth organ and toy harp; Cole and Rags, comedy acrobats and jugglers, perform wonderful feats in which humour and skill are mingled; Florence Kenyon's singing receives a remarkable demonstration of approval; Tom Woottwell does well with his clever character studies; Lilian May is a popular comedienne and dancer; and Walter Aubrey completes a fine programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—An excellent programme is provided for the patrons of this hall. Phil Rees' Stable Lads appear in a novel racing act, entitled Not a Crook; May St. Hilda, in a song scena, The Studio, captivates her audiences; Marguerite Ismay and her White Coons give a pretty vocal and dancing act; Le Diabolo presents a sensational act, "Looping the Devil's Wheel," which he concludes by riding on the outside of the wheel down an incline of 50 degrees into a net. Other turns are The Danbys, comedians; Clarence Sefton, comedienne and dancer; Vincent, acrobatic table tumbler; and the Alexcope.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Wm. Maclaren and company present Claudian, which is admitted to be one of the best plays staged at this theatre. The scenery and effects are excellent, and the dresses beautiful. Mr. Wm. Maclaren is a very fine Claudian, and Miss Lily C. Bandban is a charming Almida. Praise is due to all the members of the company.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. H. S. Davies and Phillips.—Mr. C. W. Poole is here with a fine show, and good houses are the order of the week.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The first visit of the King of Cadonia, presented by Mr. Frank Curzon's company, both from a spectacular and playgoer's view is an unqualified success. Mr. Bertie Wright as the Duke of Alasia finds ample scope for his native humour, and gravity and romance are embodied in Mr. J. Warren-Foster's rendering of the King; Miss Alice Moffatt, a graceful and charming Princess, in conjunction with the King sings pleasingly some duets. A typical specimen of a comic opera General is seen in Mr. Jack Martin; Mr. Cameron Carr is successful as Captain Laski; Mr. Edward Thirlby imparts considerable humour to the part of Bran; Miss Molly Keen impersonates Militza with brightness and vivacity; and the stern Duchess has a suitable exponent in Miss Florence Lelgarde.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—This week Mr. Evelyn A'Dell and company present The Old Home. Mr. Charles Franmore gives an excellent reading of the part of Daddy Dean; and Miss Nina Blake Adams as Hazel Dean makes a charming heroine.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Captain E. H. Barren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Lilian Rosebery, Carter Livesey, and company are seen to great advantage here in an amusing sketch entitled The Would-be Actors; Fred Land, eccentric comedian, sings three songs at lightning speed, and is heartily applauded; Devon and Earle are wooden-shoe experts; and George D'Albert is popular. Other successful turns are: The Five Musical Palmers; Mab Hopwood, soubrette; the Woelhaffs, vaudevillists; Johnny Cecil, comedian; the Dancing Gilberts; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—The star turn this week is Mlle. Liane d'Eve, whose dancing, songs, and transformations win great applause; mental telepathy and thought-reading have clever exponents in the Howard Bros.; the Donaldson Bros., in their well-known animal act find favour; Arthur Rigby sings capably as usual; and other favourites are Josephine Sable, Kelly and Agnes, Maria Pera, in her comedy duologue, "Two Doors and a Passage," Rosie Sylvester, and Mather and Mayer.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Top of the bill is Vonetta, a lightning Protean actress, in a local nautical musical comedy, A Fair Exchange, is presented by Herbert Dickeson and company; a novel equilibristic turn is given by Kiners-Moulin; Eastbury is expert in clay modelling; the Six Brothers Luck are entertaining in their sketch, The Demon of the Cellar; and Louie Tracey, Elsie Ellis, Stelling and Love, Nora Beverley, Clare and Pastor, and Mlle. Pollo, and accomplished gymnast also contribute. Mr. Geo. Alexander and company with The Importance of Being in Earnest, were billed for Thursday's flying matinée.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Mr. George Dance's principal company, in Our Miss Gibbs, is responsible for the notices "House Full" or "Standing Room Only" this week. The company is a remarkably strong one. Mr. Tom Shelford is irresistibly droll as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint; Mr. Ernest Darrella is a most impressive Earl of St. Ives; Mr. J. E. Stevenson an admirable Slithers; and Mr. R. M. Strachan a typical Mr. Toplady. Mr. Crauford Kent is well suited to the part of Lord Eynsford; Mr. Henry de Solla is quite at home as Mr. Beavis; and Mr. Amalfy is capitally portrayed by Mr. Murray Stephen. Mr. Theodore Leonard as Timothy Gibbs is very funny throughout; Miss Gladys Ivery is a winsome Lady Elizabeth; Miss Nancy Hervyn sings excellently Mme. Jeanne's song in the first act; Miss Winifred Knightly makes a distinguished Duchess of Minster; Miss Jennie Richards an ideal Mrs. Farquhar; and Miss Hilda Grundy as Mary Gibbs succeeds in bringing down the house by her charming impersonation.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is here, Miss Florence Lewis, a fine Robinson Crusoe, and Carlotta Wood as Pollie Perkins are firm favourites; Mayde Rowse is excellent as Tom Bowling, as is also Maisie Dainton as Lieut. Sprite; Bertha Collins secures her full share of applause as Susan; Syd Benson as Will Atkins, Fred C. Fields as Billy Crusoe, and Mark Lane as Dame Crusoe cause endless amusement, as do also Williams and Warden as Nab and Grabham; R. A. Byland does well as the Cannibal King; and the Countess as the Cannibal Queen and Thursday are most successful in their speciality turn. Mr. J. H. Wakefield is a capital Friday.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Spessill Brothers and Mack, American eccentrics, in Scenes in a Café, are novel knockabouts; Zanora and Berg, American cyclists, prove themselves masters of the wheel; Ted Waite, the spasmodic comedian, is very funny; and Rowlands and Ford, Welsh and Scotch comedians, contribute some catchy duets, patter, and dancing. Dora Barrington, in an opera song-scena, assisted by Miss Leslie Gray, is a most refined turn; and F. V. St. Clair is as popular as ever. Spry and Bently's comedy-drama, The Terror of Tierney's Rents, is cleverly rendered.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Under the sole direction of Mr. Charles Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—At the Royal Palace Theatre during the past week Mr. Graham Falcon's company has been giving keen enjoyment to good audiences with the bright pantomime Little Bo-Peep. The story of the proprietress of the missing sheep is well told (with, of course, the usual extraneous wealth of fun and fancy), and the performances are relished not only by the young children, but also by children of a larger growth. Miss Flora Morris is a charming Bo-Peep, and her songs go with a rare swing; Miss Mabel Kesler as Boy Blue not only displays cleverness as a pantomime artist, but also marked talent as an instrumentalist; Miss Dorothy Douglas is charming as Sylvania, the good fairy, her singing being much admired. Mr. Harry Howe as Dame Durden contributes in large measure to the fun of the production; and the humorous element is also capitally sustained by Messrs. Ernest Hans as Bill Bash, Will Lux as Chris Chrash, Mr. F. G. Royde as Baron Budget, and Jack Selway as Simon. Miss Ruby Carter makes a dashing Prince Pastorelle; and Miss Cissie Lenore plays with graceful effect as Marjorie Daw. Mr. Gavin Wood sings particularly well as Lemuel Lea; and the other parts are in good hands. To tuneful music, capable acting, and smart dancing there is a setting of pretty scenery.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here this week in The King and the Unknown Woman. The cast includes Mr. Wellesley Draper as Prince Loris, Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson as Prince Menski, Mr. W. R. Winning as General Platz, Mr. Cyril Harrison as Captain Gara, Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Corporal Stack, Mr. Fred R. Roper as Keloff, Mr. C. H. Henderson as General Bralneff, Little Elsie Clark as Cascar, Miss Violet Carlyle as Zora, Miss Gertrude Sterroll as the Countess Melvitch, and the Misses Hella Richmond, Cissie Padmore, and Ada Douglas. The characters are all sustained with ability, and the play is admirably staged.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Stage-Manager, Mr. Albert Burridge.—Taylor's troupe of elephants go through a wonderful performance in which their docility and high state of training are amply demonstrated; Emie Dainton is a pleasing comedienne; David and Marriott appear to advantage in a clever musical scena; Ward and Davies present a very amusing musical comedy duologue, entitled Wanted, a Typist; the Sisters Harcourt, comediennes, are well received; Roze and Calvert as Captain Kettle and his charming Mate provide a good turn; Vendome and Chase exemplify different styles of dancing very gracefully and effectively; the De Wynne Brothers give an excellent athletic display; Jack Hayworth, Scotch character comedian, is very diverting; and a Japanese scene is well depicted on the Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Pantomime fare is again provided for the patrons here, Mr. Charles Barnard's Babes in the Wood being the attraction. Fun and jollity prevail throughout, and the whole performance goes without a hitch. Miss Gracie Grahame makes a dashing Robin Hood, and scores with her songs; Miss Violet Nunn is a piquant Maid Marion, her vocalism being much enjoyed; the Sisters Du Cane are prominent as Will Scarlet and Daisy Buttercup; Miss Mabel Reeve and Miss Ena Corelli make a most effective and charming pair of Babes; Codwell and Verne are amusing as Sally Slop and Percy Perkins; and Nash and Noel as Timothy Boxys and Roger Hatys are comedians whose patter and humour keep the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Dan Weldon as the Demon King Envy and Miss Ethel Payne as Fairy Content fulfil these traditional parts with marked success.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here again with the powerful drama, Who is She? with Mr. James Stillwell as an admirable Prince Vladimir; the villainous Prince Bora is excellently presented by Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan; Mr Charles Rogers carefully portrays the humour of Captain Arthur Gower; Mr. Alfred Grenville is a fine old soldier as Sergeant Metroff; much laughter is caused by Mr. Willie Hicks (Paul), Mr. Bernard Leill (Chang Lee), and Miss Norma Dumayne (Sarette); Miss Georgette Thierry plays the title-rôle with considerable force; Miss Constance Medwyn does well as Keta Noveitch; Countess Laori is impressively sustained by Miss Alice Barber; and the little King has a good exponent in Miss Mabel Ronald.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—Joe Peterman and George Ricketts in the sketch The Pawnbroker, with their company, keep the audience in roars. The Married Widow is also a very amusing sketch, cleverly presented by Fred Moule, Brenda Maxton, Walter Cross, and Dora Fisher. Alfonso Silvano does some very sensational head-balancing. Other acceptable turns are given by George James, comedian; Tom E. Dean, comedian; Whitworth Trio, trick cyclists; Irene Meldon, vocalist and dancer; Clown Paulo and his clever pony, Tiger; Blair and Allen, in song and dance. The Bioscope panorama of Paris under water are very good clear films.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—The Australian comedian, Billy Williams, heads an excellent programme and gets much applause; Toplitzky, or, the End of the World, is an amusing sketch under the direction of Hayman and Franklin; the Brothers Hayes do some smart dancing; the Two Kays in novel speciality, J. P. Ling, mimic, Boys of England, in Barrack Room Ballads, Will Rhodes, droll singing comedian, George Hull, comedian and whistler, and Seeley West Rhodesia, in juggling, mirth and music, also contribute plenty of good entertainment.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The Miorsky Four, acrobatic musical eccentrics, prove exceedingly diverting; Mr. Tom Child's vocal contributions are greatly appreciated; Kydd and Kydd make a decided hit as patter comedians; Miss Ethel Wilford is distinctly successful in the comedy monologue That Red Seal; Martin Remo is a highly entertaining comedian; F. L. Wylie is very amusing; and Melia and Mozarabar are smart equilibrists, who introduce their highly-trained pigeons and ravens.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Only a Little Boy is the attraction here. It is well played by Miss Dot Forde in the title-rôle; Mr. F. Marriott Watson as Jim Bragstone; Mr. Oswald Douglas, Steve Kingdom; Mr. Cecil Raymond, Joshua Snell; Miss Hettie Seymour, Debora Pennington; Master Harry Duff, Rag-Tag O'Flynn; and Miss Florence E. Florence as Jane Bragstone.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. L. Garside; Business-Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Mr. and Mrs. Rice Cassidy and company are appearing here in Seaweed, with Mr. Rice Cassidy as the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh; Miss Ada Roscoe, the Duchess Olga; Mr. Tom Royndon, the Duke Sergius Rubinoff; Mr. Villiers Stanley, Allen Armstrong; Miss E. Kay, the Office Boy; and Mrs. Rice Cassidy as Seaweed. The play is well staged and the dresses very good.

SEACOMBE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kierman.—Miss Lena Stanton and Harry Joseph's company is here with the pantomime Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Lily Simmons appears to advantage in the title-rôle, her rendering of the various musical numbers being well received; Miss Dolly Andrews is a pretty and attractive Princess Yazora; and Captain Selim is dashingly portrayed by Miss Gladys May; Irza being capably handled by Miss Kitty Russell. Mr. J. Riche gives able assistance as King Kr

FILM GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Brought to Terms.

This is a Selig film and a very good one too. Couple by couple, a party of hen-pecked husbands, with their wives, call upon Mr. Brown, another who is domineered by his wife. Upon their entering Brown's residence each overawed husband is likewise overweighted with his muchly multiplied progeny. The object of these ladies calling on Mrs. Brown is to discuss the woman question, and the ways and means wherewith to rule their husbands in a manner even more effective than they have hitherto done. With utter lack of ceremony, our gentlemen friends, still carrying their children, are unceremoniously rushed into a room adjoining that wherein the meeting is to be held. They are dejected at the treatment thus received, and while the wives are in debate as to the proper procedure to further intimidate their spouses, one of the gentlemen conceives an idea whereby, he tells his co-mates, he can subjugate these termagent better halves. His friends are all excitement as he makes his hurried departure through a window. He rushes to the city rat-catcher's place of business near by, and purchases a trap full of rats and immediately returns to his now semi-delighted friends, exhibits his rats, then cautiously opening the door between the two rooms, lets the rats escape from the trap among the still altercating and debating women. Pandemonium results. The wives, horrified, with skirts drawn tight and ankles doing a Comanche war dance, rush to their husbands, beseeching them to exterminate the pests. At first husbands are indignant and refuse, but upon further pleading, they enter the room just vacated by their wives and thoroughly satisfied with the success of their scheme, do away with the rats, and assuming the same domineering attitude towards the women as had hitherto been their own bane of existence, they proceed to their respective homes, elated and contented. But this time the wives carried the children.

The Axenstrasse.

The famous Axenstrasse, from Brunnen to Fluelen, Switzerland, that noted walk, with its mountain galleries carved from the solid rock, on the east bank of Lake Lucerne, is strikingly depicted in the latest Ambrosio film, 296ft. long, to be had from Warwick's. The interest is enhanced by the proximity of the St. Gothard Railway, which adjoins. Amongst the many places shown are Fluelen, the valley of Reuss, and the chapel of William Tell.

Birds on the Bioscope.

New life-motion studies of birds and animals in natural tints will be shown on the Palace Theatre bioscope next week. Mr. Charles Urban will give a demonstration of his system of coloured photography—"Kinemacolor"—before the Fellows of the Zoological Society on Feb. 15.

Aviation Pictures.

The Essanay Co., 4, Rupert-street, W.C., have photographed the whole of the proceedings of the aviation meeting at Los Angeles, California. The first copies will arrive in London on Feb. 16. There is every reason to believe that this picture will be the very best that has ever been taken of the flying men and their machines, for the weather was perfect at the time, and California is one of the finest places in the world for photography. At this meeting Mons. Paulhan beat all the world's high-flying records.

Film House Record.

Messrs. Tylers have sent us a neat little pamphlet, entitled "The Film House Record." As might be expected, it deals with the latest films released by the firms located at this Gerrard-street depôt. "The Film House Record" was decided upon as the easiest way of keeping showmen not in personal touch with "Film House" acquainted with its various productions. Each week advance descriptions will be given of the new films issued by Cricks and Martin (Lion's Head Brand Films), Cosmopolitan Film Co. (British and Colonial, Comerio, and other makes) and Walter Tyler, Ltd. (Itala and Eclair Films), and many other items of news regarding these firms which are likely to interest buyers and hirers of films. The "Record" will be sent post free to any showmen sending a post card to any of the above firms at the Film House, Gerrard-street, London, W.

The Terror and the Terrier.

This is a Cricks and Martin picture, and the release date is Feb. 11. A mischievous boy steals the dog while its rightful owner is enjoying a refresher in a public-house, and, running along the road with it, encounters a policeman. Incited by the boy, the dog gets a good grip of the latter and pulls him to the ground; and further along seizes a long plait of hair hanging down the back of a schoolgirl talking to some friends. Other victims follow in quick succession. By tugging at some sacks in a coster's barrow the animal upsets both the latter and its owner to the ground; and a little further along there is a warm argument with a blind beggar's dog, which ends in the mendicant coming to grief. A serious chase after the two mischief-makers ensues, and there is a very lively time for everybody. The length is 310ft.

County Council Shirks Licensing.

At the Colchester Town Council meeting last week, Alderman Goody moved, and Mr. Baker seconded, a resolution in support of one passed by the Justices to the effect that the powers of the Essex County Council in regard to the granting of cinematograph licences should be delegated to the justices. The resolution was carried.

From Chapel to Theatre.

The old Surrey Chapel in Blackfriars-road, S.E., of which the Rev. Rowland Hill was for fifty years the pastor, is being converted into an electric theatre.

Another New Vint Theatre.

Mr. Arthur Brogden, general-manager for Mr. Leon Vint's Electric Palaces, is leaving Kettering next week to take up his residence at Barry Dock, where he has another of Mr. Vint's new houses to open on the 21st of the present month.

At Westminster Palace.

Manager Douglas Payne has crammed his bill this week with good things. The pictures are the latest and best, and that part of the programme to which various artists contribute is deserving of especial mention. Topping the bill is sweet-voiced Sybil Lonsdale, whom we remember not so long ago as a talented member of the stock company of the London Coliseum. Jack Morris and George Marte give us a lively ten minutes of singing, talking, and dancing. That smart little soubrette Lottie Lee and ditto ditto Connie Duprez, together with Edward Mortimer, are very pleasant numbers to remember. In fact the whole entertainment is of the brightest. It should be recorded that at the last moment Mr. Payne made a special engagement for this week only of the Three Specialities, in their successful vocal harmony act, entitled The Soldiers and the Nursemaid. This act was a great hit.

Slight Strand Fire.

Some excitement was created in the Strand late last Tuesday night by a mishap at the "Fonematograph" electric theatre, 53, The Strand. Owing to a film catching fire in the chamber at the back of the screen the place began to fill with smoke. The audience were all safely conducted from the building, and the fire was extinguished before the arrival of the brigade.

Ealing Cinematograph Theatre.

Well within the first month of its opening this well-appointed house has amply justified its existence, indeed, so excellent have been the box office receipts that Mr. George Leybourne, who commands here, has found it necessary to abolish the threepenny seats and rely solely upon his sixpenny and shilling patrons to fill the house. Mr. Leybourne already speaks of "records," and aims at making the fine suite of rooms attached to the theatre a meeting-place, lounge, and club of the first order. Following a now almost universal custom, tea and coffee at moderate prices, and served by prettily-uniformed maids, may be obtained in all parts of the house.

Enfield Empire.

This cosily fitted-up hall has now been open to the public a fortnight, and we understand that the proprietors are extremely satisfied with the amount of patronage already received. The programme is changed twice each week (Mondays and Thursdays).

Birmingham Theatre de Luxe.

The Assembly Room of the Birmingham Masonic Hall has just been opened as a "Theatre de Luxe" for the exhibition of cinematograph productions, under the management of Electric Theatres (1908), Limited. To adapt it for this purpose the hall and its approaches have undergone considerable redecoration, including the blocking up of the windows with ornamental panelling corresponding to the mural design of the rest of the room. The floor is covered with a rich crimson carpet, upon which are placed some 350 tip-up stalls, upholstered in a pleasant tone of green plush. Over the platform is a screen 18ft. by 13ft. 6in., framed in gold, upon which are thrown the illustrations. Two of the latest pattern bioscope machines are used alternately so as to avoid any delay in changing the films. A soft ruby light prevents the room being in complete darkness when the pictures are being displayed, and at intervals it is fully illuminated for a few moments to facilitate the exit and entrance of visitors. Continuous exhibitions are given daily from 2 p.m. till 11 p.m. The resident management of the theatre is in the hands of Mr. Fletcher, who comes from the same company's "Theatre de Luxe" in the Strand, London.

Bradford Mechanics' Institute Lectures.

At the Bradford Mechanics' institute last week Mr. Henry Hibbert gave his second lecture on his travels "Off the Beaten Track Through the Land of the Vikings." A feature of the lecture was a number of most interesting animated pictures which were being shown for the first time. The audience saw the streets of the famous old cathedral town of Trondhjem, for instance, as they appear from the top of a tramcar. At Tromso the lecturer found a store containing a pile of polar bear, fox, and other skins, very tempting to the traveller in search of presents for friends at home. But the storekeeper assured him that the skins all came to her from London, whither in the first place they had been sent. The views included a number of charming seascapes, and particularly fine was an animated picture showing a great number of gulls hovering in the wake of a ship.

Cowdenbeath Picture Palace.

The Picture Palace, under Mr. M'Queen's management, continues to maintain its reputation as a place of entertainment where one is always certain to get a capital evening's enjoyment. The house is crowded nightly. The competitions put forward by Mr. M'Queen prove great sources of attraction. The latest, a beauty show, for which there was an exceedingly numerous entry, was an outstanding success.

Rotunda, Dublin, Closes.

The Irish Animated Picture Co. concluded a most successful season in the Rotunda last Saturday night.

Guildford—West's Pictures.

The cinematograph entertainments at West's picture palace, which have proved so popular since they were started at the beginning of the winter, have been discontinued until further notice in consequence of the licence under the new Act being refused at Kingston, it being stated that the building did not conform with the requirements of the Act. The County and Borough Hall licence was granted to the secretary, Mr. F. H. Elsley, who appeared in person, provided that the cinematograph was erected in the gallery, and the public was excluded from that part of the building.

Aldershot.—Alexandra Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carpenter's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. H. Crocker.—Under the new management of Mr. H. Crocker, who is well-known in theatrical circles, an excellent programme is presented this week. The chief film is Through the Breakers, whilst others equally interesting are The Pretty Violin-Player, Coliono Goes Shopping, A Discussion on Politics, The Mountaineer's Honour, Lily Farrar is successful in a song scena, "Bubbles."

Wide World Pictures.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Bert Sloman.—For the first part of the week this hall has been closed. On Thursday it opened with a fine selection of films.

Arbroath.—D.E.F. Picture Hall.—Lessee, Mr. George J. Melvin; General-Manager, Mr. Val Del; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hutton.—This place of amusement is crowded every evening. Some very fine pictures were shown on Monday night. A gruesome but very effective picture was The Legend of Ghosts; up to date and realistic were the Paris Floods; very humorous and entertaining were Auntie's Return, The Mad Dogs, and John Smith of New York; very fine and pathetic films were After Twenty Years and A Motherless Waif. At intervals Mr. J. R. McFarlane, a young Scotch comedian, sang some very funny and original songs. A matinée and entire change of pictures are given every Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. The old theatre is doing good business.

Ashton-under-Lyne.—The New Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—There is quite a unique series of films shown here this week of the disaster at Paris, the great overflow of the waters of the Seine. It is a city in flood, and the streets are, like Venice, canals, but, unlike Venice the waters are destructive and have worked havoc. It is something new to see the great 'Change drama, A Corner in Wheat—the avaricious men who make money by the suffering of the people. The Arrest of the Duchess De Berry a French episode of 1832, is a fine drama, and full of interest to the spectator. The Test is a story of absorbing character, and Dick Donovan is another of those exciting detective thrills which are watched with pleasure. Will Willis, comedian; Hermia, novel gladiator and heavy-weight lifter, and Dick Livesey, ventriloquist, are each clever in their specialities.

Oddfellows' Hall.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Acting-Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—This week's bill includes the Roman picture of the Patrician and the Slave, a beautiful costume play. The Vandeen Rebel is also a very fine dramatic series of events. Woman's Treachery is quite a series of thrills. The variety turns are a clever singing comedian, a comical fellow, and Miss Vinnie Beldon, a dusky princess who wins great favour as a young performer in song and graceful motion.

The Picturedrome. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—The manager here has engaged first-class variety talent for this week's business, in addition to the usual quantum of cinematograph pictures. The celebrated Muncaster Company appear in the dramatic episode False Evidence, the following enacting the characters with much ability: Miss Nina Vaughton, Miss Louie Heathfield, Mr. Stanley S. Gordon, and Mr. Alfred D. Adams.

Attercliffe.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—An interesting programme of pictures this week include An Indian Runner's Romance, The Country Doctor, The Beggarman's Gratitude, The Love Token, Treacherous Gaucho, Mr. Pokenose, Out With It, and The Explorer's Dream. Mr. George Loukes, a popular local comedian, is meeting with success.

Picture Palace.—Lesse, Mr. Matt. Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—The principal pictures here this week are In the Shadow of Death and The Poacher's Revenge. Others of an interesting character are Soldier's Servant, Kidnapper Turns Rescuer, Mother of the Condemned, and another of the Foolshead series. A pleasing interlude is furnished by Mr. Dan Gregory, musical clown and jester.

Ayr.—Picture Palace.—Pictures have caught on here. Prominent among the films shown this week are The Gold Digger's Son, giving a vivid incident of life in the goldfields, The Maid of Saragossa is intensely interesting, and the singing picture, Bravo; Territorials, is a popular item. A complete change of pictures is intimated for the latter half of the week, and will include The French Spy, the famous military picture, The Ordeal, The Calendar, and The Mad Drainpipe.

Birmingham. — King's Hall.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—There are several excellent pictures on the programme this week, chief amongst them being an exciting subject entitled The Two Brothers. Other features include The Restoration, A Midnight Adventure, Arrested for Pleasure, &c. Good variety turns are given by The Neimans, wire-walkers and gymnasts; and Mlle. Epardo, tight-rope artist. The entertainment is enjoyed by crowded audiences.

Queen's Hall. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—Audiences here have a splendid programme of up-to-date pictures and vaudeville, one of the best films illustrating the adventures of a Sioux Indian. The comic subjects are a good feature, and include the new picture Mother-in-Law Learning to Ride.

Blackburn. — Central Hall. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. Arbury; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. W. Page.— The pictures this week include the following: Coco's Wedding, Jane Made One of the Family, A Day Off, A Fickle Girl, The Mirror of Life, The Short Sighted Sportsman; A Corsican's Romance is a beautifuly coloured film, and shows the power of circumstantial evidence. The Little Urchin is also a very beautiful film. Building a Transcontinental Railway depicts the Grand Trunk Pacific busily engaged on their coast-to-coast route, from Halifax, N.S., to British Columbia, Canada. The Tough Beef Steak and What Happened to Brown are two laughable comics. To Save Her Soul is a splendid dramatic film, and is reminiscent of a celebrated play of another name. During the evening songs were sung by Mr. James Ainsworth.

Exchange Hall.—Manager, Mr. E. Gray.—The programme this week provided by Messrs. Raymonds includes The Ruse that Failed, Cure for Cowardice, Incorrigible Mary, Cleopatra, 42 B.C., In Little Italy, The Late Guest, Foolshead as a Naughty Boy. Her Sister's Sin is a strong dramatic film dealing with a girl whose sister on her dying bed confesses a sin. Musical selections are given by the Scarlet Band.

Bridlington.—Royal Victoria Rooms.—Manager for the Corporation, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The animated pictures continue to attract large audiences, and the constant change of films gives Mr. Palmer's patrons a regular succession of the best in animated photography. A very fine picture is that of Napoleon and the Priest, and an equally effective one of ancient times is The Pompeiian Martyress. A charming coloured film is entitled the Golden Spider, and the Siren's Necklace is also good. The comic pictures include The Cripple and the Bicyclist, Lessons in Hypnotism (a most laughable film), and Papa's Honeymoon.

Brighton.—Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—Prominent among the animated pictures exhibited here this week is one which vividly represents the Floods of Paris. The Brighton Railway Disaster is also a finely-descriptive film. Dramatic incidents are conveyed by The Expiation and the Brigand's Kindness of Heart; and the amusing pictures included in the programme are Birthday Affairs, How the Landlord Collected the Rent, True Love Never Runs Smooth, The Butcher's Bill, and Mr. Gadabout's Beano. Mr. Osland Denner contributed baritone songs in good style.

Canterbury.—St. Margaret's Hall.—There is no abatement in the interest of the public in the Picture Palace entertainments. This week's great attraction is the splendid film of Nero, and the Burning of Rome. There is a host of other very amusing and entertaining films, one of the most successful being Beethoven and the Blind Girl, A Moonlight Sonata, and How the Cook got Married.

Carlisle.—New Public Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Sydney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Peter Mooney.—The Death Disc, a story of the days of Cromwell, is a very powerful and thrilling picture; Arnold the Traitor is another that is very much in favour. Across the Glaciers is full of beautiful scenery and exciting adventures; and a very pretty comedy is told in The Miniature. Humour figures largely in The Wedding of Cocô and The Wonderful Hair Remover.

Croydon.—Electric Theatre.—The week's pictures here are exceptionally good, and are attracting satisfactory audiences. Humorous and serious subjects are blended with care and discrimination, and the management deserve warm congratulations upon the success of their enterprise.

Dewsbury. — Industrial Hall. — Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Christian.—An excellent display of pictures is shown here this week. Maud Muller is a picture adapted from the poem by T. G. Whittier; The Story of Circus Life is another picture-drama which is full of interest; The Broken Locket, a pathetic drama, meets with approval; Drowsy Dick's Dream and Found in a Taxi are two very amusing films, which cause much laughter. Illustrated vocal scenas are given at intervals.

Dundee.—Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The programme associated with this popular house is of quite an entertaining order this week, and gives the greatest satisfaction to Mr. Lunn's numerous patrons. A very humorous picture is Adventures of a Smoker, and during the unfolding of the various scenes the house simply rocks with laughter. A Corner in Wheat is a very fine picture, and amongst the others shown are The Dance of Fire, The Cure of Cowardice, and A Day Off. Mr. Lunn by his tact and courtesy has made many friends here.

Edinburgh.—Pringle's Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—Dramatic subjects abound in this week's programme, A Corner in Wheat, a fine American subject, being one of the most popular. But there are others, The Lady Detective and Up San Juan Hill, which are both excellent. Scroggins shows in a comical manner how a candidate had a nasty time while in the throes of the election. Allsopp and Beckwith are capable comedians, and Miss Maude Miller pleases the audience by her charming singing.

Operetta House.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Up-to-date, as usual, Mr. Sanders is this week showing all the latest pictures. Dove Eye's Gratitude (by a new American company) is a story of an Indian girl's thankfulness to her rescuer; Through the Breakers represents a thoughtless mother's repentance; and The Smuggler's Daughter shows how a smuggler began a new life. There is no lack of humorous films, which cause hearty laughter, such as A Free Pass to the Theatre, Calinio's Fire Extinguisher, and An Unending Discussion. Mr. David Dunlop, ventriloquist, adds variety to the programme.

Glasgow. — Gaiety. — General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—The picture programme here this week is up to the usual high standard, and the good audiences are maintained. The interesting films presented (among many others) depict Lieutenant Rose and the Robbers of Fingal's Cave, On the Border, The Timid One, Why They Married, Burglary by Airship, and the historical pictorial drama, Lancelot and Elaine. There is, in addition, a variety programme, which is well sustained by Demi and Semi, instrumentalists and vocalists, and Billy Macks, the Boy Scout vocalist.

Gravesend. — New Public Hall.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke, J.P.— Recently a popular picture palace has been instituted here, and this week the audiences have been highly pleased with the following items:—The Floods of Paris, The Celebration of Yokohama's Jubilee, The Stampede, Princess Nicotine, Restoration, Matthew on the Spree, Cupid's Loaf, and Up the Pole. Alfred Manton as a light comedian receives much applause for his singing and dancing; and Mr. X, the American magician and wonder-worker, gives a fine exhibition of conjuring.

Greenock.—Empire.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank L. Clayton.—The animated pictures here are excellent and up to date, and prove highly attractive. This week's selection includes Up San Juan Hill, dealing with incidents of the Spanish-American War, Through the Breakers, Tsing-Fu, Two Suitors, A Good Lesson, The Fisherman's Bride, and illustrated songs by Eddie Malley.

Hanley.—King's. — Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager and Operator, Captain F. Shaw; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—This is the most popular picture palace in the Potteries, and the enterprise of the management is being well responded to by huge houses. The chief pictures are The Minister's Daughter and The Child Benefactor. Kitty Keyworth sings a couple of charming songs.

Kettering. — Vint's Electric Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—An excellent programme of pictures is submitted this week, and large audiences are crowding each performance. Briton and Boer, From Cabin Boy to King, The Duchess of Masovia, and Digger Stanley v. Walsh are starred. The variety is supplied by The Taffies and Will Owen. Both turns are great favourites.

Kirkcaldy.—Exchange Pavilion.—Licensee, Dr. Walford Bodie; Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Interesting, instructive, and amusing are the pictures served up here by the London Safety Bioscope Company this week, and huge audiences pack the building nightly to see A Journey to Jupiter, How the Cook Gets Married, The Heart of a Gauroche, Haunting Melody, Sailor's Honour, Poor Boy, and Foolshead as Wizard. Miss Edna Cragge, a well-known pantomime performer, creates a decided "hit" with several illustrated songs.

Leamington.—Electric Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—A fine programme of animated and coloured pictures is provided this week. The principal picture is one depicting the Paris floods, whilst A Visit to the Zoological Gardens in Antwerp and Scenes in Mexico are two very interesting pictures, showing beautiful colouring. Call the Plumber In provides much amusement, as do also The Adventures of Tantarin the Younger, A Discussion on Politics, The Painter's Trunk, The Short-sighted Sportsman, and many others. Miss Mina Langdon's illustrated song efforts are very much appreciated by the audiences, whilst the elocutionist, Mr. Bert Williams, is as popular as ever.

Leicester.—Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—Splendid business continues here. The two star pictures this week are The Policeman and Joseph Sold by His Brethren. The others in a good list include The Vagabond, A Primitive Costume, Exportation of Milk, The Door, Homesick, Nick Carter in the Mysterious Package, The Justifier, The Mended Lute, The Horseshoe, and Your Licence, Please. In addition, Billy Banks, the ragtime dandy, a singing and dancing act, also appears.

Mexborough.—New Picture Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Will Hunter.—The "star" film this week is the late Wilson Barrett's great play The Sign of the Cross. Other good pictures are Visit to Bombay, Frances the First, In Old Kentucky, Pig and Thief, Tempestuous Adventure, &c.

Neath.—Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—In addition to a good series of pictures presented here this week, the Three Musical Warners provide an excellent entertainment, and Louie and Wally, duettists, patterers, &c., favourably contribute towards a first-class programme. Mr. Noice, the manager, arranged two performances for the benefit of the Neath Nursing Association, when the proceeds were handed over to the Mayor, Councillor David Danes.

Northampton.—Temperance Hall.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrews' Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—Strong dramatic subjects are submitted this week under the titles of The Lie, The Waif, and The Corsican Vengeance. The comic items are also very good, and, with the admired singing of Miss Margaret Payne, make an amusing and popular programme.

New Cinematograph Hall.—Mr. J. F. Bentley, of Letchworth, Herts, has secured a site at the corner of Monks Park-road and Wellingborough-road, Northampton, for the erection of a picture palace capable of holding an audience of 600.

North Shields.—Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Black; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Black, jun.—The above management have secured an excellent programme for this week, chief among the pictures being In Little Italy, A Menagerie Let Loose, Too Fond of Cheese, Her Sister's Sin, &c. The variety turns consist of Tom Payne, assisted by Ralph and Carl, in a novel musical, athletic, and comedy act, which has been warmly greeted; and G. Harrison, the dancing pitman, who gains much approval.

Howard Hall.—Patrons here are again provided with a tempting bill of fare, The Red Man's View, The Engine Driver's Daughter, A Quiet Honeymoon, A Ruse That Failed, and other films being watched with much interest.

Gaiety Picture Hall.—This popular hall is still receiving good support, the bill of fare including Lancelot and Elaine, When Knights Were Bold, To Save Her Soul, Lead Us Not Into Temptation, &c. Miss Eva Strauss, the popular songstress, is also under engagement.

Norwich. — Agricultural Hall Assembly Rooms.—Mr. E. V. Barr's animated picture entertainment is still going well here. This week they include The Merry Clowns, The Death Disc, Display of Horse Riding by Cossacks, The Miniature, and others. Miss Bessie Hardman (soprano) and Mr. Tom Taylor (baritone) in their vocal items and song scenas are very good indeed.

Central Hall, Upper Market.—Lessees, The Goodman Entertainment Co.; Manager, Mr. Syd Goodman.—This place is also successful. Among the pictures this week are: The Cowboy Millionaire, a very interesting drama, The Old Horse Carnival at Nice, A Sister's Devotion, A Week's Absence, Othello, and others.

Oldham.—Royal Theatre—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Good business continues here.—The pictures this week are headed by a capital dramatic film, An Alpine Echo. A Corsican Romance is another good descriptive film; A Trip on the Rhine is a very good picture of travel; An Indian's Revenge and A Kind Hearted Judge are also shown. Some very funny pictures include Jones Buys a Birdcage, Romance of Boots and Slippers, the Gas Inspector, and Burglary by Airship, and Mr. Don Cameron sings a well illustrated song.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The pictures shown here continue to be well up to the mark. A capital programme is provided, and A Child's Faith is well worth seeing. The Late Guest, The Right to Love, Hunting Wild Reindeer, The Belgian Army, To Save Her Soul, and a very funny one, Mr. Foolshead Received, are amongst a good list. "Mary of Argyle" is sung by Mr. King.

Brown's Assembly Rooms.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown.—Her Sister's Sin is a pathetic story well received; Three Tramps proves a most exciting picture, and a brilliant story of love and jealousy is shown In Little Italy; some splendid scenery is seen in The Gorges of the Andes. The amusing films include A Poet's Wooing, and Cure for Cowardice.

Osborne Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hughes.—A Corner in Wheat is a picture depicting how the Yankee gets rich quickly at the expense of others. A capital film which had a good reception is Love under Spanish Skies, and Saved by his Sweetheart is very touching; The Airship Destroyer is very exciting; Merry Clowns, A Winter's Tale, and A Friend in Need are very amusing films. Mme. Marie Robinson sings well.

Rochdale.—Empire and Pringle's Picture Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Ralph Pringle.—Scenes depicting the floods in Paris are reproduced here this week, and prove a great attraction; the Three Foresters appear with great success in a dramatic sketch; Cavalli, ventriloquist, is an amusing and clever entertainer; and the Gentrys, in a medley, entitled "Bits" are highly diverting.

Salford.—Opera House and Assembly Rooms, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—An excellent series of animated pictures exhibiting Lieutenant Shackleton's South Polar Expedition drew tremendous houses on Monday. There were also the following films: Bandit's Daughter, Jane Made One of the Family, A Brave Boy, Snake Charmer's Revenge, and Willie's Trip to the Pole. Mr. Tom Sherlock sings "To the end of the world with thee."

New Central Hall.—Proprietors, Matt. Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilbert.—Among the Raymond pictures this week are Squire Romance, Our Friend the Plumber, Good for Evil, Runaway Daughter, Tartarin the Younger, The Flowerseller, The Man-eating Tiger, Short-sighted Sportsman. Mr. A. H. Gilbert sings two acceptable songs.

Shrewsbury. — Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Very up-to-date and interesting moving pictures (exhibited by an entirely new and expensive Bioscope) were among the chief attractions here this week; and an old favourite at the Halls, T. W. Barrett, entertained with some amusing ditties. The entire proceeds of Thursday evening's show are to be devoted to charity. The local dramatic society were for this night allowed free use of the theatre, by the generosity of the management, for the performance of Jane. The deserving object was the Shrewsbury Dispensary, and the performance was a success.

Stalybridge.—Oddfellows' Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Manager, Mr. W. Llewellyn.—This week's programme: Queen of the Ranch, The Accomplice, Into the Darkness, Comedy and Tragedy (a splendid picture, dealing with the life of an actress and her love for a young soldier), a few scenes of the recent Floods in Paris, The Light that Came, Calino at the Seaside, Before and After, Unending Discussion, and The Diver provides much amusement, Foolshead's Christmas. Mr. M. B. Lees gives a very pleasing vocal turn. Messrs. Andrews have installed at this hall an "effect" machine, which makes every sound, from the clatter of horses to the shaking of money.

Forester's Hall.—Lessees, Bros. Lens; Manager, Mr. F. Lens.—A stupendous programme is shown at this hall, including, with a good variety of other pictures, the set of The Big Horn Ranch, Kind-hearted Employer, From Cabin Boy to King, Mr. Poorluck Gets Married, and about twenty rounds of the great Welsh v. Summers fight, truly a splendid picture. Frank Whiteley proves himself clever and refined in his banjo and bone speciality.

Sunderland.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—A well-diversified programme is being submitted here this week to crowded houses. Master George Noonan supplies a clever vocal and dancing turn; Geo. Young, blind musician, is warmly applauded for his selections; Warren and Granville give an act which causes much amusement. Among the pictures, Her Sister's Sin and Lieut. Rose, R.N., are the best, and both are well received.

Palace Theatre. — Hamilton's Picture and Variety Co.—The principal film here this week is a humorous one entitled Why They Married, and causes great amusement. Will Netta's Singing Jockeys prove an exceptionally good turn and are much appreciated. The Sauteron Wonders give a particularly clever gymnastic act.

Todmorden.—Olympia Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Tyers.—A splendid house assembled on Monday evening to witness an enjoyable performance at this new picture hall. The chief film shown this week is The Last of the Mohicans, being an adaptation of J. Fenimore Cooper's famous novel. A splendid scenic film of Delhi (India) is also much appreciated; while amongst others, The Haunted Hat (comic), The Chemist's Bill (comic), Shanghaid (dramatic), and Scratch as Scratch Can (comic) stand out prominently.

Tyldesley.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. W. McNish.—An excellent series of pictures is exhibited here this week, and good business continues to be done. Chris Masters is a successful actor-vocalist, and Will Challinor wins applause by his singing and dancing.

Miners' Hall.—Manager, Mr. Chris Matthews.—The splendid films shown here this week are being much appreciated by large audiences. William Kingsley, hand-bell soloist, and the Sisters Stuart, duettists and dancers, are welcomed in convincing style.

Wigan.—Pavilion.—Lessees, The U.S.A. Animated Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Fletcher Sansome.—An interesting and up-to-date programme is presented here to large audiences this week. A splendid film of the recent floods in Paris is given. Songs were rendered during the evening by Mr. Reg. Garland, the popular actor vocalist.

Wolverhampton. — Electric Theatre.—Proprietors, the London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. W. Reynolds-Benjamin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hickman.—The splendid film depicting the floods in Paris continues to draw large houses here. The White Sea Fisheries is another fine picture illustrative of life on the North Sea Trawlers; A Patriot's Daughter is a delightful story of heart interest; The Staff Officer of the Emperor is an interesting historical picture, as educational as it is entertaining; Nancy is a fine travel picture of the East of France; A Story of Circus Life is full of Romance; Delights of the Shoot proves very fascinating; whilst plenty of fun is provided by Worried to Death and The Servant's Exaggeration.

York.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Bowman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bradley.—Carmen is an exceedingly fine picture, which is well received; Two Women and a Man is amusing; The Canadian Northern Railway Construction is instructive; and On the Little Big Horn is a film which is well received. Funny Little Jess presents a neat turn and is an entertaining comedienne; Le Wist is a skilled ventriloquist; and Reno a clever wizard.

Victoria Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Bert Rutter.—Mr. J. H. Humphreys, comedian, is very popular here, and on his return visit is singing some catchy songs with good effect. The Red Man's Views is an exceptionally fine film well received. The Bennettiscope is a novelty which causes wonder, and there are a host of other clever scenes.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera company opened here on Monday with The Mikado. Mr. Henry A. Lytton made a quaintly humorous Ko-Ko, and Mr. Fred Billington repeated his amusing performance of Pooh-Bah. A charming and melodious Yum-Yum was revealed in the graceful person of Miss Everell Spain; Miss Bertha Lewis acted and sang with the requisite amount of vocal and dramatic intensity as Katisha; Mr. Henry Herbert was good as Nanki-Po; and Mr. Leslie Tunks did well as the mirth-provoking Mikado. The chorus was first-rate, and the mise-en-scène was artistic. The programme for the week was as follows: Tuesday, Iolanthe; Wednesday, The Gondoliers; Thursday, The Pirates of Penzance and Trial by Jury; Friday, Patience; and Saturday, The Mikado.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—Mr. Hart's annual, Jack and Jill, with its opera bouffe style of humour, its exquisite ballets, its exhilarating music, and its beautiful scenic effects and groupings à la Watteau, continues to pack the Royal nightly, and the opinion of old playgoers is that Mr. Hart has surpassed even the high standard of the annuals produced under the famous Joseph Eldred régime. The company all work together like a happy family, and Messrs. Charles Marton, Albert Le Fre, Jack Chromo, the Haytons, Miss Josie Delaine, and the pretty, talented, and dashing Jack, Miss Ella Retford, are cheered to the echo.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The dramatic season opened on Monday with As Your Hair Grows Whiter, a pathetic drama of the always popular Adelphi type, which was excellently represented by Mr. Fuller's company. The principal parts were carefully played by Messrs. H. Helliwell, R. N. Grasswell, Percy St. Clair, Louis Weston, Herbert Fuller, S. L. Courtnay, Edward Jeffs, H. Jones, Will Hood, P. Byres, and Misses Lily Fuller, Emily Lewis, Florence C. Delmar, Madalene Courtney, and Miss Agnes Collier, who gives a graceful and well-considered reading of the character of Alice Walters.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. Fred Karno's comic absurdity, Perkins, M.P., was presented to a crowded house on Monday, when the laughable adventures of Mr. Albert Bruno as Perkins almost convulsed the big audience with laughter. All the other characters were well played, and the scenery was realistic. Salge's "Triumph of Beauty," a series of artistic living pictures, were well received; the Rohda Brothers are smart equilibrists and acrobatic posturers; and other clever and successful entertainers this week are Florence, lady mimic; Mr. Bert Errol, phenomenal vocalist; the Royal Delomes, duettists and dancers; Mr. Horace White, ventriloquist; Mr. Tom Lloyd, vocalist and comic parodist; Olga, Elgar, and Eli Hudson, talented vocalists and instrumentalists; Miss Rita Rhylle, ballad vocalist; and the Bioscope pictures.

THE HIPPODROME.—Barrasford Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—The big event here is the looked-for return visit of the versatile artist, the great Lafayette, who, assisted by his company and famous band, kept the large audience on Monday in a delightful condition of thrilling suspense for nearly sixty minutes; the Gallimore Trio fairly bring down the house; the graceful gymnastic act by the elegant artists Natalie and Diana is loudly applauded; and very successful are the efforts of Mr. Sydney Brandon in his fine impersonation of the late Sir Henry Irving; Leo and Roland, in their great ladder act; the Pasquali Bros., equilibrists; Regie Beauchamp, comedian; Mr. Mark Leslie, vocalist; and Mr. Tom Black, entertainer. The Biograph pictures conclude.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Mr. Fred Baugh here presents an up-to-date picture programme, with special orchestral selections. Good business is the rule.

SMETHWICK. — ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E Hewitson.—The Flag Lieutenant is presented by Messrs. Lyn Harding's and Sidney Cooper's company, and a capital performance is given. Mr. Mark Paton gives a careful study of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne, K.C.B.; Mr. Hastings Lynn as Richard Lascelles portrays the cheerful, amiable, and good-hearted Dick to the life; Major William Thessiger is ably impersonated by Mr. Ferderick Leister; Mr. Edward Mervyn as Surgeon Crutchley gives a splendid performance; Messrs. Stanley Groome and Guy Lanham are an amusing pair of midshipmen; Mr. Lloyd Pilgrim is good as Colonel McLeod; Mr. W. S. Yeldham and Miss Evelyn Robson capitally present the laughter-making General and Mrs. Gough-Bogle; Mr. Richard Dalton is seen to advantage as Michael Palliser; Miss Mabel Rees portrayal of Mrs. Cameron is excellent; Lady Hermione Wynne is gracefully taken by Miss Rita Johnson; Miss Una Vennins makes a dainty Viola Hood; Miss Rosalind Ross does well as Lady Dugdale. The play is effectively staged.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Southend Hippodrome, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis de Burgh.—A good variety programme is being carried out here this week by Stowe Brothers, acrobats; Dollie Denton, comedienne; Les Videos, skaters; Ben Albert, comedian; Maria Gabalda and her company, in a Spanish pantomime, The Smuggler's Ocean; Little Ganty, comedian; and Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, in Kindergarten.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Owners, The Southend Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Adam Seebold.—Messrs. J. G. Lodge-Percy and James Martin's company on Tuesday and Wednesday played the society drama Moths, the characters being impersonated by Miss Henrietta Schrier, Miss Marie Ramsey, Miss Veronica Clinton, Miss Nellie Statham, Messrs. Andrew Money, J. G. Lodge-Percy, Cecil Kerr, F. Douglas Howard, and Geo. Mercer. Camille was played the remainder of the week.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's powerful company opened here with Othello on Monday, followed on Tuesday by The Sleigh Bells and David Garrick. On Wednesday The Taming of the Shrew was produced most artistically. Mr. Wilkie as Petruchio portrayed the part in rollicking style; Mr. Alexander Marsh depicted Lucentio in a refined manner; Mr. Eugene Wellesley was good as Tranio; and Mr. Herbert Mansfield and Mr. Stanley Vine were seen to advantage as Hortensio and Vincentio. As Katherine the Shrew Miss Carrie Baillie displayed histrionic talents of a high order; and Bianca was sweetly interpreted by Mrs. Allan Wilkie. Mr. John Paley was good as the Pedant, and much humour was extracted from the part of Grumio by Mr. Houston Meharry. The Merry Wives of Windsor, The School for Scandal, and Jane Shore are also in the week's bill.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richd. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—The chief item of the bill is R. A. Rolfe's production of "Ye Colonial Septette," presenting an "Olde tyme Hallowe'en," featuring Mr. Charles Edwards, America's cornet virtuoso. This is a fine musical item, and much appreciated. Gus Garrick is well received; Goggin and Davis are good acrobats; good banjo work is shown by Stanley and Greenop; and other good items are supplied by the Caselli Sisters (expert dancers), Ethel Newman (in monologue Her Wedding Day), Charles Stanton (soprano and double-voiced vocalist), and the Bioscope.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Pantomime again reigns here, Mr. Wentworth Croke's Aladdin being staged. Miss Kittee Rayburn is an admirable Aladdin. Her bright and charming manner and her sweet, strong voice make her a prime favourite, and gain for her vociferous applause. Miss Nancy St. John as the Princess comes next in favour, with her prettiness and dainty dancing; as the Emperor of China Mr. Manito Klitgaard presents a very effective impersonation; and Mr. Bruce Lindley is an excellent Grand Vizier. Miss Cissie Esdaile (Pekoe) and Miss Maisie St. Hilary (Ni See) are decidedly attractive; much humour is provided by Mr. Fred W. Graham as Widow Twankey; Mr. Cecil Clayton as Wishee Washee and Messrs. Carl and Carr (Ah Bob Bee and Yo Pee Lerr) add to the hilarity; Mr. Harry Morgan is especially funny in the character of Abanazar. Most enjoyable turns are given by La Belle Trio, Mrs. Victor's troupe of juveniles, the Nine Tollettes, and the Three Trees. The scenery is pretty, and the dresses beautiful.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—The Leaves of Memory is a capital sketch, in which Miss Beaumont Collins shows great talent; Sidney Bedford and company prove very amusing in The Second Mrs. Chester; the original Cestria gives agreeable examples of his skill as an acrobat; and the Three Orleans are encored for delightful singing. Ford Williams's songs are enjoyed; Boden and Bell, juvenile dancers and vocaliste, and Harry Morris, Lancashire comedian, provide good turns.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company has presented the pantomime Hop O' My Thumb, a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment, to large audiences. Little George Harris fills the title-rôle in excellent style; Miss Kitty Trewhitt makes a delightful Prince U-No; and Miss Kitty Rafferty is exceedingly pleasing as Princess Meadowsweet. As the dame Georgina Mr. Vivian Wakeman is funny, and amuses with his clever imitations; whilst Mr. Alf. E. Rick and Mr. Tom Cowley are a mirthful pair as Silversheen and Goldstein. The scenery is delightful, the dresses costly, and the music bright and sparkling.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Mr. John Le Hay, comedian, supported by Nora Le Hay and Charles Cauntley, in a musical sketch, Poor Beggar, has greatly amused the patrons here. Among others appearing are the Two Butterflies, talented gymnasts; Roy Beevis, an able conjurer; Maude Hillman and Maurice Russell, who are entertaining in a vocal comedy duologue "The Somnambulist"; René, a clever little lady juggler; Tom E. Johnstone, a successful topical vocalist; Gwennie Morgan, a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Cummin and Seaham, humorous acrobatic comedians, as "The Ragman and the Postman."

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is presenting with great success Brewster's Millions. As Monty Brewster Mr. Chas. Esdaile gives a fine performance, and is deserving of the highest eulogy; Charlie Harrison is capably undertaken by Mr. Gordon Ash; Archie Golding and Joseph McLeod have finished readings at the hands of Mr. Henry Hampson and Mr. Aubrey Mather respectively. Mr. Robert Forsyth gives a good portrayal of Mr. Grant; and Mr. A. P. Kaye as Mons. Bargie is a typical Frenchman. Peggy is charmingly played by Miss Cicely Stuckey; and Miss Pauline Straus introduces much personality into the rôle of Mr. Dan de Mille. Miss Frances Davie gives a good rendering of Jamie Armstrong, as also does Miss Dorothy Whittaker of Barbara Drew. Misses Phyllis Stuckey and May Seton do justice to the parts of Miss Boynton and Trixie Clayton. Good work is also done by Messrs. George Salver as Capt. Perry, A. Andrews as Col. Drew, and Percival Madgwick as Frank Bragden. The play is effectively mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Chas. Elderton's pantomime Aladdin is repeating its successes of last week and crowded houses are the rule. Misses Maudie Vincent as Aladdin and May Gibson as Princess Badroulbadour please all with their captivating manner, and their singing is among the chief features of the evening. The comedians are all in capital form. Messrs. Will Beanland (Widow Twankey), James and Alexander (Tip Pit and Wot Toe), Harry Harrop (Abanazar), and Billy Melia (Wishy Washy). Excellent specialities are provided by the Cameron Quartette of glee singers; Morissey, a clever balancer and instrumentalist; Claremont and Victor, comedy acrobats; Sisters Terry, vocal duettists; Li-Chang-Hi, illusionist; and Stein and Melia in a comedy dancing act. The Lottie Stone troupe of dancers and the Mimosa troupe of juveniles also do acceptable work.

WORTHING THEATRE ROYAL.

Worthing has at last got a temple of Thespis worthy of the town, and one which is not excelled at any place along the South Coast. One has to go so far back as the year 1807 for an account of the first theatre that was built in sunny Worthing, and in the report of the opening proceedings one reads "that no expense has been spared to render the theatre elegant and commodious." The theatre was built to accommodate something like five hundred people, and when we mention that the population of the place was only some 2,500 inhabitants and that every night there were to be seen between thirty and forty coroneted carriages outside the theatre one must arrive at the conclusion that the people of those times were inveterate theatregoers. This building, which was kept going for fifty years, was opened with the performance of The Merchant of Venice, in which Mr. Siddons, of Drury Lane, appeared in the part of Shylock; this is according to the day bill, a copy of which is still a preserved treasure. At the end of fifty years the town was placed in possession of Assembly Rooms, a gift of the late Sir Robert Loder, and here for a while plays were produced. Some forty years later these were converted into what was really the second Theatre Royal, and in 1897—the memorable year of the late Queen's Diamond Jubilee—the theatre, properly equipped, was opened with the comedy As You Like It, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Laurence Irving, and Miss Dorothea Baird being in the cast.

In the year 1904 the theatre was taken over by the present lessee, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold, and up to last year he thought that the theatre satisfied all the requirements of the town. But during the last season he found that his idea was a mistaken one, and the building was found not large enough to accommodate all those seeking to gain admittance to witness the latest production that Mr. Seebold had arranged for. It might be here mentioned that during Mr. Seebold's regime most of the first-class artists of the day have graced the boards of the theatre. Amongst those who have played to Worthing audiences we can recall the names of Ellen Terry, Decima Moore, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Annie Hughes, Kate Cutler, Evie Greene, Mrs. Lewis Waller, Kitty Loftus (who is paying a return visit this week), Mrs. Russ Whytal, Mrs. Brown Potter, Mrs. Langtry, Jane Hading, Martin Harvey, Hayden Coffin, Edward Terry, Edward Compton, and George Groesmith. On the occasions of the visits of these artists the management found the seating capacity sorely taxed, and this led to the idea of having the theatre entirely reconstructed.

An agreeable surprise, therefore, awaits all the companies who have arranged for return visits to Worthing, for they will find a really beautiful theatre for them to play in now. The main outline of the alterations are as follows:—Beginning with the stage, it will be seen that this has been lowered to the extent of three or four feet, and other alterations have been made to furnish greater facilities from the mechanical point of view. The orchestra has necessarily been lowered also, and there is a complete alteration of the proscenium front. The lowering of the stage has given the audience a better view, and the same object has been facilitated by the abolition of the several tiers on the floor space. The builders have made an inclined floor, showing a rake from the front of the stalls to the back of the pit of about five feet. Three of the old boxes have entirely disappeared, and the four that now remain have been made veritable stage boxes. In the upper part of the house striking alterations have also been made, and the dress circle has been extended about fifteen feet further towards the centre and each tier has been raised, so that a portion of the house now commands an even better view of the stage than hitherto. An entirely new gallery has also been built, and it has now been raised and brought forward over the greater part of the dress circle. A new and handsome doomed ceiling has been provided with a sliding roof. The theatre has been entirely reseated. Green is the predominant colour, this being also chosen for the handsome and costly carpet with which the floors are covered. At the rear of the dress circle there is a promenade, and in the centre glass doors give immediate access to the lounge, which is exquisitely appointed in every way. The corridor that was on the north side of the circle has been converted into a lounge for ladies. This comprehensive scheme has cost something over three thousands pounds, and the practical effect has been to increase the seating capacity from 800 to approximately 1,300, as well as to add materially to the comfort of all who patronise the establishment.

WORTHING THEATRE ROYAL—VESTIBULE. [Photo by Brown.

The energetic proprietor has had five years' experience of the town, and should by this time know its full requirements—and, from the financial point of view, its capabilities. He is positively certain that, given the right class of show, the people of Worthing will line up at the pay-box in sufficiently big numbers to recompense him for his outlay and make it worth the while of the biggest companies to visit the town. Brighton is very little distant, yet it is far enough to make it almost prohibitive to the ordinary Worthing theatregoer desirous to see a show there, for the midnight train does not appeal loudly to the provincial. On the other hand, its adjacency cannot fail to prove attractive—on the score of fares—to the touring manager mapping out his course. We join sincerely in the wishes which are expressed on all sides for the success of Mr. Seebold's enterprise.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with A Thief in the Night. Mr. Hugh Wallace makes an excellent Lord Romilly; Miss Mysie Monte is a very taking Susan; Mr. Stanley Redwell does well as Alan Escombe; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor as Michael Paquin; Mr. Stenson Liddard as Richard Cleeve; and Miss Prudence Avrien as Little Joan are equally effective. The setting of the drama is excellent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell present here their pantomime The House that Jack Built. Miss Daisy Wood is an attractive Jack; Mr. J. Harrison is amusing as Aunt Purdy; Little Chip is popular as Wee McGregor; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson are a pair of good comedians and dance well; and Miss Hetty Jones as Gretchen sings some good songs, as also does Miss Dolly Dodds as Jill. Crowded houses rule nightly.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton. — The Six Snanish Juanitos display great skill in an acrobatic turn; Bertha Evelyn sings well; Barnes and West are loudly applauded in a dancing act; Joseph Blascheck, assisted by Mildred Wrighton, is very entertaining at the piano; Alice Hughes and company in a musical comedietta, The Star of the Bazaar, cause much laughter; Tom Isherwood, comedian, is very popular; the Martons, in a comedy duologue, with music, Sweethearts Still, sings well; and the Bioscope concludes.

TONYPANDY.—ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company in The Breed of the Treshams is here. Lieutenant Reresby finds an accomplished exponent in Mr. Sydney Bland; Mr. A. Holles does well as Viscount Dorsington; the Hon. Clement Hungerford is ably portrayed by Mr. Geo. Butler; Mr. Geo. Traill is suitably cast as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen; Miss M. Hodson is eminently successful as the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; and Miss Grace Arlington cleverly interprets Batty.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Topping a good bill here is Horace Wheatley, a big success; the Maximillian Trio are clever acrobats; Marshall and Parr score heavily; the Sisters Brenton meet with hearty applause; and Nellie Navette dances cleverly. The leading film, which is excruciatingly funny, is Scroggins for Blankshire.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Wright.—Miss Harriet Vernon in her song-scena Emblems is worthy of pride of place in an extended programme; James Willard and Co. present a clever sketch; Alec Kendal's patter is really very funny; Agustin and Hartley give a smart barrel-jumping act; acceptable items are presented by Leslie Race, G. W. Webber, Stelling and Dog, Bert Williams, and the Devonshaws; and the Empiroscope concludes.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Ald. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Cecil H. Woodhouse's company is appearing here in the farcical comedy Oh, Susannah! As Dr. Sheppard Mr. Cecil H. Woodhouse enters heartily into the spirit of the plot, and is very successful; whilst as Flora, his bride, an excellent impersonation is presented by Miss Frances Carlyle. Mr. Leslie Wardle makes a capital Lieut. Merry, Mr. Arthur Williams assisting him by a clever interpretation of the Hon. Waverley Vane. As Mr. Plant Mr. Alfred Ibberson is very successful; and as his two daughters Miss Mamie Mathews and Miss Ethel Marsden do exceedingly well. Mr. T. Smith makes a very amusing Buttons; Miss Adie Boyne as Aurora the maid is very humorous. The play is preceded by Dream Faces, in which the characters are taken by Miss Eve Mansell, Miss Ethel Marsden, Mr. Arthur Williams, and Mr. Alfred Ibberson.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Welton Dale; Manager, Harry Ball.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company in The Country Girl is having a successful week's season. Mr. Nelson Hancock gives a capital impersonation of Geoffrey Challoner, and Mr. J. W. Bruce of the Rajah, while Mr. Percy Everard furnishes a most amusing study of Sir Joseph and Mr. H. B. Hargreaves of his son. As Barry Mr. Coningsby Brierly scores a great success, and Mr. T. C. Chapman as Lord Anchester was also excellent. Miss Anna Hikisch as Nan, Miss Dorothy Arless as Marjorie, Miss Hyacinth Barton as the Princess, and Miss Addie Lennard as Sophie formed a quartette to whom most cordial praise must be given for uniformly excellent presentation of the leading rôles amongst the ladies; while praise is also due to Miss Hilda Darrell's Lady Anchester and Miss Melba Sharrott's Nurse. The book has been brought up to date with topical allusions, which were greatly appreciated.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Greville and Osmond's company, in the drama For Wife and Kingdom, is here. Mr. R. T. Fox gives a powerful rendering as General Nestolde; Mr. Matthew H. Glenville submits a fine depiction as Captain Maximilian Lubeck; the part of Baron Maurice Breslau is ably filled by Mr. Albert Guyon; Mr. Edward Hobart is well placed as Sergeant Offenbach; and Mr. J. Sutton Pateman is very successful as Karl Ludhayre; Miss M. R. France is seen to great advantage as Camille von Nestolde; Miss Lilian Malvern is admirable as Esther, the Wise Woman; Miss Alice Buckland is a dainty Nita Constadt, and Miss Lydia Andre fills with grace and charm the rôle of the Grand Duchess Marie.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Bellony Brothers head the bill and give a wonderful cycling act; the Four Vagabonds are excellent glee singers; Maro Duo are smart gymnasts; Ernest Montefiore and company present a capital sketch, The Little Colonel; Miss Alice Blandford, ballad vocalist, has a good reception; T. H. Lumb, a vocalist, is popular; D. L. Pedley is an amusing comedian; and Harry Russel and company, sketch artists, cause much merriment; and Miss Annie Lang, comedienne and dancer, complete a good programme.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Athas and Collins top the bill and give a clever dancing and comedy act; Orpheus, a talented musician, gives a high-class musical performance; Vette Brothers, spectacular gymnasts, give a good display; the L. V. Trio present a funny acrobatic turn; Morton and Elliott, paper manipulators, provide a novel turn; George Lawrence, comedian, has a good voice, and is well recived; and Miss Gena Mann is a pleasing ballad vocalist.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—The title of the play that occupies the boards at this place of amusement this week is almost sufficient to indicate its human character. The representation here of The Power of a Wicked Woman is in the hands of Mr. Montague Beandyn's company. He himself fills with much skill the part of Philip Carey; Mr. G. Edward Dunstan is an excellent Horace Winter; Miss Irene Munroe as Helen Terraire fills the part admirably; Miss Phyllis Rae is an excellent Marie; and Miss Irene Stanhope as Denise Carey is distinctly good.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joe Hastings.—Pictures have given way this week at the New Hippodrome to musical comedy, and as this takes the form of The Cingalee, a more delightful change could hardly be imagined. Miss Pauline Hague as Lady Patricia is charming; Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram is very clever; Mr. Arthur Cartwright is good as the Hon. Harry Vereker; and Mr. F. W. Ford does well as Sir Peter.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Thos. Swinton.—Mr. A. E. Smith's grand spectacular pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, delighted a packed house on Monday. Miss Elsie Denys made a charming and pretty Princess Beauty, her singing evoking undeniable recalls; Miss Kathleen Garnon was a dashing and handsome Prince Perfect; her songs go wonderfully well. Both principals are well supported by the Sisters Lesmere and the Sisters Wynstay; there is not a dull moment in the pantomime, thanks to the exceptionally good comedians, Messrs. Folay and Francis are the most prominent, and both score positive successes; Messrs. George Alderman and W. Taylor also take effective parts in the "fooling." The costumes and dresses are smart and elaborate, while the scenery, painted by a former Widnes artist, Mr. James Greenhalgh, are notable specimens of brush-craft.

Co-operative Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—Leolin supplies a sensational juggling turn; Ray and Douglas are extremely good in the comedy duo, The Postman and the Girl; Arthur Harris is a talented actor vocalist and comedian; Davis and Deane are refined comedians and shadow dancers, and the pictures are good.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Crowded audiences assemble here to witness Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in Dick Whittington. A well-known favourite in Mr. H. O. Wills as Idle Jack causes endless laughter from start to finish; Miss Florrie Gallimore is a sprightly and dashing Dick Whittington; Miss Vera Vere as Alice sings and dances in attractive style; Miss Rose Tilly and Miss Dolly Crown as Viscount Piccadilly and Molly give charming portrayals; Mr. Fred Lloyd creates much merriment as Sarah, the Cook; Mr. J. N. Ellis is capital as the Alderman; and Mr. J. Rallis is very active and expressive as the Cat. Harwood's Juveniles are responsible for several clever choruses and dances.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—The greater portion of the programme here is provided by Mr. John F Preston's company in Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Preston does extremely well in the part of Joe Flaxman, and is ably supported by Miss Mabelle F. Barlow as Lady Heathcote; Miss Ethel Rainforth as Nellie Flaxman and Mr. W. H. Barlow as Captain Clifton. The remainder of the programme consists of variety turns. The Dandies give a number of vocal selections which are loudly applauded; Rex Fox is a versatile wire performer of much merit; Gibbon and Bell are good in their acrobatic dancing speciality; Millie Howell's songs are well received; and an exceptionally clever and amusing cycle turn is given by Henry and Tyler.

WISHAW, N.B.—Pavilion.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse.—Sandy McNab and company, including Miss Bessie Arthur, keep the house in continual laughter during the run of that droll sketch The Egyptian Mummy; Nellie Gannon is heard to advantage; Harry Wright is a capital comedian and vocalist; and the Lolo and May Trio of lady gymnasts and speciality dancers, together with the Bioscope, conclude.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard.—The fact that local playgoers take an almost proprietary interest in Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's works no doubt accounted for the splendid house which gave her latest success, Her Path of Sorrow, as presented by Mr. Charles Draycott's excellent company, such an enthusiastic welcome on Monday night. Mr. Charles Draycott's manly and straightforward methods as the hero Richard Burfield made him immensely popular; as Guy Lowther Mr. Frank Eaglesfield was certainly one of the finest of the many stage villains yet seen here; Mr. Frank Etheridge submits an admirable impersonation of Lionel Heathcote; Mr. Theo Balfour in Markham Ferrars has a part which fits him like the proverbial glove; and Mr. Arthur Reyne was good as Farmer Rayne. The comedy element was quite safe in the hands of Mr. Will Hook as Tommy Onions and Miss Daisy Carlton as Polly Green. Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne in the trying rôle of Nellie Rayne proved herself an emotional actress of ability, and Mrs. Charles Draycott charmed all by her sympathetic rendering of Pauline Ferrars. Miss Nellie Freeland being a delightfully chic Mam'selle Lucille.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Leslie's Cadets' naval scena After Lights Out has the recommendations of distinct originality and excellent singing; J. W. Rickaby causes roars of laughter; the Three Stewarts, acrobats, are quite the last word in dumb shows; Minnie Mace displays agility in an eccentric dance; James Bassett has a couple of taking chorus songs; Dot Moss, a young lady of tender year, gains much applause for her songs and banjo playing; and Hardie Palm is an amusing comedian.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—An excellent variety programme this week includes the Max Tourbillon troupe of trick cyclists, who are amazingly clever, and the Bijou Juvenile Troupe of vocalists, who achieve great popularity; the Denaro Brothers, boy gymnasts, provide a capital turn; and Ernesto's ladder feats find considerable favour; he is also a clever juggler. The St. Johns are responsible for a popular vocal and dancing contribution; Miss Violet Ray is a clever 'cellist and vocalist; and Fred Kendall a comedian of merit.

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers. — Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's Two Little Drummer Boys occupies the boards this week. Mr. Wm. Vane as Captain Carsdale shows a full appreciation of a somewhat difficult part; the General Kingsley of Mr. Edward Bikker is interesting; the villain of Mr. Ernest Fare leaves nothing to be desired; Messrs. Percy and Seddon do some good funny business with Miss Connorton; and the acting of Misses Langley and Ingram as Alma and Drunken Meg respectively is well worthy of the applause it evokes.

Carnegie Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—At this hall Nellie Nora does a clever and refined musical act; Joey Sterling shows his worth as a character comedian; and Miss Pattie Burton has a fine soprano voice. The pictures are good.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Mack.—Sheldon, comedian, is a great success; Edward Hope, Welsh prize tenor, is in good voice; and Frank Leicester does some up-to-date patter. Muggins, V.C., is perhaps the most popular of a good set of films.

WREXHAM.—Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. J. Scott.—The top of the bill is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hayes, who appear in an amusing sketch, The Other Mrs. Brown; and Arthur Bright has made himself quite a favourite, as a Swiss piper, vocalist, and dancer. Mark Anthony is a quaint singer of comic ditties, story teller, and mimic; and Harry Clive is an entertaining comedian. Bioscope pictures cause a great amount of laughter and applause, and include A Story of Gretna Green, The Boy Scout, and The Young Redskins.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The annual visit of the Carl Rosa Opera Company is eagerly looked forward to, and the theatre has been crowded by delighted audiences. In Tannhäuser on Monday Mr. E. C. Hedmont fairly excelled himself. Mr. Alan Turner as Wolfram gave an exceedingly intelligent reading, using his rich voice with fine effect; Mr. Arthur Winckworth repeated his artistic rendering of the Landgrave, and Miss Lawson Taylor in the small rôle of the Shepherd Boy sang sweetly. Miss Gertrude Vania, who appeared as Elizabeth, gave a most artistic rendering of an arduous rôle, her vocalisation being of a high order. Carmen, Destiny, Faust, Il Trovatore, Cavalleria and Pagliacci, and Lohengrin were also announced.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Frank and Jen Latona head the bill, and repeat their clever performance so popular here; Rappo and Ella, styled society gymnasts, give a skilful turn; Lizzie Glenroy is a dainty Scotch comedian; and the Claymore Trio of vocalists and humorists are pleasing; the feats of strength introduced by Trojan are admired; Dan Whitley is one of the most original comedians seen here for some time; Norman Osborn is an up-to-date ventriloquist; Violet Shelly and company, in the sketch An Ideal Woman, are well received, as are also the Brothers Arlois in their comedy bar act.

In the Court of Bankruptcy on the 4th inst. a sitting was held for the public examination of Gilbert T. Oliver, who applied to pass on accounts showing liabilities £1,828, and no available assets. It appeared that the debtor had been engaged at various periods as an articled clerk to an architect, in financing a theatrical touring company, making and selling cellular clothing, in farming, and occasionally dealing in horses, and also in carrying on a club, and acting as managing director of a company which took it over. He attributed his present position to liabilities, as guarantor and otherwise, incurred in connection with the last-mentioned company. The examination was concluded.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 4.—Princess's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson.—After a week's successful run, Macbeth, with Mr. Walter Bentley in the name-part, was withdrawn on Friday evening last in the presence of a packed house. On Saturday evening East Lynne was staged for a brief season. Miss Eugenie Duggan appeared in the dual character of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine, and achieved a complete success. Mr. George Cross gave an excellent rendition of the part of Archibald Carlyle; and Mr. Rutland Beckett as Sir Frances Levison displayed the villainous characteristics of that polished scoundrel to perfection. Miss Helen Fergus made an ideal Cornelia Carlyle. Other actors deserving commendatory notice were Mr. Maurice Kemp as Justice Hare; Miss Florence Richter as Barbara Hare; Miss Isa Millett as Afy Hallijohn; and little Isa Crossley as Willie Carlyle.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. J. E. Tait.—Delighted audiences nightly greet the performance of the brilliant pantomime of Aladdin. In general staging and spectacular effects it is one of the best, if not the best, pantomime seen in Australia for years. It is fair to assume that the man, woman, or child who leaves this theatre disappointed these times is out of sorts. Judging from present appearances Aladdin will run till Easter.

King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—Following in the wake of its opening triumph, the pantomime Babes in the Wood is proving a powerful holiday attraction. The staging is of a highly efficient and costly character, and the company, embracing such capable performers as Miss Lilian Lea, Nat Clifford, and Foreman and Fannan, fully deserves the lavish praise that has been bestowed upon it. During the current week special holiday matinées will be given.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Clarke and Meynell; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—The revival of interest in Shakespearean drama is still the most striking and most wholesome feature of the theatrical world in these parts. The Merchant of Venice is in great vogue here, where the Shylock of Mr. Oscar Asche and the Portia of Miss Lily Brayton win encomiums nightly from multitudes of admirers. Needless to say, the play is staged with careful attention to the smallest detail throughout.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Mr. Harry Rickards is presenting an exceptionally strong bill at present, with the result that "full house" signs are nightly displayed outside this popular theatre long before eight o'clock. The bright particular "star" just now is Miss Lillie Langtry, the vivacious comedienne just arrived from England, who delights the audience by rendering her songs in her own inimitable style. Miss Dolly Harmer has returned for a few nights, and has made a decided hit with two new songs. The highly sensational act performed by the Wille Brothers is a source of wonder to all who witness it; Bertha Stuart, Scottish character vocalist; Fred Bluett, the Australian vocalist; and the Wheelers, trick cyclists, are among other leading performers. The last nights of the Kremka Brothers are now announced. These artists have proved very popular with their clever acrobatic act.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—Mr. James Brennan's National Vaudeville Company is enjoying a large measure of popularity, the theatre being crowded nightly. The combination has been reinforced by the arrival of Wise and Milton from America. In addition to the "coloured duo," places are given in the new bill to Pearl Lovell, the Smith Sisters, Frank King, and Ernest Pilcher, who are reappearing.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROME.

(from our own correspondent.)

ROME, Feb. 9.—The author of the translation into Italian of A Midsummer Night's Dream, which was produced at the Theatro Argentina, Rome, on the 1st inst. is Diego Angeli. Among the audience were their Majesties the King and Queen of Italy. The grotesqueness of love-making between Titania and Bottom proved absolutely irresistible, and the house burst forth into unrestrained laughter. In the part of Bottom Signor Farulli gave another proof of what a really fine actor he is, giving full vent to all the whimsicalities of the character, and never overdoing it. La Reinach, too, as Puck, won golden opinions from her audience, and it would be difficult to speak too highly of her impersonation. The mise-en-scene was excellent, and the performance was accompanied by Mendelssohn's music.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Mr. Walter Webber's organ solo, Prelude and Fugue in F Minor (Bach) was the first item in the concert on Wednesday evening. Mr. Webber is a pupil of Mr. C. J. C. Boddington, and does credit to his professor. Two Hungarian songs, arranged by Korbay, "Had a horse" and "Shepherd, see they horse's foaming mane," enabled Mr. N. R. Harrison to display an excellent voice, and Miss Hermine L. Hartley played Chopin's Seventh Polonaise in A Flat with care and intelligence. Sullivan's song, "My heart is like a silent lute," was sung by Miss May Davies, and Miss Elaine Dickens' violin solo of Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen" was a great advance on the average student performance of this popular solo. Mr. Donald Maxwell employed his pleasing voice to good effect in "Come, sing my lute," by Hedgcock, and Mr. V. Allen, another clever vocalist, was heard to advantage in "Grey days" (Noel Johnson). In her piano solo, "Whims" (Schumann), Miss Grace Clark received warm applause; while Miss Gladys Roberson sang "Earl Bristol's Farewell" and "See where my love" (Lidgey) with intelligence. Another clever violin student was Mr. Frederic Simmons, who played Hubay's "Hejre Kati"; and the third pianoforte solo in the programme, "L'Ondine," was ably executed by Miss Ada Cue. Two songs, "The Woodpigeon" and "The Yellowhammer" (Lehmann) were well sung by Miss Edith Kyte, and an interesting concert ended with a recitation "Scene from Merchant of Venice, Act I., Scene 3," by a talented pupil of Mr. L. Cairns James, Mr. Alec Glassey. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

The Playgoers' Club annual treat on Saturday to some of the poorest children of the Metropolis was a huge success. Two thousand five hundred were taken to see Dick Whittington at the Britannia Theatre and 2000 to see Cinderella at the Elephant and Castle Theatre. The youngsters were selected from all the Council schools in the neighbourhood of each place of entertainment, and among them were a number drawn from the institutions where the education of mentally or physically defective little ones is undertaken. The performers at both theatres excelled themselves in their efforts to enhance the pleasure of their little guests.

Since the first performance of The O'Flynn at His Majesty's Theatre a few changes have been made and the piece has been played more closely. As a consequence the curtain now rises at 8.15 instead of 8 o'clock, and at the Wednesday and Saturday matinées at 2.15 instead of 2. The play is now given well within the three hours, and the curtain will fall not later than 11.15 in the evening and 5.15 at the matinées.

PROVINCIAL MANAGERS

MR. WILL WHITE.

Mr. Will White, the general manager of the Alhambra, Belfast, was born at Bath thirty-five years ago, and entered the profession in 1889, when only a boy, joining the Old Virginia Minstrels. After several tours, he played the part of the Lord Chamberlain in J. Pitt Hardacre's pantomime Mother Goose at the Comedy Theatre, Manchester, 1893, afterwards touring with Mr. Hardacre's companies in Lady Windermere's Fan, East Lynne, Madcap Maris, burlesque, and being re-engaged for his pantomime Goody Two Shoes for stage-management and pantaloon. After a tour with Messrs. Miller and Elliston's In the Ranks, he joined Dr. Vint as advertising manager, leaving to take over the stage-management of Messrs. John Tiller and McNeil's Christmas Carnival in Manchester At the end of the run he went to London, to introduce the Cremation Illusion at the Royal Aquarium, and opened later at the Royal Aquarium, Brighton, introducing his hypnotic séance. For two years he starred in the music halls, and in the February of 1897 took a lease of the Circus, Dudley, where he gave a remarkable demonstration of hypnotism, placing a medium under hypnotic control for three days and nights and burying him under six feet of earth.

At the end of the third day the medium was dug up and hung by the neck in full view of the audience for an hour before being cut down and awakened. This amazing experiment was watched by several members of the medical fraternity and Supt. Speake, of the Dudley Police Force. After a run of several months, Mr. White was compelled to relinquish the lease, owing to a severe attack of typhoid fever and pneumonia. On his recovery he was engaged to appear at the Nelson and Naval Exhibition, Manchester, under the management of the late John Hollingshead, and was then engaged for a short season as advertising manager for Norton B. Smith, the horse-tamer, leaving him to take over the management of the Palace of Illusions at the Winter Gardens, Blackpool, and then undertaking the advance management of Arthur Jefferson's London by Day and Night company. At Christmas he left Mr. Jefferson to fulfil a contract as acting-manager for Eglinton and Little's Robinson Crusoe pantomime, produced at the Theatre Royal, Bath, at the termination of which he toured a variety company in partnership with Arthur Saxon, of the Saxon Trio.

Later on he rejoined Messrs. Little and D'Arcy, and acted as general-manager for the Robinson Crusoe, Aladdin, Forty Thieves, On the Stroke of Twelve, and the Executioner's Daughter companies, undertaking altogether sixteen tours, and being with them for nearly eight years. Mr. White's principal parts were Henry Rutledge in On the Stroke of Twelve and the Executioner in The Executioner's Daughter. By special arrangements with Mr. Fred J. Little, Mr. White toured his own company in The

MR. WILL WHITE, F.O.S.

New World, and after a very successful tour joined Mr. Ralph Pringle as advertising and business-manager. He had four engagements with Mr. Pringle, whose service he resigned to take over his present engagement.

During the first year at the Alhambra, Belfast, Mr. White beat all records for the house, which is the oldest in the city, having been a music hall for thirty-five years. At the end of the year Mr. White was presented with a cheque for £25 and a beautiful illuminated address from the directors of the Belfast Alhambra, Ltd., and with a valuable diamond ring by the staff and friends, including over 200 members of the Royal Irish Constabulary. Mr. White's favourite hobbies are boxing and running. He won the South-West Manchester Harriers' ten mile championship two years in succession, and at the present time is one of the official judges of the Irish Cyclists' Association (Ulster centre), and vice-president of the Woodvale Cycle Club, one of the most flourishing in Ireland.

The Opera Society, which is intended to accomplish for music what the Stage Society is doing for the drama, was instituted on Monday afternoon when a meeting for the purpose was held at Seaford House, Belgrave-square, lent by Lord Howard de Walden, under the presidency of Mr. Frederick Whelen. The following resolution was carried:—"That this meeting of opera-goers decides to form a society under the title 'The Opera Society,' to provide such an organisation as shall be capable of dealing with any opportunities that may present themselves or be created, for the production in London of: Original English operas; foreign operas of distinction; and operas refused by the Censor, which in the judgment of the committee of the society should not be prohibited on the English stage.

The Society will aim at forming a supplement to the existing machinery for the promotion of opera in this country, by giving a hearing mainly to works which, owing to the commercial and censorial conditions prevailing in England, might otherwise be denied such opportunity. A provisional committee was formed consisting of Mr. E. A. Baughan, Mr. Johnson Galloway, Mr. Stanley Hawley, Mr. W. Hector Thomson, and Mr. Whelen (with power to add to their number), was elected to frame a detailed scheme for the conduct of the Society, and to report to a future meeting.

Five hundred drawings and pictures, forming a pictorial history of the stage, were sold at Christie's on Monday. A portrait of Miss Farren, in white dress, seated by the sea shore, realised 180 guineas; Van Bleeck's Mrs. Cibber as Cordelia, 62 guineas; Clint's portrait of J. Fawcett sold at 105 guineas; Zoffany's portrait of Sam Toole as Major Sturgeon was acquired for 50 guineas, and Brigg's portrait of Charles Kemble went for 20 guineas.

THE THEATRICAL MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION.

Sir Herbert Tree presided at the annual general meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association at the Tavistock Hotel, on the 4th inst., amongst those present being Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. J. B. Mulholland, Mr. R. C. Buchanan, Mr. S. F. Davidson, Mr. Peter Davey, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, Mr. Henry R. Smith, Mr. E. Domville, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Fred Fredericks, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. Ernest Stevens, Mr. Egbert Lewis, Mr. Sidney Cooper, Mr. Milton Bode, Mr. Frederick Mouillot, Mr. J. F. Elliston, Mr. J. Macready Chute, Mr. W. B. Redfern, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. F. W. Warden, Mr. Ernest Dottridge, Mr. W. Payne Seddon, Mr. Tom Craven, Mr. H. W. Rowland, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson, Mr. Hugh Turner, Mr. W. Bailey, Mr. John R. Huddlestone, Mr. Edward Marris, Mr. Oscar Barrett, Mr. Philip Hedderwick, and Mr. Herbert Blackmore.

The president (Sir Herbert Tree), the vice-presidents (Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. J. Macready Chute, and Mr. J. B. Mulholland), the honorary treasurer (Mr. J. Macready Chute), and the trustees (Mr. George Alexander and Mr. F. W. Wyndham) were re-elected. Mr. Alexander continues to be a trustee, although no longer a member of the Association.

MR. BLACKMORE'S RETIREMENT.

Sir Herbert Tree read a letter received from Mr. Herbert Blackmore, stating that he regretted to say that he would not seek re-election as secretary, owing to the pressure of his agency work. Sir Herbert spoke in high terms of Mr. Blackmore's work as secretary to the Association.

A committee was appointed to deal with the matter of Mr. Blackmore's successor.

The General Council was formed, to include:—

London.
Sir H. Beerbohm Tree	Cyril Maude
Arthur Bourchier	Edward Terry
Seymour Hicks	Fred Terry
H. B. Irving
Suburban.
Robert Arthur	J. B. Mulholland

E. Dottridge	J. W. Boughton
J. F. Elliston	F. W. Wyndham
Charles Elphinstone	F. Warden

In issuing the report for 1909 the Council conveyed to the president their congratulations on the honour conferred upon him during the year by his Majesty, and at the same time took the opportunity of expressing their appreciation of his devoted and unselfish attention to the interests of the Association.

The following new members have been elected since the annual meeting in 1909:—

Mr. B. Blaiberg, Grand, Croydon.
Mr. Tom Craven (touring manager).
Mr. S. F. Davidson, King's, Sunderland.
Mr. Percy Hutchison, Opera House, Southport.
Mr. J. Charles Imeson, Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough.
Mr. Murray King, Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne.
Mr. F. Laidler, Prince's, Bradford.
Mr. M. V. Leveaux (touring manager).
Mr. Matthew Montgomery, Rotunda, Liverpool.
Mr. J. W. Nightingale, Aquarium, Great Yarmouth.
Mr. R. Nightingale, Royal, West Bromwich.
Mr. W. E. Potts, Opera House, Dunfermline.
Mr. William Peacock, Grand Opera House, Harrogate.
Mr. Jules Richeux, Royal Artillery, Woolwich.
Mr. W. Payne Seddon, Royal, Loughborough.
Mr. Hugh Turner, Lyceum, Ipswich.
Mr. T. C. Wray (touring manager).

Under the new regulations each of the four sections of the Association elects its own members to the Council, the whole of the members so elected forming the General Council.

In the beginning of last Parliamentary Session the Daylight Saving Bill was introduced, strongly supported by many municipal and commercial bodies. The Council took steps to watch the progress of the Bill, and although the Association did not formally appear before the Committee to which it was referred, the Council was instrumental in supplying evidence and taking other steps in opposition. In the result the Committee reported against the proposal, and the Bill has been dropped.

EXCISE DUTY.

Although the Licensing Bill introduced by the Government in 1908 did not affect theatres, the Finance Bill or Budget of 1909 provided for an increase in the Excise Duty in respect of the sale of intoxicants in theatres from £20 to £50 for all theatres. This proposal was taken up by the Council, a deputation waited upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and after considerable correspondence and the submission of various details with regard to the sales of liquor in theatres the Chancellor of the Exchequer arranged for a Government amendment to be moved restricting the increase of duty to theatres of a ratable value exceeding £2,000 a year.

The Association expresses thanks to the President, Mr. Mulholland, Mr. Bourchier, and Mr. Elliston for the active interest and energy they showed in connection with this subject.

CENSORSHIP AND LICENSING.

In the beginning of last year the Theatres Bill was introduced, providing for the amendment of the Theatres Act, 1843, by abolishing the censorship of the Lord Chamberlain and transferring to the London County Council the power of licensing theatres at present exercised by the Lord Chamberlain. This Bill was dropped, but in the following April a new Bill was introduced which, in addition to abolishing the censorship of plays, provided for one licence to cover all kinds of dramatic and musical performances, thus doing away with the legal distinction between theatres and music halls. This Bill was referred to a Joint Committee of both Houses of Parliament, and after the evidence of representatives of several bodies interested or concerned in theatrical or musical entertainment and numerous other witnesses had been heard, the report of the Committee was issued in November last. The views of the Association were put before the Committee by appointed representatives. The thanks of the Association were tendered to the president, Mr. Redfern, Mr. Mouillot, and Mr. Savile for their services in this connection. This report is being considered by a Committee of the Association, who will, in due course, report to the General Council.

STANDARD CONTRACT.

The standard form of agreement appears now to have been finally approved, and is recommended to members for adoption.

MUTUAL INSURANCE.

The attention of members is called to the benefits open to them from insuring with the Theatres Mutual Insurance Company. Mr. J. F. Elliston of the Royal, Bolton, the managing director of the company, will give information and answer all inquiries of members contemplating insurance.

The lists of members are as follow:—

London Members.

Arthur Bourchier, Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Tom B. Davis, George Edwardes, Seymour Hicks, H. B. Irving, Dr. Distin Maddick, Cyril Maude, W. S. Penley, H. R. Smith, Sir Herbert Tree, Edward Terry, Fred Terry.

Suburban Members.

W. E. Allen, R. Arthur, H. G. D. Bennett, B. Blaiberg, Edward Compton, Wentworth Croke, Peter Davey, F. Fredericks, J. B. Howard, F. Melville, J. B. Mulholland, Jules Richeux (1910), Ernest Stevens.

Provincial Members.

Culling, J. H. Curry, S. F. Davidson, Tom B. Davis, E. J. Domville, E. Dottridge, T. A. Edwardes, J. F. Elliston, C. Elphinstone, E. G. Falcon, Harris Fineberg, C. Fox, jun., J. F. Graham, F. Granville, John Hart, J. W. Huddlestone, Percy Hutchison, J. C. Imeson, W. W. Kelly, Murray King, F. Laidler, J. Langdon Lee, E. Lewis, A. McLeod Loader, E. Marris, M. Montgomery, Wm. Morton, Sir H. E. Moss, F. Mouillot, J. W. Nightingale, R. Nightingale, W. Peacock, W. E. Potts, W. B. Redfern, R. Redford, T. Rowe, H. W. Rowland, J. H. Savile, W. Payne Seddon, T. Sergenson, S. Sounes, H. Turner, F. W. Warden, J. E. Whitty, F. W. Wyndham.

Touring.

Tom Craven, M. V. Leveaux, Walter Melville, T. C. Wray.

Honorary Members.

William Bailey, Oscar Barrett, Harcourt Cecil Beryl, E. H. Bull, Lawson Lambert, Walter Melville, Otho Stuart, C. F. Williams.

ACTRESSES' FRANCHISE LEAGUE.

The Actresses' Franchise League held its first reception of the season in the Victoria Hall of the Criterion Restaurant on the afternoon of the 4th inst. The guests were received by Mrs. Madeline Lucette Ryley, and Miss Granville presided. The room was filled to overflowing by a most appreciative audience, and the opening speeches of Mr. A. Campbell Johnston (hon. counsel to the A.F.L.) and of Major-General Sir Alfred Turner aroused frequent applause.

Miss Christabel Pankhurst, in a charming and lucid address, put before the professional women among her hearers the position to-day of working women of all grades, explaining how they were likely to be affected in the future by the present trend of party politics. She declared the question of votes for women to be one of "bread and butter," for the reason that as the various demands of men voters became more and more insistent, women were being gradually pushed out of first one occupation and then another and their prospects of earning a living seriously threatened. Referring to the dismissal of married women teachers from the Council schools, Miss Pankhurst aroused considerable merriment by asking the actresses present how they would like to be compulsorily retired from the stage on their marriage, adding that they retained their positions only because they were indispensable and the theatres could not get along without them.

Miss Maud Hoffman (hon. treasurer), in a graceful little speech, explained that though all friends and sympathisers might not be eligible for membership of the A.F.L., the League was prepared to accept and enrol "patrons," who, while contributing to the funds, would otherwise support its aims and objects. As a result of her appeal many names were sent up to the platform, the amounts promised, together with a collection taken in the room, making a substantial addition to the A.F.L. coffers. There were also present Miss Fanny Brough, Miss Compton, Miss Ellen O'Malley, Miss Sara Brooke, Miss Alice Crawford, Lady Agnew, Mrs. Anstruther, Miss Edith Craig, Mrs. Du Maurier, Lady Beckett, Mrs. Gilbert Samuel, Mrs. Carl Meyer, Mrs. T. Hanson Lewis, Mr. Wolfe Levy, Mrs. Wilmot, Miss Elaine Inescourt, the Misses Dugdale, Mr. A. P. Sinnett, Miss Winifred Mayo, Miss Judith Kyrle, Miss Ethel Seligman, Miss Gladys Courtenay, Miss Beatrice Wilson, Miss Sydney Keith, Miss Alys Rees, Miss Isabel Grey, Miss Katharine Parry, Mrs. Dora Mole, Miss Adah Barton, Miss Christine Silver, Miss Katharine Herbert, Miss Ethel Ingram, Miss Ada Palmer, Miss Stanley Ronalds, Miss Madeleine Roberts, Miss Inez Bensusan, Miss Nella Powys, Miss Clare Greet, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Amy Ravenscroft, Miss Vita Spencer, Miss Liliane Deane, Mrs. James Anning, Miss Manville, Miss Elizabeth Dexter, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Gwladys Morris, Miss Evelyn Marthege, Miss Ella Dixon, Miss Mary Pearson, Miss Phyllis Relph, Miss Blineta Brown, Miss Clara Elstob, Miss Ruth Parrott, Miss Kitty Marion, and Miss Bessie Hatton.

A meeting of the committee of the Touring Managers' Association was held at the Managers' Club, Savoy-mansions, Strand, on Feb. 4. Present: Mr. Wentworth Croke (in the chair), Mr. A. Clifton Alderson, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. C. Barth, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. W. Holles, Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, Mr. W. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). A letter from the Society of West-End Theatre Managers, in reference to the appointment of a joint sub-committee, was read.

In answer to a letter from a member, in reference to the exhibition in certain theatres of pictures with stories, by means of the biograph, between the acts, the secretary was requested to send a copy of the letter to the Theatrical Managers' Association, and ask for their views on the subject. Correspondence with a resident manager was submitted by a member in reference to a visit, and the solicitor advised that the member had no case. The solicitor reported that he had served a county court summons on the actor who had broken his agreement with a member. The following were elected members: Messrs. Cecil Woodhouse, Edwin T. Heys, Percy Barrow, and Frank Lindo.

The committee of the Managers' Club held a meeting on Feb. 4. Present: Mr. M. V. Leveaux (in the chair), Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. A. Clifton Alderson, Mr. W. Holles, Mr. Peter Davey, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, Mr. W. Muskerry Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). A discussion took place in reference to the new club premises, and it was decided to insert an advertisement in two papers with a view to getting a suitable place. The following were elected members: Messrs. J. Willoughby Woodward, Charles W. Johnson, Herbert J. Sich, Dudley Stuart, Francis Fowler, T. J. Holmyard, Oliver J. Round, Louis Meyer, Frank Cellier, jun., William Arthur Salmond, Frank Lindo, Frederick Charles Judge, James Kiernan, Harry Tilbury, George Shirley, Maurice F. Raymond, and Henry Byrne Jones.

A Keats-Shelley matinée will be given at the Haymarket Theatre on Friday, June 10, the performance consisting almost entirely of the works of the two poets. The object of the matinée is to complete the equipment of the Keats-Shelley Memorial House, which was opened in Rome last April by the King of Italy.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

To describe this play as a melodrama is a very poor tribute to its quality, for it has as little in common with that kind of theatrical entertainment as it has, indeed, to go to another extreme, with the character-tragedies of Shakespeare. It is drama, and it is tragedy, but of a distinct type. It is wrought of the minds of a people in revolt; it is too large in idea to concern itself greatly about given persons, save in so far as they represent each a type; there is no attempt to move the play along the usual lines of a finite plot; such story as there is is merely drifted along with the changing movement of a spiritual force which mere personal interests, tragic though they be, have no power to control or even to evade. The imagination of an artist is employed throughout to write in or leave out just those positive or negative implications which go to the creation of a desired effect, namely, the effect of atmosphere. The air of the play is impregnated with fear, cruelty, suffering, sacrifice, and the merciless punishment of Tzardom. Even through the windows one sees in the very snow-coldness of the streets a brooding stillness, as if the houses themselves are conscious of the chill death that besets the aspirations of the people. There is an outer scene of a church, and sounds of organ music, like a hint of mockery; it is the scene upon which some of the characters look down from the window of Vasili's lodging, when a long procession of strikers, singing in lilting but dismal unison, are suddenly fired upon by troops until the street runs with blood. The time of the play is the early spring of 1905, and the opening scene is the printing office of The Light, where Anton Tlatschoff has his printing machine, and Sofia Ivanovna and Mascha fold the papers for secret distribution. Here Tantal, a hunted and exhausted revolutionary, is in hiding, and here also come Vasili and Anna Rikanskaja, each in unspoken love with the other. Anna, who is the niece of a Government official, brings contributions for the paper and is argumentatively inspiriting; Vasili, brooding apart, is all for action. Haunted by sufferings of his own (there is a hint that he is one who was arrested years before), and desirous of the love of Anna, his mind is in a state of anguish between the yearning and the possibilities on the one hand, and the sureness of the doom that, in the cause of freedom, must come upon him on the other. The end of this meeeting-place, with its sadness and its subterfuges, comes with a visit of the police. Tantal shoots himself (Vasili and Anna have already gone), and Anton and his assistants are taken away for punishment and outrage. In the next scene, Vasili's lodging, other characters are introduced. There are a doctor, a banker, a poet-student, who, like Vasili, is eager for action and less talk, and others, with one of whom, Gregor, Vasili arranges to take upon himself the responsibility of throwing a bomb. This amounts to the acceptance of his doom, and the end of his sentimental aspirations. But there is no room in the Cause for the valuation of a life above itself; all must go for the sake of the freedom to come, through blood and sacrifice, since there is no other way; and even now, before their eyes and ringing in their ears, are the sights and sounds of the butchery of men chanting a dismal song by the church in the street in the cause of justice. Upon Vasili's resolution is built the incidental tragedy of the play. It is in this scene that his love for Anna is uttered and returned; the sequel of which must be Anna's signal to him from a window of her aunt's rooms, by a light at the panes, that certain carriages are about to pass a house in which he is to be ready with the bomb. It is carried out with an anguished submission to fate in both, and only Anna's suffering is seen after the bomb is thrown; there is no more of Vasili. Such are the broad outlines of this impressive picture of Russian life.

The author is a Pole. The play was first prepared for the stage in German at Hamburg, where, however, its performance was forbidden by the police. It met with the same fate in Austria. Subsequently, it was played at the German theatre in New York, and then in French at Paris, where it was phenomenally successful, running for over a hundred nights. The latter company staged it in London about a year ago, under the title of Le Grand Soir. In Russia, of course, the play would be impossible.

So far as the acting is concerned there are no sustained opportunities for anyone; but there is an intensity in the character of Vasili which probes the imagination, and which was steadily embodied by Mr. Ian Maclaren; while the other outstanding part of Anna gave Miss Mona Limerick several chances, especially the one at the end of the play, of showing her great capacity for emotional acting. Miss Edyth Goodall as Sofia, and later as Anna's aunt, was notably good; Mr. Charles Bibby as Ivan Pavlovitch infused a dash of character-comedy that was welcome, in spite of its underlying grimness; Mr. Stanley Drewitt as the unhappy Tantal was sincere and impressive; and among other impersonations, all adequate and more or less pertinent to the action, the best chances were in the hands of Mr. B. Iden Payne, Mr. Esmé Percy, Miss Ada King, and Miss Louise Holbrook.

THE ever-popular Sherlock Holmes is being presented at the Empire Theatre, Swindon, by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company. Mr. Stewart arouses enthusiasm by his interpretation of Sherlock Holmes; Mr. Eric Morden ably depicts Dr. Watson; Mr. Ernest Fryer does good work as John Forman; Mr. Charles Brandon gives a powerful portrayal of Professor Moriarty; James Larabee is convincingly taken by Mr. Arnold O. Raper; Mr. Olly Seymour infuses the necessary humour into the part of Sydney Prince; and Master Thomas Russell is very good as Billy. Madge Larabee is capably rendered by Miss May Beatrice; Miss Maisie Richardson is a satisfactory Therese; and Miss A. Bruce-Joy's delineation of Alice Faulkner is excellent.

THE manager of the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, Mr. Auguste A. Penleve, took his annual complimentary benefit on the 31st ult., when a crowded audience, largely representing the county, gave evidence of his widespread popularity.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS IDA MACKAY.

Born at Nantwich, Cheshire, Miss Ida Mackay commenced her theatrical career with Mr. Fred Harcourt, playing the part of Abdullah in At Duty's Call. A varied experience has been her lot, the portable theatre claiming much of her early attention, where she gained that genuine experience that now stands her in good stead. Pantomimes with the late Mr. C. Hart and the late Mrs. Levey were excellent fill-ins. Soubrettes are her special line, but no part comes amiss; in fact, the only line of business she has not played is heavy. During recent years she has had long tours in the following managements, playing the parts of Susan in H. T. Garland's Merciless World, Susie Slack in The Heart of a Hero, and Trixie Lucien in Defending His Honour, with Messrs. Carson and Granville. She created the parts Freda and Doris Fane (juvenile leads) in the late F. Bateman's At War with Women and No Wedding Bells for Her companies.

Mme. Vinard in Trilby, Jeanie Brown and Dossie Dick in A Life's Handicap, Captain of the Guard (with the rapier duel) in The Three Musketeers, Dorothy Vernon in For the King, Mary in What Men Dare, comprise a range of parts taking in low and light comedy, character and juvenile leads. Her latest part is that of Katerina in A Woman Worth Winning, which she has played just over one thousand times. Boating is her special exercise, and her constant companion a beautiful little black "skip," now turning grey, of which she is exceedingly fond.

MISS DOROTHY CLIFTON.

The first engagement fulfilled by Miss Dorothy Clifton was with Mr. Wentworth Croke in The Christian (No. 1) company, during which she played various small parts and afterwards understudied and played for several weeks in succession the part of Polly Love, in which rôle she was most successful. Miss Clifton then had a short experience of musical comedy, playing one of the Flower Girls, and understudying Dénise in Mr. George Dance's Veronique company. She was then engaged by Mr. Laidler, of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, to understudy the Fairy Queen and Cinderella. During the illness of the principal she played the latter part, and was the recipient of warm congratulations from Mr. Laidler, Miss Florrie Forde (who was playing the Prince), and many other members of the company. Miss Clifton was then engaged by Messrs. F. and W. Morgan for important parts in stock seasons at Aberdeen and Dundee, at the termination of which she was retained by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Lauderdale Maitland to play the leading part (Grace Shirley) in The Coal King, continuing with them until the end of the tour, when the piece changed hands.

For a short time Miss Clifton played Winnie Marshall in The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, and then undertook the leading part in Mr. Walter

MISS DOROTHY CLIFTON.

Howard's military drama, Second to None. Asked by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton if she would take up Miss Leila Zillwood's part in The Power of the King until she should recover from her illness, Miss Clifton consented, and remained with them until Miss Zillwood's recovery. A tour with Mr. Gaston Meyer as Miss Lucy in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch was followed by a special week with Miss Flo Irwin and Mr. Ross in an amusing sketch which was played at the Empress, Brixton, entitled Mrs. Peckham's Carouse. She has just concluded a tour with the Melodrama Production Syndicate, playing the leading part of Marjorie Lovell in Sexton Blake.

Miss Clifton was brought up and educated in France, and speaks the French language fluently. She has played in several French comedies, in the original tongue, with success. She passed Mr. Henry J. Woods' (Queen's Hall, London) examination for violin, and became a member of his amateur orchestra, a membership she was reluctantly obliged to resign when she commenced touring. Added to these accomplishments, Miss Clifton has a well-trained musical voice, is a good pianist, and a skilful dancer.

MR. A. B. MACKAY.

Mr. A. B. Mackay started his theatrical career at the old Opera House, Perth (his native city), in the year 1885, playing the children's parts for Mr. Walter Bentley. Baron Zeigler, then managing the Palace, Dundee, took a fancy to him, and with him young Mackay visited all the principal cities in Scotland. After further Scotch associations with that well-known comedian, the late J. C. Macdonald, he had what he calls the good fortune to fall in with a répertoire company, where work was plentiful and money a very scarce commodity, but declares that the experience gained was well worth all the empty stomachs and heartaches. He spent two very happy years with the late W. T. Rushbury, playing the character parts in The World's Verdict, Tommy Atkins, and Jack Tar. This brings him up to '95, just after the Jameson Raid, when he joined a sketch company to create the part of Dr. Jim. After a twelve months' tour with the late Mr. H. O'Grady, playing the heavies in The Fenian, Famine, and The Irish Emigrant, he was back again in Bonnie Scotland, to play Benson, in The Shadows of a Great City, for the Edinburgh Pavilion Theatre Company's tour. The part of Luke Raymond in The Merciless World came next, his association with the late Mr. and Mrs. Garland lasting something like two years, during which he sustained the heavy lead and undertook general and stage-management. Read and Davis's A London Mystery was his next tour, the part of Mons. Obanoff, the character lead, falling to him, and this was followed by a short tour with Mr. A. L. Baron, as Taffy and the Laird, in Trilby, the Cardinal in The Three Musketeers; Capt. Clavering, in For the King, Messrs. Nerry and Pitt's tour; Jasper Gibbs, in When George Was King, Mr. F. Macnaghten's tour; and George Allison, in At Duty's Call, with Mr. J. Gerant. He was then engaged by Messrs. Carson and Granville to create the part of Dick Brenton, and stage-manage The Drama of Life. Here commenced an association that lasted for nearly five years, off and on, during which time he played the character and heavy part in The Heart of a Hero and Defending His Honour. The late Mr. F. Bateman was his next manager, and with him he created the dual rôle (lead) in At War with Women, and the character part of Horatio Fane in No Wedding Bells for Her, also doing the stage management during tours extending over two years. Meanwhile Mr. Mackay was fortunate enough to meet with his present partner, Mr. Percy Norman, and A Woman Worth Winning was produced on Sept. 24, '05, and has been continuously toured since. Mr. Mackay has played at different periods the lead, heavy lead, and character parts.

MR. A. B. MACKAY.

Svengali is one of his favourite rôles, and it has been his fortune to play it something like 150 times. Varied experience has been his lot as regards a range of parts, but his preference is for character leads. His hobbies are many, but business and strict attention to it is an easy first, his special exercises swimming and boating, and a good game at football his special sport.

MR. TOWNSEND WHITLING.

Born at Oxford, Mr. Townsend Whitling was educated at Cheltenham College. He was intended for the Army, but failed in examinations, and went out to Western America, where he was engaged for some time in ranching. Eventually he became lessee of an opera house in a small Western town, subsequently going on tour with a comic opera company, playing Erminie, Little Tycoon, Pinafore, &c. He then joined a minstrel troupe playing through the West, and was afterwards with a company playing Jane, a tour as Taffy in Trilby following. He then went to New York, where he obtained an engagement with the late Mr. A. M. Palmer, supporting Henry Miller and Blanch Walsh in Heartsease, opening the Great Northern Theatre, Chicago, with it. He was engaged by Margaret Mather to play in Cymbeline at Wallack's Theatre, and afterwards went on tour, playing in Cymbeline, Romeo and Juliet (Tybalt), Leah, &c. A Shakespearean tour with William Owen and Rose Eytinge followed, with Mr. Whitling as King in Hamlet, Leonato, Tybalt, &c. A summer production of A Midsummer Night's Dream (Philostrate), with E. J. Henley and Edmund Lyons, came next, after which he was engaged by Klaw and Erlanger to support the late Maurice Barrymore in A Ward of France at Wallack's. An engagement with Elita Proctor Otis for Oliver Twist, playing Bill Sikes, was followed by an incursion into vaudeville with Miss Otis in My Milliner's Bill. He was next engaged to play in the late Charles Coghlan's production of The Royal Box, later going with him to the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, to play in Citizen Pierre.

Mr. Whitling's first engagement on returning to England was with Mr. Frank Curzon in The Cuckoo (King Kamswaga). He played in stock season in The Great Ruby, East Lynne, &c., and toured with Mrs. Lewis Waller in The Three Musketeers (De Treville), tours in A Royal Divorce and One of the Best coming afterwards. Various stock work in the suburbs followed—the Deemster, Ben-my-Chree; O'Grady, Arrah Na Pogue; Kinchella, Shaughraun; Legree, Uncle Tom's Cabin; McClosky, Octoroon; Dalton, Ticket-of-Leave Man; Black Diamonds, Streets of London, &c. He was engaged by Messrs. Henry Dundas and Ernest Leicester for Mark Redburn in Rising to Win and by Mr. C. W. Somerset for Jacques in The Two Orphans.

A year's tour in South Africa with Rayne and De Jong followed, playing leading parts in The Prodigal Daughter, Talk of the Town, Jane, The Three Musketeers, Little Lord Fauntleroy, The Masqueraders, English Rose, Lights of London, &c. He supported Mr. Joe Elvin at the Oxford ('Appy 'Ampstead) and the Tivoli (To-night's the Night). He was then retained by Mr. Henry Dundas for tour of Shadowed Lives, by Mr. F. Mouillot to play the Messenger in A Message from Mars (on two tours), and for Mr. C. W. Somerset's production of A Stranger in a Strange Land (Dr. Boller). Then came an engagement with the Hutchison management lasting five years as stage-manager and playing leading parts in The Money Makers, Country Mouse, Freedom of Suzanne, On the Love Path, Peter's Mother, Two in a Trap, &c. He was secured by Messrs. Jay and Mann to play

MR. TOWNSEND WHITLING.

Prince Yoland in An Englishman's Home this autumn, combining that part with the duties of stage-director to their two companies. He is now playing Walter Angel in The Little Damozel on tour.

MR. EDWIN H. WYNNE.

The first professional appearance of Mr. Edwin H Wynne was made in the character of Mr. St. George, a "dude" part, in Nita's First, with the late Sidney Herberte-Basing's company, touring the small towns in Devon and Cornwall. Mr. Wynne was retained by the same management for the part of the crying baby in the pantomime Humpty Dumpty. Then followed a long period in various small touring companies, during which Mr. Wynne played all kinds of parts—from old men to singing boys and dames—in drama, comedy, farce, Shakespeare, musical plays, and pantomime, picking up a lot of useful experience. In the autumn of 1892 he played Tony in My Sweetheart, to the Tina of Miss Lizzie Boone; and a tour as the Old Colonel in Woodbarrow Farm was followed by a stock season at the Theatre Royal, Margate, with Miss Sarah Thorne.

In the summer of 1893 Mr. Wynne was engaged by Mr. W. S. Penley to be his understudy in Charley's Aunt, and remained at the Globe in that capacity close upon two years, during which he frequently played "the old lady from Brazil," at one time for a period of nearly three months. Then he went on tour with Miss Minnie Palmer, as Tony, in My Sweetheart, an engagement that was followed by several tours as Charley's Aunt. In the spring of 1899 he was engaged by Messrs. Morrell and Mouillot to create the part of Count Stephan in The Transit of Venus, and re-engaged for the same rôle for the autumn tour, and for the Ugly Sister in Cinderella at the Theatre Royal, Dublin. Following a spring tour as Gussie in Little Miss Nobody, came an engagement with Mr. Arthur Roberts in On the Move. Then Mr. Wynne took up Charley's Aunt again.

In the autumn of 1901 he was engaged to play Mr. Weedon Grossmith's part in The Night of the Party, and was re-engaged for the same part for Christmas and spring tours. Christmas, 1902 and 1903, found him as Mrs. Sinbad at the Theatre

Royal, Exeter; and another tour of The Night of the Party was followed by his last tour under Mr. Penley's management of Charley's Aunt. After this came a tour playing Mr. Weedon Grossmith's part in The Duffer, then various sketches in music halls, and an engagement with Mr. William Pool in a revival of The Good-natured Man. Mr. Wynne was then secured by Mr. Wilfrid Cotton to play Christopher Podmore in Butterflies at the Christmas of 1908 and 1909, and continued on the autumn tour, supporting Miss Ada Reeve, which has recently concluded.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales witnessed the performance of Dame Nature at the Garrick Theatre on Monday evening.

"MOTHER TO BE."

A Love Story, in One Act, by Basil Dean, Produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Feb. 7.

Jenny Starnes ..... MISS HILDA BRUCE POTTER
Sarah Starnes ..... MISS LOUISE HOLBROOK
Richard Starnes ..... MR. EDWARD LANDOR
Dodd Bartley ..... MR. LEONARD MUDIE
Joe Chastey ..... MR. CHARLES BIBBY

This is not the first attempt of Mr. Basil Dean at the writing of drama, but, so far as our judgment goes, it is, as it should be, the best thing he has done, so far, in his laudable endeavour to add to the good things which Miss Horniman's company (of which he is a member) are apt to give us in the way of new stuff from time to time. It is the kind of thing which is more easily conceived than shaped, more easily "fobbed off" by the ordinary critic than awarded its due; for the simple reason that it demands, not merely the appraisement of the eye, or of the emotions roused by superficial incident, but a sense of character in the beholder, and a psychological appreciation of the author's motive. In other words, it is a very human and delicate piece of work, spun in fine and unobtrusive threads, and coloured with the hues of home. So simple a story would scarcely be attempted by a dramatist who had not the trait of sentiment well developed; it is just the old tale of a woman's preference for a man who has no hope of her until she tells him of her choice; but Mr. Dean's gift of characterisation fills in the picture triumphantly. The value of the work lies underneath the incidents one sees, though the incidents are of necessity characteristic. The action of the play passes at Starne's farm in the West Country, on the afternoon of a June day. We have Richard Starnes, a good-hearted tenant farmer, very fond of his daughter Jenny, and a little impatient of his somewhat shrewish wife; Sarah, the wife in question, who with her unsympathetic asperities outwears the patience of her daughter also, yet who is obviously a good wife in the work-a-day sense of the word; and Jenny, the daughter, a pleasant, marriageable girl, apparently soured by some subtle disappointment. It is time that Jenny was off their hands, says the mother, who is all for the claims of one Dodd Bartley, a tranter, while the father, not wishing to force the point unduly, is, on his daughter's confession, but dubiously tolerant of such an outsider as Joe Chastey, a notorious ne'er-do-well. Joe, however, has a chance of reformation in the fact that he has already given up the drink and has a prospect of becoming gamekeeper on a neighbouring estate. This is the situation upon which Dodd Bartley makes his appearance to prosecute his suit for the hand of Jenny. Jenny will have none of him; but Dodd is amorous and masterful, and, having seized Jenny in his arms, will not release her from his kisses until she has promised to be his wife. Joe Chastey comes by the window in time to witness the embrace, but this has been prolonged by Jenny so that Joe might feel the pangs of jealousy; she has no more object in consenting to Dodd's demand than to ensure her escape when Joe comes into the kitchen. Trouble ensues between Joe and Dodd. Joe has seen his rival in questionable circumstances with another lady only that morning, and demands therefore that no deceit shall be practised on Jenny. Dodd resents the impending disclosure, and the result is becoming decidedly quarrelsome when Jenny, who has overheard, puts an end to the matter by summarily dismissing Mr. Bartley. It is then the task lies before her of opening the eyes of Joe, who is honest but unaspiring, and who cannot see his own virtues shining in the eyes of the woman for whose sake he has already begun the work of self-reform. How she does it may be more pleasantly imagined than described, and the crown of the matter, when Joe realises his good fortune, is the advent of Farmer Starnes with the news that Joe's application for the post of gamekeeper has succeeded. In the circumstances, even Mrs. Starnes is mollified, and nothing else more joyful could be wished for than that.

The play was as admirably acted as it well deserved to be. Miss Hilda Bruce Potter as Jenny added one more to her triumphs in pleasant characterisation; Mr. Charles Bibby as Joe played like the accomplished actor he is; and an absolutely lifelike impersonation of Mrs. Starnes was given by Miss Louise Holbrook. Mr. Edward Landor's Richard Starnes was cleverly done, and Mr. Leonard Mudie put the requisite fervour into his attempt upon Jenny as the unscrupulous Dodd Bartley. The play was particularly well staged, and the author was called at the close.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The College Choir, conducted by Dr. H. T. Pringuer, gave a performance of "Stabat Mater," Dvorák, in the Concert Room of the College, on Tuesday afternoon. The soloists were Miss Florence Griffiths, Miss Edith Davies, Miss Alice Booth, Miss Hilda Felstead, Mr. Malcolm Henderson, Mr. Joseph Myers, and Mr. Sydney Sharvell. Mr. Harry A. Gray and Mrs. James R. Blazey presided at the organ and piano. Dvorák's work is a somewhat heavy task for the choral students of the Trinity College to undertake, as in some respects it is more difficult than Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and as there was a large audience in the room, space was limited, but it must be admitted the young soloists displayed great intelligence in their singing, and the tone of the chorus was generally excellent. The male singers also deserved special praise for their rendering of several difficult solos, and the singing of both soprano and contralto in duets and solos had no little merit. The accompaniments on organ and piano were carefully played by Mr. Harry Gray and Mrs. James R. Blazey, while the frequent applause showed the interest taken in the performance by the large audience.

MEMBERS of the Sheffield School of Art Dramatic Club gave on several evenings last week a highly meritorious performance of the Old English comedy The Knight of the Burning Pestle in the Temperance Hall before large and enthusiastic audiences. At the close of the performance on Saturday evening a presentation was made to Mr. J. F. Horrabin (who ably represented the Knight) of a floral design representing a burning pestle, and also a pretty silver statuette of a knight in armour, from members of the Dramatic Club in recognition of his services as hon. secretary.

VERDI'S "Requiem" will be given this (Saturday) evening, by the Crystal Palace Orchestral Society and Choir. This selection was last given at the Palace in 1878, and to-night's concert should prove of special interest to music-lovers. Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, under whose conductorship the work will be given, has secured the services of several well-known artists, including Miss Ethel Wood, Miss Winifred Williamson, Mr. Webster Millar, and Mr Julien Henry. In addition to the "Requiem," the programme includes "St. Paul" and Psalm, in eight parts, "Judge me, O God" (Mendelssohn), and "Marche Héroïque" (Saint-Saëns).

THE Promenade Concerts at the Crystal Palace, which are always such a popular feature of the entertainment there, will be continued until further notice. The artists for next week include: Monday, Miss Florence Barrow and Mr. Tirby Heale; Tuesday, Miss Gladys Reeve (solo violin) and Mr. Alexander Webster; Thursday, Miss Maud Clough and Mr. Robert Carr; Friday, Miss Rosina Beynon and Mr. Gwilym Richards; and Saturday, the Westminster Singers Messrs. George May, Wilfred Kearton, Bertram Mills, and W. H. Brereton. There will be no concert on Wednesday, the 16th inst., owing to the skating carnival.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"ALADDIN" AT THE LYCEUM.

[SECOND EDITION.]

King Pantomime is being dethroned all over the kingdom, but Aladdin at the Lyceum continues on its triumphal way, and this week has run into a second edition. While the best of the pantomime has been retained, new features are apparent, and the fun of the various comic episodes is materially strengthened. One notices in the first part a diverting interlude between the Emperor, so jovially played by Mr. Frank Hemming, and Pitti-Sing, fascinatingly presented by Miss Marie Free. The novelty deals with the doings of "Soldiers in the Park," and arouses some of the heartiest laughter of the evening. Mr. Hemming and Miss Free are still associated in a "quarrelling" duet, well managed by both artists and thoroughly appreciated by the audience. Miss Free's singing of "Mr. Schneider," with its accompanying dance, wins the clever little artist encores.

Miss Dorothy Craske continues to command the admiration of the whole house by her comely appearance, excellent singing, and bright acting as Aladdin. An additional number given to her is the popular "Somewhere," in the ear-haunting refrain of which she has the assistance of a gentleman in the dress circle, who repeats the chorus in a melodious and cultivated baritone, and arouses enthusiasm, a repetition of the last verse being inevitable. Miss Eva Kelland is also given a fresh number, which takes the form of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," to which she gives the utmost value. Miss Kelland's vocal charm is also apparent in "Golden Daffodils," in which she has the assistance of a graceful bevy of ladies. Miss Kelland is a veritable Princess, and her elegant acting and dancing gain great admiration. Miss Simeta Marsden, the bright and buoyant Pekoe, too, has additional effect given to her song "Charlie Brown" by the kind assistance of the orchestra, the members of which take up the chorus in quite harmonious fashion. Miss Marsden's "Ship, ahoy!" remains high in favour.

The comedians have brought their fun-making to high-water mark, and the house is kept hilarious throughout the evening. Mr. Scott Barrie's Widow Twankey is more quaintly ingenuous than ever. A new number that falls to him is "The girl in Berlin," an ingeniously written song which made an immediate hit. Mr. Barrie disports himself in his customary whimsical way, and never fails to score.

Another indefatigable merrymaker is Mr. Arthur Poole, whose Abanazar is genuinely droll and his comic resource illimitable. In "Early in the Morning" he plays effectively on the humorous perceptions of the audience. The original methods of Miss Florence Smithers make her "lady 'elp" Smuttee the oddest of odd persons, and the genuine drollery of her work is irresistible. Her scenes with Mr. Poole are most amusing, and the altercation with the seaside landlady is greatly relished. Mr. Archie Royer's antics as Wishee-Washee cause amazement as well as amusement, so realistic are his falls and tumbling.

Little Miss Marjorie Carpenter is now an accomplished dancer, while her powers as an actress are already beyond dispute. She is quite the daintiest Slave of the Lamp imaginable, and her pretty speeches gain added value from her clear and bell-like expression. The Genie of the Ring is agreeably realised by Miss Victoria Sievers, who is enthusiastically applauded for her singing of "Love makes the whole year June," and the pixy kingdom has fair representatives in Miss Lizzie Ophir as Fairy Heather Bell and Miss Annie Bevington as Queen of the Little Fairies. The Polar Bear of Mr. Harry Gardner, who is also responsible for the excellent harlequinade, remains a masterpiece of animal assumption.

The Lewin-Martel Xylophone Duo still figure at the Garden Party, with the splendours of which they harmonise completely in their elegant costumes. Their instruments are the sweetest in tone we ever remember to have heard, and the remarkable skill of the players enables them to render operatic selections in a manner that could not be excelled. They have made a memorable impression at the Lyceum, and the encores bestowed on the clever pair at every performance are worthily won.

The various scenes, all from the brush of Mr. E. C. Nicholls, delight the eye; the music, composed and arranged by Mr. H. Sullivan Brooke, ravishes the ear; the ballets and evolutions, invented and arranged by Mlle. Rosa, are overwhelming in their magnificence, and Mr. S. Major Jones regulates the stage with an experienced hand. Altogether Mr. Henry R. Smith, the managing-director, has every reason for congratulation on the popularity which the pantomime has attained.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Play by Justin Huntly McCarthy, entitled

"THE PROUD PRINCE."

Longfellow's poem of King Robert of Sicily has been excellently dramatised in Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy's romantic Lyceum play, produced for the first time in Western London on Monday evening at the King's Theatre. A great impression was created, and the crowded house showed its appreciation by numerous curtain calls at the stirring and sensational incidents with which the play abounds. The manner in which the piece is staged calls for commendation, and the selection of the artists shows that the greatest care has been exercised for the play's welfare. In the important part of King Robert of Sicily Mr. E. Vassall-Vaughan rises to the occasion, declaiming the fine prose in exceedingly able style, and acting, particularly as the deformed cripple, with consummate ability and skill. Count Hildebrand is played by Mr. J. A. Shannon with considerable power, and Mr. Frank Ward wins much praise for his impersonation of the court fool Diogenes. A painstaking rendering of Theron, the executioner, is given by Mr. Terence O'Brien, and Mr. Ernest Stidwell's delivery of the lines allotted to Hieronymus, the priest, received much favour. Mr. Arthur Wilson as Siguro is good, and the Archbishop of Syracuse is very capably undertaken by Mr. Charles Boult. Mr. Cowley Wright's presentation of the Archangel is a distinct success. Decided promise is shown by Miss Eilleen Kerin in the character of Perpetua. Her portrayal of the girl whose soul remains pure throughout the many attempts upon her virtue is worthy of the highest praise. The Lysabetta of Miss Vashti Wynne is at once vigorous and full of passion, and she achieves a marked success in the strongly-drawn character of the Queen of the Courtesans. Helena and Corinna are respectively played by Miss Edith Miller and Miss Ruby Stone with cleverness. The stage crowds are remarkably well handled. Sumptuous costumes designed by Mr. Karl are much admired, and the scenery is really magnificent. Mr. H. Sullivan Brooke has provided the specially-composed music.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, entitled

"PETE."

Mr. Hall Caine's plays are invariably received with every manifestation of appreciation by Dalston audiences, and Pete, which is presented this week, forms no exception to the rule. Excellent acting, effective scenery, and general efficiency serve to make the presentation entirely successful. Mr. Frederick Victor gains sympathy for his effective rendering of the character of Pete Quilliam; Miss Constance Bachner shares Mr. Victor's triumph by her impressive acting as Kate Cregeen; Philip Christian was an able representative in Mr. Alfred Lugg; Mr. Maurice Yorke is Ross Christian; and others providing excellent sketches of character include Mr. Ellis J. Preston as Cæsar Cregeen, Mr. J. Lingard as Black Tom, Mr. Will L. Clement as Jonaique Jelly, Mr. R. A. Robinson as Postman Kelly and Doctor Mylechreest, Mr. Wilfred Edmunds as the Lord Lieutenant, Mr. Henry Brooks as the Mayor of Douglas, Mr. Alfred Davidson as Johnny Dumbell, Mr. Arthur Denn as William, and Mr. William Davis as Adam Quirk. The ladies of the cast include Miss Alys Eden, Miss Alice Dorie, Miss Amy Venimore, Miss Kate Spencer, and Miss Lucy Raymond. The stage and business management is in the able hands of Mr. Ellis J. Preston.

MARLBOROUGH THEATRE.

They love pantomime in Holloway, so the management of the Marlborough can scarcely be blamed for giving its patrons a second dose this season. At Christmas we had Babes in the Wood to start with, and one forgot the passing of the hours in its delightful companionship. After the Babes it only seems fitting that The House that Jack Built should be selected for presentation, more especially as memory recalls that when Mr. Fred Karno produced it at the Marlborough last year the people wanted more of it. Other bookings at the time prevented this, and the good Holloway folk have had exactly twelve months to wait for their beloved Jack to return to the scenes of his first youthful triumphs. The House that Jack Built is to stay a couple of weeks in North London before it is transferred to another locality. In the meantime everybody is making the most of it and the fun it provides. The small boys and girls in the audience recognise an old friend in Miss Maidie Scott (Jill), and when that lady makes her initial appearance the youthful hands get to work and make the reception a very flattering one indeed. Every time this lady sings a song—and there are three of them—the delight of the youngsters is expressed in the usual way. In turn "Everybody works but father," "Teddy Bear," and the inevitable "Yip-i-addy-i-ay" get call after call. Mr. Fred Emney is one of the best Mother Hubbards we ever remember to have seen. He, too, had a place in North London's memory where last year's good work was concerned, and was accorded a very hearty greeting. Father Hubbard has a most amusing impersonator in Little Zola. Peals of laughter greeted almost every sally and antic he indulged in. Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., is a very agile cat, and has, if anything, improved on the study of last year. There are two talented little ladies now included in the cast, these being the Misses Gladys Nelson and Maudie Francis. Both are clever singers and dancers, and should make a name in the profession by and by. Miss Nina Green (Prince Opulent) is a handsome and well-built principal boy. She sings two numbers very well, "The girl in the clogs and shawl" and "Let us all go down the Strand." Miss Ida Valli (Jack) gets into the good graces of the North Londoners as easily as she did when The House that Jack Built was produced at New Cross a few weeks ago. Her best number is "Ship ahoy!" with its "free and easy, bright and breezy" refrain. Mr. Syd Walker is quietly funny as the Squire of Whare, and the Brothers Obo give a highly amusing rendering of Ripp and Rapp, described as "gentlemen of leisure." Their "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" with a constant series of interruptions, is the hit of the pantomime. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers are agile, graceful, well-trained children, and the chorus is remarkably strong, both in numbers and ability.

Mr. James Leslie is Mr. Karno's business representative; Mr. W. H. Morgan is the producer; and Mr. Lewis Wigley is a stage manager deserving of every praise for his skilful handling of many magnificent efforts of stage craft.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Play, in Four Acts, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, entitled

"THE FIRES OF FATE."

Anyone who craves excitement and thrilling situations leavened with a little love-making and the discussion of a serious ethical problem should go to see Mr. Vedrenne's company in The Fires of Fate. The piece is admirably staged, and the original scenic effects are reproduced on the necessarily smaller scale adaptable to the Notting Hill Gate theatre without any apparent diminution of their effectiveness. The thrilling story is excellently interpreted by all concerned. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart is entirely effective in his assumption of the varying moods of the brave man doomed by an incurable malady, and in face and figure, as well as in manner and deportment, is admirably suited to the rôle. Mr. Herbert Vyvyan is most impressive and lovable in the part of the Rev. Samuel Roden, and acts with earnestness and conviction. Mr. Charles Francis is distinctly good as the somewhat egotistical and materialistic Dr. James Roden. Mr. Edward A. Coventry and Miss Lydia Hayward make a brief but quite pleasing appearance as the charming couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Belmont, whose honeymoon is so tragically terminated, and Mr. Stanley Logan very commendably portrays the expansion of the character of Mr. Cecil Brown when exposed to the furnace of hardship and privation. Mr. Alfred C. Sandoe as the time-serving dragoman Abdulla acts with a nice sense of character, and Mr. Frederic Worlock as Captain Jack Archer, of the Egyptian Camel Corps, is a great favourite. Miss Gwendolen Floyd as Miss Adams of Massachusetts contributes an effective embodiment, and Miss Ruth Bower as Sadie comes out strongly in the closing scenes. Minor parts are well played by Mr. Gerald Mirrielees as Mons. Octave Fardet, Mr. Herbert Maule as Mr. Brodie of Edinburgh, Mr. G. T. Lambert, Mr. Everard Vanderlip, and Mr. Dennis Bryan as Dervishes, and Mr. Arthur Ansell as Dr. Roden's butler. Mr. George Parrington is general-manager, Mr. Percy Crawford business-manager, and Mr. Frederic Castleman and Mr. Dennis Bryan undertake the duties of stage-management for Mr. Vedrenne.

OPERA HOUSE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Comedy, entitled

"THE NEW BOY."

For the first three nights of the current week Mr. John E. Watson presented the above laughter-making comedy, the remaining portion of the week being bestowed upon A Country Mouse. A capital cast has been selected, every member of which submits an excellent rendering of his or her respective character. The New Boy, which was the comedy being played on the night of our visit, runs its course in a very lively fashion, and is thoroughly diverting. The many mirth-provoking situations which follow so quickly one upon the other being made the most of, consequently the ball of fun is kept rolling from start to finish, and the laughter is continuous.

Mr. F. G. Thurstans as Archibald Rennick, the new boy, is unfailingly humorous, and speedily becomes on good terms with the audience, who are not backward in showing their appreciation of the source of much merriment; Doctor Candy, L.L.D., has a good representative in Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone, who plays up to the "points" of the play in a skilful manner, and deserves commendation for an able portrayal; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood offers a painstaking study of Felix Roach, the scheming director, and is in every way successful; Theodore de Brizac is smartly and divertingly impersonated by Mr. Alfred Field Fisher, who scores well; Bullock major is cleverly handled by Mr. Leo. G. Lilly, the bullying propensities of the top-form scholar being aptly pronounced; Miss Phyllis Manners as Mrs. Rennick supplies an amusing delineation of this most awkwardly-placed lady, and does ample justice to the part; Miss Evelyn Ormonde, in the rôle of Nancy Roach, acts with charm and vivacity, and meets with emphatic expressions of appreciation. Miss Vera Wallace as Susan and Mr. H. F. Wildy as Stubber make the most of their opportunities. The comedy is preceded by Mr. Alfred Field Fisher, whose funny tales and songs puts everyone into a good humour.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Fairy Play, entitled

"PINKIE AND THE FAIRIES."

That delightful children's play from the clever pen of Mr. Graham Robertson, Pinkie and the Fairies, was presented at Kennington Theatre on Monday. The production is under the direction of Mr. Max Montesole and Mr. Angus MacLeod, and their talented company has been rehearsed under the supervision of Sir Herbert Tree. The staging is excellent, the woodland scene being an especially pretty set, the choruses are well sung, the dresses are quaint, and the wonderfully pretty music which Mr. Frederic Norton has composed is faultlessly treated by an enlarged orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Alfred Rayner. Miss Hermione Gingold on Monday gave a brilliant study of the part of Pinkie, representing the little girl to the life and danced very smartly. Master C. Haviland Chappell was quite natural as Tommy with genuine skill. Miss Muriel Alston was a loveable and charming Molly, and the character of the Queen of the Fairies was interpreted with delightful ingenuousness by Miss Hetty Kenyon. A figure which appealed to the sympathies of the audience, both young and old, was that of the diminutive herald—Miss Dolly Sommers, who acted with such quaint solemnity that the effect was irresistible. Master Cecil Twentyman was a good Prince Frog. Among the "grown-ups" the palm must be awarded Mr. T. P. Haynes for his sketch of the gardener Irons, which was a fresh and lively piece of comedy. Miss Lucie Evelyn was a sedate and stately Aunt Caroline, and the Aunt Imogen of Miss Haidee Gunn was clever. Miss Gunn put in some of her very best work in the part. Mr. Ribton Haines was highly successful as Uncle Gregory. Among the fairies Miss Aileen Faithful (Elf Pickle), Miss Peggy Rae (Elf Whisper), and Miss Kathleen Yorke (Elf Twinkle) sustained their respective rôles artistically. A word of praise is due to the excellent vocalisation and dancing of the fairies' chorus. Miss Lucie Caine was well placed as Cinderella, and Miss Joan Maitland was good as Dick Whittington. Miss Estelle Thebaud made an attractive Sleeping Beauty. The cat (Mr. Sam Wilkinson), Beauty (Miss Clara Milvain), the Beast (Mr. L. Utley), and the butcher (Mr. S. Williams) were well performed. Altogether Mr. Robert Arthur and his business-manager at Kennington (Mr. H. B. Brandreth) are to be commended for securing Pinkie to follow the panto.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, entitled

"THE SINS OF SOCIETY."

The highly successful Christmas pantomime finished its run on Saturday night, and was replaced on Monday by the famous Drury Lane drama entitled The Sins of Society, which was most favourably received by a large and attentive audience. All the points and situations were warmly recognised and the artists greeted with unstinted applause. Miss Grace E. Leslie gave a very fine interpretation of the character of Lady Marion Beaumont and looked most attractive in her tasteful dresses; Miss Cissie Carlton was very good indeed as Lady Goldbury; Miss Mabel Murray was excellent as the Hon. Mrs. Murgatroyd; Miss Janet Hodson was a clever Duchess of Danbury, and Miss Rosamond Buxton a charming Lady Gwendolin Ashley; Mr. C. F. Collings played with his accustomed skill the part of Mr. Noel Ferrers; Sir Dorian March had an excellent representative in Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson; Mr. Thesiger was capitally played by Mr. Edwin P. Gee; Mr. Maitland Marley was decidedly good as James Hogg; and praise was well deserved by Mr. Sidney C. Sinclair as Mr. Morris. Captain Carruthers had a capital representative in Mr. Victor Boggetti; Mr. Sidney Moore was good as the footman; Mr. Arthur Livingstone was a good representative of President Fallières; Mr. G. H. Kersley was a competent Bates; Master Francis Grey was a realistic jockey; Mr. Edwin Palmer was excellent as Parker; Messrs. Mark Turner (Private Bains), Stanley Foreman (sentry), Ernest Stanley (Sergeant Wrangham), James Hood (bugler), James Miles (Captain Thorp), Walter Schonberg (Colonel Gretton), Thomas Urwin (embarkation officer), F. T. Baldwin (postman), George Walters (servant), Edwin Palmer (Rev. Martin Hope), and Claude Allingham as police inspector all worked earnestly and well, and shared in the success of the production. The long cast was completed by the following ladies, who were seen to advantage in their respective rôles: Miss Olive Banton (Polly), Miss Amy Hilton (maid), and Mesdames Elsie Gardner, May Allingham, Lucie Bernard, Mabel Manners, and Lilian Thompson. The scenery, dresses, and appointments were on a lavish scale. Mr. Frank J. Pitt represented Mr. F. W. Bolam, and Mr. Bertram Iles was in his accustomed place ensuring the comfort of patrons of the theatre.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, by Hall Caine, "THE CHRISTIAN."

Saturday last saw the final fall of the curtain on Mr. Fred Frederick's pantomime Cinderella, with much éclat, and Monday night ushered in the first week of the dramatic year proper with Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Christian, which is renewing acquaintance with local audiences. Its former cordial reception is being well maintained, and the interpretation of the piece is in every way satisfactory. Mr. Henry Wolston has an idealistic character to portray as John Storm, and he acts throughout with earnestness and conviction. Miss Gladys Purnell is always in the picture as the wayward and lovable Glory of the first act, and subsequently, having the advantage of youth and attractiveness, her performance strongly appeals by its sincerity and sympathy. Mr. Fred Morgan portrays the callous and casual Lord Robert Ure with quite the necessary blasé touch; Mr. Wilfred Noy presents the caddish Horatio Drake on approved lines; Mr. John Hastings Batson as Father Lamplugh delivers many tirades against West End wickedness in fine elocutionary style; the smug Archdeacon Wealthy is capitally presented by Mr. Charles E. Dering; Mr. Royce Milton as Lord Storm, Mr. Arthur E. Maskell as Parson Quayle, and Mr. Barnard Wilson as Rosenberg are all well placed; Miss Gladys Vernon presents a faithful portraiture of Polly Love; Miss Mollie Haydn is excellent as Mrs. Callender; Miss Gertrude Maxwell does well as Lady Robert Ure; and Miss Florence Harland fulfils all requirements as Liza. Minor parts in a long cast all receive adequate treatment.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, entitled

"EAST LYNNE."

For the opening of the dramatic season at the Alexandra Theatre, the perennial East Lynne is presented by Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan's company. The play is produced by Mr. Albert Ward, who also appears as Archibald Carlyle, and, needless to say, the part offers no difficulties to an actor of such experience. A big success is scored by Mr. Fred Eastman, who as P.C. Bullock keeps the audience thoroughly amused the whole time he is before them by his entertaining rendering of this impossible policeman. The villainies of Francis Levison are presented in cool and nonchalant style by Mr. Chas. E. Bedells, and Richard Hare is made fairly interesting as Mr. Fenton Wingate. A characteristic sketch of Cornelia Carlyle is supplied by Miss Bessi Harrison, and to Miss May Congdon is due much praise for her sympathetic and natural portrayal of Barbara Hare. Miss Rosamund Mayne Young, to whom is allotted the all-important part of Lady Isabel, is most successful in the later scenes of the play, in which the former wife of Carlyle masquerades as the governess, Mme. Vine. Little Willie is intelligently played by Miss Gwen Kinross, and smaller parts are adequately filled by Misses Stella Hawleigh, Doris Levis, and Maud Young. Mr. Raymond Holt is an impressive and dignified Lord Mountsevern, and Messrs. Chas. J. Barber and Maurice Drew as Justice Hare and Lawyer Dill respectively lend some lightness to the scenes in which they are concerned. The play has the advantage of adequate mounting.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, entitled

"PETE."

Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's No. 1 company did full justice to Hall Caine and Louis N. Parker's strong drama, the interest of which never fails to hold audiences, and the events of which follow each other so naturally to its happy conclusion. Mr. Austen Milroy as Pete Quilliam was a striking figure, and his powerful frame, resonant voice, and breezy manner made him an especially good exponent of the rough but kindly Manxman. It is a part which makes great demands upon the actor, but Mr. Milroy was easily equal to all its requirements, and he should have been pleased with the hearty reception accorded to him by all. Mr. Alfred Grey gave a finished impersonation of the false friend Philip Christian, and succeeded in enlisting the sympathy of the audience by the clever rendering of a difficult part. His scene with the angry Pete in the last act was excellently done. The cynical Ross Christian was well played by Mr. J. Edward Fletcher, in sharp contrast to the simpler types of the Manx islanders. Mr. Frank Stone as Cæsar Cregeen was forcible and convincing. The stern and bigoted religionist was unsparingly reproduced, and a strong sketch of character was the result. His make-up was also careful and good. Miss V. Malcolm Barnet was excellent as the tearful Kate Cregeen, and although there is nothing but sorrow for her throughout the play, yet her sympathetic manner and truthful acting secured for her quite a triumph, and her recalls were as hearty as they were many. The maid Nancy, with her pert tongue and kindly heart, was brightly acted by Miss Lucy Murray; Miss Minnie Lake as Grannie was appropriately garrulous and decrepit; Mr. Jno. Spicer's sketch of William, the oldest inhabitant, was clever; Mr. Chas. Lake was able to invest the part of the Mayor of Douglas with a humorous individuality during his short stay on the scene; Mr. Herbert H. Young afforded much amusement as the old Manx postman, Kelly; Mr. Harry Pitt as the picturesque fisherman Black Tom and Mr. James Davidson as Johnny Dumbell were good and efficient representatives of island types; Mr. Henry Brooke was a dignified Lord-Lieutenant, with an impressive style; Mr. Geo. Terriss as the Clerk of the Court was good; Dr. Mylechreest was discreetly enacted by Mr. James Williams; Miss Enid Wilde as Mary, a country girl with a song, was pretty and natural; Mesdames Ruth Eyre and Maie Duncan as Meg and Anne, guests at the christening, infused variety into the scene; and Mr. F. Kirkand as Constable Niplightly was a very acceptable custodian of the peace. The entire Lyceum production is presented with all the special scenery and effects, and Mr. J. Bannister Howard is to be congratulated on a very auspicious opening for his spring season. Mr. J. E. Sharpe is again in front after his absence during the pantomime.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 7, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Mrs. Frank Bateman, entitled

"THE WAY WOMEN LOVE."

Mrs. Frank Bateman and company, in The Way Women Love; or, The Mother of His Child, is the attraction this week at the Theatre Royal, and on Monday night it was received with considerable favour. The story concerns the marriage of Captain Howard Tremaine, who becomes enamoured with and marries Verene Alabra, a Mexican adventuress. Marrying in haste and repenting at leisure is the Captain's lot, and he has no qualms when he hears of his wife's supposed death, and in due course again marries. Unfortunately, Verene Alabra is not dead, and in time appears on the scene of Howard's blissful home with his second wife, Violet, and her child; but as Violet's love for Howard is stedfast throughout, and as it is eventually proved that Verene Alabra was already married when she contracted the alliance with Howard Tremaine, there is, after many tribulations, the happy ending of husband, wife, and child re-united. The story is well written and easily followed, and the scenery is handsome and appropriate. Mrs. Frank Bateman as Verene Alabra plays the part with a callous cynicism which is most effective, and wears some beautiful gowns to fine advantage. Miss Camille Treherne is a charming and sympathetic Violet Tremaine; Miss Nellie Fern as the mature maidservant, Lottie Gray, is very popular; and Miss Sadie Underbill contributes a promising performance as little Frank. Mr. Fred W. Goddard is a manly and convincing exponent of Howard Tremaine, and Mr. Kirby submits a powerful exposition of the villainous Leake Lamont. Jose Alaros is portrayed on sound lines by Mr. H. Ainsleigh, and the faithful Dick Palmer has a genial and clever representative in Mr. Percy Shaw. Mr. George Herbert is excellent as John Barryford; Mr. Will White does well as Ben Barcombe; and Mr. Harry Lyons makes an admirable P.C. Robinson.

Messrs. Arthur and Morrison's company is presenting the new musical comedy The Crimson Butterfly at the Theatre Royal, Worthing. As Captain Jack Armitage Mr. Len Holloway is good; as is Mr. Horace Gibb as Dr. Septimus Sealey; Mr. Harry Douglas is excellent as Horatio Sealey; Mr. Owen Ford is funny as Augustus Wedwell, and renders some pleasing numbers; Miss Eva Nelson is excellent as Miss Maisie Kissington, a fine presence and a good voice soon installing her a great favourite. The chorus is well balanced.

Edmund Tearle and Kate Clinton's company opened on Monday at the Theatre Royal and Opera House, Dunfermline, with Ingomar. Mr. Tearle gave a very admirable portrayal of the title-rôle. Mr. Ernest Lodge proved an able exponent of Polydor. Mr. Denis Hogan made an excellent Timach. Miss Kate Clinton was a charming and dignified Parthenia, and Miss Mary Campbell appeared with distinction as Actea. East Lynne, The Three Musketeers, Merry Wives of Windsor, and Jeanie Deans complete the week's bill.

This week Mr. C. Watson Mill presents A Wrecker of Men at the Gaiety Theatre, Methil. Miss Ruth Zillwood as Risca Mallinson gives a capital representation of the title-rôle; Miss G. Talbot is good as Doris Melville; Mr. Tom Bowron is well placed as Guise Strange; Mr. W. P. Acock as Reggie Verincourt is satisfactory; Mr. Thompson Carruthers in the double part of Ezekiel Isaac and Karnaphus (a mummy) acts powerfully; Mr. Arthur S. Pitt is a capital Jim Murley; Mr. Edward A. Brooke also contributes to the success by his rendering of the part of Pharosaphus; and Mr. Richard Bosco as Railton had a part to which he did full justice.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your notice of the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, last week you say the part of Snowball, in The Diver's Luck, was played by William Bristow, instead of by—Yours faithfully, Harry Bristow, stage-manager, The Diver's Luck Co.

Helen Masterton ..... Miss Alice West
Miss Arethusa Boompointer Byers ..... Miss Emmeline Rosselle

Mr. Junius Booth's drama, which was first performed at the Theatre Royal, Lincoln, last September, is redolent of Bret Harte. Our old friends Jack Hamlin and Colonel Starbottle appear, in name at least, and take part in a thrilling story of Western life and adventure, illustrated by some realistic staging.

In a mining camp Jack Hamlin and a number of the other "boys" have been digging unsuccessfully for years, when Jim Harkins, a company promoter, discovers that there is gold in the mine, and secures all the rights in it. With a rascally attorney, one Colonel Culpepper Starbottle, Harkins schemes a plot to get away with the "boys'" money, and bank it in Sacramento. Harkins sends Starbottle to Sacramento, but fearing the coach may be "held up," gives the attorney a dummy packet, retaining the real greenbacks for himself. The coach is stopped by Jack Hamlin, who forces Starbottle to yield up the packet. Hamlin discovers the trick, and, going to the Big Flume Hotel, to which the coach and its passengers have returned, obliges Harkins to hand over the real packet, escaping afterwards by an ingenious trick.

In the third act Hamlin goes to the hut of the Sheriff of the county to ask his advice. Night comes on, the weather is cold, a pack of wolves appear, and Jack fights them single-handed when they endeavour to make their way through a hole in the door. The Sheriff, despite his gratitude to Jack, arrests him for the robbery from the mail, but he is acquitted on his trial, and when Hamlin is re-arrested on the charge of the murder of a prospector, the guilty party is found to be Harkins, who saves himself from the hangman by falling down a chasm and being killed.

Mr. Booth has written a good, strong melodrama, with plenty of life in it, and a very effective sensation in the pack of real wolves. It is played with spirit by a capable company. Mr. Booth himself is excellent as the hero Jack Hamlin, and the villain Jim Harkins is very well played by Mr. Millar Anderson. Mr. W. Kenion as Colonel Starbottle, Mr. N. Radford as Judge Boompointer, Mr. J. Sanger as Abner Byers, Mr. W. Burgess as Ah Foo, help to keep the fun alive in their respective parts, and Messrs. Langford and Blythe and Mr. Walter Jarvis supply lurid pictures of more or less disreputable miners and "road agents," and Mr. H. Bannister is effective as the Sheriff. Miss Emmeline Roselle supplies the humorous element as Arethusa Byers, and Miss Alice West plays with tenderness and feeling as the heroine Helen Masterton. The scenery and appointments are very realistic, and the production gives a realistic picture of life in Western America in the pioneer period.

A COMPTON ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-ninth anniversary of the Compton Comedy Company was reached on Monday, when Mr. Edward Compton and his company appeared at His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, and were accorded the welcome due to old and admired friends. As a souvenir of the interesting event every lady entering the theatre by the early door or occupying a booked seat was presented with a copy of the "Edward Compton" birthday book. David Garrick, in which Mr. Compton has won his principal laurels, was appropriately selected for the occasion, and the principals surpassed themselves, rousing the house to enthusiasm.

At the end of the second act, in response to undeniable recalls, Mr. Compton had to reappear several times, and, in acknowledgement of the applause, he addressed the audience as follows:—Ladies and gentlemen,—Twelve moons have waxed and waned since last we met. Your ringing plaudits haunt my memory yet! There don't be afraid, that is all the poetry I am going to indulge in to-night. In simple prose, I thank you with all my heart for your warm and kindly welcome back to Aberdeen. A good beginning makes a good ending; we have begun well to-night, and so I also thank you most sincerely for coming out so loyally to do honour to this auspicious occasion. Twenty-nine years! It's a long time to look back upon. Why, many of you here, and, of course, all the ladies, were not even born or thought of then. Twenty-nine years! What a host of memories they call up, what a load of anxieties, what a mass of work and worry—but what a world of pleasant recollections, what a list of old plays, new plays, and revivals; what a record of good, kind audiences like this one to-night; and, above all, what a gratification to feel that only good work has been done all these years, and that the public and Press all over the country have invariably applauded and approved of it. Ladies and gentlemen, let me leave it at that, and may the little souvenir of to-night, with its hundred or so quotations, convey to you some happy memories of the plays it has been my delight to place before you for so many years, and which, I am proud to think, you are not, even at this distance of time, the least bit tired of. "Age cannot wither, nor custom stale their infinite variety." And your constancy to them and their humble interpreter is "a thing of beauty" which, I hope and believe, will remain to me a joy for ever.

"Babes in the Wood" is being played at the Theatre Royal, Ilkeston, by the company of Messrs. De Lacy and Stanley. Miss Amy Osborne as Robin Hood is well received; Miss Helena L. Barton scores as Maid Marion; Wee Winnie Warden and Miss Louie Fielding appear as the Babes, the former little artist quickly singing and dancing herself into favour; Miss May Warden is good as the Fairy; Mr. Lionel Yeoman as the Dame is highly successful; and Mr. Wm. De Lacy is a satisfactory Baron.

Many presentations were made at the King's Theatre, Sunderland, on Saturday night at the concluding performance of Dick Whittington. The audience was in a good humour, and in the last scene demanded the general-manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow, who came forward and made an appropriate speech. The presence of the lessee and manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson, was also insisted upon, and he, too, acknowledged the compliment. Mr. Will Evans, speaking on behalf of the ladies and gentlemen of the company, made Mr. Townrow the recipient of a handsome silver-mounted flask; and Mr. Barnard, the musical director, was also presented with a massive silver cigar-case. Mr. Evans stated that those on the stage had presented Mr. Sydney Dench with a purse of gold. The principal artists received bouquets, &c., during the performance.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

ANNUAL MEETING AT HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

Last Monday morning the annual meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund was held on the stage of His Majesty's Theatre. The stage was set with the Baronial Hall of The O'Flynn. In the absence of Sir Charles Wyndham, the president, Sir Herbert Tree consented to take the chair. Among those present were Lady Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. E. H. Bull, Mrs. Herbert Brookes, Miss Constance Rivington, Mrs. Charles Gay, Miss Edith Blande, Mr. Henry Evill, Mr. A. F. M. Spalding, Mr. Sydney Paxton, Mr. Ackerman May, Mr. Harry Paulton, Mr. H. W. Mote, Mr. P. de Pinto, and Mr. C. I. Coltson, the secretary.

The Chairman called upon the secretary to read the report for 1909, which was as follows:—

THE REPORT FOR 1909.

The committee, in submitting to the members the accounts for the past year, have to report that the number of assisted cases was 2,023, and the sum distributed in allowances, gifts, and loans £3,968 3s. 1d.; the subscriptions being £778 11s. 10d. An analysis of the Fund's work for the past six years will be found in the annexed Abstract of Report and Statement of Accounts.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree having for the third time occupied the chair at the Fund's Annual Dinner, the committee tender to Sir Herbert their most cordial and grateful thanks, the result of same being most highly satisfactory, as shown in the Statement of Accounts.

Some months ago a gentleman named G. L. Grant, in his desire to add to the Fund's income, promised the sum of £100, provided that four other benevolent people would each send £100 before the 31st of last December. The committee most gratefully now beg to acknowledge the completion of the sum of £500, as Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Robert Courtneidge, and Miss Mary Moore have each contributed £100.

To the governing bodies of the Marylebone and Surrey Cricket Clubs, who have again given the free use of their grounds for the matches played for the benefit of the theatrical funds, the committee tender their very grateful thanks, and also to the gentlemen organising the matches. Mr. Nye Chart has sent the Fund the sum of £28 15s., on account of matches played. To the managers of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala, who have contributed the sum of £40 to the Fund, the committee tender their most grateful thanks.

The committee again desire to call attention to the collection which is now being made at the theatres throughout the United Kingdom, in the hope that personal appeals may be made to each member of the companies playing, by those gentlemen who are kindly collecting for the Fund.

The following is a list of the local centres:—

Aberdeen.—Her Majesty's Theatre. R. Arthur, Esq.
Blackburn.—Prince's Theatre. E. H. Page, Esq.
Bradford.—Theatre Royal and Opera House. J. Hart, Esq.
Bristol.—Prince's Theatre. J. M. Chute, Esq.
Cardiff.—New Theatre. R. Redford, Esq.
Carlisle.—His Majesty's Theatre. Thomas Courtice, Esq.
Crewe.—Lyceum Theatre. H. Taylor, Esq., J.P.
Dublin.—Gaiety Theatre. Charles Hyland, Esq.
Dundee.—Her Majesty's Theatre. R. Arthur, Esq.
Edinburgh.—Lyceum Theatre. G. T. Minshull, Esq.
Glasgow.—King's Theatre. H. Macfarlane, Esq.
Leeds.—Grand Theatre and Opera House. J. Wynn Millar, Esq.
Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Tyne Theatre. F. C. Sutcliffe, Esq.
Paisley.—Paisley Theatre. J. H. Savile, Esq.
Richmond.—New Theatre. Charles E. Hardy, Esq.
Scarborough.—Londesborough Theatre. W. H. Waddington, Esq.
Sheffield.—Lyceum Theatre. J. E. B. Beaumont, Esq.
Southampton.—Grand Theatre. Arthur Weston, Esq.
Swansea.—Grand Theatre.
York.—Theatre Royal. W. H. Waddington, Esq.

The committee appeal to every actor and actress to contribute to the collection which is now being made throughout the United Kingdom for the benefit of those in the dramatic profession who have "fallen by the way" and are in need of assistance. The sum of £3,968 3s. 1d. has been granted in relief during the past year. A subscription of 10s. carries with it not only a first claim upon the Fund for pecuniary help, but it also gives the power to recommend deserving applicants.

SIR HERBERT'S "MORAL SUASION."

Sir Herbert Tree, in moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, said that in the absence of their president, Sir Charles Wyndham, he was happy to congratulate the subscribers on the position of the fund. It showed that they were able to relieve a larger number of cases than in any previous year of their existence. As a result of the annual banquet, at which he had had the privilege of presiding, they were able to add £1,500 to the fund. (Cheers.) They had not only to thank those who had so generously contributed that sum, but they had also to thank their president, who had given £100 to a special fund. Sir Charles Wyndham had, indeed, a mighty stride. With one foot in England, and the other in America—(laughter)—he was thrice blessed, for not only was he earning golden opinions, but he was raking in the golden guineas—perhaps he should say the golden dollars, if such things existed—(laughter)—and he was blessed because he was the absentee landlord of three theatres, and had not been compelled to brave the slings and arrows of outrageous elections which the dwellers in English theatreland had been forced to endure. (Laughter and cheers.) Not only was it the chairman's duty to thank those who had supported the fund in previous years, but it was also his duty to appeal to their brothers and sisters in the profession to give even more handsomely than hitherto. (Hear, hear.) He would not dwell on any Utopian schemes, because this was a business meeting, but he would touch upon the question of general assurance for actors and actresses. The Austrian Government had intimated to the theatrical profession in Austria that it would be well if they established a fund for such a purpose, and hinted that if they did not do so the Government would step in and enforce such a system. The immediate result of that was that a sum of £13,000 was subscribed. (Cheers.) If something of that system of compulsory volunteering—(laughter)—which might be described as the better part of Socialism were introduced in this country, it would, of course, be a great benefit to all concerned. (Cheers.) In the existing circumstances there could not be a more practical undertaking than the present Actors' Benevolent Fund—(loud cheers)—whose benefits were far-reaching, and which, it was admitted on all hands, was ideally administered. (Renewed cheers.) Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, just before sailing for America, gave a matinée of The Mollusc for the benefit of our Fund, and although the result of same could not appear in last year's account, I am happy in being able to tell you that our Secretary has received from Mr. Lethbury, Sir Charles Wyndham's manager, a cheque for £213 17s. 9d., and I am sure our most grateful thanks are due to them for this splendid help. It was a delicate matter for a manager to bring before each member of his company, but he would suggest that the notice issued by the fund should be put up in the green-room or on the stage-door of every theatre, to ensure a yet larger subscription from actors and actresses. (Hear, hear.) They all knew how elections were fought and won—(laughter)—and they should introduce some such system of blackmail—(renewed laughter)—or, perhaps, moral suasion. He thought it would prove highly desirable and successful in many cases. (Laughter and applause.)

MR. ALEXANDER'S "PROPERTY PISTOL."

Mr. Geo. Alexander seconded the motion, and called attention to the fact that last year the professional contributions amounted to £778, and that it cost £729 to distribute their funds. If a larger number subscribed, even in small amounts, the expenses would not increase, and they would know that every penny went to a deserving cause. He had sometimes been struck by the hospitality of the dramatic clubs to actors and actresses, who were feasted and flattered by them and everything was done to make their Sunday evenings pleasant. He thought it would be a good thing to suggest to the Playgoers, the O.P. Club, the Dramatic Debaters, the Gallery First Nighters, and other clubs that their first duty in having the privilege of taking an interest in the drama would be to contribute in some way to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. He ventured to suggest that each member should be asked to subscribe in order to show his interest in the drama. He was glad that Sir Herbert Tree's Socialism did not carry him too far, as he thought their pensions ought to be on a contributory basis. He could only hope that such a step would come into the region of practical politics. In regard to increasing their subscriptions, he would suggest that a lady member of each company should be deputed to go round with the hat. (Laughter and cheers.) An actor-manager or manager could not be expected to hold a pistol, not even a "property" pistol—(laughter)—at the heads of the members of his company and demand contributions. If members of the profession could only peep in at the meetings of the committee on Thursday, and hear the expressions of gratitude from those who were relieved, he felt sure they would be touched, and that they would endeavour to enlarge the usefulness of the fund. (Cheers.) While they did not undertake to pension actors and actresses, yet what they were really doing at present was to give weekly pensions to about 100 people. (Cheers.) The committee did not ask whether those people had contributed to the fund; they only satisfied themselves that the cases were deserving. (Cheers.) There were those who declined to contribute to the fund because assistance was given to people who had not done so in their times of prosperity. To them he would say, "Help the fund now, and raise your objections afterwards." (Cheers.)

When the report and statement of accounts had been unanimously adopted,

Mr. H. B. Irving proposed a vote of thanks to the committee. He had pleasure in informing those present that Lady Tree was giving to the fund £100 of the money she was winning for charitable institutions in the country at the present moment. (Cheers.)

Mr. Edward Terry, responding, said it had been a labour of love to the committee to carry out their duties with impartiality and the greatest possible charity to all brethren who had fallen by the way. The committee's proceedings were strictly secret, and they never refused a deserving case. Unfortunately there were occasions when they had to deny assistance, but then only because it was impossible to help those who would not help themselves. (Hear, hear.)

On the motion of Sir Herbert Tree, seconded by Mr. Edward Terry, Sir Charles Wyndham was unanimously re-elected president of the fund.

Mr. Terry proposed, and Mr. H. B. Irving seconded, a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was carried with great enthusiasm

ODOL'S FANCY DRESS COSTUME.

Fancy dress balls and carnivals have increased in popularity. In a fancy dress costume originality is of very great importance, and, in fact, is regarded by many as an indispensable feature. The attainment of this puzzles many a weary head, and the proprietors of the famous dentifrice Odol have come to the rescue with suggestions for the making up of both costumes and headgear. The decorative articles they supply, besides being in themselves most attractive, are such as, when tastefully arranged on the costume as every lady knows so well how to do, afford the fullest opportunities for animated movement and graceful pose.

There is this further merit about the Odol designs—they suggest the most pleasant and refreshing associations, Odol, the liquid antiseptic dentifrice and mouthwash, being the most universally popular as well as the most beneficial of toilet luxuries.

These articles include miniature china Odol flasks, labels of various size and colours, pictorial stamps, large and small cardboard imitation Odol flasks, picture post cards, tooth brushes, &c., &c.

The illustration here given is representative of many different styles that can be made up with the articles supplied, which include also those required for a very becoming head-dress to wear with the costume. Full particulars for the making-up of the head-dress are given with the decorative articles.

For the dress itself an inexpensive white taffeta is recommended, as it forms a delicate ground-work and resembles the white opaque glass of which the Odol flask is made. But these are only suggestions; the individual taste and judgment of the wearers will be the best guide as to the most suitable style to adopt.

A parcel containing sufficient of the above articles to trim a costume will be sent on receipt of letter of request enclosing a postal order for 1s. to cover cost of postage and packing. Address, the Manager, Odol Chemical Works, 59-63, Park-street, London, S.E.

At the Grand Theatre, Luton, the proprietor is this week staging his very effective pantomime Cinderella, and the "houses" are testifying in the usual way their appreciation of something good. As Cinderella Miss Cecilia Gold is dainty and pleasing, and an attractive Prince Elegant is found in Miss Maud Nicholls; as Dandini Miss Lilian Drake is very charming; Fairy Sunshine is prettily portrayed by Miss Leila Carstairs; and the Fairy Queen of Miss Willoughby is equally agreeable. The speciality dancers, Misses Dorina, Langford, O'Malley, and Ray, are well worthy of praise. The comical parts are all in capable hands, whilst the singing of the Demon King, Mr. Bert Darrell is very effective, as are the antics of Mr. Will Telford, "our cat." The dresses and scenery are admirable.

The popular musical comedy Florodora delighted a large audience at the New Royal, Seaham Harbour, on Monday, as played by Mr. Charles Constant's company. Mr. Arthur Lenville's Tweedlepunch could scarcely be improved upon; Mr. Robert Hine makes an excellent Frank Abercoed; Mr. Edward Chester as Cyrus Gilfain is entirely successful; a pleasing Arthur Donegal is submitted by Mr. Eric Deane; Miss Daisy Lake is a popular Dolores; and Lady Holyrood is daintily played by Miss Fanny Holmshaw.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 32, Regent-street. Present: Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Moté (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Lewis Casson, H. Le Grand, Langford Reed, R. A. Greene, Cyril Cattley, E. Morgan, F. Annerley, C. F. Collings, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The secretary read letters from Messrs. J. H. Mote, A. Selwynne, J. W. Lethbridge, George Alexander, F. R. Benson, C. H. Hawtrey, and H. B. Irving, and received instruction as to replies.

With reference to correspondence referring to three-quarter fare concession, the secretary was instructed to write to the Clearing House and ask whether the railway companies would extend to the Actors' Association a similar concession to that enjoyed by the M.H.A.R.A.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Morgan and adopted. The House Committee tendered their report, and made suggestions as to the requirements with regard to the rooms of the Association. The council gave instruction that the recommendation should be carried out, and it was referred to the committee to deal with the matter accordingly. The House Committee were instructed to ascertain exactly the requirements in the rehearsal room, and to report on the subject at the next meeting of the council.

The solicitor read the council's opinion on the original issue of new debentures. As the existing debentures, amounting to £305, must be paid by March 12, the council propose to raise the sum by the issue of new £1 debentures, redeemable in three years, to members of the Actors' Association. Members wishing to take up any of these are requested to make written application to the secretary on or before March 5. Each £1 debenture bears interest at 5 per cent. per annum. The following debentures were applied for by members of the council:—Mr. C. Derwent, £5; Mr. Lewis Casson, £5; Mr. R. Greene, £5; Mr. Cyril Cattley, £5; Mr. C. F. Collins, £5; Miss Vita Spencer, £3; Miss Rose Cazalet, £2; and Miss Joan Pereira, £1.

The hon. solicitor reported that the debts and costs in two cases had been recovered for members of the Association.

In regard to the Agency the secretary was instructed to arrange for someone to visit the different theatres (in the event of his being unable to do so) to see the work of members, and that his expenses would be defrayed.

A suggestion with regard to the formation of a debating society amongst the members of the Association was referred to the Social Committee to arrange and report in a fortnight.

Mr. Clarence Derwent vacated the chair in order to propose an advertisement scheme for bringing the advantages of the Association before the profession at large. This included a council appeal to the provincial actor in the form of a large advertisement in the theatrical Press, and a similar appeal by letter to every actor and actress at present playing in London. Mr. Derwent asked for the sum of £10 to carry out the scheme, and this was voted unanimously. The London appeal is as follows:—

AN APPEAL FROM THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Dear Sir or Madam,—The council of the Actors' Association, feeling that the time is now ripe for an earnest attempt to carry out some of the reforms of which the profession stands in need urgently, petitions you to enrol yourself as a member of what is now the only official organisation of actors and actresses. The Association, with twenty years' existence to its credit, is now approaching its majority, and the council is anxious to signalise the event by extensive work of a constructive nature. The actor-managers, who resigned in 1907, have now, by a resolution, carried at the annual general meeting, been invited to return; but in order that real reforms may be successfully undertaken, the Association needs your help. It needs not only the numerical strength, but also the weight and experience which your position in the profession would confer upon it. The Association is not appealing for charity. It has done good work in the past, but it must do infinitely more in the future.

The measure of its usefulness to the individual should be of secondary importance beside its incalculable power for good in ameliorating the lot of thousands of your brother and sister artists in the provinces. Moreover, in view of approaching legislation, which will, in all probability, result in the establishment of one licence for theatre and music hall, it becomes more than ever necessary for actors to safeguard their interests. There is no reason why the Actors' Association of England should not be a strong and powerful institution representative of a great profession.

Will you help to make it so? If you are willing, would you kindly sign the enclosed nomination form, and leave it with the stage doorkeeper? It will be called for in the course of a week.

The subscription is 15s. You are urgently begged not to cripple the work of actors' organisation by withholding your support. Should you care at any time to look over the new premises you will be heartily welcome.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Adnam Sprange for his kind invitation to the members of the Association to the different skating rinks with which he is associated.

Elections: Ethel Trevor Lloyd, Cora Bush, Dudley Carlton, Blanche Johnstone, and Marie Ault. Nominations: Kathleen Vereker, Norah Johns, P. Ramsay Forman, Brineta Browne, and C. Lewis Sealy.

Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, and Mr. F. R. Benson have written the following letters to the Actors' Association in reply to invitations to return to it:

"Dear Mr. Duncan Young,—I was very glad to receive your letter. I should be very pleased to be of any service to the Association. The report of your Council seems to be a very satisfactory one, and promises well for the future. I hope the membership will increase rapidly, and that the Association will soon be in a position to pay out of the funds for both legal and medical advice for its members. By this means the profession will be self-supporting and independent of the charity of the doctors and lawyers. This step would certainly add to the dignity of our calling. With all good wishes.—I am, yours truly,

"George Alexander."

"Dear Mr. Young,—I am much obliged for your courteous letter and invitation. If I ask leave to decline it it is not because I do not appreciate the goodwill that prompted it, but because I feel that the Actors' Association should be entirely free from the influence of any managers—big or small. I believe that the Association could do its work better and with a free hand if not hampered by the membership of managers. This is only my own view, and may be extremely foolish, but it is the reason that I have to decline your most kind invitation.—Yours very truly,

"Charles H. Hawtrey."

"Dear Mr. Young,—I shall be very pleased to rejoin the Actors' Association, and I was glad of your letter—provided this does not pledge me in any way to support the trades union policy introduced some three or four years ago. The true Socialism of art in this age is, as Morris said, 'that the artist, like the priest, must be prepared to pay to do his work.' A great deal can be done to remedy the abuses and to protect artists by the Association; but, for heaven's sake, do not let us make the mistake of the political Socialists who, like a faction of the Actors' Association, sacrificed their true interests for a materialistic copybook heading. Do you suppose for a moment that a nightingale would not starve or pierce its breast with a thorn in order to sing? It must; it is the law of its nature. We can protect the nightingale from the financial cat, but as to securing its reward, its chief reward will ever be opportunity for singing, often to the stars and empty benches. Are we going to make the mistake that the Church has made with its priests, and measure our value by the bulk of the loaves and fishes we receive? Still, there are many abuses concerning salary that might be set right, not on the lines sketched by some of your misleaders.

"After this letter, perhaps you may not desire that I shall rejoin the society which I originally helped to form and then ceased to work for, not from lack of interest but from lack of time.—Yours very truly, "F. R. Benson."

"WAS SHE TO BLAME?"

Drama, in Four Acts, by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Played for the First Time in London at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, on Monday, Feb. 7.

William Clark	Mr. F. G. Kimberley
Capt. George Courtney	Mr. George Keene
John Norman	Mr. Henry Rutland
Frank Roselle	Mr. George Langden
Timothy Swales	Mr. Kenneth Black, jun.
Dr. Forbes	Mr. F. Wilson Lowther
Jim Harford	Mr. A. Smith
Joseph Isaacs	Mr. John Arthurs
P.C. Wilson	Mr. Harry Stone
Alice Firearms	Miss Florence Steyne
Sarah Swales	Miss Nita Owen
Mary Norman	Miss Ellen Beverley
Lillian Norman	Miss Jennie Hastings
Mrs. Kate Roselle	Mrs. F. G. Kimberley

Mrs. F. G. Kimberley (Miss L. Addison), whose prolific pen has given us in the past several noteworthy plays, such as The Power of the King and Two Little Drummer Boys, again scores in her latest drama, Was She to Blame? Although the latter is of an entirely different type to the two mentioned above, it has many good qualities. There is a large amount of comedy introduced, and, judging by the merriment produced, and the keen appreciation shown throughout the four acts, the play should have a long life and a merry one. Messrs. Kimberley, Green, and Hinton's company is a strong one. The drama is liberally mounted, the final set, Exterior of the Church at Beechwood, being very effective and worthy of note.

Lillian Norman, the daughter of John Norman, the vicar of Beechwood, and his wife, Mary Norman, are wealthy people. We discover, on the rise of the curtain, that Lillian's tribulations have already begun, as she informs Captain George Courtney, who is seeking her hand in marriage, that she is already secretly married. It appears that she had become stage-struck, and wedded the scheming actor, Frank Roselle, alias Franklyn Harcourt, who, to obtain his ends, promised to place her upon the stage. But she soon repents of her bargain, as her father, becoming aware of the mesalliance, discards his daughter altogether. She finds a friend in Mrs. Kate Roselle, a retired actress, who had also been deceived in the man she married, who turns out to be the same rascal, Frank Roselle. Lillian, who has been sadly treated by her so-called husband, brings her dying child for shelter to the house of Sarah and Timothy Swales, the former, Kate Roselle's maid, and the latter man-of-all-work to the vicar. In this scene amusement is afforded by the return home of Timothy, who is a little weak man, in an advanced state of intoxication. Assisted by his friend, Jim Harford, who is in the same condition, he endeavours with ill-success to assert his rights as master over his much more than better half, Sarah Swales, who is a woman of goodly proportions and well-developed muscles. Kate Roselle brings the news to Lillian that her mother is dying, and desires to see her, but that her father is still unforgiving; but Kate manages matters discreetly, and mother and daughter meet, and the latter is forgiven by her mother, though the vicar still remains obdurate. Kate, becoming aware of the identity of Frank Roselle, offers him a large sum of money, and so rids the country of his pernicious presence. All in turn endeavour to soften the heart of the vicar, but without result, until William Clark, a broken-down actor, forces his way through the library window into the presence of the vicar, and in a pathetic scene intercedes for the daughter. Captain Courtney, having remained true to his one and only love, again offers his hand and is accepted. The last scene, outside the church where the wedding is to take place, is a strong one. Frank Roselle, having returned home, puts in his last appearance in a dishevelled and maddened condition, and endeavours to stop the wedding by murder, but stabs himself to the heart by accident and dies.

Mrs. F. G. Kimberley as Mrs. Kate Roselle offers a clever impersonation, the character being boldly depicted and the performance evoking applause. Mr. F. G. Kimberley is seen to considerable advantage in the character of William Clark, and is accorded a hearty reception. In the rôle of Lillian Norman Miss Jennie Hastings deserves praise for an impressive rendering. John Norman is cleverly embodied by Mr. Henry Rutland, who delivers his lines with excellent effect; Mr. George Langden merits commendation for a very capable rendering of the rascally Frank Roselle; Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., is extremely diverting, and Kenneth Black, jun., is extremely diverting, and provokes roars of laughter in the part of Timothy Swales, and he is ably assisted in his endeavours by Miss Nita Owen, who scores highly as Sarah Swales; Mr. George Keene makes a smart Captain George Courtney; Miss Ellen Beverley is suitably placed as Mary Norman; and excellent assistance is also afforded by Mr. F. Wilson Lowther, Mr. A. Smith, Mr. John Arthurs, Mr. Harry Stone, and Miss Florence Steyne.

"The Soldier's Wedding" is paying a return visit to the Royal County Theatre, Bedford, the company being that of Mr. Walter Melville. Mr. Douglas Cecil is all that can be desired as the hero of the piece, and Nancy Lee is charmingly impersonated by Miss Dorothy Richardson. Mr. W. J. Butler is good as Charles Courtney, whose partner in malice and dark design is admirably portrayed by Miss Nita Langford. Humour is supplied by Mr. Willie Scott as Tommy Spratt, Little Albert as Teddy Munroe, and Miss Bessie Walters as Lizzie Walker. Mr. Fred Yarnold presents a perfect study of Nathaniel Lee, and Mr. Cyprian Matthews is a dignified Colonel James Graham. Miss Dora Pass sympathetically plays the part of Peggy Munroe.

Miss Maude Western's company in Folly's Fortunes is making its initial appearance at the Crewe Opera House. Mr. Joe Ellis as Billy Boyd is exceedingly clever. Mr. Walter Buckstone is a capable Alfred Esmond, and Mr. L. Lawrence is a successful George Foster. Miss Western gives a finished performance of Folly Vaughan, and Miss Maudie Lambert as Biddy Boyd is good. Miss Ada Hender gives a creditable portrayal of Myra Burritt.

At the Grand Opera House, Radcliffe, near Manchester, The Babes in the Wood is produced by Messrs. Somers and Saunders. Miss Olive Aster, the principal boy, and Miss Lulu Lord, the principal girl, have been very popular. The Sisters Maundsley as the Babes act admirably; Denby and Dent as the ruffians do all that is required of them in the fun-making line; Mr. A. McAllister, the Dame, is also very successful; and another interesting personality is Little John.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM is now engaged in paying a round of visits to the principal towns in the United States and Canada, and is attracting large houses everywhere with The Mollusc. Miss Mary Moore, we regret to learn, has been compelled, owing to a severe attack of neuritis, to abandon her American tour with Sir Charles. By the advice of her doctor, Miss Moore is now on her way to Egypt, the invigorating air of which, it is hoped, will speedily restore her to complete health.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER made an excellent speech at the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, in a discussion which took place with reference to the appointment, at a commencing salary of £600 a year, of chief officer of the Parks Department. The Parks Committee had submitted to the General Purposes Committee the names of nine candidates, and to the recommendation that Major C. H. Enthoven be appointed, Mr. Gilbert moved an amendment that it be referred back to the committee on the ground that the best man had not been selected.

MR. ALEXANDER said that, speaking as the Chairman of the Parks Committee, he felt they had a perfect right to consider applications for the appointment from members of their own staff, but the difficulty was that, although they had many good men in the department, there was not one possessed of all the necessary qualifications for this particular post. He supported the General Purposes Committee's recommendations, because he felt sure that if the Council thought proper to appoint Major Enthoven he would prove worthy of their confidence. The amendment was lost on a division, and Major Enthoven was, on a show of hands, appointed to fill the vacancy.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE, who returns to the Playhouse on Tuesday, when Tantalising Tommy will be produced, will shortly pursue a former policy by giving at that theatre a series of matinées of special productions. His first venture in that direction will be the presentation of a play by Austin Strong, entitled The Toymaker of Nuremberg, which will be given on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons for three weeks.

AN event of the production of The Toymaker of Nuremberg will be the début of Mr. Maude's daughter, Miss Margery Maude, who will play the heroine. Miss Maude is an attractive young lady of eighteen, and is a graduate of the Academy of Dramatic Art. She will have the best wishes of all for a career as brilliant as that of her distinguished parents. Other parts in The Toymaker will be played by Mr. J. D. Beveridge, Miss Rosina Filippi, Mr. Shiel Barry, and Master Bobbie Andrews.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY'S preparations for his production of Richard III., which will take place at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on April 13, are on the most elaborate scale. The dresses have been designed and executed by Miss D. Carleton Smyth, who holds the position of Lecturer on Historical Costume at the Glasgow School of Art. The armour, which will be hand-wrought from hammered steel, is in the hands of Mr. Edwin Stewart, under the supervision of Mr. Charles Whitelaw, who is in charge of the armour section at the Scottish National Exhibition for 1911.

THE Rev. E. E. Dorling, who was responsible for the Heraldry of the Church Pageant last summer at Fulham Palace, has undertaken to arrange all the details of Heraldry which will, of course, play a large part in the production. The incidental music will be composed by Mr. Norman O'Neill, who has provided the entr-actes and incidental music for so many of Mr. Martin Harvey's productions, and whose setting for The Blue Bird is a feature of that production. The scenery will be painted by Messrs. W. Telbin and Geo. J. Dodson.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has decided upon Thursday evening, Feb. 24, for the production, in conjunction with Mr. Charles Frohman, of Mr. Somerset Maugham's new play, The Tenth Man, at the Globe Theatre. Mr. Bourchier will have the part of a financial aristocrat who possesses a keen sense of humour. He will find excellent support in Mr. Edmund Maurice, Mr. A. Holmes Gore, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Frank Atherley, Mr. Godfrey Tearle, Mr. George Bealby, Mr. Douglas Imbert, Miss Kate Sergeantson, Miss Daisy Markham, and Miss Frances Dillon.

MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH is not included in the cast of The Tenth Man, the leading feminine rôle of which is unsuited to her. She has accordingly accepted an offer made by Mr. Herbert Sleath to play her original part of Claire Foster in The Woman in the Case during an eight weeks' tour of the principal provincial towns, starting at Newcastle-on-Tyne on March 14, and concluding at Birmingham on May 7.

MISS ELLALINE TERRISS'S doctors have ordered her to Egypt for a complete rest, and she will leave for her holiday on Monday. For a very long time Miss Terriss has been continually at work without a rest, which she now will all the more enjoy. We trust she will return restored and recuperated.

MR. LEWIS WALLER is following the example of distinguished confrères, and will go over temporarily to the variety theatre. The Strong People will be withdrawn from the Lyric this evening, and on Monday Mr. Waller will appear at the London Hippodrome in Mr. Henry Hamilton's powerful one-act play Fortune's Fool. The popular actor returns to the Lyric on April 5 in a new comedy by a well-known author, or in a revival either of Much Ado About Nothing or The Rivals.

THE Lyric will in the meantime be occupied by the Sicilian Players, who proved such a draw at the Shaftesbury two years ago, Mr. Robert Arthur having secured them for a six weeks' season, beginning on Tuesday, the 22nd inst. The troupe will be headed by Signor Grasso, the leading lady being Marinella Bragaglia, an actress who is credited with powerful emotional qualities. Signor Grasso brings with him his former extensive repertory, the piece selected for the opening night being Guimera's Feudalismo, a singularly strong drama which was seen on the company's former visit to London.

MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH will next week introduce Mr. Preedy and the Countess to patrons of the King's, Hammersmith. On Monday evening the diverting farce will be preceded by a new playlet, entitled A Ball or a Motor? by Robert Lascelles, the author of Billy Rotterford's Descent.

THE cast of the new musical play The Balkan Princess, which will be produced at the Prince of Wales's on Thursday, includes Messrs. Bertram Wallis, William Lugg, Ridgwell Cullum, C. Morton Horne, Charles Brown, Lauri de Frece, Norman Blumé, Peter Blunt, Harry Leslie, John Hamilton, Hugh Weyhrance, Vincent Lawson, James Blakeley, and Misses Mabel Sealby, Hazel Dawn, Mabel Green, Miriam Ismay, and Isabel Jay.

MR. W. SCOTT PHIPP has just terminated an engagement with Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan's London pantomimes, thus completing his second season with that enterprising firm, and is now at liberty. Mr. Scott Phipp is well up in all departments of management, advertising, &c., and his repeated re-engagements with leading firms would seem to imply that he is a thorough worker.

A FORMIDABLE list of new plays and notable revivals has been prepared by Mr. Charles Frohman for his Répertoire Theatre, which opens at the Duke of York's on Feb. 21. Among the new works will be Justice, by John Galsworthy; Misalliance, by Bernard Shaw; two one-act plays by J. M. Barrie, The Sentimentalists (unfinished comedy), by George Meredith, and The Madras House, by Granville Barker. The first week will alternate Justice and Misalliance, the second week the Barrie-Meredith bill with the two others, and so on.

OTHER new plays include Chains, by Elizabeth Baker (recently produced by the Play Actors); The Eldest Son, by John Galsworthy; a translation of Euripedes' Iphigenia in Tauris, and The Outcry, by Henry James. Among the revivals are to be included Mr. Barrie's Quality-street, What Every Woman Knows, and Admirable Crichton; Mr. Galsworthy's Strife and Silver Box; Sir Arthur Pinero's Amazons, Iris, and Trelawny of the Wells; Mr. Bernard Shaw's Major Barbara, Man and Superman, and The Doctor's Dilemma; Mr. Granville Barker's Voysey Inheritance; Mr. Laurence Housman and Mr. Barker's Prunella; Mr. Haddon Chambers's Tyranny of Tears; and Mr. John Masefield's Tragedy of Nan.

THE plays will be produced by Mr. Dion Boucicault and Mr. Granville Barker, and the company will be drawn from Messrs. Oscar Adye, Dion Boucicault, Charles Bryant, Leslie Carter, Lewis Casson, Dennie Eadie, E. W. Garden, Edmund Gwenn, Hubert Harben, O. P. Heggie, Whitford Kane, Frederick Lloyd, C. M. Lowne, Gerald du Maurier, Charles Maude, Robert Pateman, Sidney Valentine; Mesdames Lena Ashwell, Mary Barton, Fay Davis, Florence Haydon, Mary Jerrold, Lillah McCarthy, Dorothy Minto, Edyth Olive, Geraldine Olliffe, Sibyl Thorndike, Hilda Trevelyan, Irene Vanbrugh, Penelope Wheeler.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY asks us to aid him in correcting a statement which he understands has appeared, that he intends shortly to fulfil an engagement at a London variety theatre. The statement is entirely without foundation in fact, and Mr. Harvey has not the smallest intention of appearing on the music-hall stage. Not only are his engagements made a long way ahead, but his whole time, apart from performances, is occupied with his elaborate revival of Richard III., which is due at Dublin in April.

MR. HERBERT BLACKMORE'S retirement from the post of secretary to the Theatrical Managers' Association is a great loss to that body and is deeply regretted by its members. Mr. Blackmore accepted the post sixteen years ago, and in the interval he has been assiduous in his attendance at the meetings, and attentive to all the duties of the position. Before his election as secretary he and his brother, Mr. Arthur Blackmore, were joint registrars of the Provincial Managers' Association. Mr. Blackmore's qualifications as a man of business were only equalled by the extent of his practical knowledge of the profession.

"GABRIEL GRANT, GAMBLER," and The Idol's Eyes, both by Burford Delannoy, are the titles of two new plays to be produced at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, on Monday. The first-named play is in three acts, Mr. Herbert E. Terry and Miss Jessie Danvers filling the leading rôles. The second piece is written around Mr. Courtice Pounds, who will afford audiences an opportunity of seeing him in a pure comedy part.

A NEW Portia will be introduced during Mr. Arthur Phillips' Shakespearean revival at the Court Theatre in the person of Miss Amy Brandon Thomas, daughter of the well-known dramatic author. Miss Thomas has frequently appeared in her father's companies, and recently created a most favourable impression in a one-act play produced by Mr. Herbert Trench at the Haymarket.

THE first performance of The Merchant of Venice at the Court will take place on Saturday evening, Feb. 19, and not on Monday, the 21st, as previously announced. Mr. Phillips himself will play Shylock; Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Gratiano; Mr. Cyril Keightley, Bassanio; and Mr. James Berry, Antonio. Other parts are entrusted to Messrs. Cyril Vernon, Leslie Palmer, Rupert Harvey, E. Stuart Vinden, Richard Fielding, Scott Sunderland, Vernon, Ross Shore, and Arthur Fayne; Miss Dora Hole and Miss Christie Laws.

MR. ARTHUR PHILLIPS is, comparatively speaking, a stranger to London audiences, although he appeared during the run of The Earth at the Kingsway, but is favourably known in the provinces, and his conception of Shylock is said to contain sufficient individuality to arouse discussion. New music for the production has been composed by Mr. Ernest Bucalossi, and dances arranged by Mr. Hartley Milburn. The general-manager is Mr. A. S. Pigott. The season will be one of five weeks' duration, after which Mr. Phillips and his company will tour the leading provincial cities.

MR. FRANK CURZON has arranged with Mr. Charles Hawtrey to transfer The Little Damozel to Wyndham's Theatre, its original home, on Monday next.

MISS ETHEL BRACEWELL, who is again the Monica in the North company of The Prince and the Beggar Maid was the recipient of many tokens of goodwill during the return visits to the Broadhead theatres. Flowers, chocolates, an umbrella, and a gold ring were some of the things that came "over the footlights" from admirers of the "beggar maid."

MR. THOMAS BEECHAM will conduct Elektra at the opening night of the Covent Garden season on Saturday, and Mme. Edyth Walker will sing the title-rôle. Tristan will be performed on the second night of the season. A Village Romeo and Juliet will be given with an English cast, with Miss Ruth Vincent as the heroine, supported by Mr. Harry Dearth, Mr. Dillon Shallard, Mr. Robert Maitland, Mr. Walker Hyde, Miss Betty Booker, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, Mr. Arthur Royd, and Mr. Albert Archdeacon. Miss Ethel Smyth's The Wreckers makes its first appearance at Covent Garden on Saturday, Feb. 26.

MISS DOROTHY FIRMIN, who is playing principal girl at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, wishes it known that she has no relation on the stage by the name of Firmin.

SATURDAY last saw the conclusion of the Stratford Borough pantomime Cinderella amidst scenes of enthusiasm. Mr. Fred Fredericks came direct from his other pantomime at the Marlborough Theatre to be in at the finish, and he had a highly popular reception from the artists and the audience. Presentations necessarily caused numerous interruptions to the performance, the principals being inundated with bouquets and gifts. In addition, the stage-manager, Mr. Will L. Clement, was the recipient of a kit bag from the principals, a silver cigarette case from the Stella Girls, a calabash pipe from Mr. Barney Armstrong, a pipe and case from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rogerson, and a set of gold links from the chorus ladies. Mr. Ben Barrow, musical director, was presented with a silver cigarette box by the principals, and Mrs. Ellis Fredericks, proprietress of the Stratford theatres, presented Jimmy Steele (Kelly) with a watch and chain.

THE anniversary of the birth of Henry Irving was commemorated on Monday, when wreaths were placed on his grave in the Poets' Corner at Westminster Abbey. Amongst the floral tributes was a beautiful laurel chaplet, decorated with light-blue ribbon and bearing the following inscription: "In loving memory of Sir Henry Irving, from six old Lyceum Pittites." Another wreath bore the message: "From the Garden of Dear Memories," and a third, which consisted of yellow flowers, had inscribed upon it the lines:—

"I shall remember while the light lives yet,
And in the darkness I shall not forget."

MR. G. E. WILLIAMS, lately manager of Mr. Wentworth Croke's Bondman company, was kindly released by that gentleman in order that he might take up the resident-management of the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington for Messrs. Moss and Stoll, and entered upon his duties last week. Mr. Williams, on leaving The Bondman, was presented by the members of the company with a handsome set of gold studs and sleeve-links, and also received from Mr. Croke a most kindly letter, written in pencil from a sick bed, wishing him all success and prosperity in his new appointment.

AFTER his lecture at the Public Hall, Hastings, last Friday, Sir Ernest Shackleton made a further discovery by seeing the last act of Where is William? at the Gaiety Theatre, and expressed himself as delighted with the latest comedy success. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Windermere and Miss Donaldson were on the P. and O. India when the explorer was on his way to join the Nimrod in New Zealand, and he was very pleased to renew the friendship, going behind after the fall of the curtain to congratulate Mr. Windermere on his new production.

MR. C. H. WORKMAN has a novelty in preparation for the Savoy, and on or about the 10th of next month will produce there a new musical play at present entitled Two Merry Monarchs. The libretto is by Arthur Anderson and George Levy, the lyrics by Arthur Anderson and Hartley Carrick, and the music by Orlando Morgan.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE is at present having a most successful tour in his Tyneside stronghold. This week he is paying his fourth visit to the Theatre Royal, South Shields. The extent of Mr. Wilkie's répertoire may be gauged by the fact that on this occasion he is presenting no fewer than four novelties to his South Shields admirers.

MR. H. A. JONES could not have studied the productions of the present week so carefully as he imagined when he said at the O.P. Club on Sunday that "taking the whole of England and Wales, Shakespeare was to be played the following night (Monday) at only two places—Dewsbury and Llanelly." Mr. Jones overlooked the revivals of Twelfth Night and Much Ado About Nothing at Manchester, besides the Shakespearean plays being performed by the Miss Florence Glossop-Harris company at Colne, and by Mr. Allan Wilkie's company at South Shields. The productions referred to by Mr. Jones are those of Mr. F. R. Benson, who happens himself this week to be out of England, being, in fact, at the Gaiety, Dublin.

THE Theatre Royal, York, was crowded in every part on Sunday last, the occasion being a sacred concert on behalf of the Children's Holiday Fund, given by the principal members of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, by permission of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, and the band of the Green Howards. As the result of the effort the sum of £85 was raised, much to the gratification of the promoters.

THE ladies and gentlemen of Mr. Allan Wilkie's Shakespearean and classical répertoire company presented Mr. Wilkie with a beautifully chased silver card case on Wednesday, the 9th inst., the occasion being his birthday. Mr. Wilkie's powerful combination of artists is delighting South Shields audiences this week with charmingly produced comedies from Shakespeare, including The Taming of the Shrew and The Merry Wives of Windsor.

AT the end of the present successful run of Mr. Francis Laidler's superb pantomime Babes in the Wood, which is breaking all records at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, it will be for sale. The gorgeous scenery and costumes are practically unsoiled. The production has the advantage of being also available as a Red Riding Hood pantomime.

MR. FRED S. JENNINGS, the popular manager at the Lyric, Hammersmith, celebrated his birthday on Wednesday, the 9th inst. A number of his friends and colleagues took advantage of this occasion to present him with a handsome tantalus with cigar and cigarette drawer, in addition to the usual three bottles, as a mark of the esteem they have for him. Mr. J. Allaway made the presentation, which Mr. Jennings acknowledged, expressing his great surprise and sincere thanks. The staff also presented their manager with a gold fountain pen, and presents from several other sources bore token of his popularity in Hammersmith.

BY one of those unfortunate oversights which can never be explained, the name of Mr. Henry Evill was omitted from the list of mourners at the graveside of the late Mr. Charles J. Davies. Mr. Evill was a lifelong friend of the deceased, and although eighty-five years of age, he travelled from Lancaster Gate, W., to Norwood, in order to be present at the last obsequies. Mr. Evill is one of those undemonstrative personages who walk through the world "doing good by stealth and blushing to find it fame." There are many annuitants of the R.G.T. Fund who could tell of favours received, and Mr. C. J. Coltson, the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, could also bear testimony to his liberality.

"MOTHER-IN-LAW," the celebrated farcical comedy by George R. Sims, is shortly to be taken on tour by Mrs. Mark Kinghorne, widow of the late popular comedian. The piece achieved a success on its production at the Opera Comique more than a quarter of a century ago, and having now been brought up to date by the author, would well bear revival. Mr. H. Chiswell Billing will act as general manager for the company.

FOLLOWING on the very successful season that Mr. Brandon Thomas recently repeated at the Royalty Theatre with Charley's Aunt, the company started the spring tour after one week's vacation at the Grand Theatre, Hull, last Monday, and the comedy has been received with crowded houses all the week. The company includes Mr. Stanley Cooke as Babs. Mr. Cecil Barth as general-manager for Mr. Thomas is fulfilling his fourth year's engagement with the piece.

MR. J. W. CHAPMAN, who has been connected with theatrical enterprise in Doncaster for over twenty years, is prepared to retire from the business if mutual terms can be arranged, and to treat for the sale of the Grand Theatre and Opera House, a new and up-to-date theatre near the railway station, successfully carried on by him. He would also dispose of the freehold site of a new Hippodrome and Palace of Varieties or Electric Cinematograph Theatre, in one of the principal streets of Doncaster, plans for which have been passed by the Doncaster Corporation this week. Both properties are freehold, and a considerable amount of the purchase money could remain on mortgage.

MR. WILLIAM MOLLISON inaugurated his tour of The Chorus Lady last week at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, where the play was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Mr. Mollison and Miss Annie Hughes, who is playing the title-rôle, both made great successes, and at the end of the performance were not allowed to leave the stage till the curtain had been taken up nine times. The same enthusiasm prevailed at every representation, and judging from the way the piece is being received at Newcastle this week, an artistic and financial success is assured. The play goes to Hull after Newcastle, and will then visit the Coronet and the Kennington, following on to Liverpool, Bradford, Leeds, Birmingham, Manchester, and Wolverhampton.

KINGSTONIANS have this week had the rare opportunity of witnessing and listening to a series of Italian grand operas performed at the County Theatre by one of the best touring companies travelling, viz., that captained by Cavaliere F. Castellano, the company having been engaged at great expense in response to numerous requests by Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director. On Monday night Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci were produced, the performance being alluded to during the interval by Mr. Davey, who said it was the greatest musical treat he had ever provided the Kingston public with during the thirteen years the theatre had been open. Besides the two operas mentioned, the company, which with instrumentalists tours eighty strong, also appeared in Rigoletto, Faust, Carmen, and Il Trovatore.

MISS MARIE MCAULAY concludes on Feb. 19 at Portsmouth a successful engagement as Dora Grey in Mr. Walter Melville's production of Her Second Time on Earth.

MISS EDITH BLANDE has been engaged by Messrs. E. Faulkner and M. de Courtsey for the part of Camille le Blanc in The Sins of the Fathers, with which they commence a tour on Feb. 21 at the Carlton Theatre, Saltley, by special arrangement with Mr. Wallace Davidson.

MISS MONA HUNGERFORD was the recipient of a nice present from Miss Stella Campbell and Miss Ethel Patrick on her leaving the Prince and the Beggar Maid company.

MISS FANNY WENTWORTH has just returned from Switzerland, where during the past month she has been entertaining, among others, Mrs. Asquith's family, including Miss Tennant, the Bishop of Hereford, Lady Wharton and family, Lord and Lady Lyveden, Lady Helen and Lord Mallis Grahame, Sir John Barron, Sir Robert and Lady Morrant, and many of our most distinguished politicians who were taking their holidays there.

THE performance of Gluck's Iphigenia in Tauris, which was to have been given yesterday at His Majesty's Theatre by the Royal College of Music pupils, has been unavoidably postponed till Friday afternoon next. Miss Viola Tree will appear in the title-rôle.

MR. MONTAGUE LANE will commence another repertory season at the Palace Pier, St. Leonards, at Easter. In the meantime, Mr. Lane has been engaged by Mr. Frank Bertram to appear with him at the principal variety theatres.

"THE LITTLE DAMOZEL" is proving an enormous success on tour. So great is the desire of provincial playgoers to witness this great London success that Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow are sending out a second company shortly. The company go to the Opera House, Southport, next week, following on to the Theatre Royal, Newcastle.

MR. FRANK ADAIR'S Heathen and the Christian company commences its spring tour at the Theatre Royal, Macclesfield, on Monday. This successful play was toured for forty-seven consecutive weeks last year. On its present tour the company includes Messrs. Fred Withers, Gerald Shirley, Ellis Carlyle, Fred Barnes, and Herbert Sydney, and Misses Stanley Burt, Eva Reed, and Louie Adair.

MR. FRED FREDERICKS, at the conclusion of the run of the popular Babes in the Wood on Saturday at the Marlborough Theatre, presented Mr. Murray Herriot, resident-manager, with a very handsome diamond and sapphire gold horse-shoe scarfpin as a souvenir of the pantomime, and in appreciation of the aid he had given in making The Babes a "record" success. This is the seventh successive year in the suburbs that Mr. Herriot's work has been similarly recognised by visiting managers.

THE Britannia Theatre, Torquay, has just been opened for a stock season, under the proprietorship of Mr. Allan M. Johnson. The initial performances have been well received, and there is every prospect of a successful season. Many of the best-known dramas and comedies are being given, including East Lynne, The Queen's Messenger, Escaped from Portland, and A Noble Brother. The cast, which is headed by Mr. and Mrs. Allan M. Johnson, includes Miss May Campbell, Miss Maud Nicholls, Mr. F. R. Leslie, Mr. Reginald Bauer, and Mr. Bert Earle.

MESSRS. E. FAULKNER AND M. DE COURTSEY will commence their spring and summer tour of The Sins of the Fathers at Carlton Theatre, Saltley, on Monday, Feb. 21. The cast will include Miss Edith Blande. Some excellent dates have been secured.

MISS NORA LANCASTER, the accomplished daughter of Mrs. Lancaster-Wallis, has just added another to the long list of parts which she has been playing with Mr. and Mrs. Benson. With Juliet, Portia, Viola, and other leading rôles she has now to be associated that of Perdita in The Winter's Tale, in which she appeared at Dublin this week. Looking remarkably pretty as one of Shakespeare's sweetest heroines, Miss Lancaster played with the utmost grace and distinction, and gained great admiration. The young actress will appear at Stratford-upon-Avon during Mr. Benson's Shakespeare Festival performances.

THE run of the Babes in the Wood pantomime at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, will terminate on Saturday, Feb. 26.

MR. BLAKE ADAMS has been engaged by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to play the part of Ginger Stubbs in The House of Temperley now running at the Adelphi Theatre, and opens on Monday next.

THE funeral of Mr. Charles E. Lambert, whose death was recorded in last week's Era, took place at Mountain Ash on Sunday last. The widow (Miss Louie Walton) received numerous letters and telegrams of condolence from friends in the profession. Among the floral tributes were a beautiful anchor from "The boys and girls" of A Girl's Temptation company, and wreaths from Mr. John Coulson (Theatre Royal, South Shields), Mr. and Mrs. Cross, Mr. F. M. Thorne (Little Phil's Mother company), Mr. Willie Haggar, Aberdare Cross, &c. Mr. Lambert began his theatrical career as a call boy at the Leeds Theatre Royal, under John Coleman, where he rose to the position of utility gentleman, and afterwards played parts. He then commenced touring in small companies with Pitt Hardacre, E. F. Brady, and Gertrude Norman, being of recent years connected with the Wages of Sin company and Her One Great Sin, in the latter of which he played with his wife and family for a number of years.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD had a warm welcome on Saturday, the last night of the successful pantomime, Cinderella, at the Crystal Palace Theatre, when he went on the stage to make a speech. "For the fourth year in succession," he said, "I have the honour of saying a few words on this, the last night of the pantomime. Unfortunately, this year, we have had a General Election to contend with, which has, perhaps, not helped to make the pantomime the financial success we anticipated, but we can congratulate ourselves upon the fact that we have beaten the record this year as far as the run is concerned, as to-night we register our fifty-ninth performance.

"I TAKE this opportunity of thanking all the principals and the chorus for the loyal way they have worked during the run, and not only do I thank the company, but there are many others who have been instrumental in helping to make this a success. First and foremost there is our author, Mr. Fred Bowyer, who, I am sure, you will all agree has faithfully told the tale. Then, again, our musical-conductor, Mr. Gautier, our wardrobe-mistress, Mrs. Phillips, our splendid band in front, and last, but not least, our hard-working stage-manager, Mr. Paterson."

MR. HOWARD enumerated his spring bookings, which include the Lyceum production of Pete, the Italian Opera Company, When Knights Were Bold, Charley's Aunt, Frank Curzon's company (No. 1) in The King of Cadonia, another of Hall Caine's famous plays, The Prodigal Son, The Mummy and the Humming Bird, the Sydenham Hill Operatic Company in Madame Angot, and at Easter their own company, playing a farewell visit of The Belle of New York. Miss Dorothea Clarke will appear in the title-rôle and Miss Nixon in her old part of Fifi.

WITH regard to the future, Mr. Howard said he was unable yet to say much about the autumn, but he thought it more than probable that they would find Mother Goose safely installed by next Boxing Night. He concluded by thanking his hearers on behalf of Mr. Lambert and himself for the liberal patronage bestowed.

THE Crystal Palace Theatre will give hospitality to The Prodigal Son next week. Mr. Hall Caine's thrilling play will be well acted and well mounted, Mr. Hugh Montgomery sustaining the rôle of Magnus Stephensson, Mr. S. Hubert Humber that of Oscar, and Miss Betty Castle that of Helga, Miss Valerie Crespin doubling the parts of Thora and Elin. Mr. J. E. Sharpe, the business-manager, is back again at the front of the house. During the week beginning Feb. 21 the celebrated Italian Grand Opera Company will be the attraction, and patrons who attended these operas on the last occasion will be pleased to learn that Signora Gonzaga will again be with the company.

THE new manager of the Royal Hippodrome, Eastbourne, Mr. G. G. Ridley, took up his new duties on Monday. He has seen "active service" at Birmingham, Leamington, and latterly at Chatham, and he is prepared to deal courteously with the largest audiences the Hippodrome will hold.

MR. J. HENRY TWIFORD has just produced for amateurs at Retford, most successfully, Pygmalion and Galatea. He will probably produce for them next year A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, and himself play the part of Count Skariatine.

OWING to the sudden indisposition of Mr. John T. MacCallum, the part of Joe Wheeler in The Flower Girl company was played at a moment's notice on Monday evening by Mr. Bert A. Hinkley, who continued in the part for the rest of the week.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Tita Brand, the part of Catherine de Medici in Henry of Navarre at the New Theatre was played for five nights last week by Miss Carrie Haase.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" at the Britannia finishes its successful run of nine weeks on Saturday next. On Wednesday next Mr. J. M. Jones, the capable pantomime producer, takes his benefit, and on Thursday Mr. Edward Lunn (laird) and Miss May Beatty (principal boy) take theirs.

MR. NEWMAN MAURICE, the popular manager of the Brixton Theatre, was accorded his annual benefit by the kindness of Mr. Frederick Melville on Tuesday. The theatre was packed by a most enthusiastic audience, including several of the local Councillors and the members of the Carlton Club. In addition to the successful pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk, several extra turns were provided, notably Miss Rose Maitland, a clever step-dancer, while Miss Daisy James, the effervescent principal boy, sang an extra song, "Charlie played the big drum," and met with a reception quite equal to that accorded her for "Let's all go down the Strand."

IN the course of the evening many kind remarks were made in praise of the beneficiaire, Mr. Frederick Melville assuring the audience that "he had always found Mr. Newman Maurice one of the most willing and hardest workers he had known, adding that it gave him the greatest pleasure to be there that evening." Presents and bouquets played an important part in the proceedings, the staff in the front of the house giving Mr. Maurice a diamond pin, while from Mr. Frederick Melville came a silver cigarette case. Boxes of cigarettes and cigars were handed up at every opportunity. Mr. W. Bellamy, the ever-courteous assistant-manager, supervised affairs in the front of the house.

MISS ESTHER WHITEHOUSE, who was engaged to understudy Louise de la Vallière in The Prisoner of the Bastille, autumn tour, last year, has been re-engaged by the Lyceum management to play Helena and understudy Perpetua in the spring tour of The Proud Prince.

THERE was ample evidence the other day that pantomime artists in Birmingham are genuine "sports." The weather was shocking, but teams representing the Theatre Royal and Prince of Wales's defied the elements and were driven out on coaches to the Mount Pleasure Grounds, near Shirley. The players were early covered with mud, but an exciting game was keenly contested to the end. Mr. George Robey assisted the Royal, but the "boys" from the Prince of Wales were in great form, and proved victorious by seven goals to three. Pender scored five goals for the P.O.W. Afterwards an excellent tea was provided, and considerable interest was manifested in the many attractions at this popular pleasure resort. The coaches were generously provided by Mr. Philip Baker, a well-known local gentleman.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being manifested in the billiard handicap being contested by managers of theatres and halls in Birmingham. On Tuesday over a hundred enthusiasts assembled to witness two exciting games, which concluded the first round. Mr. Lester Collingwood (Alexandra) (receives 120) met Mr. E. Foster (Grand) (receives 120). It was a "neck-and-neck" game, and Mr. Collingwood scored a popular victory by 31 points. Afterwards Mr. J. F. Graham (Prince of Wales) (receives 120) defeated Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward (Bordesley Palace) (receives 120) by 20 points. The draw for the semi-final resulted as follows:—Mr. Collingwood (receives 120) v. Mr. F. Rodway (owes 100); Mr. Graham (receives 130) v. Mr. A. Burbell (owes 50).

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A Rose without a Thorn.

MRS. KENDAL called her lecture in connection with the Liverpool Ladies' Sanitary Association, at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on the 4th inst., "Meanderings between Roses and Thorns." "I have hardly a relation in the world," she said, "who has never been on the stage, and I am very proud of the fact that the blood of the Montmorencys, when they speak of their long lineage and ancestry, is not greater than my enthusiasm when I turn and can boast that I belong to the actors of old. I am sorry to say I did not play in the best comedies of my elder brother, T. W. Robertson. We have often heard of his works spoken of as the 'bread-and-butter school.' Ah! think how finely-kneaded the bread and how well-spread the butter! It has always been the better and the purer for the keeping.

On a Single Stem.

"AT the Haymarket I met Mr. Kendal, and I left the theatre the Matron of the Drama, a title I am very proud of. But with that pride goes a feeling of regret at being so conspicuously selected. I have been asked why my husband and I have always acted together, and have never been separated. May I say that when husband and wife become divided in theatrical engagements a shadow may grow up at home that may divide them for ever? It was an expressed wish that we married on the condition that we should never be separated, but always act together. No doubt certain go-ahead people would have preferred it otherwise, and we should have saved more pounds than we have to-day. But there is another section of the public, thank God, who say they like to see us act together, and the very fact of knowing that we are man and wife gives a certain satisfaction which they would not otherwise feel."

Heavy Demands.

MR. BERNARD SHAW has told a representative of the Daily Mail that the pressure which has been put on him for some years in Germany to produce his plays there in the first instance, and so avoid the reports of disastrous failure which invariably follow his London productions, has been redoubled. As, according to our absolutely impartial Berlin correspondent, the reception of most of Mr. Shaw's plays in that city has been—to put it kindly—only moderately enthusiastic, the "pressure" is difficult to account for. "One London daily paper," said Mr. Shaw, "described the curtain as falling on Getting Married at the Haymarket amid a storm of hisses." As a matter of fact, the first and second acts of that amusing piece went with a laugh from beginning to end.

An Actress's Anecdotes.

MRS. STANISLAUS CALHAEM'S store of personal reminiscences (says M.A.P.) is endless. Many years ago, when playing "lead" in John Coleman's company, the actress made the acquaintance of a gentleman who is now one of our leading artists. He had joined the company, and was an enthusiast. On Saturday the play was Rob Roy. Like many of the members of Mr. F. R. Benson's company in recent years, notably Mr. Oscar Asche, this gentleman had discarded tights, and had painted muscle, thews, and sinews on his not too brawny legs. When the curtain had fallen the actor-artist sought Coleman and desired to know when Rob Roy was likely to be played again. "In three weeks, most probably," returned Coleman. "Is that certain?" the player inquired, earnestly. "I think so," replied the manager. The enthusiastic actor gave a sigh of relief. "Ah, then, if that's the case, I won't wash my legs!"

A Common Curse.

ON another occasion, when Mrs. Calhaem was playing in Richard III., the lady who was cast for the Duchess of York was taken suddenly ill. In those days of stock companies the careful management never engaged more than were actually wanted, so in this emergency the manager's wife was bundled into the part, prompted at the wings by her husband. In the famous cursing scene the good lady forgot her lines. Her irate husband gave her cue after cue, all of which she failed to take up. At last, losing patience, he shouted: "For heaven's sake, curse her and come off!" Whereupon the bewildered Duchess, to the intense enjoyment of the audience, regaled them with several volleys of most excellent Billingsgate until the curtain fell. They order things differently on the stage in these days.

An Actor M.P.

"WHEN Mr. Mason, the dramatist, novelist, and actor—he played a good deal in the Benson and the Bateman companies—retired from Parliament, the new House of Commons looked like being without an actor," says T. McDonald Rendle in London Opinion. "This result has been averted through the election of Mr. Francis Neilson, the member for Hyde—not Jekyll. He was in the original London cast of Held by the Enemy; he was for many years stage-manager for Charles Frohman in London and America; and he was also, for a long while, the director of the stage during the grand opera season at Covent Garden Theatre. Mr. Neilson is a fine novelist and a very convinced politician of quite exceptional powers. I tell you these things because the writers of stereotyped notices of new members do not appear to be acquainted with them."

Knew He Had a Soul.

A WEALTHY stockbroker was seen coming out of a matinée of The Blue Bird at the Haymarket Theatre the other afternoon. "I never expected to see you here," said a friend who was passing by. "You're the last person in the world I should think would care for a children's play." "It's the most wonderful play I've seen in my life," said the stockbroker. "It's made me believe I've got a soul."

"The Newest Mascot."

THE other day a smart motor-car was noticed outside the Carlton having a "blue bird" mascot in front instead of the Teddy Bear which has been the vogue for some time. "Everyone seems to be suffering from "Bluebirditis," said the managing director of one of our largest drapery establishments the other day. "We are inundated with demands for "Blue Bird" mascots, brooches, charms, hatpins, &c." This is a gratifying testimony to the way Maeterlinck's exquisite fantasy has caught hold of the public.

Politics in Pantomime.

MR. GEORGE GRAVES, one of the principal comedians in the Drury Lane pantomime, sings a song during each performance of Aladdin that occasionally makes portions of the gallery rise and howl at him, and (says the Daily Mirror) he enjoys the experience. "Two or three people in the gallery sometimes boo the poetry," says Mr. Graves, "but the majority like it. It causes a bit of fun, because the Conservative cheer wildly in opposition to the booers. Shouts of 'It [the Budget] will be passed' and 'No politics' rise up, and I enjoy that, because it is a new experience. Besides, I sooth the troubled ones immediately with a neutral verse. The people who boo are mostly trippers from the provinces, and the bigger percentage of porridge brains you have in the gallery the more they boo. I don't care. I've got some new verses for them. They mean 'For goodness' sake give Tariff Reform a trial.' If the provincial trippers booed the other verse, what will they say to that?"

Lord Lytton's play Richelieu; or, The Conspiracy was first performed at the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden, under the management of Macready, on Thursday, March 7, 1839, with Macready as the Cardinal, Phelps as Joseph, and Helen Faucit as Julie de Mortemar. Henry Irving, who had made his first appearance on the stage in the small part of Gaston, Duke of Orleans, revived Richelieu with great success in the Lyceum season of 1879, and Mr. Robert Hilton, at the Strand Theatre on Thursday, gave modern playgoers, by whom the piece has seldom been seen of late years, an opportunity of estimating its merits. The excellence of Richelieu as an acting play, and as a free dramatic version of historical events, is fully established. Some of the speeches in it are world-famous, especially the following, which Richelieu makes to his confidant Joseph, in discussing the plans of their enemies, Orleans and Baradas:—

RICHELIEU: I have them, man, I have them!
JOSEPH: So they say
Of you, my lord:—believe me, that their plans
Are mightier than you deem. You must employ
Means no less vast to meet them.
RICHELIEU: Bah! in policy
We foil gigantic danger, not by giants,
But dwarfs.—The statues of our stately fortune
Are sculptured by the chisel—not the axe!—
Ah, were I younger—by the knightly heart
That beats beneath these priestly robes, I would
Have pastime with these cut-throats!
Reach me yon falchion, François—not that bauble
For carpet-warriors—yonder—such a blade
As old Charles Martel might have wielded when
He drove the Saracen from France.
(FRANCOIS brings him a long two-handed sword)
Ah, boy, with this
I, at Rochelle, did hand to hand engage
The stalwart Englisher—no mongrels, boy,
Those island mastiffs—mark the notch—a deep one,
His casque made here—I shore him to the waist!
A toy—a feather—then! (tries to wield sword and lets it fall.)
You see a child could slay Richelieu now.
FRANCOIS (his hand on his hilt): But now, at your command
Are other weapons, my good lord.
RICHELIEU (about to write, lifts the pen): True, THIS
Beneath the rule of men entirely great
The pen is mightier than the sword. Behold
The arch-enchanter's wand!—itself a nothing—
But taking sorcery from the master-hand
To paralyse the Cæsars—and to strike
The loud earth breathless!—Take away the sword,
States can be saved without it!

Then there is the spirited reply of the old Cardinal to Baradas, who wants to take away Julie:—

BARADAS: The country is the king!
RICHELIEU: Ay, is it so?
Then wakes the power which in the age of iron
Burst forth to curb the great, and raise the low.
Mark, where she stands—around her form I draw
The awful circle of our solemn church!
Set but a foot within that holy ground,
And on thy head—yea, though it wore a crown—
I launch the curse of Rome!

Full of action, if slightly old-fashioned in parts, Richelieu is a fine example of the historical drama of the last generation, and bears revival by no means badly. Mr. Robert Hilton was obviously overweighted as Richelieu, and he has much to learn in the matters of make-up and bearing; but he had evidently devoted care and study to the task of portraying the Cardinal, and his enunciation was distinct and clear. His delivery was apt to be monotonous; but he showed decided intelligence, and acted at times with real power and earnestness. A complete contrast was the Father Joseph of Mr. J. H. Barnes, which was distinguished by perfect ease and accomplishment, firm, clear, and decisive treatment, and the necessary tinge of irony and unctuous humour. The part is not a great one, but Mr. Barnes's performance stood out by reason of its experienced soundness and ripe and mellow technique. Mr. Frederick Sargent, whose appearance as Baradas was excellent, played the part with bitter emphasis and vigorous intensity, and Mr. Lionel Atwill's Chevalier de Mauprat was a sympathetic and spirited performance, distinguished by refinement and sensitiveness, and full of activity and fire. Mr. Fred Grove's comical Sieur de Beringhen was a welcome gleam of genuine comedy; Mr. George Robinson was fresh and natural as François; and Mr. R. Besant made an appropriately grim and sullen Huguet. Miss Sophie Harriss depicted with eloquent facial play and much vivacity and variety the rôle of Marion de L'Orme, and Miss Marie Polini was delightfully animated and charmingly bright and impulsive as Julie De Mortemar. Mr. Gilbert Yorke played Louis XIII. skilfully and well; Mr. Norman Wrighton was excellent as the Duke of Orleans; Mr. Hugh Ardale did well as Clermont; and the Secretaries of State had able exponents in Mr. T. F. Nye and Mr. Gerald Lindley. Mr. C. Hardingham doing effective work as the Captain of the Archers, and Mr. H. Maligny deserving praise as the Groom of the Chamber. Mr. Cedric Percival and Mr. Cyril Bruce were efficient as Pages. Mr. Leolyn Hart's scenery was excellent, and Mr. Norfolk Megone's orchestra lulled the impatience of the audience in some rather protracted waits.

Richelieu was preceded by a wordless phantasy, by Miss Aimée Lowther, music by R. Burnham, played for the first time, and entitled

"THE DREAM FLOWER."

A Sculptress .....MISS VALERIE WINGATE
Pierrette .....MISS MARIE ELLIS
Pierrot .....MISS MABILIA DANIELL

A sculptress, who has just finished a marble statue of Pierrot, lies down and goes to sleep. Pierrot comes to life, leaves his pedestal, and invites a marble Pierrette to come down from hers and play with him. Together they explore the studio. Drawing a curtain, they reveal the sleeping sculptress. Pierrot kneels before her in rapture, bends over her, and kisses her. She begins to awaken, but as she gradually returns to consciousness Pierrot and Pierrette feel their limbs stiffen. They return to their pedestals and become statues once more.

The pretty phantasy was delicately and daintily interpreted by Miss Marie Ellis, a very agreeable and alert Pierrette, and Miss Mabilia Daniell, whose pantomime as Pierrot was graceful, artistic, and expressive. Miss Valerie Wingate gave a creditable rendering of the Sculptress. The acceptable dances which were introduced were ably arranged by Mlle. Rosa.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Too much excitement is harmful. Let us, therefore, be thankful that we have not only the inundations, but also the première of Chantecler behind us.

Whence arose all this excitement about the new play? It is difficult to say. M. Rostand is not partial to that kind of cheap advertisement, and his friends, therefore, must be held responsible for this indiscreet flourish of trumpets. Other circumstances, too, helped to keep the work constantly before the public. As will be remembered, the chief rôle was specially written for Coquelin aîné, who spoke of nothing else than of his great part therein. Poor Coquelin positively used to bore his friends with Chantecler, and when he died Rostand had to find another exponent. By this time the "farmyard play" was already in everybody's mouth, and half the population on this globe began to watch its career with eager eyes, so that when it was decided that M. Guitry was to impersonate the cock, the fact was telegraphed all over the universe. Then the rehearsals began, and things did not go smoothly. For reasons on which it is not necessary to dwell, M. Rostand and M. Guitry were rather at loggerheads, and Mme. Simone threatened to be on the sick list, with the result that the dress rehearsal was announced and postponed several times, until the public became a bit exasperated. All this, however, is now forgotten, since Chantecler made its appearance.

Truth compels me to say that it did not arouse the enthusiasm on which M. Rostand's friends reckoned, for the simple reason that these four acts—without a vestige of plot—are far beyond the reach of the ordinary playgoer. Following his artistic impulse, M. Rostand has put into the mouths of his characters the deep philosophy we find in all his productions, too subtle for the ordinary mind. But a great fault in the play is that the author has introduced therein a certain amount of gall that leaves an unpleasant aftertaste. M. Rostand holds a high, a very high, position in the literary world, and, like all prominent men, he has suffered from petty jealousies, from mean attacks. These have embittered him, and he lays the wounds to his amour-propre bare to the world, causing the piece, towards the end, to degenerate into parody, and the last two acts to fall rather "flat." There was even some hooting and whistling at the chorus of frogs, evoking vigorous counter-applause from the stalls, to the cries of "crapauds" (toads), indignantly hurled at the "gods."

When the three traditional raps had been given, heralding the rise of the curtain, M. Jean Coquelin, in evening dress, appeared at the foot of the stage, and recited a witty prologue, describing a farmyard at evening tide. Whilst he spoke the familiar sounds of the farm—clucking of hens, barking of dogs, &c.—came from behind, and at his bidding, "Let the play commence," the curtain rose on a most extraordinary scene. We beheld a poultry yard of extraordinary size, in exact proportion to the enormous cocks and hens that strutted about. With jealous care the same symmetry had been maintained throughout. The hen-coop, the dog-kennel, the set of harness, the rakes—in fact, all the plant was of gigantic proportions, dwarfing the actors into the normal size of the animals they were supposed to represent. All this was done with masterly skill, a skill extending to the costumes of the actors, covered in feathers, with a head mask that exposed their faces to view, their legs encased in gaiters ending in claws.

Presently Chantecler, the cock, walks in—M. Guitry, in a magnificent feather dress, on his head a great red comb. He declaims the famous ode to the sun, which, as will be remembered, was published by two morning papers here—a theft for which the said papers are now being prosecuted. Chantecler, proud and conceited, believes that the whole universe is compassed by his poultry yard, and that the sun cannot rise until he (Chantecler) has, by his crowing, given him permission to do so. A shot is heard, and a pheasant flies in, a charming bird, impersonated by Mme. Simone, in a bright-red feather tunic. She flies to the cock for protection, and Patou, the dog, hides her in his kennel, to screen her from a big retriever that appears at the gate.

Next follows a night scene. The Owls, the Cat, and the Blackbird are hatching a plot against the Cock, whose cry at daybreak drives them into darkness. After much discussion they decide to engage a fighting cock to knock the conceit out of Chantecler, and, if possible, murder him. The moment fixed for that encounter is the day when the Guinea Fowl holds her reception, at which the "pick" of the feathered tribe will be present. Chantecler then appears, accompanied by the Hen Pheasant. Proud of his accomplishments he crows a loud "Cocorico," and, to use his own words, he "crowns the hills with gold." This feat wins him the love of the fascinating pheasant to whom he has lost his heart.

The scene of the Guinea Fowl's reception is remarkably clever, every bird being duly announced by the Magpie. Under the spell of the Hen Pheasant, Chantecler decides to quit the farmyard and follow the lady to the woods, but he seizes the opportunity to attack the fancy cocks—the affected peacock, lionised by the coquettish young hens—and other useless birds. Set upon by the fighting cock, Chantecler at first allows himself to be beaten, but, at the sight of the trembling members of the farmyard, he gathers strength and his opponent is beaten.

Once more we are in the forest at night. Rabbits are peeping out of their holes, and huge toads are all over the place. The mournful song of the nightingale falls on our ear. A shot is heard, Rossignol falls dead, but her chant is taken up by another vocalist, who sings "Je suis la chanson éternelle," and Chantecler forgets the passing of the night. The Pheasant, pointing to the rays of the sun, tells him that his dream is shattered. But Chantecler will not believe it, and thinks that it is the light he summoned the day before. At last, however, he discovers, to his despair that he does not wield the power he fancied. He lets the pheasant depart to his farm, but she falls into a poacher's trap, whilst the crowing of a cock announces that Chantecler has been supplanted.

Unstinted praise can be bestowed on the management, for the manner in which they mounted the work. They had to encounter terrific difficulties, but overcame them with masterly skill. The acting, too, was first class. Despite the long-winded speeches he had to deliver, M. Guitry created a deep impression. Mme. Simone was a fascinating Pheasant, and M. Coquelin as the Dog and M. Galipeaux as the Blackbird imparted much humour to their rôles. The other parts were also well sustained.

HENRY ARTHUR JONES AND THE DRAMA.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones delivered to the O.P. Club last Sunday a lecture on "Standardising the Drama." Mr. Norman McKinnell took the chair in place of Mr. Herbert Trench, who was unable to be there owing to his being present at the first night of Chantecler, and amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. Algernon L. Collins, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, and the joint hon. secretaries, Mr. J. Davis Smith and Mr. Stanley Greig. A debate followed, in which Mr. J. B. Mulholland, Mr. Alfred Robbins, Mr. Edward F. Spence, and Mr. T. McDonald Rendle took part. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. Carl Hentschel, concluded the evening.

In the course of his lecture Mr. H. A. Jones said: At present we seem to have no settled type, no settled style of drama. That seems to be inevitable in our confused civilisation. We have many types, and many forms, and many styles, and most of them seem to be lifeless imitations, lifeless copies of the Elizabethan drama, of the romantic cape and sword drama, of the French modern drama, and of the Norwegian drama, while the one thing that we do supremely well, because we do it spontaneously, is the curious entertainment which I have described as "legs and tomfoolery." William Morris used to say that the only style of really living English architecture is the style of the modern corner public-house. That is what we build naturally, easily, spontaneously, with unconscious inspiration. Other and finer buildings do indeed arise in our midst, but for the most part they are comparatively dead—mere copies of other and remote styles of building. But a corner public-house we hold as a symbol and expression of our architectural needs and desires. It is something the same with the drama. While we seem to write comedy and drama laboriously—"with deeficulty," as the Scotchman jokes—and for the most part in a dull, conscientious way, our real spontaneous delight, both as authors and audiences, seems to be in those pieces which, with your permission, I have called "legs and tomfoolery." Well, it is useless to build Gothic cathedrals for a population whose architectural demand is for corner public-houses. But I humbly submit that a nation whose spontaneous impulse and natural standard in building declares itself chiefly in gorgeous public-houses cannot be said to have much care or love for architecture, or much knowledge of it. And I very humbly submit to you that a nation whose spontaneous impulse and natural standard in drama manifests itself in "legs and tomfoolery" cannot be said to have any high regard for its drama, any real care or love for it, any knowledge of what a fine art it is, and what a great power and influence it might become. But here you will say, "Cannot we have all these kinds of entertainments, all these kinds of drama—comedy, tragedy, fantasy, pantomime, burlesque, tomfoolery? Cannot they all flourish in our midst? Will that not be the best general condition of the drama when they are all welcomed and supported?"

Our present civilisation is widely different from anything the world has ever known, more varied, more cosmopolitan, more shifting, more subversive of settled views and schools of art. In such a civilisation will not the drama, and indeed all the arts, be necessarily an aimless olla podrida? Perhaps that may be so, but it is not a comforting prospect to the artist. We have seen that the drama must necessarily be popular in a sense that no other art need be. To some extent it is undoubtedly a question of what proportion mere tomfoolery shall bear to serious comedy and drama. With Falstaff, we may all like "your good sherries sack" and believe in its cheering qualities; but when it comes—as it did in Falstaff's tavern bill—to a ha'porth of bread and half-a-crown's worth of sack we may be quite sure that our tastes are vitiated and our digestion impaired. But, you may say, are the proportions so alarming? Well, look not merely at London, but at the drama throughout the Empire. Take a list of the entertainments that will be played throughout the United Kingdom to-morrow night. Take London. Here, in the height of the theatrical season, there is not a single performance of Shakespeare. Throughout the whole of the United Kingdom to-morrow night there are only four performances of Shakespeare—Manchester, Dublin, Dewsbury, and Llanelly.

Do you call that a satisfactory state of things? Take the entertainments outside Shakespeare. Many of the programmes are very varied and mixed. But if you could really estimate the amount paid to witness true drama and the amount paid to witness "legs and tomfoolery" I do not think you would find the proportions far different from those of the bread and sack in Falstaff's tavern bill. In the provinces the drama may almost be said to be extinct, except for the rare visits of a London manager. Cultivated people in the provinces have ceased to trouble about their local drama; they do not go to the local theatre except when they take their children to the pantomime. The really living entertainment in the provinces is at the music halls, and it may be most cordially recognised that the music halls are gradually improving, and that they are gradually admitting more and more drama into their programmes. It is, then, partly a question what proportion true drama shall bear in the sum of the entertainment provided at theatres and music halls. If you, as lovers and students of the drama, think that proportion is satisfactory, then you are content that whatever drama we have shall be a second-rate thing, quite inferior in influence and popularity to the emptiest and shallowest kind of entertainment. For my own part, I am inclined to think that you cannot have two standards, that when there is any art-energy in a country it generally goes into one distinct and commanding form and style. It is not wholly, however, a question of proportion, it is partly a matter of habit. The latest researches seem to show that our tastes and characters are much more largely a matter of habit than physiologists and philosophers have hitherto supposed. We have certain tastes and habits in the theatre because other people have them, and because we have grown into them without thinking. It is declared that our average brains to-day have quite as much capacity and as many involutions in their cortex as the average Greek brains in the days of Plato and Sophocles. If you had been born in Athens about 500 B.C., and had been fed from your childhood on a diet of Æyschus and Sophocles, instead of questioning and disagreeing from my opinions to-night, as I dare say some of you are doing, you would be wondering how any sensible man could possibly take such an incredibly low and debased view of the functions of the drama as those I am now expounding to you.

Indeed, it is nearly all a matter of habit. Men are far more imitative than monkeys. No playgoer could have laughed for fifteen minutes at a man shouting senseless perversions of his native English language and playing all sorts of tricks with an accordion if he had not been gradually schooled and disciplined into that frame of mind by seeing other people laughing at the same kind of thing and by hearing it constantly praised. I believe that, without great difficulty, a very large body of English playgoers could easily be brought to take a real interest in true drama, to love it, and foster it, and to grow more and more accustomed to seek their pleasure at the theatre in a representation of life, rather than in perversions of words and in meaningless antics.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland opened the debate which followed, and pointed out that the lecturer, in using the catch-phrase "legs and tomfoolery," seemed to be unaware that "legs" had practically disappeared from the lighter forms of entertainment in the theatre any time during the last ten years, and he ventured to think that Mr. George Edwardes, who did this sort of play so well, could tell Mr. Jones that his bill for tights had practically reached the vanishing point; whereas in the music halls favoured by Mr. Jones, tights had become unnecessary, while bare legs and beauty almost unadorned was now the fashion. He deprecated the word "amusement," and preferred the larger word "entertainment," as applied to theatrical performances; but he was afraid that even this could hardly be taken to embrace some of the doleful plays recently witnessed, wherein the authors and actors seemed to enter into a conspiracy of gloom. He also wished that certain high priests of the drama would preach less about high art which in some instances had reached such an altitude as to verge on the putrid. This, he was afraid, had driven large numbers of the entertainment-seeking public into the music halls. But he saw hope for the theatre in the future, because another conspiracy had been entered into by certain leading actors—in one instance with the co-operation of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones. Large doses of unalloyed gloom and horror were being administered to the music-hall audiences, with the result that they might be driven back into the theatres. He endorsed the lecturer's views as to the admirable work being done by Mr. Trench, but was afraid that the spirit of commercialism was even invading the Haymarket, inasmuch as a loudly-heralded répertoire enterprise had recently transferred one of its successes to another theatre so that the much-abused and deadly "long run" might be continued. He disagreed with the lecturer's statement that drama was dead in the country, and, apropos of the répertoire theatre, instanced the admirable work done by Miss Horniman in Manchester, by Mr. Waring in Glasgow, and the achievements at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, not to speak of the many excellent touring companies in the provinces. Finally, he expressed the opinion that the domination of London had a most deadening effect upon initiative elsewhere. In America there were many producing centres; on the Continent nearly every large town was a producing centre; but in England it was almost hopeless to tour a play of the better class which had not the cachet of a West-End run. Many London theatres catered for a specialised audience, some of them consisting of "late diners and passive digesters," and the fare suited to such was found to be quite too "thin" when sent into the country. The horizon of the theatrical world was too much bounded by the charméd circle of the half-mile radius from Charing Cross, and until that horizon became widened so as to embrace every part of the country where worthy effort was put forth, the provinces would depend upon the often unsuitable "London success." While the Jeremiahs were proclaiming the drama dead, it was not to be wondered at if the public came to regard it as damned, and he was afraid that in some instances the highest ambition of the theatre star was to twinkle for a short space in the music-hall firmament, at an inflated salary, oblivious of the after effects of their climbing downward experiments.

Mr. Mulholland paid a high tribute to Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's many and varied plays and to the earnestness of his able, if somewhat pessimistic, lecture.

DEATH OF TREVOR LOWE.

We regret to record the death after only a few hours' illness of Mr. Trevor Lowe, who died on Saturday last from cerebral apoplexy at the age of thirty-two. The deceased actor was associated with Messrs. J. E. Vedrenne and Granville Barker during the whole of their memorable management of the Court Theatre from 1904 to 1907, playing, amongst others, the following parts: Peacey in The Voysey Inheritance, the Cadi in Captain Brassbound's Conversion, Kennel in Prunella, Snow in The Silver Box, the Newspaper Man in The Doctor's Dilemma, the Lieutenant in A Man of Destiny, and George Tesman to Mrs. Patrick Campbell's Hedda in Ibsen's Hedda Gabler.

Afterwards, when the Savoy Theatre was taken by the same management, he appeared as Burgoyne in Bernard Shaw's The Devil's Disciple. He was one of the clever young actors Mr. Herbert Trench has gathered round him for his Repértoire season at the Haymarket, and appeared in King Lear at that house, and also played the Prime Minister in the curtain-raiser Might is Right, put on in front of Don.

For some years he had been associated as stage director with Messrs. Taylor Platt and Harry P. Towers' company, touring Bernard Shaw's You Never Can Tell, and had conducted the rehearsals of this play at the Savoy Theatre right up to a few hours before his death. One of the saddest things in connection with his death is that he had only been married a few weeks, his wedding to Miss Sydney Fairbrother taking place at the Registry Office, Chelsea Town Hall, on Dec. 11 of last year.

An inquest was held at Chelsea on Wednesday, when the mother-in-law of the deceased said he had recently been acting as an understudy at the Haymarket Theatre. He had been married only a few months, and his wife was at present touring in the provinces. Shortly after midnight on Friday he returned home. She heard a crash, and on going downstairs found him lying on the floor. He complained of an injury to his head, and was put to bed. He became sick, and witness gave him a tonic. A doctor was sent for, and he pronounced the case as hopeless. Death occurred about two o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Pett Ridge, the author, said he had known deceased for fifteen years. Mr. Lowe visited him at his house at Hampstead on Friday night. Deceased was very happy and in perfectly good spirits when he left about twelve o'clock, witness accompanying him to the tube station. During the whole of the evening deceased had nothing alcoholic, only a cup of coffee.

Dr. Gregory, of Redcliffe-gardens, said he was called on Saturday morning, and found Mr. Lowe suffering from apoplexy and a stroke of paralysis on the left side. The case appeared hopeless from the first, and the patient died on Saturday afternoon. He had made a post-mortem examination, and found the cause of death was a large clot of blood on the brain, which had set up cerebral apoplexy.

The jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

The funeral took place at Kensal Green on Wednesday. Amongst the beautiful floral gifts sent by comrades of the deceased actor—who was warmly loved by his comrades in the profession—was a very handsome wreath from Mr. Cecil Barth and the members of Mr. Brandon Thomas's Charley's Aunt company at Hull, the subscribers being Miss Ross, Miss Harding, Miss Henton, Miss Wilson, Miss Back, Mr. S. Cooke, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Compton, Mr. Byford, Mr. King, Mr. Burnett, Mr. Shunn, Mr. and Mrs. Newton, and Mr. Cecil Barth.

IN the Theatre Royal, Darwen, on Saturday afternoon last, the Darwen Amateur Dramatic Society, under the direction of Mr. W. Albert Ainsworth, gave a creditable performance of As You Like It, in aid of the funds of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. The theatre was lent entirely free by the Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.

THE bow of the famous violinist, Paganini, was recently offered at auction, and was purchased by the municipality of Genoa for £32. It will be preserved with the famous Guarnerius violin which Paganini bequeathed as his favourite instrument to his native town.

THE ENTERTAINMENT MARKET, 1899-1908.

The Table hereunder shows at a glance the business done with limited liability stock on the Stock Exchange and the dividends paid by the respective undertakings during the past ten years. The records are taken from the files of the Stock Exchange lists, and show clearly the highest (h) and lowest (l) price in each year.

NOTE.—Owing to the fact that the "Financial Year" of the Companies hereunder varies as to dates, this List can only be completed to the end of the Financial Year, 1908.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Twelfth Night was performed in a highly praiseworthy and enjoyable manner at the New Theatre on the 26th ult. The boisterous comedy scenes, in particular, were delightfully rendered by Mr. Louis Calvert as Sir Toby Belch, Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Mr. Jacob Wendell, jun., as the Fool, and Miss Jessie Busley as Maria. Miss Annie Russell's Viola pleased the audience, if it failed to satisfy the critics. Miss Leah Bateman Hunter appeared as Olivia, and the grace and charm of her embodiment created a distinctly favourable impression. Probably this important character has never before been represented by one so young. Mr. Oswald Yorke's Malvolio was an effective characterisation; and Mr. Matheson Lang's Orsino was a fine portrayal. Mr. Alexander Calvert as Sebastian, Mr. Lee Baker as Antonio, and Mr. Henry Stanford as Fabian, deserve praise for their impersonations. The exquisite beauty and taste of the entire production called forth many expressions of admiration.

Miss Maxine Elliott has scored a signal success at Daly's Theatre in a clever farce-comedy, by Frank Stayton, entitled The Inferior Sex. It is the unanimous opinion of the Press and the public that the piece provides Miss Elliott with a rôle that is exceptionally well suited to her, and that she acts it splendidly. The play is all about a young gentleman named Charles Winslow, who confesses that he is a misogynist, and declares that "man is the noblest work of creation, while woman is a regrettable accident." He is so enamoured of his pet theory that he is writing a book on the subject, to be called The Inferior Sex. In order to work undisturbed and get away from the women, he starts on a two months' yachting trip, vowing not to touch land until the book is finished. In a dense fog the yacht overtakes a small boat, of which the sole occupant is a beautiful, but much bedraggled young lady, named Eve Addison. In a state of insensibility she is rescued by the crew and carried into Winslow's cabin. The woman-hater fumes and frets, and is extremely ungallant in his behaviour, but is forced to calm down and allow the lady to remain. As a matter of fact, there is no alternative, for he absolutely refuses to make for land. Why should he do this for a perfect stranger, he argues, who had no business to be caught in a storm and upset his plans in this way? How is his book to be written, and where is the lady to sleep? There's the rub. There is only one cabin, and she reminds him that he can hardly expect her to "bunk for'ard" with the crew. Finally, with a very bad grace, he agrees to a "Box and Cox" arrangement. The cabin is to be hers at night and his through the day. During her stay on the yacht there are many interesting and diverting incidents, including a mutiny of the crew, originally planned and instigated by the unwelcome guest to force Winslow to make for land, but carried to an alarming extreme that makes the lady repent of her rashness. The end of the play, however, finds the woman-hater at her feet, his views completely altered, and his affections enslaved.

Mr. Arthur Byron plays Winslow, and his performance is highly creditable to him. He has never done anything better. The burden of the comedy falls on the shoulders of Mr. O. B. Clarence, the well-known London actor, who appears as Winslow's valet, Bennett, and treats the audience to one of the most laughable characterisations of its kind that the writer has seen for a very long time. Bennett is his master's antithesis. He hates the sea and loves the ladies. He has been married three times, and admits that his regard for the fair sex is "a sort of a 'abit." He deplores the lack of female society on the yacht. To him "there is something fascinating about the swish of a woman's skirt." It is utterly incomprehensible to him how a man can be a "misogernist," or whatever it is. If that's the name for a woman-hater, he wants to know what they call a woman that hates the men. "There are so few of them that no one has thought it worth while to find a name for them" is the answer he gets. The first and second acts are laid in the cabin of the yacht, and the last act takes place on the upper deck. The setting is admirable, and throughout the play the illusion is cleverly maintained. Ah Sin, a Chinese cook, is humorously represented by Mr. T. Tamamoto.

"Mrs. Dot," by W. Somerset Maugham, was produced on the 24th inst. at the Lyceum Theatre, with the fascinating Miss Billie Burke in the title-rôle, and a full house gave this sparkling comedy a highly appreciative reception. As the rich widow, Miss Burke completely charmed the audience, and easily upheld her popularity. Mr. Fred Kerr's reappearance on the local stage in this comedy was noted with genuine pleasure by those who had enjoyed his dry drollery and finished execution before. As James Blenkinsop he caused frequent explosions of laughter. Mr. Basil Hallam was quite amusing as Freddie Perkins, and Mr. Julian L'Estrange was very good indeed as Gerald Halstane.

Mr. Chauncey Olcott is fulfilling an engagement at the Academy of Music after an absence of two seasons, and renewing his popularity in the title-rôle of a musical Irish play called Ragged Robin, by Rida Johnson Young. The piece is founded on some of the legends of the Emerald Isle, the scenes being laid at Innishannon. Robert Harcourt, known as Ragged Robin, being disinherited by his father, becomes a wandering minstrel. His peregrinations bring him to Innishannon, where he meets and falls in love with pretty Margaret Grattan. Owing to the jealousy of one Martin Darcy and the enmity of Margaret's father, Robin is driven from her home, which angers the fairies, who send a banshee to wail at the window of the Grattan home. Three years later Robin returns as Sir Robert Harcourt, having been reconciled to his father, who has bequeathed to him a vast estate. He finds the people famine-stricken and Grattan reduced to cutting turf in a bog for a living. The fairies lead him across the bog to the cabin of his sweetheart, where he reveals his true rank to her and makes her happy. Mr. Olcott sings several songs, and is warmly applauded at every opportunity.

Last week the entire theatrical world and thousands of playgoers in this city and elsewhere were saddened by the death of Lotta Faust, an attractive and clever comedienne, who made a great success in The Wizard of Oz, singing "Sammy," a song that became quite popular in London. Miss Faust was only twenty-nine. She succumbed to an attack of pneumonia after undergoing an operation.

Mr. Joseph Wheelock, jun., a clever young actor, who made a big hit as Mawley, the jockey, in Lord and Lady Algy at the Empire Theatre some years ago, and who had subsequently appeared with great success in George Ade's comedy Just Out of College, died of tuberculosis in Phœnix, Arizona, a few days ago. He was the son of Joseph Wheelock, a well-known actor, who died suddenly last year.

The King and Queen, with their suite, visited the Kingsway on Saturday, and saw the performance of Mr. Rudolf Besier's comedy Don, and on the same evening the Prince and Princess of Wales patronised Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde at the Queen's Theatre.

The theatrical traffic on the Great Western Railway has during the past few years so largely increased that it has become necessary for the company to arrange for the construction of some 50ft. covered trucks for the conveyance of theatrical scenery, while it has also been decided to construct some additional 45ft. open trucks. These vehicles will be ready for the autumn tours.

MASONS AT WORK.

The thirty-sixth meeting of the members of the Green Room Lodge was held on the 4th inst. at the Imperial Restaurant. The reigning Master, Mr. Charles Macdona, was supported by Messrs. E. H. Bull, I.P.M., Hubert Willis, S.W., J. H. Ryley, J.W., Charles Cruikshanks, Sec., Blake Adams, S.D., E. Vivian Reynolds, J.D., Rev. W. P. Besley, Chaplain, W. Lestocq, D.C., Edw. Jonce, Org., Frank Vernon, I.G., Fredk. Annerley, 1st S., Douglas Gordon, 2nd S., J. Cooke Beresford, 3rd S., A. E. Rayner, 4th S., and E. J. Nesbitt, Tyler. Messrs. Akerman May, P.M., L.R., and A. E. George also assisted, and Messrs Henry Ainley, J. D. Beveridge, P.M., L.R., Leslie Carter, H. Nye Chart, P.M., Dermot Fitzgibbon, Frank Harding, Lyn Harding, Arthur Hatherton, Luigi Labiache, P.M., L.R., Arnold Lucy, J. W. Macdonald, Harry Nicholls, P.G.Std.B., Ernest H. Paterson, and Spencer Trevor were present. The visitors included Major C. Haldane, Messrs. Arthur A. Coster, W.M. (143), Henry Jno. Burgess, W.M. (3,243), and C. A. C. Jackson, S.D. (143) Apologies for non-attendance were received from Messrs George Alexander, Alfred Brydone, John Osbourn, Thalberg Corbett, John R. Cranford, Welton Dale, Lytton Grey, Hubert Harben, Robert Loraine, H. D. McCarthy, Gerald Maxwell, P.M., A.G.D.C., Walter Maxwell, Percy Nash, W. S. Penley, P.G.Treas., Charles Rock, Herbert Shelley, and Stephen Wentworth.

Mr. Robert Minster received the benefits connected with the first stage of his initiation, and at the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. Harry Nicholls delivered an eloquent address. Messrs. Cyril Keightley and David John Williams reached the final stage. Mr. Hubert Harben was unable to be present, and his advancement was postponed. It was agreed that a benevolent fund should be founded, and Messrs. Harry Nicholls, P.G.Std.B., J. D. Beveridge, P.M., L.R., and Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.B., were elected as first trustees, and Mr. W. Lestocq, P.M., as first treasurer. The fund will be governed by a president, the W.M. of the lodge, the trustees, the treasurer, and a committee of the past masters of the lodge, other than a trustee or the treasurer, and seven members of the lodge, who will be elected annually at the April lodge meeting. The by-laws of the "Green Room Lodge Benevolent Fund," as submitted by the committee, Messrs. W. Lestocq, Akerman May, Charles Cruikshanks, J. H. Ryley, and E. Vivian Reynolds, were read and accepted.

"THE FAMILY GHOST."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In your last issue you were good enough to point out that the above title was used in connection with a play produced at Hanley about thirty years ago. Here is one more instance proving how invaluable to a dramatist are your exhaustive production records.

I now propose re-christening my new farcical comedy When the Ghost Walks. This is a ghost which I have often anxiously waited for in my younger days. I was never alarmed if it approached me, but was extremely upset if it did not.—Yours faithfully, TOM CRAVEN.

PHELPS'S GRAVE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—There must be a large number of your elder readers who still remember that great actor Samuel Phelps. He now lies side by side with his beloved wife in Highgate Cemetery. Do you know that very tombstone denoting the sacred grave has been attacked by the ravages of time, wind, and weather? The inscription is hardly readable. Can we let this be without an effort and small expense to rectify this shameful scandal? No; surely not! I hope the lettering on the grave may at once be attended to, and if, as suggested, in last week's Era, the tablet is erected at 8, Canonbury-square, may the memorial be worthy of so great and good a man.—Yours faithfully, HARRY SIMMS.

"BEFORE THE DAWN."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The Manchester Press have alluded to a production of a piece of Russian origin at the Gaiety, Manchester, entitled Before the Dawn. As I have been playing my own piece of that title continuously since its production in May last year, I may fairly lay claim to priority in the matter.

I have received a most courteous letter on the subject from the management of the Gaiety, Manchester, and I do not think the interests of the two plays are likely to clash; but having played Before the Dawn for sixteen weeks in London, and for a longer period in the provinces, and holding contracts for its performance till August, 1912, I consider it only fair that priority in the question of title should be recorded.—Faithfully yours, GEO. SHELDON.

Leeds, Feb. 10, 1910.

"The Watcher," a drama, in four acts, by Cora Maynard, was well received at the Comedy Theatre, New York, on the 27th ult. The theme of the play is the influence of the dead upon the living, and the one scene represents the living-room of the Kent family in a New York flat. The Kents have been wealthy, but are now in straitened circumstances. The family consists of George Kent, his wife Felice, his sister Vivian, and his mother. Before she met Kent, Felice had lived with a man named Joe Worden, and she married Kent because she believed him to be wealthy. Worden becomes prosperous, and falls in love with Kent's sister Vivian, while Kent turns gambler, and is exposed as a cheat. The mother dies, and Felice and her husband drift apart. Vivian tries to draw them together again, but the wife is jealous of her, and to prevent her from marrying Worden not only confesses her former relations with him, but tries to make it appear that the intimacy has been resumed. Worden and Felice are discovered alone together at a late hour, although the former is guiltless of any evil act or intention. Kent seizes a revolver to kill Worden, but the weapon is wrested from his grasp. Worden admits his relations with Felice in the past, but denounces the rest of her story as false. Felice confirms his statement in the last act, admiting that she made him appear guilty to serve her own ends. A vein of spiritualism runs through the play, and Vivian's appeal to her mother's spirit is supposed to save her brother from self-destruction and to harmonise, to a certain extent, the relations existing between the various characters as the play ends.

Presentation.—Mr. Graham Morrison, the general-manager of the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, was on Saturday last the recipient of a massive handsome tantalus and smoker's cabinet from the staff and members of the Mother Goose pantomime company, and a diamond and sapphire ring from an anonymous donor. The presentation took place on the stage during the evening, and Mr. Jackson Withers, the managing-director of the theatre, who made it, spoke in flattering terms of Mr. Morrison's work and popularity with both patrons of the theatre and the artists of the company. Mr. Morrison, who was received with much enthusiasm, returned thanks in a brief, but witty speech, and the proceedings terminated with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," with hands joined throughout the house and on the stage.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

H. BELLAMY.—We are unable to say. Try the Secretary of the M.H.A.R.A., 18, Charing Cross-road, London, W.C. See notice above.

F. NEWMAN.—We do not answer questions through the post, but if you will look at our paper of last week (Feb. 5) and refer to page 19, you you will find that we have given you all the information at our disposal. We expect correspondents to read our paper.

MINSTRELSY—The opening performance of the "only original and veritable legitimate Christy Minstrels" was at St. James's Hall on Monday, Sept. 18, 1862. The bill bore the names of J. P. Crocker, J. Ritter, H. Hamilton, and Pony Moore. Christy founded a troupe called the Virginia Serenaders in 1844.

O. M. DAYTON.—We believe the Glasgow Pavilion have paid a dividend over the percentage you mention. The Palace Theatre, London, and the Empire Theatre, London, have also exceeded it. We have endeavoured to procure exact information regarding your statement concerning Moss' Empires, Ltd., but have failed. Speaking from recollection, you have overstated their record. The Empire, Leicester-square, some years ago paid 83½ per cent. dividend.

R. STUART.—We can find no production of The Forty Thieves either at the Grand Theatre or the Theatre Royal in your town in our notices of the Christmas shows (1907) at those houses, and the name of Poluski is absent from the casts given by us. It is quite probable that the brothers have played in the town, but not at all likely that either has appeared of late years in an animal part, though we believe they did so in their earlier career. There is a Mr. Will Poluski, jun., who plays animal parts. The Poluskis themselves are at Liverpool this year.

F. H. HENDERSON PORTER.—(1) Widowers' Houses, by Bernard Shaw, was produced at the Royalty on Dec. 9, 1892. The cast of the piece was as follows: Harry Trench, Mr. W. J. Robertson; Cokayne, Mr. Arthur Whittaker; Sartorius, Mr. T. Wygney Percival; Lickcheese, Mr. James Welch; Waiter, Mr. E. P. Donne; Porter, Mr. W. Alison; Blanche, Miss Florence Farr; and Annie, Miss N. de Silva. (2) You might glean some particulars of the young lady's career by writing to her at the Playhouse. (3) Miss Christine Silver, who is now playing in Don, made her first appearance on the stage at the Grand Theatre, Margate, as Phœbe Throssel in Quality Street. First appeared in London, December, 1904, as Nibs in Peter Pan, and made her first great success on tour in The Lion and the Mouse. She was in Miss Lena Ashwell's company at the Kingsway, and played in Diana of Dobson's and other pieces at that house, and at the Playhouse created the title-rôle in Marjory Strode. She was the Olive Bruton in Sir Anthony at Wyndham's. She is married to Mr. Walter Maxwell.

THE F. R. Benson Shakespearean Company (South) has drawn crowded houses to the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly. On Monday the ever-popular Merchant of Venice was patronised by an overwhelming attendance. Mr. Balliol Holloway's Shylock was a great success; Miss Emil Leslie acted Portia with great histrionic skill. The performance was a capital one throughout. The Llanelly County School students attended in force the matinée performance on Thursday.

MR. ISAAC D'ISRAELI distinguished between the Mimi and the Pantomimi of the ancients: "The Mimi were an impudent race of buffoons who excelled in mimicry, and, like our domestic fools, were admitted into convivial parties to entertain the guests; from them we derive the term 'mimetic' art. Their powers enabled them to perform a more extraordinary office, for they appear to have been introduced into funerals to mimic the person, and even the language, of the deceased. Suetonius describes an archimimus accompanying the funeral of Vespasian. This archmimus performed his part admirably, not only representing the person, but imitating, according to custom, ut est mos, the manners and language of the living Emperor. He contrived a happy stroke at the prevailing foible of Vespasian when he enquired the cost of all this funeral pomp? 'Ten million of sesterces!' On this he observed that, if they would give him but a hundred thousand, they might throw his body into the Tiber. The Pantomimi were quite of a different class. They were tragic actors, and usually mute; they combined the arts of gesture, music, and dances of the most impressive character. Their silent language has often drawn tears by the pathetic emotions they excited. 'Their very nod speaks, their hands talk, and their fingers have a voice,' says one of their admirers. Seneca, grave as was his profession, confessed his taste for pantomimes had become a passion; and by the decree of the Senate, that the Roman knights should not attend the pantomimic players in the streets, it is evident that the performers were greatly honoured. Lucian has composed a curious treatise on pantomimes."

AT the Ladbroke Hall, at 3 p.m. on Tuesday next, under the direction of Messrs. Lynn and Harding, copyright performances will be given of A Broken Rosary, a play in four acts, by Mr. A. W. S. Cross, M.A., and Goliah Quagg, a one-act play, by Mr. Walter Parke.

THE "ERA ANNUAL," 1910. The most complete theatrical dictionary of dates ever published. It will also be found to be the most interesting annual of the year, containing, as it does, many stories told by members of the dramatic and musical professions. Illustrated by photographs and autographs. Price 1s., post free. Address: The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE curtain rang down on Saturday last on the Kennington pantomime Queen of Hearts, and a full house assembled to take farewell of the principals who had established themselves warm favourites during the six weeks' run. The proceedings were of an enthusiastic nature, and Mr. Frank Dix, that versatile genius, who writes Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomimes now-a-days, is to be complimented on having once again hit the popular taste. Mr. Julien Wilson, the composer and conductor; Mr. C. F. Parsley, the Kennington treasurer; and Mr. H. Barrett Brandreth, the business manager, also deserve a word of congratulation on the result of Mr. Arthur's Christmas venture.

THE annual meeting of the shareholders of the Eastbourne Pier Company was held on Tuesday. Councillor C. F. Simmons, who occupied the chair, said the past year had been the most successful one the company has experienced since the opening of the new Pavilion, the number of visitors to the pier having increased by many thousands. A dividend of seven per cent. had been declared, and a reserve fund of £10,000 has accumulated during the past seven years. Upwards of £20,000 had been spent on pier improvements, and that had been paid out of the revenue. By Easter the inside maple floor would be removed, and dramatic entertainments and concerts would be again given in the pavilion.

THE Gaiety Rowing Club held their first annual dinner at the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, on the evening of the 6th inst. The members are recruited entirely from the engineering, mechanical, and clerical staffs of the Gaiety Theatre, the number of members and visitors at dinner being fifty-three. Numerous congratulatory letters were read from patrons of the club, including Miss Jean Aiwyn, Mr. W. H. Dawes, Mr. Edward Royce, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Robert Hale, Mr. A. J. Evelyn, and Mr. Ralph Roberts. Mr. G. Applebee was in the chair, and in proposing the toast of "The Gaiety Rowing Club," complimented the members on their past season's work, their success in winning the handsome challenge cup for Junior Fours at the N.A.R.A. Thames Regatta being an event they might well be proud of.

"THE VISITORS" was proposed by Mr. C. H. Hodges, and acknowledged by Mr. H. B. Burcher. The toast of "The Officers" was given by Mr. C. H. Cannon, and replied to by Mr. M. Collins, the hon. secretary. In a humorous speech Mr. H. W. Elliott gave the toast of "The Chairman." Several presentations took place during the evening, the chairman being presented with a case of silver plate for his kindness in coaching the various crews. Mr. Collins, the hard-working and popular secretary, was presented with a kit bag. The most successful oarsman's prize, presented by the chairman, was won by Mr. W. Patton.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

LEGAL NOTICES.

WHEREAS by an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, made in the matter of the Trusts of an Indenture of Settlement, dated the 1st day of August, 1859, and made between CAROLINE BANKSIA HEATHER, spinster, of the first part, JOHN HEATHER of the second part, FRANCIS HARPER of the third part, and FRANCIS SCHWENCK GILBERT and THOMAS STEPHENS of the fourth part, and in an action Harper v. King-Stephens, 1909, H. 941, and dated the 10th day of May, 1909, an Enquiry has been directed as to what children the said Caroline Banksia Harper had by her marriage with the said Francis Harper, and when the said children were born respectively, and whether they are all living, and if any are dead when they died respectively, and who are the legal personal representatives of such of them as being sons may have died after attaining twenty-one years or under that age, leaving surviving issue, or being daughters may have attained that age or married respectively. And whereas VICTORIA ALICE MAUD HARPER (a daughter of the said Francis Harper and Caroline Banksia Harper), who died on the 22nd October, 1879, at the City of Dublin Hospital, Ireland, is believed to have gone through a form of marriage with one FRED SOLOMON at a private house in Hill-square, Edinburgh, Scotland, in or about the end of September or early in October, 1879. Now the said Fred Solomon is by his Solicitors on or before the 9th day of March, 1910, to come in and prove his claim at the Chambers of Mr. Justice JOYCE, Room 689, at the Royal Courts of Justice, Strand, in the County of London, or in default thereof he will be peremptorily excluded from the benefit of the said Order.
Wednesday, the 16th day of March, 1910, at 12.30 o'clock, in the afternoon, at the said Chambers, is appointed for hearing and adjudicating upon the claims.
Dated this 27th day of January, 1910.
W. O. HEWLETT, Master.
Helder, Roberts, Walton and Giles, 3 and 4, Clement's Inn, Strand, London, Agents for A. J. Puntan, Swansea, Glamorgan, Solicitors for the Plaintiff.
Note.—The said Fred Solomon is believed to have gone to New York some years ago, and to have been engaged at the Casino, New York. It is believed that previous to the marriage above mentioned the said Fred Solomon was married to an actress who was known by the name of Plimsoll.

CHANCERY DIVISION.
MR. JUSTICE EVE.
Between THOMAS HEFFERNAN, Plaintiff, and
ERNEST THEUBEREON, MABEL THEUBEREON (his wife), and HUGH C. BUCKLER, Defendants.
To the above-named Defendants,
ERNEST THEUBEREON and MABEL THEUBEREON (his wife).

TAKE NOTICE that this action was on the 26th day of October, 1909, commenced against you, and that the Plaintiff by his writ of summons claims:—
1. An injunction restraining the Defendants, their servants, agents, and workmen from announcing for representation by the circulation of Playbills or otherwise, and from representing or causing to be represented, and from publishing, disposing of, divulging, or making any use of the Plaintiff's play intituled "The Cobra," or any other dramatic piece or entertainment or book of which the words, scenes, characters or incidents are copied or imitated or colourably altered from the words, scenes, characters, or incidents of the Plaintiff's said play.
2. Damages.
3. Delivery up of all copies of or extracts from the Plaintiff's said play, or any such dramatic piece or entertainment or book as aforesaid in the possession of the Defendants.
4. Costs.
And that the Court has by Order dated the 13th day of January, 1910, ordered that the publication by advertisement of the said writ and of the said Order once in "The Era" newspaper and once in the "Stage" newspaper, be deemed good and sufficient service of the said writ upon you, the said Defendants, Ernest Theubereon and Mabel Theubereon.
And further take notice that you are required to appear to the said writ of summons within eight days from the date, inclusive of such date at which the last of the advertisements hereby directed shall appear, and that in default of your so doing the Plaintiff may proceed therein, and judgment may be given in your absence.
You may appear thereto by entering appearances either personally or by solicitor at the Central Office, Royal Courts of Justice, London.

1910—THE ERA ANNUAL—1910

PRESS OPINIONS.
DAILY TELEGRAPH, Feb. 2, 1910.
Once more "The Era" Annual justifies its claim to a place which is unique in the theatrical literature of the year. It contains a record of all the new plays and important revivals produced at the London theatres and in the provinces during the twelve months ending Nov. 30 last, arranged in two lists, one according to the theatres and the other alphabetically according to titles. Then another carefully compiled section gives the casts concerned in these productions. The principal sketches put on at the London and provincial variety houses are treated in the same thoroughgoing manner, and lists of the plays produced in Paris, Berlin, and New York complete a remarkably comprehensive survey of the doings of the theatrical year. It will be clearly seen, therefore, that to the "profession," the student, and the theatrical enthusiast "The Era" Annual is indispensable. But the casual reader is also skilfully catered for in the series of articles and stories contributed by many favourites of the stage, including Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley. No conscientious theatre-goer can do without his "Era" Annual.

THE ROAD, February, 1910.
"The Era" Annual for 1910, illustrated (1s., The Era Office), always one of the best theatrical volumes of the year, this time excels itself. It gives a dramatic and musical calendar (each day recalling some event of importance in corresponding years); a number of short stories, each by some well-known actor or acting-manager; new plays and important revivals in London and suburban houses for 1909; the same in the provinces; an alphabetical list of plays, both London and provincial, for the whole year; the casts of new plays; plays produced in New York; new pieces at the Paris theatres; the same at Berlin; principal sketches at London variety houses, and casts thereof; separate lists of theatres and music halls in the United Kingdom; a theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary; and, last and saddest, the deaths of the year illustrated, brought down to so late a date that it includes photos of Mr. E. H. Carpenter, who died on Dec. 23, and Mme. Meta Illing, who died on Dec. 26 last past. It is a veritable mine of information between two covers, and makes us wonder how so many valuable facts can be published at the low price charged for this. Our sincere congratulations to the editor and publisher thereof.

MR. H. A. JONES PROTESTS.

Mr. HENRY ARTHUR JONES has always been fond of philosophising on the drama. Between 1883 and 1894 he periodically published essays, delivered addresses, and wrote letters on the subject. The tone of these effusions has generally been denunciatory and pessimistic. Starting, in 1883, with the enquiry why we have no national drama worthy of the name, he found an answer in the fact that the drama is not merely an art but a popular amusement, that managers and authors have no better beacon to guide them than the restless doubtful flickerings of popular fancy, and that the middle-classes like plays that confirm and flatter them in their own self-content and genial, ignorant self-worship; that the upper classes choose plays that studiously reject everything heroic; and the lower class loves "dramas like the rank raw spirit they drink, which has no nourishment, but gives a rousing hot sensation when swallowed." In 1889 he protested against the first-night judgment of plays, saying: "If the average man cannot be trusted in a mental operation so simple and direct as knowing whether he feels an electric shock or not, how can he be trusted in a mental operation so subtle, so complex, so indefinite, so elusive of demonstration as the formation of an opinion on a work of art?" In 1891 he discussed the science of the drama in the New Review, and put into words what he called the dramatic author's perpetual dilemma—viz.: "How shall I, while writing a play which will be sufficiently popular to bring in at least seven hundred pounds a week to cover my manager's expenses, yet preserve that removed attitude which stands quite apart from all passions and prejudices, and contemplates them as something external and objective?" Discussing the literary drama in the New Review in 1892, Mr. JONES remarked: "The modern English drama needs to be established on a sound intellectual basis." Addressing the Playgoers' Club, in 1884, he mourned over the scarcity of original modern plays of high excellence and serious import. "Our great need," said Mr. JONES, "is for a school of plays of serious intention, plays that implicitly assert the value and dignity of human life, that it has great passions and great aims." But we need not labour our proof that Mr. JONES has, in theory at least, been always on the side of high art.

At first sight it has sometimes seemed that Mr. JONES's denunciation of contemporary dramatic art was a little offensive to his fellow-dramatists. A comic paper some years since, in a burlesque biography of the proprietor of a popular restaurant, described him, on a certain date, as being wrecked with a crew of Italian galley slaves on the Cornish coast, and shortly after lecturing at Exeter Hall on "What I Suffered for Italy." It would not be difficult to draw a parallel between Mr. JONES's career and that imagined for the late Mr. ROMANO. The statements made by Mr. JONES may or may not have been correct; the curious part of it is that he of all men should have made them.

We all seek in art recreation. Playgoers, as VICTOR HUGO said, may be divided into those who think, those who feel, and the populace. The masterpiece satisfies all three. Thus in Othello we have a marvellous study of the growth of the passion of jealousy and an analysis of intellectual power without humanity; a play full of joy, sorrow, love, and hate; and a drama of varied and constant incident and "movement." But there are very few people capable of writing masterpieces, and the thinkers have to be thankful for an occasional treat when a play is produced which logically develops a thesis. These plays are generally financial failures, because the thinkers amongst the playgoers are comparatively few. When Sir A. W. PINERO gave complete studies of a tragedy of modern self-indulgence in Iris, of the tragedy of genteel slavery in Letty, and of up-to-date egoism in Mid-Channel, he had to face, if not financial loss, certainly diminished receipts. But, from an intellectual point of view, these were his most interesting and creditable works. He may be said to have "given his proofs" of ambition, and to have made sacrifice to superiority. But it is difficult to discover in any of Mr. H. A. JONES's plays, except perhaps in parts of The Crusaders, any desire to "suffer for Italy." It is impossible to discern in his dramas any deep thought or genuine criticism of life. It is equally impossible to gather any from those of other successful dramatists; but then they give Heaven thanks and make no boast. In his lecture to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion Theatre on Sunday Mr. JONES alluded to the "few very simple rules" which, from time to time, he had affirmed and tried to enforce as the only ones by which we can establish and sustain an English national drama. He denounced "legs and tomfoolery" as in direct antithesis to drama, though he admitted there was a good deal to be said for them as a specific against boredom.
